

1-17-2019

Growing in Diversity

Paola Mora

Southern Adventist University, paolam@southern.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://knowledge.e.southern.edu/interactivejour_blog

Part of the Christian Denominations and Sects Commons, and the Journalism Studies Commons

Recommended Citation

Mora, Paola, "Growing in Diversity" (2019). Blog. 4.
https://knowledge.e.southern.edu/interactivejour_blog/4

This Web Publication is brought to you for free and open access by the Interactive Journalism: Investigating Diversity Project at KnowledgeExchange@Southern. It has been accepted for inclusion in Blog by an authorized administrator of KnowledgeExchange@Southern. For more information, please contact jspears@southern.edu.

JANUARY 17, 2019 BY PAOLA MORA

Paola Mora – Growing in Diversity

My name is Paola Mora and I had a problem with belonging.

My parents are missionaries and, as a result, I moved around a lot. In my twenty years of life, I have lived in eight different countries: Guatemala, Costa Rica, Honduras, Argentina, Chile, Philippines, Hong Kong and, finally, the United States.

It sucked. I just wanted to go somewhere where I belonged. I wanted to find a culture that I could entirely embrace or a country that I could call home. Instead, I was a mix of various customs, values, and beliefs. I was like a puzzle piece that could never just quite fit in.

But as the years passed I learned about the beauty of diversity. I realized that things that separate us have the power to unite; the things that make us different are what make life worth living. When I became aware of this everything changed: It changed the way I viewed the world and the way I viewed myself.

That is why I am so excited to be working on this project. I hope that our research gives some insight into the diversity around us; its conflicts, its strengths and what it all means. I hope that this study helps others realize that unity is not always perfect but it is always beautiful.

 TEAM PROFILES