Second Entrance to Library Opened

We are excited to announce the opening of a north-side entrance to the library, designed to enhance accessibility and convenience for all our patrons. This additional entry point has an accessibility ramp, making it easier for everyone to access our resources and services.

The north entrance is strategically positioned to reduce congestion at the main entrance and provide quicker access to popular library spaces.

We hope this new addition will make your library visits more enjoyable. Stop by and explore the north entrance today!

EBSCO Launches New User Interface

EBSCO recently launched a new user interface across the majority of its database platforms.

Key features of this update include:

- Yellow indicator icon for peer-reviewed materials
- URL is now a stable permalink for sharing searches
- Easy access to your personal MyEBSCO account to save articles for future reference
- Quick access to reference works in the item details page (for select materials)

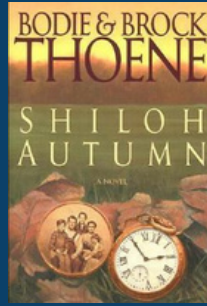

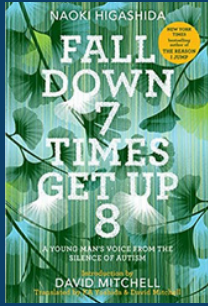

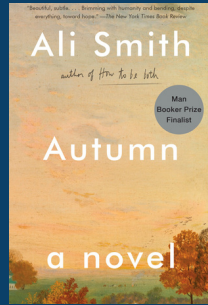

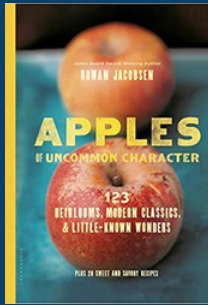

Please contact Donald Martin with questions or if you would like to schedule a training session for the new interface.

Consumer Digest Buying Guide

McKee Library now offers online access to the Consumer Reports Buying Guide. Users can read the guide online by searching the library's catalog. To view the material, users must sign into the library's system using their Southern Adventist University email and password.

For any questions about the library's periodicals, please get in touch with Mica Myers.

Fall Into a Good Read

Whether you're looking to master a new recipe or dive into an enthralling novel, there's something for everyone. This autumn, make the most of the crisp weather by curling up with a good book and a warm drink. The library also offers comfy reading nooks and quiet spaces perfect for study sessions or leisurely reading. Don't forget to check out our reading lists to find the perfect fall read.

Happy reading!
