Tax Credits Would Cut Costs

By Dr. O. C. Carmichael, Jr.

A plan designed to ease the financial burden of parents of college students and to create new sources for the establishment of scholarships is receiving increasing attention and support from both educators and legislators.

The concept of granting tax credits for some expenses of higher education has had bipartisan backing in both houses of Congress for more than a decade, but has never been enacted into law.

Now there are signs that a tuition tax credit measure may pass in the current session of the 89th Congress.

In 1964, a bill introduced by Senators Abraham A. Ribicoff, D., Conn., and Peter H. Dominick, R., Colo., and co-sponsored by thirty-five senators of both parties failed passage by the narrow margin of 48 votes to 45. The bill has been reintroduced in the present Congress.

During recent weeks added support for tax credit legislation has come from such groups as the Young Republican Federation and the House Republican Conference.

Educators, too, are demonstrating strong backing for the measure. Interim results of a poll being conducted by the Citizens National Committee for Higher Education (CNCHE) of South Bend, Indiana, show that more than 89 percent of college presidents and trustees responding favor the principles embodied in tuition tax credit.

Educational organizations voicing support for the principle include the Association of American Colleges and the Citizens for Educational Freedom.

The tuition tax credit concept stems from widespread concern over the mounting costs of tuition and fees at both private and publicly supported colleges and universities. Proponents of the measure note that costs have been rising at an increasing rate, and that all evidence indicates that they will continue to do so.

The reason, they point out, is that increased enrollments, necessary increases in faculty salaries, and general increases in expenses have forced annual operating budgets sharply upward. The increased budgets have been mirrored almost universally in alarming rises in the cost of a college education to the student and his family.

Tuition tax credit was conceived to relieve financial pressure on persons paying for college educations and to reduce the threat of students being priced off the campus.

The measure would permit a credit against the Federal income tax of persons paying for tuition, fees, and other essential expenses of college students.

Advocates of the plan emphasize the difference between a tax credit and a tax deduction. Each dollar of credit would reduce a person's tax by one dollar. If a taxpayer owed $1,000 at the end of the tax year and had qualified for a $400 tax credit, he would owe the Federal Government only $600 in income tax. A $400 tax credit would save exactly $400 for the individual whether he earned $5,000 a year or $20,000.

A deduction, on the other hand, would save a $20,000-a-year man more tax dollars than a $5,000-a-year man.

The Ribicoff-Dominick measure—typical of the many tax credit bills put forth by members of both houses in recent years—is based on the first $1,500 paid for tuition, fees, books, and supplies per student at an institution of higher learning.

The amount of credit would be 75 percent of the first $200 spent, 25 percent of the next $300, and 10 percent of the next $1,000. The maximum credit allowable would be $325.

The tax credit would come to anyone—student, relative, friend, or benefactor—paying the educational costs. Broad assistance in support of the most needy students could, therefore, be generated by the colleges and universities themselves.

In addition, scholarship-holding students from middle-income families could reduce their scholarships to the extent that they received tax credits. This would permit institutions to make more generous and more selective use of increasingly inadequate scholarship funds.

Opposition to tuition tax credit has come from several quarters. Much has been based on a lack of understanding about differences between a tax deduction—which would tend to favor higher-income taxpayers—and a tax credit—which would save the lower and middle-income taxpayer a higher proportional share of his income.

Similarly, some opposition has been based on the fact that the measure would not help those with incomes too low to necessitate payment of Federal income taxes. Advocates point out that just because a measure helps many people does not imply that it hurts others, that other methods exist to help low-income people, and that, in fact, millions of dollars of scholarship money could be both liberated and generated by the measure to help students of limited means.

Finally, there has been some opposition on the grounds that benefits would be greater for students at higher-priced private colleges than at the lower-cost state universities. The percentage of relief would be higher at the publicly supported institutions, which are, in any case, increasing their own tuitions dramatically, and are frequently charging out-of-state students nearly as much as private colleges.

Increased understanding of the merits of tuition tax credit is reflected in the results of the continuing CNCHE survey. Of 3,248 respondents of the initial mailing, 2,895 indicate that they favor the principles of the measure.

Trustees of private institutions support tax credit 1,954 to 135, with 38 undecided. Trustees of state institutions favor the measure 305 to 67, with 3 undecided.

Presidents of private colleges and universities are in support by 595 to 44, with 9 undecided, and 42 of 99 presidents of public institutions favor the concept.

Further information on tuition tax credits may be obtained by writing to Citizens National Committee for Higher Education, Inc., P. O. Box 2122, South Bend, Indiana 46615.

SMC Graduate, Lt. C. H. Giles, Saves Young Girl

Lt. Charles H. Giles, a doctor with the U. S. Public Health Service stationed in Washington, D. C., saved the life of an 8 year old girl on July 24.

The car in which the girl was riding, along with her mother, sister and brother, went off the George Washington Memorial Parkway and plunged into the Potomac River.

Lt. Giles saw the accident, stopped his car and began swimming toward the survivors who were struggling to hang onto a limb.

He gripped the girl and pulled her to shore and applied rescue techniques to restore the girl's breathing. The sister and brother could not be revived, but the mother was pulled to safety.

Lt. Giles is married to Elaine M. Sullivan, both 1961 graduates.

Homecoming Plans Include Wright, Holland

Annual Homecoming events will begin on Friday evening, November 4, in the new church sanctuary at Southern Missionary College at 7:30 p.m.

Guest speakers will include Elder K. A. Wright, a former SMC president, and Elder Don Holland, MV secretary of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference.

Honor classes are graduates of '41 and '56.

The Saturday evening entertainment in the new Physical Education Center will feature Stan Midgley in the film lecture "Northwest Adventure." Midgley is known as one of America's outstanding humorous lecturers. Admission will be complimentary to alumni families.

According to Elder J. Don Crook, association president, the expected attendance indicates the largest Homecoming in SMC's history.

Madison Alumni Furnish Chapel

Madison College Alumni have recently given a gift to Madison Hospital that will benefit Southern Missionary College's Associate Degree Program students who are currently studying on the Madison Extension Campus.

This is a gift of beautiful new furnishings for the hospital chapel, named for Dr. A. J. Sutherland, a former president of Madison College.

The beautiful chapel has a Baldwin organ, lovely church furniture, and wall-to-wall carpet.

The Alumni gift included the organ, pews, pulpit, Bible table, carpet, picture screen, and 30 books.

The entire chapel is bathed with glorious light coming through stained glass windows which creates subdued, yet sparkling beauty. This dedicated area, open day and night, will be greatly appreciated by the students of nursing on the Madison Extension Campus.

Construction to Begin On Sign for Campus Mall

Construction will begin shortly on the new entrance sign, a gift of the members of the Southern Missionary College Alumni Association.

The sign will be located at the front of the mall between the two main auto entrances. It will be of brick construction, decorated at each end by a planter, and aluminum letters across the front will read:

Southern Missionary College

A small plaque will be mounted, denoting the sign as a gift of the Alumni Association.

We are printing the letter of thanks from Dr. C. N. Rees, president of the college, written to the alumni officers and members of the association:

"At a recent meeting of the Board of Trustees, the architect's drawing of the college entrance sign was presented to the members of the board. They were told that the Alumni Association was raising money to make this sign and to provide the necessary funds for it.

"The board wished me, as secretary, to convey to you, as president and the officers and members of the Alumni Association, that they were most appreciative of your thoughtfulness in making this fine contribution to the plan of the campus.

"Possibly, some time in the future you will have the opportunity to express this appreciation to the alumni for their contribution."

Most cordially yours,
C. N. Rees, President, SMC
