About the Film

In the midst of the Egyptian Arab Spring, Bassem Youssef creates the satirical show, “Al Bernameg,” which quickly becomes the most viewed television program in the Middle East, with 30 million viewers per episode. But, in a country where free speech is not settled law, his show becomes as controversial as it is popular. Despite increasing danger, Bassem employs comedy, not violence, to comment on hypocrisy in media, politics, and religion. Tickling Giants follows the “Al Bernameg” team as they discover democracy is not easily won. The movie trailer is available at http://bit.ly/2hSoBHe.

Finding Vivian Maier

Produced and Directed by John Maloof
Recommended by Pamela Jansen
TR140 .M3366 F563 2014

History buff, John Maloof, was in for a pleasant surprise when he reviewed photo negatives he purchased by chance at an auction. What Maloof discovered was an intriguing collection of photos, which led him on a search for more of Maier’s work, including photographs, films, and video interviews. Maier’s work closely emulated that of notable street photographers, and Finding Vivian Maier gives viewers a glimpse into the previously unknown life and history of an incredibly talented woman.

During her lifetime, Vivian Maier’s collection of more than 150,000 photographs went unknown and unpublished. However, since their posthumous discovery, they have received international attention and have been celebrated by countless publications. Vivian Maier: Self-Portraits, reveals an intimate portrait of the artist with approximately 60 black-and-white and four-color self-portraits culled from the extensive Maloof archive, the preeminent collector of the work of Vivian Maier and editor of the highly acclaimed Vivian Maier: Street Photographer.
