500 Freshmen enter SMC

Nearly 500 freshmen rolled into College Hall last weekend in time for two days of intensive orientation held in the student union in Wright Hall. Orientation began Sunday evening and continued all day the next day. freshmen were given advice and counsel in the ways of college life at SMC. Dr. Frank Knittel, president of SMC, talked on "Achieving Social Maturity," and Dr. Vanda Vere, chairman of the business administration department, spoke of "The Secret to College Success." followed by a lively question-answer period.

Mrs. Laurel Wells, director of student finances, gave information on work opportunities and responsibilities. After lunch Dr. Arno Knittel, director of admissions and records, showed the freshmen the procedure for registration. The rest of the day was given to testing and recreation.

Some of the tests given were the ACT (American College Test), Vocational and Interest tests, the California Psychological Inventory Test, and the new CLEP (College Level Examination Program).

Freshman response to the orientation was varied. Rob Smith from Fort Collins, Colorado, felt the lectures were interesting but that he wasn't learning much. "It's sorta like you're in a big academy, so far." Louise Liles of Newmarket, Virginia, thought the faculty should show themselves and give the new students a chance to meet them in an informal way, such as in a "handshake like we had in academy.

Rev. Howard Miller from East Liverpool, Ohio, had this to say: "Lectures, lectures, lecture...was a big plus, except for Dr. Knittel--he was tedious."

When asked what plans were to make in improving next year's freshman orientation, Kenneth Spears, dean of students, answered that as many as 50 former SMC students would be participating in next year's orientation program in an effort to ease the frustration and alienation of the new students and help them orient themselves to campus life. Each former student will take a small group of新生es through the ten-student and tell them in their own way what it is all about. Orientation of this type has been tried with amazing success on other college campuses, Dean Spears added.

Approximately 500 freshmen have been enrolled in SMC, 527 freshmen, 527 sophomores, 552 juniors, 207 seniors, and 47 special students.

CLEP helps freshmen gain college credit

Enrollment at Southern Missionary College started near the second day of registration closed, showed a decrease in students of almost 76 over last year's registration total of 1,414. However, the Admissions and Records Office expects approximately 59-103 last registrants during the next few days.

Participation in the first test for entering freshmen at $15 ($25 for two or more) per test. The five general subject areas covered were English, natural sciences, humanities, social sciences, and mathematics.

Twelve freshmen were able to pass all five areas thereby gaining the maximum 30 hours credit. According to Dennis Furr, one of the lucky twelve, the exam was well worth the initial investment. As he explained: "The tests were hard but I figure that paying $25 for a year's worth of credit was better than paying $2500 for a year's worth of school.

SMC exams are available to everyone in both general and specific course areas and can be taken on Tuesday and Wednesday of the third week of each month in the testing department of the administration building. The next CLEP exam is scheduled for September 12 and 13. Those desiring more information should contact Mr. Davis.

Faculty Retreat as school opens

This weekend will occasion an SMC faculty-staff spiritual retreat at the MacKee camp near Harrison Bay State Park. The purpose of this activity is to bring new awareness of the role and responsibility each faculty member has to the spiritual tone of the college's program. Dr. Frank Knittel originated the idea which was finalized by the administration this summer.

The retreat will begin Friday evening at 6 o'clock, registration time with Dr. Douglas Bemelani, chairman of SMC religion department, as玉米. No one will be staying at the camp overnight because it is so close to the college, but everyone will return Sabbath morning.

After Sabbath School, Dr. Carlson, chairman of SMC religious science department, will be speaker for the church service. Lunch will be catered by the cafeteria.

According to Dr. Knittel, on Sabbath afternoon individual groups will discuss and report on topics including the following:

- Significance of faculty participation with students in campus religious activities; religion in the classroom, both as part of the discipline or as a general attitude; relationship between mentors and mentees and the distinction of each; counseling sessions: private, group, residence halls, class, and socialization on campus.
- Each group will bring back its resolutions to the general faculty.

Academy or college students are welcome to participate in the retreat all day Sabbath. The retreat will be over by about 3:00 p.m.

Approximately fifty freshmen received between six and thirty hours general education credit last Monday and Tuesday by taking the CLEP exam, according to Dr. R. Davis, director of counseling and testing.

SMC is now the third college in Tennessee to offer CLEP (College Level Examination Program). The exam was made available for the first time to entering freshmen at $15 ($25 for two or more) per test. The five general subject areas covered were English, natural sciences, humanities, social sciences, and mathematics.

Twelve freshmen were able to pass all five areas thereby gaining the maximum 30 hours credit. According to Dennis Furr, one of the lucky twelve, the exam was well worth the initial investment. As he explained: "The tests were hard but I figure that paying $25 for a year's worth of credit was better than paying $2500 for a year's worth of school.

The next CLEP exam is scheduled for September 12 and 13. Those desiring more information should contact Mr. Davis.

Construction on time; Spring completion hoped

The new cafeteria/student center building is still under construction, but plans call for completion before the end of this school year.

Excavating for this building began one year ago on the site directly behind the administration building, Wright Hall.

The first floor is already finished. It will house the computer setup and the business administration teaching department, and will also serve as the main entrance to the cafeteria.

The classrooms and offices will be ready for use by the first week in September.

Next in the schedule of completion will be third floor. Hopefully, it will be ready for use by the end of the calendar year.

Third floor will largely be the student lounge. Tentative plans are for the lounge to be divided into three sections: (1) a formal lounge, where students will be able to study individually with a very minimal amount of noise; (2) a semi-formal lounge, where students will be allowed to study together; and (3) an informal lounge, or game room, where students can relax, play table games, and do all the talking they wish.

Third floor will also house the SA offices. The SA has expressed an interest in working with the administration for the planning, designing, and furnishing of this floor, especially the areas designated for their offices.

Second floor should be finished by next February or March. The new cafeteria will be located here, with the food preparation area opening directly into what is now the student center on third floor of Wright Hall. This will be the dining room.

For those tired of waiting in long lines to be served meals, the new cafeteria will speed up the service by about four times. The present cafeteria can handle only six students per minute, but the new cafeteria will be equipped to serve 25 students in the same length of time, according to Charles Frewing, general manager.

The north end of second floor will contain a large dining room which will be used for banquets. This room, which will accommodate up to 150 people, can be partitioned into two, three, or four smaller rooms where committees can meet for lunch.

An elevator is also in use in the new building.

The main entrance to the student lounge and the cafeteria will be on the west side from the sidewalk which runs between the instructional building. It won't be too long before students will be using these entrances.

Students arrive early for organizational sessions

The staff of SMC's Student Association gathered all its forces and prepared for the week's events. The sum of the workshop was to organize the SA into a smoothly operating machine which ordinarily isn't started until two weeks onto the school year, according to executive vice president Les Hess.

During the workshops, Ms. Hess began her discussions Monday evening by delivering a lecture on some of the official papers goals. Reggie Tryon, SA President; Les Hess, executive vice president; and Bob Birch, religious vice president gave talks on the coming year's objectives. After the meeting adjourned, the students gathered to have an informal meeting of prayer and music.

The following day the general assembly of SA committee members met in the student center. Elder Des Cummings Jr. and Les Hess gave pro talks on the delegation of authority, obligation and responsibility. The meeting hours were filled with plans individual strategies.

A question-answer period was started at 3 p.m. William Taylor, public relations director of SMC and President Frank Knittel addressed the SA on the importance of good public relations and the relationship of the student leader to the campus administration respectively.

Elder Des Cummings Sr., president of the Georgia Cumberland Conference, gave a talk on the advantages of being friendly.

The workshops ended Sunday afternoon when the student body began to divide up into camps to begin working.

"I would like to insist in the minds of the girls a sense of personal responsibility," I feel that is a good trait to have," stated Mrs. Florence Stuckey, new dean of women at Southern Missionary College.

"Instead of the mother and dean, Mrs. Stuckey does keep busy but in her free time she likes to walk and go on hikes with her family.

Although green to SMC Mrs. Stuckey has already made a lot of friends. Carla Brown, a returning student, remarked, "She's really nice and talkative."

New to the campus is Cindy Williams, her thoughts about the new dean were, "I like her."

Roger Chandler, a junior from the village, found in the girls' lobby stated, "Yes, pretty nice lady, I think."

A Short Season

A SHORT SEASON
By Randy Ellms

"Men were born to live, to suffer, and to die, and what follows him in the tragic lot there is no denying this in the final end. But we must, dear Fox, deny it all along the way." —THOMAS WOLFE (You Can’t Go Home Again)

This tale, an ode to the English writer is brought to life in A Short Season, the story of Brian Piccolo and his fight with cancer at the height of a promising football career. The book is melancholy in tone from the beginning: The reader is alerted on page one of the pending doom of this young man who is fighting a losing battle. Somehow the reader is able to identify with the struggle, maybe because the reader respects those who struggle valiantly against great odds.

Jeannine Morris (wife of one of Piccolo’s teammates in the Chicago Bears) is credited as the author of this work when in reality Piccolo wrote all but the last pages himself before cancer claimed his life at age 26. After the shock of his death was passed Piccolo’s wife asked Jeanine to finish his book.

Her contribution is more of an epilogue than a finish but it blends well with the overall tone of the work.

Piccolo, as his teammates called him, wrote the book in first person giving the reader a sense of someone telling him a very moving story. A dialogue is well used with the reader as the objective. The book is certainly no great literary masterpiece, which probably explains why I enjoyed it.

The work has something for all types of readers, i.e., drama for the Shakespeare types, love for the romantics, and some good football readin’ for the sports minded. All through the book one gets the feeling of wanting to help this man as he is caught in a terminal situation.

Even if the reader happens to be racially consciously, the book holds something for him. Brian Piccolo, Wake Forest graduate, and very much a Southerner, roomed with Gale Sayers, Kansas State graducate, black and very much a football player. Piccolo’s description of this relationship is refreshing indeed, especially in the era of geographically unnatural arrogance.

In more of a hope state the book tolerates Piccolo’s urge to success as he overcome obstacles of every nature to achieve his goal, then reaches a stunning climax as he loses the ultimate fight — the fight for his life. The courage, self control, and love for his family exhibited during his bout with cancer give the book some of its most moving reading.

The words that most fittingly describe the tone of writing are those penned by a Hollywood producer as the movie, “Brain’s Song,” was being made: “No one ever remembers that Brian Piccolo died; they just remember that he lived; and how he lived.”

Tennis in — Basketball Out

By John Marvin

Credit the buildings and grounds departments with another achievement in engineering. They are now within a week or two of the completion of four additional tennis courts.

Estimated cost of the overall project is expected to be in the neighborhood of $15,000. Included within this price is the cost of reinforcing the existing four courts.

According to Coach Lovejoy, tentative plans are to relocate the basketball goals somewhere behind the gymnasium.

Meanwhile, tennis anyone?

New course offered at LLU

In Respiratory Therapy

LOMA LINDA, Calif.—The first baccalaureate program in respiratory therapy to be offered on the west coast begins at Loma Linda University in September, 1972, according to acting chief of the respiratory program Reynold A. King.

Students wanting to earn a baccalaureate degree will be able to take their first two years at any of the 90 schools offering associate degrees in respiratory therapy and then enter their third year at LLU without loss of credits. Or they can work as licensed respiratory therapists for as long as they wish before entering the upper division program.

Respiratory therapy is a relatively new allied medical specialty that deals with the treatment, management, and control of cardiopulmonary deficiencies and abnormalities. The growth of importance in this area has been spurred by increased air pollution and cigarette smoking.
Editorially Speaking

The Southern Accent staff welcomes you, students, parents, and faculty, back to school for another year. If we could see this school year in retrospect before it happened, most of us would lack the courage to go on.

Through all of it, the Accent will be here; now encompassing all criticism, now poking fun, then philosophizing. We won’t claim to be perfect in our reporting or writing, and the Accent will come across as if it is humanly possible for us!

The Southern Accent is here as a service to both students and faculty. We will comment on things, ideas and criticisms—anything which will make it a better paper for you.

This year, believing that such good enough coverage in printed bullet sessions, the Accent will largely ignore the trivial issues on campus. Instead we plan to take a look at the way’s of life—why are we here? Why did we come to SMU? We invite you readers to look deeply into your lives and find a meaning for your existence. Evaluate your own experiences, formulate your true goals. Decide what you really want in life, then strive for it. Maturity really yourself for whatever life has to offer.

Asst. staff members applied the SMC faculty and staff for having a spiritual/retreat this weekend. We hope that this will not be just another good Sabbath service, but an outpouring of real concern for us as students, as individuals, as maturing people.

We implore the faculty and administration to delve to true relationships: look below the known on campus. To look down to the roots of matters here on campus.

You freshmen just entering college, don’t let it scare you. Most of us have already tried the god of that year are more than willing to help you over the humps.

To all of our readers, our maxim for the year. Don’t take life too seriously, I’ll laugh at you anyway!

Editor’s note: This summer the Southern Board of Higher Education met on the Southern campus to discuss issues concerning Saddleback today. Among those present was Elder Robert H. Pierson, President of the Board of Directors of the Southern Adventist University. After the meeting, Elder Pierson and Mike Coulter the Southern president about to different students concerning young people.

Lyten: “Elder Pierson, what decisions have been made during the meeting of the Board of Higher Education which would effect the students of SMU?”

Elder Pierson: “We’ve been studying different areas of Christian education and the various aspects of our educational program. The first day and a half we were studying campus life problems as they relate primarily to our Christian standards. Again we have stressed and emphasized the goals and objectives of higher education. I think if this is one of the things that is put behind another today it is that we remember these goals and objectives and understand that we’re here, where we’re going and where we’re going to get there.”

Mike: “Many young people are wondering exactly how important Christian standards are on the Adventist College Campus. It is difficult to determine whether we are here to live standards or to get an education.”

Elder Pierson: “I believe that on a Southern Adventist Campus it is difficult to separate the living and the teaching education and having the standards for all of these, there are not merely standards.

When we talk about the type of living that the students engage in on the radio stations and the college papers, we’re talking about things that are pretty much in the way of what we think of as Christian education. There is a close relationship between the standards and our Christian education. Many times these outside things will prove a barrier to what’s inside. These things, too, are the flag that indicates when the King is in residence, if I may put it that way.

I don’t think you can say that the standards and Christian education are different things for they are intertwined. I think we have to educate and do everything that we can to encourage our people to see the why of the whole thing.”

Lyten: “What are your decision been made to promote more education along these lines? Youth are asking, why don’t we study the Standards?”

Elder Pierson: “Out of the study of this week there was a recommendation to do this very thing. I will agree with you that we ought to have more of what you have mentioned in making the study of our standards practical.

Mike: “Have any guidelines been set for the radio stations and college papers to follow.”

Elder Pierson: “There were some guidelines adopted by the Southern Council College stations and radio stations. These would be guidelines on the stations as to the type of criticism that should be found in our college papers.”

Elder Pierson: “I don’t mind criticism if it is constructive. I believe that the young people in attendance have much to help us with as a responsibility. Not all spirit to pull down is not in the interest of those people. We are working with the young people.

Lyten: “Today many of our students are studying the Bible and the “red books” for help in all aspects of life. How do we relate to this situation on Southern?

Elder Pierson: “The main thing for us to be concerned about is our own individual life in Christ and our relationship with Him that it will be a constant challenge to those around us.”

I don’t think we should enter into specifications—this is not the spirit of Christ. You know that the Spirit of Prophecy says that reformers ought to be very charitable people and not try to beat folks over the head with them.

When I talk about dress I don’t want it to be in an absolute manner, but on the other hand there are very good reasons in some cases.

So now we can tell who is a child of God and who belongs to Satan. Whoever is living a life of sin and doesn’t love his brother shows that he is not in God’s family. For the message to us one way and our departments and words may be the facts that we are Christians.”

By Steve Grimes
A TYPICAL CONVERSATION
MARCH 10, 1972
Hey man, did you hear what the administration is putting on the dorms?

“No, what?”

“Flush toilets?”

“Yep, that’s right. The administration says that the room was built up anyway. The actual cost is for the installation of the toilets would be like about twelve and a half a month, that’s about how much you spend on penny candy in a month, right?”

“Such inflation for 1971!20

Well maybe so, but don’t you realize what this means?”

“What?”

“It’s going to be a matter of time before the state requires all public housing units to have internal plumbing with flush toilets anyway, including dormitories.”

“Well, until then I plan to hold my eternal flame of freedom as high as the sun I possibly can. Otherwise I’ll get caught.”

Don’t you see, it’s the principles of the thing. The administration is forcing us to use something we can all without. The screaming is not to see the descent, but me, I can see through the administration’s benevolent facade and behind it is imperialist vice.”

“Hold on, now let’s come from the beginning has been that we should live our lives.”

“It is put beautifully in the Living New Testament. You see, it’s not just say and pray but do as well.”

Lyten: “What are you talking about is the result of a real revival and what people are taking place on our campus.”

Elder Pierson: “If it is a real revival it is going to bring a reformation. A real revival is not just a soul spinning—they are spinning a bottle of pop—just. It goes up a few times and then it is all gone. A revival is not just sentimental or emotional. A real revival will be a confrontation with Christ and a relationship with Christ that will change our lives. It will bring change in our habits, our thinking and our actions. It will change our eating and drinking, dressing and every part of it as we have a real reformation.”

Mike: “How does all the youth relate to the one that is happening within Christianity today?”

Elder Pierson: “We don’t want to lose our uniqueness, but we do need to stand for God’s truth! We are in the world but not of the world. We should never forget our place for being here and our place in relation to the way Christ’s soon coming. This should be our primary concern.”

Flame of freedom Fizzled in flushing: Now followers again!

SOUTHERN METHODIST UNIVERSITY

SOUTH DAKOTA

By Mike Cowild

SMC enrollment is still 33 students below last year's total. Registration for the academic year 1972-73 began at SMC on Tuesday, August 29, and the prospective freshmen were outside the gymnasium door long before the church curtain struck 8 p.m.

Before the weekend arrived there were 664 freshmen wading across the campus of SMC for the first time. The sophomore count was 293, while the junior class boasted 352 members. Two-year seniors were numbered at 102. The B.S. senior group added up to 185. Minority groups such as postgraduates were totaled at 39.

Registration itself was quite an experience for most folks, Ably Venice, a senior math teacher from Oklahoma, declared, "Registration that year was completed in half an hour. All classes were open and I didn't even need the class table, although I'm glad it was there."

Phil Wooten, a Smithfield, N.C., freshman related, "All my classes and basic courses only except English. I had only to change the time. I did have difficulty at the student finance table, apparently because the too-personalized paper work was behind."

There are 1,124 students here now, coming from such distant places as Peru, Rico, Africa, Bangladash, Thailand, Canada, and Switzerland. The influx of students within the S.U.S. staff is vast, students having come in from Murco to California.

There has, however, been a drop in enrollment from four years ago. Last year was kicked off with 1,387 students attending, whereas now SMC has a total of 1,354.

"There was no drop in admissions," according to Dr. Ann Knitzer, head director of Admissions and Records. "But without question there was a drop in attendance. As of yet, we're not sure why. We do not know. We are toying with over 4,500 sets of those we had accepted but who didn't show for registration, and the majority of these students are from outside the state and the city."

"We find that other college students are offering greater scholarships to a wider range of students than we are," Knitzer added. The number of home students returning from last year is 824, a mark higher than before. This shows confidence in the program.

"As for students planning to attend here from other unions, apparently some incentive was given them to go to our own regionally-based colleges," S.U.S. director of Planning, said that we have more of a student influx from Missouri than from any other do S.D. colleges.

"We also limited our nursing class, as opposed to last year's admit requirement in nursing. There do some definite reasons for the decline in actual attendance."

The Director also answered the question of why so many students came from outside the Southern Union to go to SMC. "Last year 85% of our students came from outside the Southern Union, and this year should be nearly as high. Why? "They're seeking, that's why. Improvement in the faculty, pleasant, country atmosphere, void of distractions," that SMC offers. Also, "The SMU offering of physical education, major atmosphere more than that in our own. And that's what we want."

CLEP's validity questioned

Last February the SMC faculty voted to make SMC a CLEP (College Level Examination Program) center. The CLEP is an examination which was recently given here have been used to secure the general educational background of the participating students. The basic purpose of the test is to enable individuals who have acquired their education in nontraditional ways to assess the level of their achievement for college placement. The tests evaluate the student's knowledge and understanding of fundamental facts and basic principles in five areas of the liberal arts, English, Natural Science, Math, Humanities, and Social Science.

New because of the success of the CLEP tests considerable discussion took place on the floor of the S.U.S. board. Some teachers had questioned students who passed CLEF and had found them to be lacking knowledge of basic facts which the teachers considered important.

This has annual year with the CLEF here at SMC. Throughout the year, the entire faculty will be supervising the overall achievement of the students who passed CLEP tests this fall. K.R. Davis, of Testing and Counseling, has been asked to compile the test results and to recommend, based on this information, how CLEF will most effectively be used in the upcoming school year.

CLEP will be given in fall of 1972 to 35 students who are members of the junior and senior classes.

MV weekend introduces Speakers, singers, & rodeo

MV activities for the student body this year have been launched this weekend, MV Weekend, with Elton Roland, leader of Celine Dion, magazine, as special speaker.

Do Holliday, Southern Union MV Secretary, presided over the opening meeting of the weekend Thursday evening.

Joining men for the weekend are the Georgia-Cumberland Roadhouse for Christ Singers who will be putting on a 9:00 p.m. performance "Dimensions" at 3:30 Sunday afternoon in the church.

The weekend will be brought to a close Saturday night at 9:00 when MV is sponsoring a variety show, rodeo, and campground.

Under the direction of Bob Breithaupt, SA religious vice-president, MV is planning a variety program of Christian growth and witness for students this year, including Religion Retreat, SPRAY, Branch Sabbath schools, in-groups, special music programs, a homecoming program, new and varied Sabbath school programs, and a different approach to temperature.

According to Breithaupt, these activities will begin slowly, following MV Weekend, and build up to avoid the usual student outdoorazo time.

Religion retreat, September 22-23, will feature Elder Ed Nelson, who will emphasize the essentials of the Gospel and Christian growth.

One of MV's main aims for the year is to raise a church in the Hogan area. David Nelson, of-charge director, will be calling out other MV projects such as branch Sabbath schools, Bible study groups, SPRAY, informal in-groups, and Temperance teams, which will be directed in the Hogan area.

SPRAY, Student Projects for Recreational Activities and Youth, will be a witnessing program in which students plan to learn by the College Entrance Examination Board.

Time will tell what will happen to CLEP next year. There is still time to put an application in for the examination to be taken Thursday and Tuesday. They will be given during the third Saturday week in every month this year.

Hundred of requests for literature from Wayout have been pouring into the Voice of Prophecy this summer as a result of some 34,000 pieces of literature distributed from a Wayout exhibit (picture above) displayed at Expo '72 held in Dallas, Texas in June.

Senate offices; For the asking

Electors for student senate candidate will be selected September 26 and 27. Filing for the twenty separate offices is set for September 18-22. Out of twenty senators, seven will represent the men's dormitories, five the village students, and the entire campus will have one representative in the senate.

Let these, student senate chairman and executive vice-president, advises students considering a possible candidacy to know the objectives of the senate. They are as follows: 1. To open a formal channel of student opinion to the administration. 2. To serve as the governing body for the Student Association and preside over its services.

Anyone may file as long as his GPA is above average and he is in good standing with the current rules of the school.

Softball season officially got underway last Friday afternoon, as the four teams met with Coach Lowery and their teams. Each team will carry 12 men for the duration of the 12-game season.

The teams are in exactly balanced, it appears difficult to make any predictions. If there is a team to go, it would have to be Athens. They’ve got pitching, power in the infield and a solid defense. Griffin and Hallman should be close this time. Griffin’s only overall weakness is lack of an overpowering pitcher, but their powerful lineup more than compensates for it.

Hallman needs only to solidify his defense and he will be right up near the top. Cockrell and Corbett both could easily take it all, however, Cockrell’s lack power in the lineup with the exception of Fenderson. Corbett also lacks an overpowering pitcher. Regardless of any predictions, it should be a tight race.

Sept. — Begins the intramural program with softball in full swing. (Then this season, we plan to get more interest in soccer and avoid the softball season conflict with the past.) Also, a golf tournament later in the month.

Oct. — Continue the softball season for a week or two, then kickoff of the football season. Also a Road Rally.

Don’t panic, there’s work

For those students who haven’t found work yet, the word from Laurel Wells, director of student finance, is: “Don’t panic! The first couple of weeks is always a period of confusion and changing schedules as students drop and add classes.”

Mrs. Wells continued by saying that students wanting work should bring a copy of their class schedule to the office within the first week of classes, or call 3:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Students who do not receive a letter by September 15th listing the job opportunities, open to him or her type of work only.

“If a student is willing to take any job available,” added Mrs. Wells, “they are free to call us or just about guarantee that student a job.”

Meanwhile, students are encouraged to visit the various departments themselves. Most of the auxiliary services of the college still have openings available. McKee’s Bakery is hiring as many students as can work the hours.

For those who have a car or a good part-time job, off-campus industries such as Socon Inc., Laundry Cabinet Shop, and Newcomb Service Factory are looking for part-time help.

Pay scales range from $1.60 to $2.10 for an-on-campus job, and up to $3.00 for some jobs. Some of these are offered afterpay. Headquarters Cabinet Shop in Apison, for instance. The pay, of course, is based on skill and experience.

“Over 75 percent of the students work at least two hours each school year,” Mrs. Wells said. “Fifty-eight percent work just for the school itself.”

Federal funds for SMC

Congressman Baker reported. SMC provides the remaining 10 percent.

Other institutions of higher learning receiving funds under the student loan program include: Edmondson College of Business, McKenney College, and the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga; Cleveland State Community College; Lee College, and National School of Business-Cleveland; Bryan College of Dayton, and Roane State Community College of Harriman.

New activities in Hixson

All students involved

A new activity to involve students of all majors is being initiated here next month. Operation Hixson, as this program has been dubbed, will involve all interested persons in the college student body to try new methods in witnessing and personal-to-person contact in the city of Hixson, which is 15 miles away adjacent to Chattanooga.

Although the planning stage is still materializing, it is known that the Student MINISTERIAL Association is in charge of launching it off with the student MV support, and will begin about the first of October.

Hixson will be divided into districts, with two theology majors in charge of each district. Each individual group will meet together and have spiritual experiences here on campus and project their message in the Hixson area.

open through the office of Bill Gardner, instructor in journalism. He may be reached at extension 218 or by coming to room 306b in the WV.

Deadline for this will be next Monday, September 11. The entry may be the name of the student account. The Observer will be mailed directly to the student by the Observer company.

NOTE: Students wanting to subscribe to the Chattanooga Times Free Press may do so at 25 cents weekly.

The National Observer is also available at a price less than the cost of the newspaper for students. Both of these offers are now open

The business department has moved from its old location in Lynwood Hall and is now occupying five rooms on the first floor of the new cafeteria/student center building directly behind the administration building, according to Dr. Wayne E. VandeVere, chairman of the business administration department. "The move was made," said Dr. VandeVere, "because of continued growth in the department and the need for a more comfortable atmosphere for both teachers and business students to work and study in. New furniture and equipment for the department is due to arrive any day."

Recently completed on the same floor are three new class rooms being shared jointly by the business department classes, French classes, and several religion classes. A new class in computer spectrum will also soon be using the classrooms.

As is evident here, the "comfortable atmosphere" issues something to be desired! (Photos by Faust)

These machines serve several purposes. This one holds up the wall while the cement dries. The scaffolding keeps bricks in place.

ANDREW WOOLLEY
Mr. Ludgott loved apples. There was very little that could keep him from getting one if he act his mind to it, either. He would tear the town apart if the thought of apple pie came into his mind.

It just so happened that one full day he got the urge for apple pie. Throwing on his overcoat, he bolted out of his house and into the street. After a few minutes of frantic searching, he found a sticky old apple cart with a white-haired old man amid the apples.

"Hey, man," Mr. Ludgott cried. "I've got to have some apples.

"Well, here they are, stranger. Just help yourself to those homemade apples and throw them as hard as you can onto the path.

But you could at least put on a smile, if not an expression. You've ruined a beautiful pile of apples.

"Well, that's life," the old man replied.

New party to recruit campus talent

A new political party has emerged on campus. The party is new and fresh, with a name even remote the word "The New Freedom Party." Their goal is to recruit all talented new students, freshmen, and seniors on campus. In order to recruit a new student, they plan to use the following recruitment strategies:

- There has been talk of creating a freshman walk-a-round on campus, similar to the SMC "Trojan Walk" in previous years. The Trojans are being considered for the role of "Trojan Walk." However, the current student body is less enthusiastic about this idea.

- The New People's Party Talent Show is scheduled for October 14. Although no television network will cover this event, it is thought that it will have a large audience.

- The new party is using the popular TV show "The Andy Griffith Show" as inspiration for their recruitment efforts. They plan to create a "New Freedom Party Talent Show" that will feature students from all walks of life, including athletes, artists, and academics.

Status of dorm restriction rule is unclear

"Except by special permission, a resident hall dwell, free from the sues and strife of the residence hall each evening," according to a statement made by the faculty last April, is an attempt to free the freshmen from the academic life to college life. According to Dean Sears, the first year in college is not an extension of the academic year, or "the 13." But rather, a totally new academic involvement.

Sears went on to say that this is because the freshmen are coming from an observation made by the Southern Accents Association for school prior to the 13-year-old. SMC has a high dropout rate among those enrolls in a freshman class. The majority of those who quit college have a lack of academic achievement.

Because of this, the feeling is that the freshmen are just like everyone else, and restrictions which would tend to study..."

Sears was cited by Sears as an example of what the men are doing to encourage freshmen to enroll at SMC. The wood has a clear for freshmen this year, and the academic year where certain rules and restrictions apply to those living there.

While SMC continues to expand structurally, the college student enrollment has obvious implications for campus life.

This has come as a not-so-sudden shock to the administration, and several steps have been taken to deal with it.

"Hey, man. You've got to be kidding. Why are those ugly, smelly, little ones? Why do you even sell them!"

"Just help yourself to those homemade apples and throw them as hard as you can onto the path.

But you could at least put on a smile, if not an expression. You've ruined a beautiful pile of apples.

"Well, that's life," the old man replied.

No punch for senators by Lee Bless
At the beginning of each year it seems as if we all get caught up in our own little sphere of problems. We have our class assignments and work schedules to meet. We get terribly busy but finally wonder what we've accomplished.

Everyone seems to have his own set of friends which he subscribes to and as far as the rest of the faces in the crowd... well it just takes too much effort. But it gets to be a drag.

What was once the wonder of the human world now the "thousand-and-one bones that I have to know by tomorrow at eight o'clock and now six-oh wow, it's already 7:30!"

And then there's that feeling you get in the bottom of your stomach when you've added up both columns of your accounting four times now, and it's still off by nine cents.

When the thrill is gone, you begin to look around to see what there is to do. Instead you see a lot of things that need to be done. Why doesn't somebody...? What this school needs is a good...? to take charge of your own career. The Student Association is here to be of service to the student in any way possible. Did you know that six of the first seven Saturday night programs are put on by some function of the SA? That's a lot of work. Did you realize that the intramural games are sponsored by the SA? How about the news and comment that comes every week with the Southern Accent or the rewards that will come with witnessing in Houston or Nicaragua?

That free Saturday night bowling at the Men's Reception, well it's not open anymore—there's a movie to be shown in the gym just in case you want something to do. Do you know where to find Full Creek Falls? Student Services is working on a guide of places to go and things to do in the area. That's just one of it, but it's still not enough.

There will always be new ways to serve the student body, but the ideas must come fast. There are two ways to get involved. You can offer your services to a committee and see the results of your efforts, or you can step right into a type of management position.

Be careful, don't just jump at the first thing that looks like it will be a lot of work, but right now it's time to file for Senate seats.

You, along with the other nineteen senators, will not only have the responsibility of overseeing the activities of the Student Association, but also the privilege of being the formal voice of the students to the administration.

This is a big responsibility, and it's not without its own set of psychological conflicts. How will you vote if your consistency honestly boils down to one way but you just can't see it that way? Then how do you decide if it boils down to one of a matter of methods or of morals. Either way you have a problem when you get back to the dorm.

I don't mean to give you just the dark side of things, there are great rewards that go along with being a part of a service organization. You can see the fruition of your efforts in students lives that are just a shade easier because of a new service the Student Association offers or that change in school policy that you lobbied for.

You have a chance to get involved in the things that really count, a chance to help shape the future of SMC and its students. With hard work and patience things will be accomplished, for there is a lot to be done.

No, it's not all punch and cookies, just ask a senator from last year—he'd tell you. But several senators from last year are running again. That's a pretty good indication that there is a lot to be had from being a part of it. It's not really easy, but it sure is worth it.

Pick up your filing petition now at the receptionist's desk in Wright Hall, and run to the office of student senator for your precinct. Elections are September 26 and 27 in Lynn Wood Hall on SMC campus. Results will be posted within 24 hours of the poll closing.

There will be twenty voting senators elected to the Student Senate. There are 15 geographical precincts (dorms), and a village electoral district. The 15 geographical precincts (dorms) are as follows:

1. Thatcher, rooms 100-144
2. Thatcher, rooms 153-198
3. Thatcher, rooms 200-245
4. Thatcher, rooms 253-298
5. Thatcher, rooms 300-348
6. Thatcher, rooms 350-398
7. Jones Hall
8. Orlando Campus
9. Talpe, rooms 23-49
10. Talpe, rooms 105-144
11. Talpe, rooms 145-181
12. Talpe, rooms 201-236
13. Talpe, rooms 237-284
14. Talpe, rooms 302-356
15. Talpe, rooms 357-404
16. Student must have been a resident on the campus for nine weeks and must have a cumulative GPA of 2.25 or 2.50 for the previous semester.

The student candidate must obtain signatures by residents of the precinct he wishes to represent at least 20% of the precinct population. The candidate need not be a resident of the precinct in which he is filing for. To file for a village senatorial seat, the candidate simply signs a written statement of his acceptance to be a candidate-for-large.

Go 'la banda'
Band Director Dr. Jack McClarty was formerly director of bands at Southwestern Union College. While at SUC, his bands were twice featured at the Houston Astrodome for professional baseball games, and once for a Dallas "Chaps" professional basketball game.

They cut a versatile record, played a half-hour sacred TV concert over Dallas-Fort Worth, Texas TV, and played numerous secular and sacred concerts throughout the Southwestern Union for witness at festivals and educational visits.

The brass ensemble was featured at the national convention of one of the largest college men's social fraternities, of which McClarty is a member.

Dr. McClarty is a graduate of Andrews University and the University of Montana, where he received his doctoral degree in 1948. He has studied conducting and trumpet at the University of Southern California, from Dr. Lester Menken, current conductor of the Los Angeles Brass Society, and former first trumpeter with the L.A. Philharmonic.

Having taught ten years in years college, four years high school, and three years elementary school, he is certified to teach music, education, and sociology. For the past three years Dr. McClarty has been the guest and band director for the Oklahoma Conference Elementary School Band. He holds membership in several social and musical organizations.
Jobs open in Europe

Now any student can independently earn a bit or her trip to Europe by simply obtaining a paying job in Europe. A few weeks work as a room, hotel, or similar job in Europe paying free room and board plus wage, more than pays for the new $165 round-trip Youth Fare being offered by the scheduled airlines. A couple more weeks on the job earn money for traveling around Europe before returning home.

Thousands of paying student jobs are available in Switzerland, France, Germany, Italy and Spain. Neither previous working experience nor knowledge of a foreign language is required for many jobs. However, to make certain every student gets off to a good start on their job the Student Overseas Services (SOS) provides job orientation in Europe. Jobs immediately available include resort, hotel, restaurant, factory, farm and sales work. Jobs almost always pay, free room and board, in addition to a paid weekly wage.

Jobs, work permits, visas, and other necessary working papers are issued to students on a first come, first served basis. Although thousands of jobs are immediately available, applications should be submitted far enough in advance to allow SOS ample time to obtain the necessary working papers and permits. Any student may obtain an application form, job listings, and the SOS Handbook on earning a trip to Europe by only sending their name, address, name of educational institution, and $1 (for addressing, handling, and air mail postage from Europe) to SOS-Student Overseas Services, Box 5177, Santa Barbara, California 93108.

If you are thinking about going to Europe. While the new Youth Fares are dropping the cost of the flight over, living costs in Europe are higher than ever. If you are willing to work in Europe, however, you can turn back the cost of the Youth Fare, air ticket from your wage earnings, and at the same time avoid living expenses in Europe if you take a job providing free room and board.

Following are jobs currently available. Interested students should write as immediately so SOS will have ample time to obtain not only the job, but also the necessary work permit. Most European countries now require (as does the USA) that you have the job and work permit before entering the country.

SWITZERLAND-Hotel, restaurant, resort, hospital, and farm jobs are available. Room and board are always provided free in addition to wages and tips. Wages for these jobs range from $120 to $240 per month. In addition to clean air and unpolluted lakes Switzerland offers an excellent central location in Europe.

FRANCE-Factory jobs available during the summer. Good wages, relatively short hours and short work allows time off to visit Paris, Amsterdam and other nearby cities. Grape picking work available during late summer months in wine regions. Free room and board, wages, and free wine are provided. Some child care work available throughout the year, camp housing available during the summer months. Other jobs available to students having some knowledge of French.

GERMANY-Hotel, restaurant, resort, factory, farm, hospital, forestry and construction jobs available throughout the year. Good wages, free room and board provided with most jobs.

SALT Pact Slowly

"Doomsday" Closer

CHICAGO, June 1 (UPI). The "Doomsday Clock" has been moved two minutes but from ringing in nuclear holocaust, the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists said today. The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists is a magazine of whose cover a clock indicates how close to an atomic "Doomsday" the world is, in the judgment of the magazine's editors and directors.

With the SALT pact, the Bulletin said it was moving the clock back two minutes to read 12 minutes to midnight with the June issue. The minute hand had stood at 10 minutes to midnight since April of 1969 when it was moved back from seven minutes to midnight. That was when the U.S. Senate ratified the nuclear non-proliferation treaty, the magazine said.

Celebrations meet Thursday

by Ken Wilson

To the many new students on campus who do not know what professional clubs are, this article is explanatory. Each major department has a professional club, some clubs go by the name of their department, the club of the English department is named the English Club, while the club of the History department is named the International Relations Club.

Once a month (the 21st of this month) we will not meet for Assembly Thursday evening chapl. Instead students go to their departmental major club meeting at the regularly scheduled chapel time. Record is taken with the regular chapel 1BM cards, and attendance is counted in the same church.

Although students usually go to their regular major club, they may choose to go to any other meeting they desire. Those who want to go to the club meeting of their choice.

Many clubs have not chosen officers yet, so each club and any of them is not included. The place of meeting, for each club, will be posted soon in the Campus Accent.

NTE tests given here

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations which measure their professional competence in preparation and understanding of the subject they expect to teach.

Prospective teachers should contact the school systems in which they are employed, or their colleges, for specific information on which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and information about the examinations, as well as a Registration Form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel directors, or directly from the National Teacher Examination Corporation, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

Tomato industry opens

It is estimated that the plant in this building will produce about 50,000 lbs of free tomato producing plants, which is equivalent to about 500 lbs. The crop has been sold by the company and is expected to be harvested within a few weeks.

Because of the conditions in which the tomatoes are grown, the plants will be protected against high temperatures and diseases. The company is confident that the crop will be of high quality and will be ready for harvest within a few weeks.

Charlie comes again

The Student Association will present "Charlie" on September 28 at 8:00 p.m. in the PCC Center.

Admission is $1.00 for students, $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for children ages 12, or $4.00 for family.

Critics have called the film a "camp" or "joke" of the day, yet some believe that the movie's impact on young people is significant. The film's message about the importance of education and the dangers of ignorance is still relevant today. The consensus of theater owners was that adults loved the film, and the children. Charlie Brown seems adept at provoking wholesome laughter and creating an atmosphere of innocence.

Joker Is Coming

The latest statement by Carol Adams, editor, on when the "Joker" is forthcoming was, "It will be out before Thanksgiving."

But while you're waiting, there are some of the added attractions included in this year's edition:

(1) A longer lasting, more durable binding.
(2) A second semester supplement including late registrants and second semester students.
(3) A new index.
(4) Statistics such as: Academy graduate from, home state, phone numbers, and for the girls-specific dorms.

Going to be a Teacher

Elementary and secondary education majors and minors are invited to the education retreat to be held September 22-24 at Camp Cumby-Gay near Clayton, Ga. Recreation, workshops, church service, and other meetings are planned.

Dr. Ruth Murdoch, distinguished Professor of Education at Andrews University, will be the main speaker. The Education Superintendent for the Southern Union Conference of SDA's, Pastor Don Aulborg, will be present also. This will be an excellent opportunity to meet those who might be your future employers.

A flat-rate charge of $1 (which can be put on your statement), WILL COVER EXPENSES FOR THE WEEKEND, and transportation will be provided. Married couples are invited, of course, and they may camp out if they wish to do so.

All those interested are asked to sign up at the Education Office in Lynwood Hall as soon as possible.

Keepers Meet

The first Keepers of the Springs meeting for this year is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Monday, September 16, at the Elementary School. It will be a potluck supper, and each person is requested to bring a dish and the recipe for it.

The Keepers of the Springs Club is for the wives and girlfriends of future ministers, dentists, and doctors. Bible workers are also invited.

The elected officers for this year are:

President, Ruth Ann Saunders; Vice President, Letta Hinkamp; Secretary-Treasurer, Linda VanTuyt; Hostess, Mrs. Ken Bryant; Public Relations, Linda Garnat; Typos, Cheryl Wilson, Mrs. Jim Clark, and Mrs. Phyllis Lawless.

All pazzz; no headaches

by Wynn Davidson

One of the newest and, certainly, one of the best improvements on the SMC campus has got to be the Campus Shop. It has also got a touch of the downtown store with some of the headaches that accompany parking, traffic lights, and wasted time.

Here at the Drinking Fountains, interior decorator of such "famous" meeting places as the Student Lounge, and the Scholar's Hall, remodeled the building previously occupied by the Southern Mercantile. The new shop, which opened in June, features extended hours and increased the interior walls that use indirect lighting to illuminate display items. Green and orange, with the green carpet that covers the entry and entire floor. There is also a small kitchen in the back for employees.

To Thieves dwellers would do well to inspect the interior selection that has been expanded. They could choose anything from jewelry to nighties in almost any color, with spotlights to match. Such well-known brands as Vicky Vaughn, and Toni Todd, featured in Seventeen, offer a good range to select from in streetwear. Of course, a word should be said about the containers available--predominantly from Faberge.

From a more masculine point of view, the guys are now able to choose from a wide array of double-knit, chinos and sportcoats. This is a real step in the right direction from the old selection of a man's clothing.

Guys can also get Manhattan or Arrow shirts with matching ties and socks.

In the stationary department, one can choose from a tremendous assortment of Hallmark cards, humorous, sentimental, or "just because" cards. The shelves are filled with stationary boxes filled with "would-be letters" for both men and women. If you're looking for something snappy to top the desk, you can find colorful candy, banks, desk pads, staplers, stamp holders, pencil holders, and just about anything you could ask for.

There is also a nice gift of items to be selected from two, such as candlesticks, weights and balances, and stationery items. The shop also offers small gifts for just browsing around, particularly in the bathroom section which is loaded with paperbacks that should be a real help to the conscientious student.

If you go for buying, or just browsing, the Campus Shop is THE PLACE (and top it all off, you can charge anything with a flip of the old SMC credit card).

Draft to end in '73; All volunteer Army soon

On August 28th, President Nixon announced that conscription into the armed forces would be eliminated by July, 1973.

"...Progress in ending the Draft and achieving the All-Volunteer Force..."

The plan culminated by the Vietnam War. It was, like Springsteen and school was out and, like, you know, Washington, D.C., is a heavy scene. All those beautiful people, and the hippie mothers with the long hair who never look anybody up for a little learning. And the television cameras are right there with Roger Mudd and the other masters still trying for their Pulitzer prizes. That is the news.

So, the President for Peace and Justice (PJP), and the National Peace Action Coalition (NPC), and the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and the Weathermen--they changed it from Weathermen out of respect for Women's rights all conveyed on the campus of the United States to show the honor and the courage and the movement reached an one-month high of 3,000 and averaged 2,300 a month. It continued at that level in 1972.

This particular war was achieved by altering the choice of overseas locations and unit assignments to that armed forces, by advertising their new options, and by aggressively recruiting candidates for them.

Patriots pledge

The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag should, I believe, be recited by all students as a follow-up to our "pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America that, large and in color, stands: One Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.""

Dr. Wama McClarty is the new chairman of the English department. She was employed at Southern Methodist University in 1968. Mrs. McClarty received her Ph.D. in Education from UM.

Dr. Jack McClarty, her husband, is the band director at Southern Methodist College.

They have one daughter, Julie, who is eight years old. Julie has won trophies in singing and baton twirling.

Several biographies have included Mrs. McClarty's name.

Some of these are as follows: Outstanding Young Women of America, 1965 edition; Personality of the South, 1970 edition.

Academic honors have not passed her by. She was valedictorian of her academy class, received her B.A. in English with honors and graduated with summa cum laude honors in her M.A. in English.

National Council of Teachers of English and Delta Tau Kappa, an honorary social science society, are two organizations of which she is a member.

To continuously broaden her general knowledge, she audits courses whenever she can. She is currently auditing a humanities course. She plays the piccolo in her husband's band just for fun.

Not all her interests are in the scholastic area. Tennis and reading are two things that she enjoys a lot. The things that Julie takes an interest in, one of which is bird-watching, also are of high interest to her mother.

Plans for SMC's band year include two secular and one sacred concert. The sacred concert will be the entire church service Jan. 27, 1973. Other concerts are scheduled for Six Flags Over Georgia, Disneyworld, and a performance at a major sports event in Atlanta. Dr. McClarty feels these public performances can bring the SDA and SMC name before society in a very unique and Christ-centered way, as long as these concerts do not run contrary to our beliefs.

Audition being a pre-requisite for admission this year, the band is very selective. McClarty aims for quality more than size. Expecting a very balanced band, McClarty states that the band will be as complete in instrumentation as can be found anywhere, a really top-notch college band.

"The Lord, first," says Dr. McClarty when asked of his reasons for coming to SMC. "Visible reasons include: a large number of outstanding academic bands in this area and the fact that a lot of fine talent comes from this area. SMC's tradition of bands is one of the last twenty-five years and the highly qualified musical and administrative staffs, and finally, SMC's good reputation isn't a bad thing.

Other plans for the band include two Saturday night concerts at academics, one year trip to Florida with stops at two academic and two cities, and a pops concert this October with the combined Band, Choir, and Orchestra. "SMC's Band will have a sacred concert next spring," continues Dr. McClarty. "In this way as well as other SMC's band will be unique if we have succeeded through our music in inspiring our audience to live a godly life and that we have accomplished our purpose."

Mrs. Wama McClarty, chairman of the English department.

Alone

Go on? But Lord, You don't know what it's like To be alone.
The universe is yours:
A million of them.
All creatures, all things, made by Your hand.
You've got everything!

At night, suddenly awake, I am here.
There is a shriek within my solitary self.
Yet, desolate, I scream not.
Knowing no kindred soul will answer.
You can't possibly know what it's like.

Listen:
It's only a rumble, Lord,
The sound of timeless weeping for itself
Throughout the ages.
Or is it?
Is that Your voice I hear Shouting from earth to heaven,
"My God! My God!
Why hast Thou forsaken Me?"

Thank you, Lord.
I'll go on.

The King is coming

The King is Coming

The market place is empty. No more traffic in the streets, All the bullion's talk is silent, No more time to harvest wheat, Busy housewives weave their likeness, In the courtroom no debate, Work on earth is all suspended As the King comes through the gate.

All the railroad cars are empty, As they rattle down the track In the newspaper no one watches As machines type pointless facts, All the planes veer off their courses No one's sitting at the controls For the King of all the ages Comes to claim eternal souls.

Happy faces line the highways, Those who's live have been redeemed, Broken homes that he has mended, Those from prison He has freed.

Little children and the aged Hand in hand stand all aglow, Who were crooked, broken, ruined, Buried in garments white as snow.

I can hear the chariot rumble, I can see the marching throng, The flurry of God's trumpets

SDA shortwave adds Dutch

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Adventist World Radio, with headquarters in Lisbon, Portugal, has added another language—Dutch—to its schedule of weekly shortwave broadcasts.

World headquarters for the SDA Church here received word of the new language from the station's director, Allen R. Steele, a graduate of SMU. This brings to 16 the number of languages in which the church is broadcasting from the Lisbon-based station.

Steele reports that the station is on the airs 13 hours a week. The program coordinating committee hopes that several more languages and broadcast hours can be added before the year's end. "That all depends on the funds available," Steele comments.

The broadcasts are sponsored financially by Adventist members in Europe and in America. The station began broadcasting about one year ago. Besides the addition of Dutch this fall, there will also be two programs in Greek, two in English and one in Ukrainian.

Incoming mail during the first nine months has totalled nearly 3,000 letters from around the world, Steele reports. Most of the letters are from eastern Europe. People in Dutch countries are more accustomed to using shortwave than people in England and Western Europe, he says. Listener response is expected to climb as the project continues.

Editorially Speaking...

The 20th Olympic has now come to an end, and the world's minds and hearts are turning to the American public and athletes. The games never even began for the Rhododendrons as "political blackmail" was the first event with the African nation sweeping the gold, silver and bronze medals.

Organized by the W. G. Gillnet, chairman of the Rhododendrons, boycotted by the Africans, protected by the E. Germans and Ancilis, and supported by the Aztecs, the games turned into more of a blackmailing, free-spending, political competition, than the friendly, prestigious contest with the nations who were originally intended by the Greeks.

As expected, the organization of the Rhododendron Games is superb, foreseeing every minute detail before putting a button, computerized information could tell you the names and ages of the foot children of the 400 meter dash man representing the country of Linetho, however, other "minor" details were overlooked, as seeking competent, unbiased officials, and beating the drum for the games in the different countries as to changes in the scheduling of events, which the United Nations obviously wasn't.

Controversy swept over many events, principally the basketball final round game between the U.S. and the Turks. The protest evolved around the latter's three seconds in sports history, even outside boxing's famed "long count" in the 1946 Olympic Games thrown off the floor, to defeat Jack Company. After a 14-hour deliberation, the Russians were finally awarded the gold medal. The U.S. still refused to accept the silver.

Other controversy centered on pole-vaulting. Bob Seagren, pole, it was banned, accepted, than banned minutes before competition began, simply because the other vaulters didn't have one like it. An American was awarded his gold medal for using a medication he has taken for years to ease an asthmatic condition.

Credit must be given to the Russians, however, as their efficient and disciplined squad displayed strength, courage, and a truly competitive spirit throughout the games. The Rhododendrons' boycott was offered a few bright moments during the long, conten...
Knittel denies library reading requirements

By James M. Clark
President Knittel last week denounced having told teachers to assign library reading and so-called busy work.

Several students have associated their library assignments with the president's chapel talk of September 5, charging that teachers are now under threat from the administration to put the library at use in each class.

In reacting to the suggestion that pressure has come from the administration, concerning required reading, President Knittel said he "has not suggested that teachers assign required reading. We have suggested recommended library reading for their classes."

"However, some students feel that teachers are not differentiating between required and suggested readings."

"So there will be no mistake," explained Dr. Knittel, "this is what I said to the teachers and students. I shall also be looking at the reserve list to see what teachers make use of this service. For ready service to our students every teacher will be expected to have on file with the library a reading list for each of his classes and again, shall be looking this list over with constant interest."

Through the checking of these lists, Dr. Knittel said he can tell for what purpose the books were made. To explain how this would be possible he stated:

1. What journals and periodicals are listed?
2. Do they refer to current scholarship?
3. The author's selection.
4. Is the title outdated or out of date?

The good title is the start of a good article.
5. How long is it? (short pieces sometimes can say more than many long ones)

Dr. Knittel said he had become alarmed over this little white browsing through one discipline for which SMC is new books was purchased during the last two years and then finding that most of the books had never been used. This custom has to note in his chapel speech.

"If the library is not a serious factor in your (students) educational processes, your teachers are not fulfilling their teaching missions and your educational experience here will be a sloppy mess.

Dr. Knittel also spoke of gradations of some students in major fields such as math and foreign language as to how they were coming to the library. He stated that if a student has knowledge of where his discipline is going or where the emphasis will be in one or two years, he (the student) would not have the educational experience that is required for life in the world of today.

Walters to hold meetings
New Testament Witnessing

Driver-Rider Map Installed

By Ken Witton
Pastor Elden K. Walter, ministerial secretary of the SDA Southwestern Union Conference, will be a guest of SMC beginning this Friday night.

In a week long series of meetings, Walters will train student workers who are interested in New Testament Bible studies and teaching witnessing techniques.

Walter holds a B.A. degree in Biblical Languages and Religion from Walla Walla College, Washington, and earned the SDA church in Washington, Arizona, Michigan, and Nebraska. Outside his pastoral duties, he is an author. He has travelled around the world visiting 40 countries, and is a commercial pilot.

Walter is familiar with the training program, but wants to know what to expect. He is really not the type. The pastor has a copy of the New Testament Witnessing, a book that Walter has written. Following are some excerpts from the book to answer these questions:

"During my years in the Adventist ministry I have seen hundreds, perhaps thousands of earnest, devoted laity who have spent a great deal of time, effort and money in teaching work that did not bring any satisfying results. There has been a great deal of theorizing and partial promising of lay evangelism. But what we need is someone showing the way in the homes of the people."

"The book seems to be one of the apparently most often written on the topic. It is a 127-page paperback, with 10 to 12 worded each few paragraphs summarizing what has been said."

Some of the chapter titles are: "Preaching Points of a Winning Testimony," "Understanding the Preacher and the Prospect," "How to Handle Interactions and Difficult Problems," and "Getting Started."

Principles of practicality and efficiency dominate the book, and many Spirit of Prophecy quotations are included.

The training program will be handled as a panel each evening at 6:45 from September 24-29, and will be counted as one more academic course. Students are encouraged to sign up for the course as soon as possible at the Chapel's office in Wright Hall.

Enrollment levels at last year's figure

SMC completed its registration Thursday with 1412 students, reaching a plateau since last year's total was also 1412. The figures were given by Dr. Anna Knittel, SMC's Director of Admissions and Records.

The enrollment has leveled off after 15 years of uncontrolled gains, starting in 1957 when the number was 450.

The college campus registration does not include 276 in Collegiate Academy and 392 in Spalding Elementary School. The total for the three campuses is 159.

This year's students include 28 full-time students in clinical experience for nursing on the Orlando campus, 24 part-time students in the Madison, Tennessee, and 30 part-time students in the College, Ga. area.

Freshman number 461, Sophomores 103, Juniors 246, two-year Seniors 101, and four-year Seniors 196, and special and postgraduates students 104. President Knittel added 45 students from foreign countries.

Because of SMC's strong two-year and one-month nursing program, written correspondence is now sent to 6 of 4 by 4 million single students.

The swelling out an enrollment has necessitated serious belt-tightening in operating finances, according to Charles Fleming, Jr., SMC's general manager.

"Over the years," he said, "we have been budgeted for an increase in enrollment when we have been building dormitories and facilities to accommodate more, and now the enrollment on these structures has become a financial problem. We shall have to be careful, but we will still operate in the black as we have done for years."

"Future Shock" in tab

Dr. Maitzen will begin a "first" at SMC beginning Thursday evening, September 28, by coordinating a student viewing exchange.

The topic under discussion will be the book Future Shock. Review trustees of the book are available at the desk in the library.

"Future Shock" is about the symptoms that society is going through now which will lead to later trauma in our country. Jefferson will give a 5-minute resume of the book to begin the session.

Conversing time by meeting during the lunch hour, this new discussion group will meet every other Thursday at the picnic tables outside the Tabernacle, or at a designated place indoors during rain or cold weather.

View-exchange is designed for anyone interested about tomorrow's problems and future events.

A different adult coordinator and book will be discussed each time. Enormized Mr. Clay, chairman of the SA Student Service Committee, which sponsors the exchange.

Regularly battle and individually. Students from the radio station. At first it shared facilities with the station, but now the offices and studios have been moved to the trailer house behind Lynn Grand Hall, from which Film/Sound has operated since the first of July. Curtis Carlson, a communications department instructor, is the manager of Film/Sound Productions. Carlson graduated from SMC in 1968 with a theology major.

The production director of photography is Gene Louden, a 71 communications graduate of SMC.

John Robinson, a theology student and the film program producer, Robinson is also the chief engineer for WSMC-FM.

The business manager, Mrs. Colleen Garber, is a "70 SMC communication graduate.

Seven students are also working with Film/Sound as production assistants, office workers, and a staff writer.

Last summer the industry produced a series of public service spot advertisements for the demonstration which have been shown on television stations.

Also, Film/Sound produced three commercials for the Village Market which are now being used on local commercials.

Advertising is also being done for the student union, insurance companies, and commercial banks.

All of the tape productions for the Adventist Radio Network are originated by Film/Sound.

Film/Sound was originally conceived with the production of tape strips, but two years ago the facilities were expanded to provide for the production of film strips.

Men ask this question. The Men's Club is sponsoring a reception this year to be held October 8, at 7:00 p.m. at the Belle Mont Club on Lookout Mountain. No formal invitation will be sent.

Tickets will go on sale soon. The Studen't Union office will be able to sell student accounts. Tickets are $3.50 for non-students and $5.00 for non-students accompanied by students. The Men's Club is collecting $50 from the proceeds.

Roses will be sold on campus by the Missions Committee with proceeds going to the Missions. All hares may be purchased individually.

Courses in Freshman Composition and General Psychology are now being offered under SMC's new Course Extension Program to the students at Madison and Georgia-Cumberland Academy, according to William H. Taylor, director of college affairs. Over 400 students have signed up for the courses as far as these two campuses. Dr. Frank Kukel and Taylor will team-teach the English course at Madison Academy one evening a week, probably 8:30 p.m., beginning the teaching responsibility between them. At the end of the school year, graduate students will complete hours of college credit. If the program proves a success, the course will be extended to the other campuses of SMC and to other colleges and schools that can benefit from the relationship between their academic programs and the English Course at Madison Academy.
McGovern Inconsistent
Says GOP leader

State the impact on the working poor would be even worse. According to Census Bureau statistics, 16 percent of rural families in which the head works full-time year around, earn less than $3,000 annually, in the case of rural Black families, the figure is 45 percent.

Nationally among occupations, 12 percent of non-farm laborers, 1 percent of service workers, and nearly 65 percent of domestic employees earn less than $4,000 annually. The New McGovern Welfare Plan would simply add an inescapable burden to these households, and should be given even less consideration than his previous $1,000 per family plan.

Anderson said he recognized McGovern had vaguely indicated that some exaggeration was necessary to deal with the problem of the working poor who are becoming "unemployable," but added: "The reason he has kept the details secret is that the cost would be enormous and would give to his plan not to raise the taxes of any American whose income comes from wages or salaries."

The cost of a program to lift his pledge that no man or woman would receive less when working than on welfare would be $16 billion per annum. Even adequate work incentives were retained, he couldn't know that out of his defense cuts and tax reform plans, how much he spent every penny of that money even before he finished the speech.

Capital Investment
The House GOP leader also was sharply critical of McGovern, saying it was a "negative step" that would sound the death knell for the U.S. as a viable competitor in the rest of the world. The bill is intended to cut federal deficits and reduce the federal spending rate.

"I think the Democratic candidate comes along and proposes the sort of heavy cuts that you would have to add, and add further deterrents to investment, yet, that doesn't measure up to the American economy of the 1970's. It's not even a reasonable and considered tax reform, but not the kind that would lay waste to the American economy in the process."

McGovern Explains New Jobs Plan

The Illinois legislator sharply criticized the House GOP plan for a platform loaded with new social spending programs of an unspecified nature in which he has now proceeded to share the current cost.

"We hear the House Republican departmental basketball, regular basketball, volleyball, and soccer.

John Morrocco, chairman of the committee, said he wanted to create a more balanced and diversified program. The bill is divided into five parts: social security, education, health insurance, rural development, and urban renewal.

"In the very same speech before the New York Society of Security Analysts in which McGovern promised to bring in a new era, he committed to $40 billion for manpower and employment, education. Why were done, in light of that, there is considerable speculation as to what happened to the national health insurance program on which he campaigned when he said $59 billion, the child care program he proposed to women's groups at a minimum cost of $8 billion, the rural redevelopment program he proposed in the previous two years at a cost of $3 billion, and all the other social welfare programs.

"I don't think the American public is going to overlook that point of view, or will continue to pay high taxes about the lack of credibility and honesty in government on the issue."{\textsuperscript{16}}
Cooking for Junior

By Andy Woolley

"Welcome, ladies to another program in the continuing series, "You can make a home like College, the program where millions of kindly mothers can learn to make their children's transition from school to home just a little easier. You're in, Dr. Mervin Finter.

"Now, ladies, today's lesson is on how to make the food. And in the food department our motto is "You can do it if you make it." That's how you make it wrong.

"For, the first, the lesson. Today's recipe is Lithuanian soup. This has to be the world's oldest dish. It's even easier if you have a garbage disposal but, if not, get out the griddle. Throw in a few leftover (trash) tops, carrot peels, stale bread, soggy French fries, a variety of vegetables, and good. And be careful of those spatulas, girls. They are very easy to grab up and next to impossible to find afterwards.

"Your job would be hard if done right, so boil for one hour and leave in the pot for three. When Junior complains about having to eat vitamins, you can tell him that they've been removed.

"Try and serve good bread. For if they won't eat anything else, most students will say, "Better bread than dead."

"And here's something for dessert that is a special, such as blackberry pie. After putting this on the table, pour lighter fluid over it and ignite, serving proudly. Burning food adds class to any meal.

"For something to drink, you'll be surprised how many kids you can serve by squeezing those orange rinds.

"So this is the end of today, ladies. Send for our free pamphlet, "Culinary Life is way that wash under it makes good gravy stock?" And remember, if at first you don't succeed, serve it anyway."

Forty-three students attended the meeting, attending the "largest Literature Evangelist College meeting held here at SMC in three years," according to speaker, Dr. James Clark.

Three speakers were featured along with Henry Fish; Dave Wiggins, leader of a group of students who sold books in Arizona last summer, Brad Schiff who said in the Aldabro, Mississippi Conference; and Nancy Doak who worked in 105, Lenox, Tenn. The three related various experiences encountered by their respective groups during the summer. Club officers were elected

The annual convention of the Adventist Student Press Publication Inc. (ASPA) will be held on the SMC campus October 26-29, according to Randy Elkins, Presi- dent of the association.

Representatives of all Adventist college newspapers in North America are expected for the yearly event. According to Elkins, the convention will be conducted under the auspices of Northern Adventist University. A number of the SMC journalism depart- ment will be taking an active part in the program.

Last year's convention was held on the Upper Institutional Union College in Washington, O.C.

John Popeham, managing editor of the Chattanooga Times, has been invited to give a keynote banquet speech.

Record number vote in election

The election results are in (see page 6). The voting was interesting. Highs and lows have appeared along the way. The Senate depends on student interest to make it an effective organization of the student body. This shows that students are taking a more active interest. Last year there were only 14 candidates running for the 15 geographical positions. This year, 22 students ran for these 15 Senate seats. Last year there were eight prospective senators from the freshman class, this year nine ran for seats.

The student body as a whole seems to be becoming more aware that the best way to change the system is to work within the system. Voting participation was up 47% from last year.

NT Witnessing classes by Ken Wilson
The New Testament Witnessing program began Friday night, Sept. 22, at 8 p.m. in Taige Hall Chapel. This was the beginning of the first NT Witnessing class, and was the first and only meeting of the retreat for theology majors exclusively.
After an intensive introduction by Dwight Nelson, Student Ministerial Association President, Elder K. Walter, speaker, portrayed some of his winning personality by saying, "Wow, I wish my mother-in-law could do that." Walter, behind every successful man is a successful mother-in-law. Walter's talk compared the Christian's search for gold, in terms of study with Nevada's Invincible Mountain Goldmine. He used this modern-day introduction to the basic outlines of "New Testament Witnessing," a book he authored.
Sabbath afternoon at 2:30 in the Thatcher Hall worship room the first transmission of all students began. To better memorize the general contents of the book everyone present read the basic contents. This was done silently. "In past times," said Walter on Sabbath afternoon, "we have been putting the cart before the horse by asking people to accept the Lord on Sunday. But in my approach of asking them to accept Christ first, we are putting the heart before the church.
The rest of the meeting took place at 6:45 p.m. at the church. Among the things, Walter stressed the importance of being able to tell people where we get our hope of salvation.
Walter's book was followed closely by the topic of discussion, next was and I think most important, chapter 1 was covered in the agenda. At this mid-week meeting, it has been noticed that the attendance does not dwindle from night to night.
Monday night students raised several questions about how extensive and the cost of the program. Walter again stressed that saving was not a problem. He warned students against borrowing money and living beyond as they are in it now. Walter said also the fact that guest list close to truth. The first group of student witnesses was portrayed with Walter for visits in Hixson.

Board of Trustees to discuss

The first SMC Board of Trustees meeting for the year 1972 was held on campus.
The Board of Trustees is a large committee composed of 31 members who hold site positions in the upper Southern Missionary College education, general conference, local and union, education, and highly-respected business and lay work. These people meet bi-anually, on a scheduled basis, once each semester. Two other committees are concurrent within the Board itself, a non-executive board and a student advisory board.

The Board of Trustees meets to bring into focus policies for consideration, change, rejection, solution or approval, all pertinent to the governmental and executive functions of the SMC policy and its stability.

This Board of Trustees will meet to discuss a number of various things. The Southern Accent, in a telephone interview with President Knittel, was given a preview of the various topics to be covered in the agenda.
One of the major issues to be discussed is the SMC budget for 1972-73. Each year the Board takes a good look at the budget for the next school year, according to Dr. Knittel, and cutsbacks or new and larger allocations are made accordingly.
Also to be discussed is the position of the Nisarga project, its inherent needs, and its relationship both new and old to the future of the SMC campus. There is need to discuss the possibility of the project, i.e., the ultimate permanency of the mission station itself, headed by Dr. Knittel. Two new Trustee members must be chosen in this meeting, also Dr. Knittel stated that "it was suggested by the General Conference Board of Higher Education that we acquire a wider range of Adventist Laymen-businessmen, so it appears that we are top-heavy with conference and union officers, alumni, local residents and denominational employees."
So and, of course, not least is the ever-electric question of the possible name-change of the school. This seems to be of primary importance and has been the subject of in-depth research, sponsored by Bill Taylor, head of the college Public Relations Department.
The issue, itself, is not a new one. As early as 1963, various polls were being conducted in the dormitories to determine the then-current opinion of the residence students toward a name change. In 1963, 1964, and up till 1965 shows a gradual pie-popping trend of student opinion from one side to the other. The attitudes of the men and women in attendance have changed with the wind, it seems, according to statistics.
In 1971, the Accent polled the women's dormitory after worship in regards to the subject.
In response to his questioning, some 300 women at Thatcher voted, with the approximately present being 40% in favor of the name change, as opposed to 60% for it. In the August, 1973, Faculty Collo- quium, a straw vote was taken and Dr. Knittel related, "as an important majority were for the name of the school being changed."

The Accent quoted Dr. Knittel on the Board's attitude toward the name change. From the various conversations and correspondence he has received from most of the Trustees, he admitted that most want for a name-change.

20 minutes vs. 200 words
A new approach to Eng. Comp.

Color composition is being presented to students in a new manner this year. "College Composition – A Creative Life," is the name of the new approach. According to Mrs. Minn Harris, freshman English consultant in an introductory paper College Composition – A Collision with Life the composition themes written with "about things that matter to the student, as opposed to the traditional theme these are called free writings. They utilize what professionals refer to as pre-writing and re-writing.

In this type of writing, the student chooses a subject of his preference and writes for a designated time period, usually 20 to 30 minutes. During this time, he doesn't check spelling or punctuation, but he can think as rapidly as possible.

Upon completion of the time period, the writer revises his paper. The revision process involves a complete re-thinking of words and repeated sentences, checking for subject control, punctuation, and striving for stronger verbs and more expressive sentences.

Along with the free writings, each student is to write a minimum of four notebook-sized paragraphs. Accompanying this requirement, two reading reports a week are required.

A special project each week is requested. These projects deal with areas where the student feels he needs work on in grammatical structure of English. The special project does this entirely on its own.

A weekly report is also a necessity. This is to include final synopsis of what he has done during the week to meet the above requirements.

At the end of each semester students compile five to eight of their compositions into a "Book of Best Writing." Of this new approach, Mrs. William McClure, chairman of the English department stated, "It puts effective writing within the domain of each person."

Another advantage pointed out by Mrs. McClure is, "It encourages a student's library towards their own critical evaluation of their own writing."

When Mrs. Hase, senior, was asked his opinion, he replied, "When I took composition I was told, 'Write 200 words on a project, and when I was done I was always surprised.' According to me the writer will do what he wants to as long as the project is one that he wants to do." Beth Dulaney, freshman put it this way, "It lets you. You can write what you feel without worrying about impressing the teachers."

Editor's note: Ellen K. Walter is an campus the week newspaper, The New Testament Witnessing training classes. The new approach to this that is promontory involves getting a decision from a person to accept Christ as his personal savior, after which Biblical doctrines are presented to his newly receptive mind. Ken Henderson gives us his impression of the new approach in the following interview.

Editor: Ellen Walter, why is this the approach you want for your group? Writer: I have two answers for this question. The first is that my ministry is the New Testament Witnessing is the most satisfying thing I've ever done.

What do you consider to be the most important aspect of personal witnessing? Writer: That is a little hard for me to answer but that is, just living in consistent with witnessing. I would say that is really important for anyone who wants to do this.

ACCENT: In a previous meeting, you mentioned taking a poll in an academic setting of all the people of students there had assurance of eternal life. Writer: I took this poll at 3 semesters, and these same figure hold true for each one of the student body, and 50% of the faculty had assurance of eternal life.

ACCENT: What prompted you to write your book, New Testament Witnessing? Writer: I saw the desperate need of this kind of work in the church. However, I have made several attempts to get someone else to write this book, because I didn't consider myself a gifted author.

ACCENT: As a student the Bible and Spirit of Prophecy, did you find this new approach to witnessing helped you? Writer: No, it was the only way around. I was startled at what I had been a hasn't given me a heart to give my heart for many years.

ACCENT: Ellen Walter, if this is a legitimate question, how long have you been a born-again Christian? Writer: Since I was a junior in college in 1949. But I did not understand until this year, and perhaps two things I should say, one thing I am thankful for is I had assurance in 1949, but only to a limited extent. The second is how this could apply to evangelism, which is what made New Testament Witnessing viable. The doctrine was not used in a classroom until this book came out.

ACCENT: When you gave love to a non-Christian, in effect, preaching Christ didn't you do it? Writer: Yes. Love is the doctrine of Christ.

ACCENT: This one of the people you appreciate this college being free one with Christians and non-Christians in it, is it different from others? Writer: In the past 2 years all of these people have undergone a change the people have approved of a ladies' skirts length was shortened and men's hair was changed. These will improve with atmosphere.

Prior to this spiritual awakening, anyone standing up the Bible was to think about what was by the lightning. Now, there is no one that actually, the people are back to your original question yes, SMC is one of the top campuses, with the whole atmosphere parades.

ACCENT: Ellen Walter, there anything of significance that you would like to say... rest of the body at this time? Writer: Yes. I am grateful the ladies and gentlemen who are enthusiastic at the sing program. There is no need that the success of this success is attributed to this program in the ACCENT. I hope, with of course, other people have an excellent staff and here who want to see this go through.

Mexico City to host worst fire in history

WASHINGTON, D.C.-Mexico City will be the site of the world famous Autumn Council this fall. Some 300 delegates from the 10 divisions of the comprehend will be in attendance. The delegates will represent nearly 200 countries where the Adventists have worked.

High on the agenda will be the advancement of the church. The church has been studying for two years. All areas of the church are involved, from the world headquarters, the local churches to the D.C. to local conferences and national.

The consolidation program has already some action in overareas of the church. The program for the next 31 days has been consolidated into one system, which is the Central Europe Division, which are known as the Europe-Africa Division.

At the headquarters will convene the 8th session of the Mexico City on week days. On October 31, the surgeon and medical press will hold in Spanish only at the hotel Havana. Pre-convention sessions will be held at the Havana and the Aruba with over top officials of the church present. These sessions are a part of the pre-convention study, which will be held in the full council.

The tragedy was over some 12 hours ago, and the fire is completely under control. The fire, the burned and surrounded, had smoldering5 of metal in the area of mechanical damage.

The explosion and fire of five tanks at San Fernando are the explosion, and the explosion, and the explosion, and the explosion, and the explosion.

Ambler leads fastpitch

by John Mac Ritch

While the fastpitch championship seems to be in Ambler's possession, a tight race is shaping up for second place, as only one game separates second place from fourth place.

The schedule favors Hillman's team, as they have two games remaining with DuPont and one with Griffin. Summerville, however, has won the last three games after getting off to a slow start. The Griffin team will have to hustle, as they play two games with Ambler next week.

Slowpitch has held the pressure on Wash on their first-place battle. Wash has had to pull many games out of the fire in the last inning, so his mark must be starting to run thin.

Dixi Cummings, college chaplain, captured the top honors in the annual SMC golf tournament, the Happy Valley Open. Shooting an 18-hole total of 80, Elder Cummings won the championship flight with Charlie Wolkow's second-place effort.

First Flight was captured by Richard Halverson, but only after a sudden death playoff with Randy Cockrell. Both finished regulation play with an 88.

Bernie Corbett secured second flight honors with a 99, while Ken Burnham's 105 was good enough for runner-up. A "Jumping Drive," and "closest to the pin" contest were held during the tournament. Harold Johnson won the longest drive, by a scant four feet, and Ken Buchart won the "closest to the pin" contest. Awards will be presented Thursday, October 5th during SA Chapel.

New office hours Oct. 1

The Administrative Council voted last week to adopt the following office hours* for the public in the administrative offices of Wright Hall:

Monday-Thursday: 9 to 12 noon; 1 to 4 p.m.
Friday: 9 to 12 noon; 9 to 12:30 (Counselor's office)
Sunday, closed all day

(*Effective beginning Sunday, October 1st)

According to council member, R.C. Mills, the shortened business hours came as a result of general budget cuts being made in several areas of the administration in order to keep the college from slipping too far into the red.

In past years increased enrollment has helped pay for expansion and building expenses. Since there is no increase in enrollment this year, the normal budget will necessarily need to be tightened.

"The new office hours are an effort to make more efficient use of personnel working time," explained Mills.

Last year SMC overshot the budget by approximately $250,000. Profits from the college industries, however, pulled the school back into the black again.

PRO:

by Duane Hallock

For some time it has been felt that the name of Southern Missionary College is a misnomer. It points to people’s minds an image that is detrimental to the goals and objectives of the institution.

Years ago, when SMC was an 'adventure' word was included in the name. SMC is a descriptive term which expresses the goals and purposes of the college’s existence.

To the non-Adventist, the name could be misleading. Many people associate SMC with a quondam Christian college. The name, being descriptive, is used to mean something different than the Adventist’s understanding.

In the minds of some people today the name SMC paints a picture of a white-hatted faculty preening into a deep jungle. To others it is a nondenominational call in a thachertop.

The name of the college has a tendency to limit an understanding of its mission. Many persons are given the false impression that SMC is solely a Bible college which prepares missionaries.

A name is perhaps one of the most important assets of a college. It is something that is descriptive of themission of the school.

Not long ago, when the Southern Adventist Association was in the process of testing the campus they pointed out that the name of SMC was misleading.

The majority of the accrediting team had never been on the SMC campus before. They expressed surprise when they found that Southern Missionary College was actually an institution of higher learning.

From the name of the college they had expected a small and understated school where students walked from class to class roku and down the name, students sang hymns.

Some ask, “What’s wrong with walking around campus carrying Bibles and singing hymns? Isn’t that a part of our Christianity?”

Indeed it is, but don’t forget that the impression was also given that SMC was a small and underdeveloped school.

Consideration must also be given to the cost of changing the name. Legal documents would have to be changed, containing large sums of money, Shipping statements, invoices, and mailing addresses which would have to be changed. Informing the public of a change would also be an expense to the college.

But when consideration is given to the many sources of money which are coming in to the college, it is conceivable that sufficient funds could be raised for the public relations involved in such a transaction.

Southern Missionary College has had the unique distinction of being located in the heart of a conservative school which has been forced in the denomination to uphold traditional and principles of Christian philosophy, which is a reputation to be proud of.

But let it be known that SMC is not a follower of tradition just for the sake of tradition.

The name of SMC needs to be changed. The name should not be done without the sacrificing of Christian principles, but it should be done in a name change which will accurately reflect an image of the college’s close relationship with Jesus Christ.

CON:

by Randy Eldkins

Under the guise of removing all misunderstandings as a result of the word missionary in the college title, the board of trustees is considering a change in the name of the school.

Acting on a suggestion from the Southern Accrediting Association that the term missionary in misleading as a descriptive title is being sought for the school.

That term could be more indicative of our stations in this world than the term missionary. The misunderstanding caused by the word is more than compensated for in the light of which usually follows provides the Internet with a brief introduction to a fully accredited liberal arts college, owned and operated by the Seventh-day Adventist denominationalization.

Let it be known here that even those who are pressing for a new college name that term is not adequate for retaining the college name, this argument is not based on nostalgia, for in the final analysis nostalgia is worthless.

If we must strike the name missionary from the college title let us also stop dropping the word worship, requiring twelve hours of religion as a necessity for a degree, and subscribe generally to the secular philosophy of education as followed by the majority of secular universities.

We are different, our college should reflect the fact that we launch a course that will allow the student a selection of courses which will do nothing to separate us from secular education.

For the correct reason we have worked to develop a curriculum that will offer a choice of possible employer prejudice due to the term missionary as opposed to secular education.

As graduates, we should consider the secular standard, not our one alma mater as a major criteria for our lives. It questions his independence in general, and one’s desire to work for him in particular.

Admittedly there are some schools who have established themselves in the academe world and being a product thereof has its advantages. The name of the school is not a reason for the lack of an academic community; rather their pursuit of intellectualism is based on the trivial and unimportant. Fearing that most students would not acquiesce any individual group, we hereby denied a sought for the word missionary in the college title.

The proposal for a new name should be an endeavor to kill the proposal. What we are attempting is to make the operating budget or the 300 thousand dollars in the year to compensate for lowering expected enrollment. With a type of situation where the cost of a name change, it is much.

Instead of considering changing the school name, let us even for the plight of several academic departments faced with severe cutbacks, instead, let us consider the attention of the Board of Trustees.

For more implicative than the name of the college, and our immediate attitudes. Things of the name of the college are our most important and irreversible. That we are to examine is that there has been a particular interest in the name and the fear that the fears of the word missioning is greatly exaggerated.

Pastor Kennedy started a program in the early sixties entitled Peace Corps. While its name was never a peace was a helpful by-product. While our endeavors should be education missionary work is a by-product.

Subsequently, the program continued to be sponsored by the Peace Corps. We would have said that the fears of the word missionary is greatly exaggerated and that we as a church are considering segregating our institutions from our philosophy as we face the realities of the world at this time, by selecting a neutral name for this school because schools are products of their environment.

We are what we say we are - let us not change it.

That is the question
Education retreat

By Steve Nikolaidis

"The delivery was successful, and the baby is healthy," boasted Janice Berkeley, chairman of SMC’s department of education, comparing the planning and coordination of SMC’s first retreat for education majors to the time of his wife’s first pregnancy. Berkeley spoke proudly in terms of the "liberation" and dedication of the SNEA (Student National Education Association) officers whose dedicated work and coordinated planning made the retreat possible.

Guests at the retreat included Pastor Don Altborg, Educational Studies Division; the Cumberland Conference; Elder Yoit, Ed. Sec. of Ken-Tenn.; Pastor John Thuer, Carolina Conference Youth Evangelist; Dr. Vets Payne, professor of education at SMC; Mrs. Mildred Spence, assistant professor of education at SMC; Pastor Ed. Erickson, Associate Secretary of the Education Department of the South Carolina Union; and Dr. Stuart Berkeley, chairman of the department of education at SMC.

Featurer speaker for the retreat was Dr. Ed. Schunick, professor of education from Andrews University. The retreat was held at Camp Country-Guy from 4 p.m. Friday to 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 22-28.

"I am glad we had only a smaller group," said Dr. Berkeley of the forty students who attended. "It gave us all a feeling of specialness and gave us time and the conference secretary a good chance to get acquainted with the students."

For worship service Friday, Pastor Thuer spoke about the theme of love and stressed that it is the most important thing for a teacher to show his students.

Continuing this same theme in the worship service Saturday morning, guest speaker, Dr. Murdoch, stated that "Love is the foundation of all true education and all true development. We must learn how to love."

During the worship service from her many years of experience as a teacher, Dr. Murdoch challenged the students to: (1) love as God loves; (2) seek to understand humanity; (3) seek hope where there seems to be none; (4) deal with students as individuals; (5) help the student to see God’s love not as a restriction but rather as a protection of freedom; (6) teach discipline in every class; (7) teach the child to think for himself; (8) be what you teach; and (9) pray for the power of the Holy Spirit in order to accomplish all of the above.

Saturday afternoon, a general meeting was held by Dr. Berkeley, followed by small discussion groups led by the guest speaker. Nature hikes followed the discussion, and then came supper, talent presentations, and campfire recreation.

Sunday morning saw a very sleepless-eyed lot of future teachers of America alternating between hugging, falling, or crawling out of bed at a sleepy 6 a.m. to be ready for 6:30 breakfast.

Dr. Murdoch spoke on changing concepts in education and warned the students that they would be safe in adapting new teaching techniques only if they do not violate the clearly-outlined principles of the Bible for students’ convenience.

This teaching survival budget has been cut $800.00, when asked how they were going to manage under such circumstances, Stanley commented that the department was just going to have to do the best it could and cut down on supplies expenses in any way possible.

In spite of the budget cut, the office administration department has expanded slightly, the year hiring three full-time workers who were two fulltime and one part-time teacher.

The number of students enrolled in courses of office administration has gone down since last year but the teaching schedules merged the addition of the extra help stated Stanley.

Banquet postponed

There will be no school next Monday, a day known as Fall Free Day. In past years, the day was used by students as a day of rest for their annual fall picnic. Because of cold weather or lack of interest, however, the fall picnic is being dropped this year.

The Men’s Club banquet this Sunday thus allowing the earning students in Orlando to make the trip up and back to attend, is taking advantage of the long weekend, however, and pulling home.

As a result, not enough couples have signed up for the marriage, and the committee is making it as convenient as possible. The banquet has been postponed until October 22, 7:30 p.m. Tickets will be available at the student affairs office.

Charge-a-seat

Tickets for this year’s first semester productions of the Artistic Adventurers Series will go on sale Tuesday, October 10. A student may change his statement, with his ID card, 2 tickets for each performance. These tickets normally sell for $3.50, but depending on the seat in the auditorium, will cost the student from $1.50 down to 50c.

The importance of buying tickets this year is because of the newly employed reserved seat policy. This will save the reverse space seats for veterans or people who never arrive. Also, students and faculty have been given preference to choose seats because they will have the opportunity to buy tickets for each performance once a week before the general public.

This year the committee in charge has chosen very popular performances such as pianist-composer Victor Borge, who will perform October 28, in Alhambra Week-end. Also scheduled in Van Cliburn, Ferrante & Teicher, John Jay, and the Danish Gym Team. The latter two performances are free of charge to students. See details on other lectures in the Victor Borge story this week.

Involved this year in the programs are Dr. Kuhnlemanders, Jan. Ruhberg-uhleing, and Robert Merchant-ticket sales.
Victor Borge to humor SMC Oct. 28

Victor Borge, a highly talented and versatile entertainer, has announced that he will appear at the Southern Missionary College on Thursday, October 28, at 8 p.m. Tickets for this program are on sale beginning October 10.

Borge's unique qualifications of music, dance, pantomime, direction and acting provide a rare opportunity for students in the college to view a world-class entertainer. Borge's career began at the age of thirteen. He received his education in Copenhagen, where he was taught both music and the graphic arts.

Borge's credits include the following:
- 1929: Made his first concert tour in Europe.
- 1933: Flirted with international stardom for the first time.
- 1960: Began his first college tour for the purpose of teaching and demonstrating his art to American students.
- 1967: Came to America to teach at Brown University.
- 1968: On a fifteen-week engagement at the Los Angeles Music Center.
- 1969: On a tour of Europe to play concerts.
- 1970: On a tour of Japan, his first visit to the country.
- 1972: On a tour of Latin America.
- 1973: On a tour of Australia and New Zealand.
- 1974: On a tour of India and Pakistan.
- 1975: On a tour of South Africa.
- 1976: On a tour of West Africa.
- 1977: On a tour of the Middle East.

Want a job in Europe?

Los Angeles, Calif. — "Jobs for young people are available in Europe," said Dr. F. X. Gordon, president of Princeton Research, at a University of Southern California interview back in July.

"Just come back from Europe and the world's biggest market is booming. On the other hand, he stated, we foresee continued youth unemployment in the United States until at least October 1973. U.S. corporations are still cutting back personnel and are not planning to reemploy.

Although the improving situation in Europe is likely to create more job opportunities for young people, there are still few openings for Americans. British and European companies are likely to require young people to have some business experience.

"We have a program called Jobs Europe," said Dr. Gordon, "and I strongly advise you to contact him for more information as soon as possible."

Accident

A two-car accident on Apison Pike and Tnahn road sent John Garner and Fred Zollinger to Erlanger Hospital Monday morning.

According to Chief flats of the Collegedale police department, Garner was traveling west on Apison Pike when he struck Zollinger who was making a left turn onto Tnahn road.

Garner, a Junior at SMC, was on his way to the cafeteria to have a meal. He was taken to the hospital for treatment. The hospital will be closed if he is not released by 2 p.m. Monday.

Nursing

By Phil Raley

Both the four-year and two-year nursing departments are flourishing with new teachers this year.

In the B.S. nursing department (four-year), Shirley Spach has joined SMC faculty after graduating in 1970 and completing her masters degree in medical-surgical nursing at the University of Alabama.

Dorothy Starnes and Jean Morgan have joined the staff of the department. Students who have graduated from the department are now teaching more medical-surgical courses.

Bicycles, bridges and . . . blood

A summer in Bangladesh

by Darryl Ludington

"Insight 75 million people living together in an area the size of Wisconsin," commented Doug Jacobs as he pulled out some maps of Bangladesh from his dresser. "That's like putting all the people in the world within the boundaries of the United States. Over 1500 people per square mile!"

Doug, a senior theology major this year at SMU, flew to Bangladesh this past summer to help his parents at the SDA mission located in the capital city of Dacca. His father is the mission president.

Although he had been with his father and mother for seven years in both West Pakistan and India, this was his first visit to the newly formed state of Bangladesh (formerly East Pakistan).

Doug spent a week working during the first two weeks with his father and another minister, Elder Hutchinson, traveling on car and bicycle into the northern parts of the country checking on the condition of the churches. Most of them had been destroyed by the civil war which was with West Pakistan the year before.

"It was slow going," Doug explained as he put out the route on the map. "Because we had to make detours around 25 bridges which had been blown up!"

After that Doug worked at the mission in Dacca doing odd jobs. He took one jaunt downtown to pick up building supplies for the extensive refugee housing project in the delta area. Commenting on the project he said:

"The houses were no bigger than one of our dormitory rooms. What we did was to put up the main structural frame and roof it, then let the new owners put their own siding."

"It's amazing!" Doug noted, "how optimistic the Bangladeshi are about a new life now after such devastating events. It was experienced during the cyclone of '70 and the civil war of '71."

Late one night, a song of dependents broke into the Hutchinson

by Gary B. Rodgers

A new member to the Col-le-ge faculty will be on campus soon. Pastor Ronald B. Rodgers is leaving his position as M.V. Ed-ucation and Temperance Sec retary of the New Jersey Con ference to come and serve as youth pastor for Collegeville Ac ademy and upper grades of Spalding Elementary School.

In past years both schools have served only on a part time basis by a salaried pastor. But with 261 students enrolled in the academy and nearly 400 in the elementary this year, it was felt that a full-time youth pastor was needed.

After graduating from SMU in 1957 with a B.A. degree in Adminis tration, Rodgers worked in several different elementary schools and academies as both principal and teacher. In 1963 he received his masters degree in school administration from the University of Texas.

Rodgers was ordained the following year at Trinityville, New Jersey.

He then served at M.V. Education and Temperance Secretary for the New River Conference during the next few years before accepting the position of youth pastor here.

According to Elder Gary Paterson, pastor of the Collegeville Church, the job as youth pastor will include such varied responsibilities as school counselor, a family counselor, and advisor to the church social committee.

The youth pastor will also be in charge of organizing weekly programs of prayer, youth Sabbath school, youth clubs, and possibly even an occasional youth church service for the academy students.

Elder Rodgers and his wife, Denise, have two children, Collette (14) and Bonnie (8).

Bennett awarded Ph.D.

Douglas Bennett, Religion Department chairman, has been on study leave for two years, and on August 31, 1972, his doctorate was conferred.

His field of study was Rhetoric and Communication, and his doctoral dissertation was entitled "A Rhetorical Study of the Heretical Characteristics of Clovis Gallain Chappell." The book is now being bound and will be placed in the McAfee Library in the dissertation section of the reference room.

In 1970, Bennett attended the University of Michigan and then transferred to Bowling Green State University in Ohio.

Elder Jerry Gladson, an SMU graduate, has joined the religion department staff. A member of the class of '65, Elder Gladson graduated with honors while preparing for the Bachelor of Divinity degree at Asbury Theological Seminary, Madison, Tennessee.

He is married to the former Linda H. Halterman, whom he met as a student. They have two children, Jodessa, three, and Paul, one.

Elder Gladson has also joined the SMC staff as the director teacher for the junior high school at the Home Economics Academy.

Gladson is attending Vander bilt University twice a week to finish his Master of Arts degree.

He says he must pursue work, especially evening work, during the spring and fall semesters, but "God put me here!" While he is in his goal is to prepare married students to work.

"To be used as I am used by the Holy Spirit," he says. He was the first student on campus to the students of SMC.

Zuckman moves to the rel igion department from Camarillo, Calif., where he taught for 5 1/2 years. Not wanting to leave the pastoral work, he turned down four calls to teach at other colleges, but when SMU called him, he was convinced that the Lord wanted him to teach. He wasn't able until the spring semester to begin the term that he was taught to the ministry and he was calling.

After All the Zuckman's went to California where their two chidren were born, Jill is now four and Mark is 1 1/2.
Lee's Tae-Kwon Do

By Darryl Kwon

"A group shall be organized for the purpose of physical and psychological development through the medium of Karate. This group shall be known as the Southern TAE-KWON DO Association." (Article 1 of the constitution of the Southern TAE-KWON DO Association)

Under the direction of Inman Lee, who holds a first degree black belt in Tae-Kwon-Do, a new Karate Club has been formed which now boasts a membership of over 400. The club offers its members a chance to learn a special Korean form of karate known as Tae-Kwon-Do.

A native Korean, Lee studied Tae-Kwon-Do under Sunik Koo, a sixth degree black belt in Seoul, Korea, before coming to Maryland in 1970. After graduating from high school, Lee began teaching in 1973. Lee is now in the process of setting up a school of karate for beginners.

The Japanese origin of Karate means 'karate' means self-defense, character building, and humility. Karate really means respect for one another. If we don't have this respect, Karate will soon die out in the U.S. If strong physical power in Karate's future, then it has no future," Lee says he feels an obligation to build inner strength in his students. "When students ask me, 'How many boards will I be able to break?', I tell them to wait. After the second or third lesson, such a question is never asked again because they have already started to acquire the inner strength which is vital to their development."

According to Lee, Karate is not only good for the physical, but the mental as well. "The purpose of learning karate is to develop good character, courtesy, self control, and leadership."

When he taught Tae-Kwon-Do at Rice-Halmian Institute of Technology last year, Lee required his students to stop drinking and smoking, and to develop self-control if they intended to continue the classes.

According to club member Gary Maloney, each new applicant is carefully screened as to motive and disposition. "We don't want anyone taking karate who might use it in a wrong way," he said. "Karate is not to hurt people but rather to develop self control and agility. No one ever gets hit."

A business meeting is being called next week to elect club officers. Plans are also in the making for a Southern Tae-Kwon-Do Association Convention in April of next year. It is hoped that the convention will allow black-belt experts from clubs in Indiana, Washington, D.C., Andrews University, Pacific Union College, and Loma Linda University.

The membership fee for those wishing to join the club is $20, plus another $6 for the entire season. Application deadline is October 14th, so send yours in soon.

When asked how the club has grown, Trudy Myers replied, "Great! Great students, Great sport!"

Then she added: "I learned to swim once; then I play the ball, then play ping pong, then table tennis. Now I want to learn karate!"

Student Missionary Special Bulletin

Here is a list of Student Missionary Requests to be filled during the 1972-73 school year. The student missionaries filling these applications will begin their overseas service in 1973-74. The program is an exciting one. You select the request that you feel best qualified for. Fill out the application form and return it to one of the following:

Larry Rahn - Yale Hall
Laura McNeely - Thatcher Hall
Melvin Campbell - Chemistry Department

This list is for SDA Colleges. If there is a particular request you want filled, a resolution will be made by the M.V. Department of the General Conference by the Student Missionaries Committee. You need your Group's list.

Prospective student missionaries must keep the following in mind:

1) G. P. A. must be at least 2.75.
2) Usually student missionaries will be taken from the sophomores and juniors.
3) These students will be given adequate training toward the church and school policies, life styles, dedication and qualifications.

6) All student missionaries must be prepared to finance their transportation and board from the field. Exception to this is listed in the requested and for some students going to the Madagascar project. (SMC-101 to SMC-105)

Agnew comments on Elections, Nixon, McGovern

By Steve V. Roberts
New York Times

By Jerry Rosenberg and Anne Casey of the Washington

Congressional Quarterly News Service.

Richard Nixon's Administration has been a unfortunately in its first three years. It cannot be denied that it has been a period of unprecedented achievements in many areas. However, there are certain areas where the Administration's record leaves something to be desired.

The most significant achievement of the Nixon Administration has been the war on inflation.

The nation has experienced a steady decline in the rate of inflation since 1971. This is a welcome development and one that is widely recognized as a significant achievement.

Another important achievement of the Nixon Administration has been the improvement of international relations. The United States has played a leading role in reducing tensions in the world and in promoting peace.

The Nixon Administration has also been active in improving the environment. The President has taken steps to protect the environment and to ensure that the nation's natural resources are used wisely.

In addition, the Nixon Administration has taken significant steps to improve the nation's educational system. The President has increased funding for education and improved educational opportunities for all American students.

The Nixon Administration has also been active in promoting civil rights. The President has taken steps to ensure equal opportunity for all Americans, regardless of race, creed, or color.

Overall, the Nixon Administration has made significant contributions to the nation's well-being. It has improved the nation's economy, strengthened our international position, and worked to improve the environment and education.

However, there are areas where the Administration could do better. The nation still faces many challenges, and the Administration must continue to work toward a brighter future.

Singing/Witnessing groups
To perform all over South

This year three singing-witnessing groups sanctioned by the public relations department of SMC.
The first year the Jubilantes have been organized by staff and students of the church. A church, Mark Knoll, Mark Dalton is the leader and members are Bill Huston, Randy Tyrone, Kay Alford, Sherry Alford, Kay Willis, Kurt Casler, Ben Bretch, and Charles Wiedenhop.

Their first performance was in Garden Springs where we posted for the Southern Union Medical School.
Their second performance is a multi-colored array with black tops for the ladies and gold shirts. The purpose of this performance is to witness and to sing songs for those who are not believers.

Foster De Cammen and Dean Kenneth Spears are sponsoring a group of twenty members led by Randy Tyrone. The basic goal of this group will be to present a relationship with Christ and the Christian's life.

Money to ABS
WASHINGTON, D.C. The General Conference of Seventh- day Adventists has mailed a gift of $375,000 to the American Bible Society.

ABO which is the underlying receipt of the gift the ADS observed that in addition to the financial contribution the church has been carrying on a lively program of Bible distribution in the United States and Canada. The ADS pointed out the program to the advantage of example, where Bible distribution has increased by 27 percent in the past year as a result of Adventist distribution of the Scriptures.

A month ago a report that as a result of the Scriptures program in Mexico that the Madrid Bible Society has received $1,000,000. This has occasioned an increase in the Philippines.

In South America the denominations have received a goal of 10 million copies between 1970 and 1975. Its members gave away 10,000 Bibles in the past two years.

Clothes go overseas
WASHINGTON, D.C. Re-processed clothing totaling 226 tons has been distributed overseas by the Seventh-day Adventist Welfare Services (SAWS) here.

Receiving requests from six countries this week, SAWS voted donated clothing for overseas shipments from East and West Coast depots. Countries listed for this week are Korea, Peru, Chile, Laos, China, and Eastern Rwanda.

"Nothing going to Rwanda will help to meet the needs of the Burundian refugees who have been and other humanitarian aid. This is the picture again," he says.

Watts has also created the need for shelter for Laotians and Cambodians. In Korea, however, has declined, 22,000 homes and leaving 47,000 persons, 77 missing, and 83 injured initiated the request for help. The Korean government has had recently initiated a program to get along with the help in the way of food, clothing, and shelter. This action, by Watts, said, "It is a question, Do you ever participate of interesting beverages?"

Science candidates being Selected for fellowships
WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Research Council has been called upon again to advise the National Science Foundation in the selection of candidates for the Foundation's program of Graduate Fellowships. Panels of eminent scientists appointed by the National Research Council will evaluate qualifications of applicants. Final selection will be made by the Foundation, with awards to be announced on March 15, 1973.

Applicants to the NSF Graduate Fellowship Program must be beginning graduate students in the fall of 1973, or must have completed not more than one calendar year of full-time or part-time graduate study by the Fall of 1973, subject to the availability of funds. Final fellowships awarded by the Spring of 1973 will be for periods of three years; the second and third years contingent on certification to the Foundation by the fellowship holder of satisfactory progress toward an advanced degree in the sciences.

These fellowships will be awarded for study or work leading to master's or doctoral degrees in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, engineering, and social science fields. Applications must be filed by May 31, 1973.

Awards will not be made to individuals who are, or have been, in the Armed Forces. Applications must be filed by May 31, 1973.

The deadline for filing of applications for Graduate Fellowships is December 9, 1972. Further information and application materials may be obtained from the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, Washington, D.C. 20418.

Change 'drastic' in Business Dept.
by Beth Willis

Change has been drastic in the business administration and accounting department. It is not only in a new location, it has come up with some new ideas in education.

New ways of studying are being applied in the study labs for principals of accounting.

Visual aids are being used in a required lab. The lab is to help the student get homework done and someone is to help when a staff problem comes up.

There is another unusual class offered by the Business Administration department, the E.A. Anderson Lecture Series. This is ten lectures held by different professional men from all parts of the country. Students are required to take all lectures and be tested on the material each lecture contains.

These lectures are to give the student a broad overview of what the business world is like.

Another change in the department is the drop in numbers of students taking Business courses. When asked why he thought this was so, Vande Vrede stated that he considered it to be the lack of male students at SMC, this year.

The budget cut is of concern to most departments but this will not affect the Business department since it has moved into new quarters. Classroom and offices are to be furnished with new materials and equipment. According to Vande Vrede all equipment expenses are included in the building fund.

A candidate for mayor in a small town called on a minister to ask for his vote in the coming election. "Before I decide to give you my support," said the minister, "I want to ask a question. Do you ever participate of interesting beverages?"

"Before I try I would like to ask the question," said the candidate, "In this on inquires or a contribution?"
FDA sees red-poison

CIFES) The next time you have a red candy bar, a can of cherry soda or a strawberry popsicle, you may want to avoid eating it. According to Food and Drug Administration statisticians, a dye called Red No. 2, found in virtually every artificially red-colored food, is a cancer risk to humans.

Although the color additive is safe for use in foods, drugs, and cosmetics, a scientific proof of safety for all color additives in food substance is in this particular case, the agency said. Evidence that Red No. 2 is hazardous for human consumption is not conclusive.

According to Sidney M. Wolf, associate director of the Food and Drug Administration, the safety level would be 15 mg/kg of body weight. This level of the dye ingestion for an adult would allow a 110-lb woman to drink about 2/3 lb of a can of soda daily. A child would be allowed 3 quarters of a can of soda daily.

The FDA has since introduced this dye into the food system on the use of Red No. 2, but has denied that there is any evidence that it is not hazardous to humans.

The Chorale to do Anahil, Messiah

The Chorale will begin appearances this year with a benefit concert to aid the Israel Defense Forces, Saturday night, October 21.

On this occasion, the members will perform various new works, including the official anthem of the ISRAELI FREEDOM, as well as several other sacred works.

Anahil is one of the two non-government works that the official commissioning committee, the ISRAELI FREEDOM, will accept for the occasion. The Chorale will play the work of the Spanish conductor, Martel Teel. Friday evening, December 15, the Chorale will perform one of the major sacred works, with the Chorale choir and orchestra to perform the "Messiah." Training for the choir will be held at the beginning of the second semester.

The Chorale is preparing a variety of works, sacred, devotional, and popular. Among the sacred works, the choir will perform "Hearts of the Chorale," consisting of students who will sing from the ancient to the modern in praise of the Chorale. Proclaimed as the "Bible and Youth," the program will feature the Chorale choir and orchestra to perform the "Messiah." Training for the choir will be held at the beginning of the second semester.

Editorially Speaking...

If anyone reading this has a canine or a feline, the animal may be a devil. The man went to a Christian church to look for help. The devil was waiting for him. He usually was late to all the meetings and was always dressed in a suit and tie. Scared and unsure of what to do, or, for that matter, scared of what he would do, he finally came to their new brother and asked him if he wouldn't like to go somewhere else, but there was nothing they could do for him. So he came here for help," he blurted. "We're sorry," the congregation responded. Then one man stood and said, "We know who can help you and set you free, but we don't know how to get in touch with Him." So our mother turned and sadly walked away. The devil laughed, and Jesus cried, the congregation continued their worship service.

There once was a man named Randy Russell. The devil was waiting for him. He usually was late to all the meetings and was always dressed in a suit and tie. Spectrum Girls Dating Rules

By Andy Woolley

In this day of dating surveys, Sadie Hawkins and Gloria Steinem, young girls would be well advised to re-examine their etiquette rules. To make it easier, here are some of Amelia Vanderbethe's newest dating rules.

When asking a young man for a date, girls, be forceful. Grab his right hand, squeeze with a vice-like grip and put your right heel on his left instep. If he refuses, you are in the right position to throw him.

Some men do not like for women to seat them at the table or to carry their trays. If he refuses to let you sit and bus, pull out the chair to collide with his shin. If he will not let you carry his tray, put it in the middle with a swift kung fu chop, yelling "Freiden" simultaneously. This is quite easy with cardboard trays but can be a little tough with molded plastic.

Some men will not let you open the doors for them, but there are usually look who don't know what it is like to have a window rolled up on their head, a door slammed on their foot, or a venti lid shut while head and neck are still inside.

Finally, don't let him pick up the check. If he attempts this, use arm-wrestling. Once you gain control and have flattened him between the ketchup and left over hoss dawg, eat the check so that he won't try it again.

By following these simple rules, there will be no plateau for you to dwell on, girl. Today the date, tomorrow the locker moons.
Take it from me, after mid-terms, it's a breeze.

Flagball opens Sunday

By John Marelle

Rene Halverson began his self-proclaimed "Flagball" league last Thursday.

By Flagball, Halverson means a softball league where teams of 10 players each line up on a diamond in "A" formation, with the pitcher behind the batter, and the catcher behind the pitcher.

Flagball will open this Sunday, as six teams in "A" League will battle for the championship for the next six weeks. The twin-game schedule will conclude just before Thanksgiving, with each team meeting the other twice. Co-captains for the six teams were chosen last week. They are Co-captains & Co-captains: Halverson; Maretich; McKenzie; McKenzie; McKenzie; Noorbergen.

Branch church in Hisxon soon

Although not obvious to the average student eye, things are shaping up in Hisxon. According to Bob Britch, MV president, and D. Wright, co-ordinator, two prospective sites for holding branch Sabbath School are under consideration.

This branch Sabbath School is really a branch church that an organized church can be established in the area. College addresses stickers on the literature will make it easier for New Testament Witnessing teams and Bible study groups to follow up the leads. Ken Wilson and Dave Mortine, regional directors, have already decided the area into districts, and have assigned student pastors.

He wears his faith but as the fashion of his hat: it ever changes with the heat block. Shakespeare

Rene Noorbergen, author and Doubleday editor-reporter

Noorbergen-happy here

(Editor's note: Rene Noorbergen is a SDA author, writer and Doubleday editor-reporter. She is the author of the book "Flagball" Life Magazine). He has written a best seller about the life of Jesus Dixon, a self-proclaimed and controversial prophet and seer. He just recently finished his brand-new book on Ellen G. White's life and prophetic gift. He is building a house in College Dale now and plans to make his permanent residence. The Southern Accent was granted a request for an interview and suggestion, Mike Coulfield, spent a delightful hour with Noorbergen last Tuesday morning listening to his candid opinions and needs concerning his two books, his work now and future plans, and his ideas and country living. Assistant Mr. Noorbergen, a number of students here on SMU's campus need a background sketch of you and your work-in-progress and in order to more fully appreciate what you're doing now. Could you fill us in?

"Yes. I started out the usual way, a Theologian major at La Sierra College, from 1947 to 1952. I last switched to history and later on, I went after my Master's in Esotericology. I never made it because it was too dead for my liking.

I then began a repertoire of jobs in radio and TV productions before becoming a correspondent for a number of European magazines, I covered the Arab-Israel war in 1956 and that taught me a lot. 2:00-3:00 I am a white slaver of international assignations, to Mostly 90 countries.

I spent some time in Cuba with Castro, covering him.

In the early 1960's I was married and in 1965 I became managing editor for the Food Motor Company Publications. Though and half years was enough of that and I decided that it was time for my first book. My first book was entitled Jesus Dixon: Mr. Life and Prophecy and my recently-published edition is called Ellen White Prophet of Destiny.

Assistant Let's talk about your first book. Did you enjoy working with Mr. Dixon.]

"It was a treat as a treatment. She was rather hard to work with, as in the case when one works with another who feels a very high sense of importance. Then it's extremely difficult. After writing the book, I moved to Washington and now I enjoy no further contact with Mr. Dixon nor shall I see him."

"Noorbergen: Why the book on Ellen G. White? You'd say that your Faith was strengthened by writing this book-why?

"After I had studied the prophesies, I began to wonder as to what Ellen White really was. The church in the end will keep the Commandments of God and have the Testimony of Jesus, which is the spirit of prophecy (Rev. 12:17, cf. Rev. 19:10, Ed. note). But over the years we've emphasized the Commandments, and the spirit of prophecy is, nah, that's OK, and if you don't, it's OK. You can believe in it if you want, but in the view of the matter, most of us are content because they haven't studied her at all.

"I'm not a fanatic on Mrs. White at all; I'm a realist-that's all. Her PAG's score and her vision of the Great Controversy were enough to consider her as one of her true calling and service."

"Her Controversy vision gave me enough information to determine how the dead is going to work in the future. The score of her information was justified by the fact that she revealed Satan's masterplan for his supposed worldwide conquest."

"She couldn't have given us as her plan by accident, and he's never to let her have his plans for delusion of his own accord, he would like to see this plan and do it in the Garden. The fact that she did uncover this plan proves that she came from God."

"I’m working on a book now which will deal with the idea that God has used one line of prophecy, beginning with the Garden of Eden and going on down to Revelation. Satan knows what’s happening and he has used his creation to confuse, mislead and mislead people of the world," she said.

"Ascan. Can or do people today really take in the idea of a modern Ishmael or Ezekiel?" "Surprisingly enough, most people are very willing to believe in a modern day prophet. A prophet—Jenee Cymble, Edgar Cayce, et al—by those things from our church, just someone who predicts. Whether or not they’re 30 per cent, 60 per cent, or 95 per cent accurate makes a difference. They don’t worry. So we only need to make people aware now that there are different false and true prophets."

Givahoot comes to SMC

By Steve Crimsen

Many centuries ago, there was a terrible flood in the Cupid area. It was so terrible that many of the family, including Cupid’s. Capulets, had been caught in the flood. One young man, named Paine, was washed ashore. Instead of killing the queer with just arrows, he told him he could play the symphony on his refrains and see how many more he could play. So, when Paine showed up, he had to work and take care of himself. When he was old enough, he became the symphony’s main trumpeter.

He was a legend. He was the most popular of all the trumpet players. He was known for his ability to play the symphony on the symphony’s lead trumpet. When he played, the symphony’s main trumpet would light up and smoke. It was a sight that could not be missed.

Now, in the year 2023, the symphony is performing a special tribute to the great trumpeter. The symphony will be performing a selection of his favorite pieces, including "The Trumpet Fanfare," "The Symphony of the Spheres," and "The Salute to Liberty." The concert will take place at the symphony’s main venue, the Symphony Hall. The concert is free to the public, and everyone is encouraged to attend.

The symphony’s main trumpet will be played by a group of talented young musicians. The concert will also feature performances by the symphony’s other brass sections, including the trombone, French horn, and tuba. The concert will end with a spectacular firework display, set to music by the symphony’s percussionists.

It is a perfect way to celebrate the legacy of the great trumpeter and to honor his contributions to the world of symphonic music. The symphony is proud to bring this special tribute to the audience, and we hope everyone will enjoy the concert.

On Thursday, October 26, the annual convention of the Adventist Student Press Association will convene on the campus of Columbia University. Newspaper representatives from Adventist colleges and universities across North America are expected for the two-day event.

The highlight of the convention will be a presentation of various papers to the students present. As that is the theme of this year's meetings College newspaper editors, students, writers, editors, and publishers will occupy the attention of the delegates as this important intercollegiate event moves into its fourth year.

President of the association for the past year has been Randy Elkins, former editor of the Adventist Church Advocate. Elkins was appointed to the post last year at the convention meetings held on the campus of Columbia Union College. The site of each year's meetings is related to the person who is chairperson of the Student Press Association. The annual session will be held in a new organization this year.

According to Elkins, who is the high point of this year's convention will be an after-dinner address by Mr. John Poplau, managing editor of the Chattanooga Times-Picayune, who will speak to the group on Thursday evening. The presentation will include members of the conference staff as well as various guests from the college community. Elkins said the complex literary program will not yet be finalized. Mrs. Earnestine S. Smith, president, will close the session with an address on Friday afternoon.

The Adventist Student Press Association was founded four years ago. Former meetings have been held at Union College, Columbia Union College, and now here Elkins said that the demise of so many intercollegiate activities, a college bowl, the future of the Association is as important as a success of any project between the colleges. As of this date eight of the country's eleven Adventist higher education schools have said they will attend this year's meetings. Elkins is hoping for 100 percent participation this year. The theme of the organization is to have a film of about six people each table with the caterers providing from the banquet area.

Beginning with the band, under the direction of Jack McClary, students will enjoy songs such as the theme from "2001 Space Odyssey," "Stars and Stripes Forever" with all percussion and five sections; and "The Duke" featuring a banjo.

After a break, the chorale, under the direction of SMC faculty, will take the program through a series of popular love melodies with such favorites as "Only You and Me," "Try to Remember," and "Sing Me a Song of Love." The last part of the program will be presented by the SMC orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Melvin Jackson, with six songs to be chosen.

Over 600 people showed up at the Pop's Concert last year, and 500 attended the previous year.
Mills does PR for Blind

By Kathy Kummer

"Well, I was sitting in bed studying, about 10:00 O'clock one morning last spring, when I got a telephone call from Bob Sheldon. Now, you see, I had known Bob Sheldon in Beirut, Lebanon when he was manager of the Thai Publishers House in the Far East Division and so, Charles Mills launched into a description of his summer, which he obviously enjoyed.

Bob Sheldon, presently Public Relations director for the Christian Record Braille Foundation in Lincoln, Neb., offered Charles a job working with two of his favorite things—photography and children.

On this job, he would travel to nine of the twelve camps for blind children which Christian Record Braille Foundation sponsors and shoot promotion pictures and a 16 minute movie for the Foundation.

Charles, a communications major, mentioned this offer to Dr. Don Dick, chairman of the department, and was able to combine the job with a public relations internship.

Since the official letter came offering him approximately $1,500 salary, and Charles was off for twelve weeks with CRBF.

The first three weeks he spent writing press releases, feature articles, and learning all about the organization and its free services to the blind.

One department of the Christian Record is National Camps for Blind Children with which Charles was directly involved.

During the course of the summer he visited nine of the camps held in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Alabama, Florida, Massachusetts, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Washington, Virginia, and California.

Highlighting each camp was Wednesday night talent program. "The kids got up and did their own thing. You never saw such an uninhibited and talented bunch of kids," he commented.

Some of the activities they enjoyed were regular camp fare like: archery, swimming, sledding, crafts, and horseback riding.

Tests Charles learned to appreciate about blind children were their open and generous spirits. "There wasn't one bitter person among them," he said. "Their entire prayers were made up of 'thank-yous.' They were a real inspiration to work with.

The camps for Blind Children program is run entirely on public contribution, one reason for Charles' promotion film. During the summer at the highpoint of a CBC's fundraising campaign, they average over $9000 a week.

The cost of running a camp is $50.00 per camper, but is free to all blind or visually handicapped children.

Charles is editing the 35 rolls of film he took this summer for the film's release before Christmas.

The S.A. Senate initiated a study of the possibilities of implementing the process of pre-registration last Monday evening.

The proposal, if adopted, would allow students to register for first semester classes during the previous spring semester and for second semester classes during first semester.

Senate members appointed a four-member committee to study the proposal. Each class is represented on the committee.

Committee chairman is senior, Bob Houchins. Other committee members include Bruce Closser, Jr., Rodney Ward, Soph.; and Nancy Hill, Jr.

Other Senate business included a proposal by Sen. Gary Tidwell to discontinue the annual $500 appropriation to Collegiate Academies by the S.A. This appropriation serves to eliminate competition between the college and the academy in the area of paper

SMC communications major, Charles Mills, worked with Christian Record Braille Foundation this past summer. His duties included, news writing, PR work, and taking motion pictures, as well as working with blind children at camps.

During the annual meeting of the Institute for Certified Public Secretaries held in Kansas City on September 9 and 10, it was decided that special consideration would be made to allow some secretaries to take the Certified Public Secretary (CPS) examination over a Thursday and Friday. This privilege would be extended only to those secretaries whose religious convictions prevented them taking the exams on Saturday.

According to Secretary Richard C. Stanley, chairman of the office administration department, this new provision is good news for Adventist secretaries who, till now, have not been able to take the CPS exams because the exams were given over Sabbath.

A CPS is a secretarial version of the CPA (Certified Public Accountant). Passing the CPS examination qualifies the person as a bonafide executive secretary with comparable pay and prestige.

The two-day CPS examination covers six subject areas: 1) business and public policy, 2) economics or management, 3) financial analysis and mathe-ematics of business, 4) communications and decision making, and 5) office procedures.

The next CPS exam is scheduled for May 4 and 5 and will be administered wherever ten or more candidates apply within the USA and Canada. Applications must be in before December 1, 1972 to be eligible for the 1973 test.

The testing dates for those not wishing to take the exams over the Sabbath will be later to be announced.

To qualify for the CPS exam, the applicant must have taken an Associate of Science degree with two years verified on-the-job experience, or a Bachelor of Science degree with one year of experience.

After paying the exam fee, the applicant is allowed to eat and rest the night before, five years, or until she passes.

Since the first CPS examination was administered in 1960, over 6,000 women have passed the test.

Organ concert

Stanley F. Walker, organist and member of the SIM music department, will present a program, "Organ Meditations," on Sunday, November 29, at 4 p.m., in the Talge Hall Chapel.

The recital will begin with three preludes founded on Welsh hymns arranged by B. Vaughan Williams. "Lord, Enthroned in Heavenly Splendor." "To Thee, Our Jesus, We Give Thanks." "Praise the Lord, Ye Heavens, Adore Him." Following these numbers will be a selection from "Baroque Sonatas," by Seth Bingham; and both the Men's Club and Women's Club meet on Sunday evenings at 7:00 p.m. in the dorm chapels.

Ambler defeated by All-stars; Flagball season begins;

Attempring to salvage something from the softball season and see what goals the last puck-all-stars worked together and thoroughly defeated Ambler 12-3.

During the season, Ambler's championship team made a complete turnaround, which may be why they appeared so well kept. The present Ambler proved to be too much for the all-stars, as they scored a 1-9 record to capture their first nine points with a half game. Seeking revenge, the All-Stars exploded for six runs in the first inning and continued to pad their lead for the rest of the game.

Knuts, who has studied bats all season with his knuckleball, said he was able to put it all together at the All-Stars best to good effect, and pounded out a total of 14 hits. The downpitch all-stars held excitement high throughout the contest as the champions came through is true form to win the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning for a 7-6 decision.

Wisconsin's championship team finished the season undefeated, however, their stats appeared in danger as the lead changed hands five times. Wismi proved to be too much for the all-stars though, as Gary Knutson scored the winning run with two outs in the seventh inning.

The following special awards were presented during the game:

- 1st place: Frankie of the Year-Herb Culliford, Sportsmanship-Bruce Kimball, Most Valuable Player-Oin Swively

Flagball teams have finally been chosen for this season. There are six teams comprising "B" League, and nine teams making up "B" League.

As I see it, Corbett is the team to beat. They have strength, at all positions, and good depth. They also boast a solid defense and should enjoy a good season. At the second place should be Nelson and McKenzies, with Vanderhage's slate being held. Nelson has plenty of good solid backs, but not too many ends.

McKenzie is a big question mark. The talent is there for them to be champions, but with so many new faces this year, they may lack experience. If their quarterback can pull them together, they will be tough.

Vandenhage looks like the spoiler. Taken lightly by others, this team is going to be a thorn to everyone.

Ambler and Sprouts teams appear to have internal problems. Unless this situation can be smoothed over, they will end up fighting for last place. However, as they say, "... on any given Sunday."

Clubs organize

Sigma Theta Chi, the Men's Club on campus at Southern Missionary College, have organized for the 1973-74 school year.

Lady Geril is the president of Sigma Theta Chi. Under her are: Gail McKay, general vice president; Pam Moore, social vice president; Cindy Berkley, religious vice president; Gloria Nues, treasurer; Shirley Jones, secretary; Karen Jones, pianist, Carmen Swigart, hostess, Bobbie Sue Wolters, parliamertian and village representative; and Alfreon McFarland, representative for Jones Hall.

Sigma Theta Chi stands for wide open door and broad arm. The aim of this organization is to encourage fellowship, social function, a spirit of Christian fellowship and cooperation.

A variety of activities have taken place and are being planned.

Miller Brothers' presented a Fall Fashion Show in the chapel in Talge Hall for the female faculty and members of the women's dormitory, an array of brightly fall colors in the form of coats, skirts and sweaters, presented. The profits are for the benefit of the women's award of approval.

Other items of interest are being planned. Among these, one of the fall "Mascotability vs. Femininity," Mrs. Miller will be present. Another club meeting will be devoted to flower arranging and another to cake decorating.

On Wednesday evenings the chapel in Talge Hall is open from 9:45 p.m. to 10:15 p.m. for social gatherings. This is a time for new friends, a quiet and is an opportunity for the residents of the women's dorms to come in quietly and be alone with God.

Officers of Upsilon Delta Phi are: Wayne Liljenarn, president; George Dutton, vice president; Dave Weigel, pastor; Paul Benes, secretary; Tim Boudry, treasurer; and Billie Cool, parliamertian-at-large. They call themselves "Weiljens," commented Wayne Liljenarn, "that is, to make the Men's Club a more active and more picturesque organization than it has ever been before. We plan to organize more interesting activities for the whole, middle-size or number of the guys and make them feel more a part of the club."

In the effort to develop press, Wayne cited the example of the Men's Club office just completed in the basement of Talge, where executive meetings will be held.

"In years past, very few records of expenditures, experiences that this income was spent and no one even really knew what the true balance was. Now the records are all up to date and we are keeping the guys informed of what's happening with their money."

The Men's Club has sponsored two Point activities so far this semester. One was a watermelon feed in the student park, the other a joint meeting at which a presented a game similar to the popular television show, "The Newlywed Game," with doughnuts and hot apple cider for everyone who attended. Several other projects are being planned for the remaining part of the semester.

One involves the moving the TV from the lobby down to the former weight-lifting room in the basement. The room is being completely refurbished with new paneling, carpet, furniture, and a decorated ceiling with neon lights.

Elder R. Devi is doing most of the work on it in his spare time. He also did the refinishing on Mr. Miller's Chapel. Another project is the Men's Club scheduled for next month. A main purpose for the semester will go to the boys, another activity in the men's tennis tournament which is in progress at the present.

Of interest to boys and girls is the plan presently awaiting approval of the Student Affairs office for a "Cold Night." One night week, either Monday or Wednesday, all girls to come down to the basement to enjoy some treats in Talge for Pop-pong, pizza or just relaxation around the fireplace. It is hoped that this will increase the use of the student's business and thus add to the Men's Club treasury.

Wayne also says he hopes soon to begin to play the club house for the work which would add prestige to the office and incentive to run for it.

Several minor projects included T-shirts with the club insignia printed on them at $2.25 apiece; a possible chess tournament which would involve only the players who are already interested in other Club activities; and another variety of club meetings such as the karate demonstration coming up soon.

Continuing the program will be Joseph Bostick compositions including a cantata based on Psalm 16:9, "Therefore My Heart is Glad," and "Psalm 73:15, "Be Merciful to Me, O God."

Following these numbers will be a selection from "Baroque Sonatas," by Seth Bingham.

Both the Men's Club and Women's Club meet on Sunday evenings at 7:00 p.m. in the dorm chapels.

Concluding the program, "Willow will play Bagpipe," "In the Cross of Christ I Glory."
Lambs leave Happy Valley

By Judy Straw

Once upon a time, there was a verdant, peaceful valley nestled among the hills. It was called Happy Valley, for all the lambs who lived in the valley were content. They grazed among the Good Shepherd and felt safe under his care.

The Good Shepherd's flock was a sight to behold. His sheep were of many different colors, and they seemed to enjoy each other's company. They were the subject of many a farmer's tale, and they were known far and wide for their peaceful nature.

One day, however, the Good Shepherd had to leave his flock. A new owner had purchased the land, and he was not interested in the peaceful life of sheep. He decided to sell the flock and move on to a different set of concerns.

The Good Shepherd was heartbroken. He had always been content with his flock, and he thought they had been content with him. He knew he had done all he could to keep them safe, and he knew he had given them all the love and care he could.

The Good Shepherd bid his flock farewell, and he watched as they were loaded onto a truck and driven away. He knew he would never see his flock again, and he felt a great sense of loss.

The Good Shepherd went home, alone and sad. He knew he would have to find a new flock to care for, and he knew it would be a difficult task. But he was determined to do it, and he knew he would be able to do it.

It was a hard time, but the Good Shepherd knew that he was doing what was right. He knew that he was doing his best to care for his flock, and he knew that he would continue to do so, no matter what.

The Good Shepherd learned many lessons from his time in Happy Valley. He learned that life is not always easy, and that sometimes we have to make difficult decisions. He learned that love and care are the most important things in life, and he knew he would always remember those lessons.

The Good Shepherd found a new flock to care for, and he continued to do so with all his heart. He knew that he was doing what he was meant to do, and he was happy.

The End.
Lynwood Hall in 1948. Until recently, it served as administration building as well as classroom use. For some time, even church services were held there.

The old academy building was razed in November, 1970. The new home economics center now stands in its place.

Home Ec. Opens House To Alumni

Sunroomor Hall is now the official name for the new $170,000 home economics center at SMC. Total cost includes equipment and furnishings. A special open house at the center will begin with a continental breakfast Sunday morning (Oct. 29) at 8:30 a.m. B.F. Sunniness, for whom the building was named, is an Atlanta businessman, and SMC supporter who has been a member of the SMC Board of Trustees for 35 years.

Located on the site of the former Bonacci and Tye College Academy building, the home economics center, designed by architects of Chattanooga, is a two-story edifice of brick, partly surrounded by a low stone wall, and set off by a modern entrance, featuring a diamond-shaped tapered column.

In fact, modern is the word as far as interior decor of the center is concerned, from the bright red, purple, and green dining room colors to the scientifically designed foods preparation laboratory and modern equipment.

A special feature is the large display room for housewifely demonstration. There are eight classrooms and labs in the building, including space for a 16-seating studio, drafting, fitting, crafts, 16 units for food preparation, a child development center, a home management practice area, and one classroom which seats 72.

Also featured are a display room for fashion shows and exhibitions of student handwork, a utility room with broom and board machine and a modern utility machine for the four home economics instructors.

The main color scheme is based on various shades of gold, and which with the bright accent colors reserved for supergraphics, closets, and stairway walls.

Miss Ellen Zollinger, instructor, made a presentation to the college for the interior design of the center at Christmas, 1970. She estimates that the interior would not be totally completed until last April or later—approximately 195 years after her initial presentation. She received recognition for her design work from Allied Institute of Interior Designers, Georgia Chapter Student Competition, one of which was the home economics building interior.

According to Mrs. Thelma Combs, chairman of the department and associate professor of home economics, students began classes in the center last fall even though construction was still underway.

Saturday night at SMC, pianist, Victor Borge will perform, at 8 p.m. in the P.E. center.

The Man who is most associated with a full cast sail, piano and comic act, is in reality, more at home in dungeons, sneakers and on the boards of a dock, not a stage. As Victor Borge has put it, "With me, the three Bs are Bach, Beethoven and boats."

And, while the Borge wit and talent is known throughout the world, the Borge lackness of boats is known only to him of the sea. When not working, the "Borge," as he is known, can usually be answered with a sneer of the nearest marine supply store. Often, the fisherman's wish in his first port of call in cities located on water.

Over the past thirty odd years, Victor Borge has appeared before audiences in the United States, Canada, Europe and the Far East. He has learned that there must be fine balance between the concert music he performs so magnificently, and the comical comedy he seems to star in so effortlessly. His imitable brand of humor is universally accepted and understood by audiences. As Borge has earned him the title of international ambassador as well as a distinguished person.

family who are trying to help them achieve this goal.

(2) Faculty and administration who love these students, whose chief goal is to aid them, and who, after a lamb has left this happy valley, would not approach the Good Shepherd compartmentally, but with a feeling of regret and sadness.

The Board of Trustees of Southern Missionary College in an interim meeting held recently voted several actions that affect the personnel of the college. The interim meeting will be held on February 15.

The board of members were present: C. M. Wright, chairman; Dr. D. S. Findlay, secretary; and Dr. D. C. McKeen, treasurer. The board met in the library of the college on February 15.

The board voted members of the college to be elected: O. D. R. McKeen, president of the McKeen College in Nashville, Tennessee; and Mrs. G. C. Brown, a business woman of Dear Lodge, TN.

The board also voted the following: To initiate the new Faculty Senate that will serve as a chairing body for the policy of the college and will be composed of several faculty members, as well as a large number of faculty members elected by the college. The faculty senate is expected to meet periodically and will be convened at the request of the faculty senate.

Mrs. Barbara R. R. was voted a nonmember of the college at the faculty senate meeting on February 15. The board recognized the impending retirement of several of the staff members: Mrs. Barbara R. R. was not reelected to the position of director of music in the college. The board approved the resignation of Dr. J. H. Springer, voted a three-year leave, starting in 1973, to pursue the doctorate in theology at the University of Manchester, England.

A summer service leave was voted for Dr. J. H. Springer. Overseas travel leaves were voted for Dr. J. R. Robertson, chairman of the Sociology department, and Mrs. S. C. Davis, the retired faculty members elected by the college. The faculty senate is expected to meet periodically and will be convened at the request of the faculty senate.

College Senate organized to Be legislative arm of faculty

By Mike Couillard

The College Senate is a new body established by the board of trustees to provide a forum for the expression of faculty interests and for the consideration of faculty concerns. The Senate is open to all regular faculty members, and its primary function is to promote the welfare of the faculty and to provide a means for the faculty to express their views.

Ski film producer, John Jay, to present “The World of Skiing”

“America’s unique ambassador of skiing” is what a leading eastern newspaper calls John Jay, this country’s foremost ski film producer, who has parlayed two early talents into a highly profitable business enterprise that is growing faster than the sport itself. Jay will appear in person with his newest color film production, “The World of Skiing,” at the SMC P.C. center on Saturday, November 4.

The ambassadorial mantle falls naturally on the broad shoulders of this William Colle gdale athlete, whose illustrious ancestry of the same name was our nation’s ambassador to Spain in 1780. Secretary of State and the first Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court. The twentieth century John Jay was a varsity football, hockey, and crew man. His undergraduate days, as well as his Bote Baja Kappa student, and had originally planned to follow his forefather’s footsteps in the field of law. From his early youth, however, he had always been interested in photography and skiing, and when his Wall Street father complained quite rightly that his son’s ski lessons kept him away from the office, Jay decided to try converting his family to his favorite sport through the medium of documentary motion pictures.

The operation proved so successful that immediately upon graduation Jay secured a job as scriptwriter with The March of Time in New York. Here he gained priceless experience in the documentary film field, working under such leaders as Louis de Rochemont, producer of “Walk East on Beacon,” “Fighting Lady,” and “Martin Luther.”

When the outbreak of hostilities in 1939 cancelled his Harvard Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford, Jay started turning out his own film productions and secured contracts with the Canadian Pacific Railroad, the Great Line, and the U.S. State Department, “Ski Over Shoki.” Awarded the “Oscar” of this field from the International Society of Films, Motion Pictures, in New York.

During the war Jay served with the 10th Mountain Division, America’s ski troops, and received official commendation for his part in the first winter ascent of Mt. Rainier, 14,408 feet high. Here he produced the Signal Corps Training Film “They Climb to Conquer.” Jay also wrote the official War Department History of the Mountain Training Center, and later worked for the United States Air Force and the Royal Canadian Air Force on the survival problem of crowsmen forced down in the Arctic.

After rising from the rank of Private to Major, Jay returned to civilian life in 1946 with his wife Lisa, a sportswoman and cinématographe in her own right, and together these two began turning out the annual feature films that have made them an institution in the ski world. Besides appearing on national color television, Jay has written a new book, with John O’Boat, entitled “Ski Down the Years,” illustrated, of course—a notable, lively humorous and entertaining history of the fantastic growth of skiing in North America, which has drawn rave reviews from critics across the country.

His recent eight page article on “Skiing in the Highcountry,” which appeared in the March 1971 issue of TRAVEL & LEISURE Magazine, along with his own color photographs, caused such a sensation among the magazine’s three million readers that Hans Freyerson was inundated with inquiries and is now happily booking several years ahead. Currently, Jay is working with his Alma Mater, Williams College, to develop a ski area near Williamsburg, Massachusetts.

Dalrymple comments on FFT move, crusade, SMC

Pastor Gordon Dalrymple and Bill Hayner, of Faith for Today, were on campus last week preparing for an upcoming crusade in Chattanooga. Dee Wilson, of the Accent interviewed them about FFT and the crusade. Here are Dalrymple’s comments.

Accent: Elder Dalrymple, what has been your background experience in our denomination?

Dalrymple: I spent six years in the Oregon Conference, three years as an intern and three years as an evangelist. Then I spent four and one-half years as assistant editor of These Times magazine, and two years as assistant editor of signs of the Times. Then I went to Faith for Today, and worked in field evangelism, editor and FB, the Bible correspondence department, and now am in charge of Field Services and Evangelism.

Accent: Could you give us a brief background of Faith for Today and the Fahns?

Dalrymple: Yes, Faith for Today began its different on May 20, 1950. It was on one station, and the weekly exposure was about 66 minutes. The Fahns was on the air at one station, and was telecast over 226 stations and reached 1,200 letters. So you can see that it has grown immensely.

Accent: Describe the new location of FFT in contrast to the old one in New York—have there been any long-range changes? Also, why was the move made?

Dalrymple: The action was actually a General Conference decision. The GC wants a field office complex, and the technical processes in Hollywood are very close by, for help, and it is felt that better films will result.

But the population of California is so much greater than New York, California climate is also much hotter.

The move was made for the sake of economy. It is Written, Voice of Prophecy, and Faith for Today can run operations by each other much cheaper than running three publishing houses, etc.

Accent: Were there any major problems in the move?

Dalrymple: Yes, any time an operation as large as FFT moves across country these are problems. But the move was made fairly smoothly, even though we had to move equipment across county and reshuffle all of our office help. We did move 60 employees and their families.

Another problem is that we have lost contact with many of our correspondents because of the change of address. Also, the mail meant for FFT often goes to the VOP office, and vice versa, but we have worked cooperatively with each other on this point.

Accent: Is there much opposition to your move either in New York or California?

Dalrymple: Well, face it, the New Englanders had grown very close to us here, and listed to us as well as the Californians have been very cordial to us in our new home.

Accent: Again, what are the dates of the Faith for Today crusade to be held in Chattanooga?

Dalrymple: Friday, March 23 through Sunday, April 22. There will be held in the Tivoli theatre, and every Monday and Thursday there will be an “off night,” with no meeting.

Accent: What do you think the interest level will be?

Dalrymple: That depends totally on what work we do as groundwork, for the crusade. I believe that if we don’t work, we won’t get results.

Accent: What type of prayer and planning will you use?

Dalrymple: 100,000 envelopes will be sent out in December, and the prayers will also be our interest names from the Voice of Prophecy, Faith for Today, Guest Hour, their own interest lists, and it is Written. Also, correspondence is being formed in each area-wide church for organization, visiting, and making previews.

We are planning to have a hospitalistic service the first Sabbath of the crusade and every succeeding Sabbath.

As for follow-up, the pastors are planning to have Wednesday night evangelistic meetings to hold and crystallize decisions.

Accent: What do you think of SMC now that you have been here several days?

Dalrymple: I certainly did not expect the cordiality I have received. This is a beautiful campus, and certainly has changed since 1 was here in 1958. Also, you have several excellent departments, especially in the communications department. I have certainly enjoyed being here and look forward to being here again in the near future.

Heritage singers
To perform here

Heritage singers USA, whose new sound in religious music has elicited warm response throughout the country, will arrive on campus November 11. They will present music that has brought their Christian witness to national prominence in less than one year.

The music and one-on-one Christian witness have created heavy demands on their time and made it impossible for them to travel to any area on weekends. The trip will begin with a three-week engagement at the Mace of Idaho, Idaho, a former diocesan convention.

The group has been singing as the Heritage Singers for a little over one year, after the Mace of Idaho, Idaho, a former diocesan convention. Their eight albums now available on record are best-sellers.

Evangelicals support McGovern

Wheaton College witnessed an historic recent, Senator George McGovern, speaking before an overflow crowd, delivered his first visit to Wheaton, Thursday, October 27. McGovern insisted that one of our major political problems can be changed only by politics. People's hearts need to be changed, he argued equally fervently that we can do a lot by political action. The most important task of the President, he said, is to have an ethical vision for society...

Press, historically against Nixon, does turnabout.

By Floyd Gerencer

While nearly the entire country has turned its face on President Nixon, the politicians have gone a step further to predict the possibility of a fifty state sweep for the President, a victory which would be hollow indeed for a man who just ten years ago went down to defeat under the banner of a movement which from all appearances was doomed. He won so few political victories that they would no longer have blackened his record. By the sounds of what one can hear in the media that statements of leadership in a much different manner than anything realized at the time it was made.

For from kicking Richard Nixon around, the press has looked at other candidates, with every leading Agency acting as though it was the only story in the American history, finding it more appealing to men such as Frankful Roosevelt, Andrew Jackson, or Jefferson-Jill of whom were buried so many years ago, that it has been refreshing in a little different mixture than anything realized at the time it was made.

By the same token George McGovern has undergone a unique figure, which makes the question of the issues that are exposed credible. The problem that exists over equalizing education, doesn't receive much weight, might gain, and conversely, as something that we have not had such in the Democratic standards. He is the national unity for the President and many others.

If you can beat off the campaigns, and examine the real matter, then obviously, McGovern is simply challenging the promises and processes of government. Part-
Dr. Colvin heads Psyche department

Dr. Gerald Colvin, the new chairman of the behavioral science department, says he’s happy to be at SMC and is enjoying his day-time teaching schedule. He normally spends close to two hours a day with his wife Gal and their two children, Guy and Gay.

Challenged by the responsibility of helping direct the direction the department will move, he is stressing sociology courses to liberalize one sociology class being taught, which which he is chairing.

His proposals include a course in contemporary sociology, psychology and education, and a course specifically oriented for students who plan to serve as student missionaries.

Dr. Colvin feels that a basic need of the students is to become certified in social work, so graduates would automatically be better prepared.

Dr. Colvin came to SMC from Loma Linda University where he taught sociology, has taught education, English, and psychology at Boston College, and Bible, biology.

Dr. Gerald Colvin, chairman of the Behavioral Science Department.

Editor’s note: Last week the ACCENT printed a story concerning an award received by Reverend V. Moore of the Pentecostal Academy of Science for his research on molecules in the physics department here at SMC. Here is an interview with Jorge de San, who actually did get to receive the award.

ACCENT: Jorge, why did you go to Germany last summer to receive an award in physics?

Jorge de San: Last year, Dr. Herrera asked me if I planned to attend the conference. I told him that I knew of a place where I would be working on a chart for diatomic molecules. He had been working on the same thing since 1965 and was willing to share his work with me. But we would have to get in touch with him personally, for he was not willing to let his research go out of his hands.

This would have Dr. Herrera years of work, so he asked me if I wanted to go to Germany to see his work. I traveled to Bayreuth and the University of Germany to see Max. My father is a farm worker in the Air Force, so I took advantage of returning home and back to school free of charge.

ACCENT: How much time did you actually spend in Germany?

Jorge de San: One week. The whole trip was spent at a hotel, by the way. The first two days, I spent wandering through 9000 books of German literature, but material I specifically needed. At the end of that time, I had about 2500 pages to duplicate, and I had to keep handwriting these pages and keep working, they would still be working on the job today.

ACCENT: Did you get paid for this?

Jorge de San: FLECHAS: No. In the scientific world, there is an understood system in which individual scientists pay for their own work, publications, and reprints. This holds true unless an individual works for a large company. This is also one reason why some advances as rapidly as it is.

ACCENT: What goes with the money that you were awarded by the Tennessee Academy of Science?

Jorge de San: That $150 was not awarded to me personally, but rather to the physics department. They sent to continue research on the project. I hope that is understood, for last year’s ACCENT didn’t mention that fact.

ACCENT: When will the table for the absolute brilliance of diatomic molecular emission be ready?

Jorge de San: I have no idea. It depends upon what grants we receive for the project. We are working on a couple of them right now.

ACCENT: Are you, or someone else, actively working on the project now during the school year?

Jorge de San: Yes, that is my major course now, part-time, of course. That is about all I have to say right now.

New Testament under one of Europe's greatest New Testament scholars, Dr. Ronald Colvin. Dr. Colvin is considered to be a conservative within the field himself, and his research papers have been read in numerous religious settings.

Colvin has written several books in the field of Biblical Exegesis and Criticism, and therefore I don't think I'll be subject to a second-class education.

"Most Adventists working for their M.A. or Doctorate degrees go into Old Testament work. So I don't know if I'm sticking my neck out here or not!"

Springett hopes to stick with his studies and graduate, although, according to him, a lot depends on whether or not the finances and his health holds up. It will take approximately three years to complete.

When asked what he thought of his wife and daughters, 8 and 18 months, he said, "I've made a contribution here, but in the "do-it" sense."

Floridians build Half-way boat

By Phil Kelley

How do you build a boat for God? Well, not exactly like the one Noah built, but this would be a lighthouse for certain young people who need salvation in the right place at the right time.

Interested? Then listen to the story of Richard Cavansy, a young missionary who recently returned from a trip to Israel. Richard's boat was built during a visit to the United States.

When he first received his M Ed in Counseling Education from the University of Arkansas, while in Fayetteville, Ark., 1966-1967, he had been chosen as an intern by the Arkansas State Board Association for Student Counseling. He accepted his Ed. D in Administration and Counseling from the University of Arkansas in 1968.

Dr. Colvin, a member of the American Personnel and Guidance Association, and Phi Delta Kappa. In 1970 he was listed among the Outstanding Young Men of America A first edition of his collected papers, "Reflections of Life," is forthcoming in 1971.

Springett to get doctorate

by Michael Cozolino

Pastor Ronald Michael Springett, head of the Psychology department, has been granted his request to work on obtaining his doctorate in the fall of 1973. He is planning to move to Wake Forest University in England and leave the SMC campus for a year to work and hopes to return to SMC after graduation.

Springett chose Manchester University because, in his words, "Manchester is what one would call a 'baptist' university, which means that in their religion department they do not teach or discuss any kind of religion. And in a person, I feel, is fever to develop the kind of thinking needed to have an understanding of religion without having any undue bias in one person, you will only enjoy it.

When asked what emphasis he would seek to apply to his studies, Elder Springett replied:

"I'm going to build a boat for God!"

"Half-way boat" is not an actual boat, but a title given to the story of Richard Cavansy, who has been a missionary in Israel for the last two years. Richard and his family have been working with children in the midst of the war and conflict that exists in the area.

Editorially Speaking...

The Academic Affairs Committee recently decided to halt further acceptance of CLEP scores until a committee investigating the validity of CLEP completes its report. Several students have expressed the fear that students are getting credit for courses they do not deserve for class work. The decision of the Academic Affairs Committee confirmed the students fears that teachers jealous of their discipline will have the privilege of seeing Jim and Jack winning seats in their classes.

If a student discusses the contents of the learning process going on outside the classroom most any teacher would readily agree that the idea is legitimate. But the teacher's personal concern is that in questioning Jill or Joe, he finds the student's knowledge today by Andy Wooley.

"The end, his black suit tailcoat and pipe, was obviously lost. The class itself was the same but a very few of his landmarks were in sight."

"Noticing the elderly gentlewoman's pockmarked expression, Mr. Wolf asked if he could give her any assistance. "Yes, sure, my son. Mr. Barton and I went to school here. I first time I ever been back. Maybe you could show me around."

Library staff followed the student until he reached the study area around their legs and jogged Larry's last.

Their first stop was the library. Larry showed Mr. Bart- on the tasteful color scheme, the ingeniously carved, and the multifaceted volumes, all neatly arranged.

"It's kind of noisy in here, too."

Lending a wake up, when a teachers' final exam does he not find student's knowledge lacking.

The question then: Is CLEP really testing college readiness? About 1,000 students across America are accepting CLEP scores. To find out what norms are the tests being ac- cepted? Andrews University for example accepted CLEP scores above the seventeenth percentile, and the University of Michigan is only accepting scores over 80 percentile. SMU is presently accepting above 250 percentile.

The investigating committee will also be comparing the scores of the approximately 18,000 students who have taken to CLEP.

After the statistics are compiled, the committee will eval- uate the courses, and study isolated cases that do not fit into the average. Not only will the committee consider the CLEP and ACT scores of the individuals, but they will also consider the course load and college nine weeks grades.

The Investigating Committee is relying on some credit where credit is due, and to calm the teachers fears that the student has not been properly tried by not attending a particular class.

For this we applied them tonight," Larry conjectured. "It makes it hard to concentrate." "You don't know anything about concentrating, then. When I was there, we had to study during the day or by the firelight. We could hardly study for the exam.

"And look at all those books!" The old man's eyes flashed. "The time, Montag. Micklewright dropped one of the books into the creek, and the whole school had to use the other one. But we survived." The two walked on toward the cafeteria. "What do you have for fun now?" Mr. Barton asked.

"Well, we have some film, games and musical programs. But you've kind of stack if you don't have a car."

"Why are you lucky to have any programs at all. We used to have scheduled matches every Saturday night. Glen Wilker tried to start a concert once, but the faculty quietly put a stop to it, but we survived."

This weekend two touring busloads and several faculty cars full of SMC students had the privilege of co-hosting a Bible Conference. The group, which left campus at 1:50 Wednesday afternoon for Camp Allyn, 12 miles south of Athens, will be returning Saturday night after the last meeting.

According to Mrs. K.R. Davis, secretary to the Dean of Student Affairs office, the key speaker for the meeting is Elder Louis Vendorn from Andrews University. Other featured speakers are Elder C.L. Brooks from the Southern Union Sabbath School Department, and Elder C. Arthur from the Columbia Union College psychology department.

Drill backfires; five fire fighters treated

By Coveo and Henderson

Five Collegeville firefighters were treated for carbon monoxide at Elsinor Hospital about 8 p.m. Monday after a "fire drill" at Southern College turned into reality.

The fire chief, Edward Austin, attributed the unfortunate incident to faulty smoke bombs "which did everything the supplier said they were supposed to do...including blowing up.'"

The firemen treated in Elsinor's emergency room were: Dr. Louis Pells, 34, of P.O. Box 365; Clyde Ingalls, 39, of 2819 Hilton from the F. W. Womans, 22, of Yellow Trail Road; Gary Deal, 19, SMC, and Paul E. Anderson, SMC. All are Collegeville address.

The drill took place in the old girls' dormitory, a three-story building, which normally houses 150 students. Arrived 30 firemen, two ambulances, and 20 students went into action.

"Clear the tract!" Roaring around a turn close to 70 m.p.h., Hyden of Switzerland heads for the finish in the World Skiboarding Championship held in the World Skiing, John Jay's new color film which will premier in the theater, Saturday night at 8 p.m. in the P.E. center. All tickets are on a reserved seat basis although they are free. They may be obtained at the Campus Shop.

Exhibits, poptalks, work Careers Day offers donuts.

by Daryl Ladington

The symposium became the central focus of attention on campus Tuesday morning as the activities of the day's exhibition got under way.

According to Paul H.E. Hagg, in charge of the program, the exhibition was sponsored by the Career Center and various other institutions involved. The purpose of Career's Day is to acquaint students with the opportunities for professional employment in the present time.

Morning classes were disrupted and students were encouraged to visit the various booths representing the ten major areas now open in the Southern University. Orange juice for all interested students was provided for a snack.

The major crowd-drawing booth was the health science booth with its multi-media presentation and the business careers booth with its multiple company exhibits which could be browsed in the lobby, too.

Student close second was the home economics booth with Billy Griffin demonstrating a portable home hand booth and the education booth which was also a radio transmitter to whoever could guess the number of SDA teachers working in the Southern Union Conference.

Other exhibits included: the hospital careers booth displaying shirts and business cards, the communication booth demonstrating a cathode-ray oscillograph, the medical-dentistry booth, the social work and law booth, the publishing careers booth, and a booth showing the exhibits of all self-supporting institutions in Southern Union.

Took charge on behalf of the medical-dentistry exhibit, Dr. Glen Limbaugh, dental secretary for the Southern Union Conference, said that this was the object of the department to get students interested in going to L.L.U. for medicine and dentistry and then getting them to come back again when they graduated.

"We try to show them just how well the school is operated in California when we need them most," added L.L.U. Career's day last year went very well. He explained that it was always difficult to tell at first whether the program was successful or not because of it's self-help approach. "We want mainly to advertise professional contact will follow later.

"Before the start of the Career's Day program last year, that of all self-supporting institutions some corresponded to the campus, giving a special program or discipline to a select group of students.

"It was the day that girls in the nursing school learned that they were to have received medical training in the Air Force, so they treated that day as the scene, doing them oxygen.

Captain Roger Parker walked into his fire fighting technology classroom in the late afternoon and announced that he had just received a telephone call that Jones Hall was on fire and a girl had jumped and jumped. Immediately, fire engines, two ladders, and police were dispatched to the scene.

Upon arrival at Jones Hall, thirty firemen carried out two girls and got out of the second floor room.

Rain, unexpected Homecoming Feature

by Michael Coullard

Homecoming last weekend was, to the Alumni that came streaming in, a "coming home" instead. The Alumni reconnected with a popular show, and the doors overhead added to the "home, sweet home" atmosphere by bringing up some dark candlelight. The Student Association, the music department, and the Coliseum chapter of the SMC Alumni Association pooled resources to make the alumni's weekend memorable.

Friday night the New Life Singers, a village-school vocal-group, mutual team sang preceding Elder Raymond H. Wadley's (51) message, "The Year of Change." Elder Wadley welcomed all his fellow alumni, especially those of the classes being honored 1942, 1947 and 1962. The Sabbath School line-up was studied with considerable interest, such as Dorothee Cress (53), Bruce Gerhau (61), Charles Cresswell (70), Mrs. Marion Harter (61), William F. Last Sunday evening the Bowling Club on Lookout Mountain provided an elegant setting for the Men's Club Reception. The banquet, co-sponsored by the Delta Phi Fraternity and the "Poker Pioneers" on the organ, Dr. Jack McGuffie, the college band's conductor, drew the serious crowd to a close with four favorite favorites. A bustling sinner, Alumni Organizations and a fellowship hour was held at 5:00. Hosting the buffet sinner were the Colonnade chapter of the SMC Alumni Association, and the faculty and staff of the SMC campus. Bill Taylor, director of college public relations, gave a talk to the Alumni Classes.

Ray Fisher, Dean of Admissions, presented sundries installations. The Fellowes Hour consisted primarily of alumni prepare programs, future plans and the election of the Alumni Association officers for the next year.

Plywood Greenleaf, (55), professor of history at SMU, was the new SMC Alumni Association President. The other officers are Elder Douglas Bennett (51), President-elect. Miss Dianne Tressman (65), Secretary, Miss Horace Sheffield Platt (63), Associate Secretary, William N. Cresswell (79), President, Miss Mary E. Ellis (51), Public Relations Secretary. Saturday night the world renowned comedian and pianist, Borge, presented his "Comedy Ummu" in the college kitchen. Performing before a capacity crowd of more than 2,000, Borge kept the audience laughing for the entire two-hour program. The Borge show highlighted Alumni Homecoming Weekend. The alums were given first choice of seats with the opportunity to buy tickets through the mail before the tickets were on sale to students and the general public.

Borge flew into Chattanooga late Saturday afternoon from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, with his stage manager, Scott Chase. Two hours before the performance began, Chase was busy marking tape positions on the stage floor with masking tape and adjusting the overhead spot lights. Looking out across the empty gym before the doors were opened to the public, Chase remarked, "We were very well sold out-a sold out house of 80 executives in Virginia.

Here, Borge displayed on the spot, not when an unexpected sound of the church's chimes interrupted a pianist number that he was doing by playing it on his piano, then he frantically attempted to get out of "under way" of "thought" was an oncoming train. Upon realizing that what he had heard was not a train's whistle, but the chimes from the church's carillon, he set down and moved to himself, "That's quite chimeing." Also appearing with Borge were coloratura soprano Marilyn Modine, and pianist Solano Arroyo, who flew into Chattanooga from New York City for the performance. Two beautiful pianos were rented from the Fowler Brothers Company in Chattanooga for the Borge show. Borge has a contract with the makers of Steiner pianos which restricts him from performing on any of pianos other than Steinway. According to Christian Field, co-ordinator of the Neuragn mission project, profits from the fund raising program will net a total of about $250.

Hallock, Corbett Still
Head up flagball leagues

By John Mareich

With the flagball season at its halfway point, Corbett has remained undefeated and appears solidly entrenched in first place. Lovejoy is putting the pressure on, however, and with two key personnel probably finished for the season, Nelson and McKenzie each have two losses, but still have an outside chance. This week's action is a closer between lovejoy and fellow leaders.

With the flagball half-way point, Hallock, who is still undefeated, and Lovejoy appear solidly entrenched in first place. Lovejoy is putting the pressure on, however, and with two key personnel probably finished for the season, Nelson and McKenzie each have two losses, but still have an outside chance. This week's action is a closer between Lovejoy and fellow leaders.

As Ambler drove for six more points to pad the score, "Sweathog" Houchins picked up a pass streaked 70 yards for a touchdown and a 20-18 score. With the score off, Ambler's team put it all together to march the length of the field for the winning touchdown.

Final score, Ambler 25-Spears 20.

Hallock has jumped to a quick lead in the "B" League flagball, as they boast a 3-0 record with just three games remaining on their schedule. Four of these victories have been against strong competition. Nelson and McKenzie are just a game-and-a-half out of first place, and will be putting the pressure on Hallock for the rest of the year.

Rain dampened ego drains away

By Steve Grinstein

All day had just begun. Fred turned to the door of his classroom and his eyes met the eyes of his students. "Good morning," he said.

"Good morning," they replied.

"Now, let's get to work," Fred continued. "Today we will be discussing the theme of self-esteem and the importance of maintaining a positive attitude." He walked to the front of the room and began to write on the board.

"Let's start with the definition of self-esteem," he said. "Self-esteem is the degree to which an individual has a positive self-image and a positive self-concept. It is the belief in one's own ability to succeed in specific situations or tasks." He paused for a moment and then continued.

"To maintain a positive self-esteem, it is important to set realistic goals and to work towards achieving them. We must also be willing to accept constructive criticism and use it as a tool for improvement." He wrote down several examples on the board and encouraged the students to add their own ideas.

"Finally, we must practice self-compassion. It is important to treat ourselves with the same kindness and understanding that we would offer to a close friend." He ended his lesson and dismissed the class.

The students looked at each other and then turned to their work with renewed energy. They knew that Fred's words had touched their hearts and inspired them to be their best selves.

Dropped Books

I'm late. I must be on time today
So I must hurry to class
People in front of me
People in back of me must hurry, too.

A little pot on a bicycle Hurrying to school,
People look, but rush on Because they must hurry, too.

I stepped and picked them up
And said, "Help me!"

But just put for a moment
I know what going
Can be when no one has asked.

And once again, the Lord
Came into my life,

District 1 Witnessing Progressing

By Jerrell Ray and Mark Gottman

District 1 is witnessing a positive change. The district has been working hard to improve student achievement and has seen significant improvements in several areas.

For example, the district has increased its focus on literacy and has implemented new reading programs in all grades. As a result, the district has seen an increase in reading scores, with students performing better than previous years.

In addition, the district has also increased its focus on math education. Students have been provided with additional resources and support, leading to improved math scores.

Overall, the district is committed to providing a quality education for all students. They are dedicated to ensuring that every student has the opportunity to succeed and achieve their full potential.
Ex-thief testifies

By Kathy Kummer
Last Sabbath afternoon, three new Adventists, theology majors here at SCM, banded together to share their faith. The feature of the program, held in the Collegedale church, was the story of Bob Jackson, a recently convicted international jewel thief.

The other members of the team included Dave Green, an actual reporter, Mario Cruz, a new convert from Manila, and several interested SCM students who joined them for follow-up and Bible study work.

According to Mario Cruz, the sole purpose of the program was to glorify God. They had prayed that God would help them talk about their faith.

During the meeting an offering of over $250 was collected and will be used for literature and Bible courses for the local prison group at Sandalwood Workhouse.

Dave Green, who called for the offering, had before his conversation investigated some of the very cases in which Bob Jackson was involved on the other side. Now they are working together for God.

A home bound to Bob Jackson relates the story of his childhood as a foster child in an Adventist home. His introduction to big time crime by his older brother—a well known gangster, his final job, his conversion in jail, and his miraculous release. At the close of the meeting the team had an alter call which brought several interested people to hear them. They hope to follow up the interests with visits and Bible studies.

Since his release, Jackson has worked as a lay preacher on the streets of Chicago and is now studying theology here at SCM.

According to Mario Cruz, the team is more than just friends of Bob Jackson but was present for the preaching program for next February.

As a result of the Sabbath meeting, they have engagments to present their program at the Singers present praise

by Mike Conliff
The Heritage Singers, a young singing-and-witnessing team from Sacramento, California, will present a program of Christian songs and music at SCM on Sunday, November 13, at 11:30 a.m. in the main chapel. There will be no admission charge.

For those who never listen to anything besides the local DJ, the Heritage Singers are a band of vibrant, new Christians who have given their hearts to singing of Jesus and his speedy return.

The group itself originated one spring day in 1971. They feel they were "brought to a unique new mission in life."
 Their own regular jobs and began to sing to the glory of

The Heritage Singers.

The idea of organizing the group started in the head of Max Mace, director. Mace says he decided to call it "Heritage" be-cause of the old time heritage of the group.

"Our first victory came," related Director Mace, "when we faced the fact that we couldn't do this thing, that God would have to do it. That realization led to the first stumbling block doubts. God took those doubts and made them into one of faith."

They were first heard in concert during the summer of 1971.

Since coming to the Heritage Singers, they have performed in several western states, British Columbia, and California.

Sordin has a music group as captured the affection of its audiences as the Heritage Singers. Did and young, from all walks of life, found some thing solid, something satisfying, in the songs of this group.

A common stream of letters flow into the headquarters of the Heritage Singers. Some contain requests for the song to appear on certain campuses, in an assimilation or in connection with a church convention.

Others ask if they may audition.

Many ask that prayers be offered in connection with a sin or various problems. But most express appreciation for spiritual help and guidance received in a concert or a testimony service.

These seems to be a bit of confusion pertaining to which "Heritage" singing group is some of the original groups were from Canada and were called The Heritage Singers.

The group, however, there are two groups: the original parent group from Canada, called the Heritage Singers USA, and the branch group from Canada called Heritage Singers Canada.

This past January the Heritigage Singers began three months of a tour of all states, and were supported by the Lord and the offerings of His people.

On Wednesday, November 1, about 80 students piled into buses and departed at 11:30 p.m. for the annual Southern Union Bible Conference for college students. The destination was Camp Alumina, short for "Alabama-Mississippi Conference," which is about 10 miles south of Dothan, Alabama, a five-hour drive from SMC.

After several wrong buses were reminded, the students arrived at camp by 7 p.m.

A supper of soup and sandwich preceded a rotating song service in the lodge led by Pastor Don Bobbitt and Pastor John Strickland, MV Secretaries for the Southern Union and the Georgia-Cumberland Conferences, respectively. This was followed by prayer bands by the lake side, a three-minute walk from the lodge.

Oakwood College delegates arrived at 11 p.m. that night, and soon the kitchen was busy. Many Oakwood College delegates gathered in the lodge at 6:45 a.m. Thursday morning to bring in the new day with an unplanned introduction.

Before breakfast, Pastor C. L. Brooks, Sabbath School Secretary of the Southern Union Conference, began his three morning presentations on the character of Jesus.

"When I speak, I don't even want you to see Brooks," intoned Brooks. The spontaneous "Audits" could not be suppressed at this and all other meetings of the long weekend. As Brooks vanished, singing his component song with the words: "...He's my Friend," challenged, "Make Him yours; trust Him.

Each morning after breakfast, at 9:15, Dr. Eldon Chalmers of the psychology department at Columbia Union College dealt with topics concerning psychology and religion. Dr. Chalmers is also an ordained deacon in the SDA church. After this exciting, everyone split into discussion groups of 10-12 persons and then came together again in an hour to report their findings and questions.

Thursday evening, Dr. Chalmers gave some scientific data dealing with the human body, especially the brain. After explaining some anatomy and chemistry, he said, "One sin affects every single cell in the body."

After dinner, recreation was scheduled from 2:00-6:00. The included swimming, biking, and canoeing. Shortly after recreation began, at 2:15, all play came to a standstill as everyone on the lake side heard prayer bands while a fellow delegate from Oakwood College was being searched for, underwater. "See streets elsewhere." After he was found, everyone went to the chapel for prayer, hoping to offer assistance. The tension would begin again as a result of artificial replication. This led into the 4:00 meeting with Dr. Chalmers.

Dr. Chalmers answered questions, lectured, and told experiences until support. The topic stayed close to that of developing Karl Punkt, and the work of the conference.

After supper, Elder Louis Venden, of the Theological Seminary at Andrews University, began his nightly sermon. Venden pointed out the fact that today people have a distaste for doctrine, and ask instead for just Jesus. His study took him into mind that actually the two are the same. He then spoke about the judgment, and how Satan questions every soul that God saves. His theological approach added yet another dimension to the conference.

The song services at Bible Conference were lengthy, and rowdy. Probably no other activity was enjoyed as much as the singing. When Brooks got up to speak Friday morning, he said, "I hear you singing about your love for Jesus, I wonder if it's really necessary to preach about him."

Friday Brooks spoke about the brotherliness of Jesus. He showed there are many brothers who are not brotherly. One of his closing remarks Friday morning was, "One Lord and Saviour wants to save us from the patronage to the spectator."

After breakfast, Dr. Chalmers spoke on the topic, "How to Overcome the Habit of Singing." He gave nine steps on how to establish good habits rapidly, and talked about what happens in the brain when habits are established, how to develop and how to keep habits in the light of a growing Christian experience.

Friday afternoon was given to recreation and preparation for the Sabbath. Friday night, Elder Venden gave a timely talk on the topic of the Sabbath.

After Venden's message, some special musical numbers were given by SMC's Hymen of Joy, a group of nine girls and four men. OC student Wesley Phillips sang a solo, and OC male quartet, the Kingmen, gave two special numbers.

The evening meeting ended at 9:30, and all who wished were invited to sing extra church service. This proved to be one of the most cherished times at the conference. Some testimonials were:

Frank Williams of OC: (after telling of tragic accident) "I'm so glad that Dr. Jesus posthumously my funeral."

Vonnie Strange of SCM: "When we go back to school, we shouldn't go back as a shell, but as a big, wide ocean to tell Christ."

Unidentified person: "I used to be a Sodomite."

The testimony meeting ended at 11 p.m. and was closed by singing "Thank you, Lord.

Elder H. H. Schmidt, President of the Southern Union Conference, spoke for the final bathing worship hour. It told of how little, but yet large, a part we play in God's earth in regard to saving souls.

"Sabbath afternoon, Dr. Chalmers culminated his talk by speaking on developing spiritually habits. This meeting was followed by a short musical.

After supper and a short devotional, a communion service ended the weekend's activity with the two colleges singing each other in the final song of the ceremony. The Lord's Supper was celebrated outside under clear, starry skies. For every this was the highmark of the Conference.

The first bus to SMC left shortly after communion, and the second bus left Saturday morning at 2:30 a.m. Sunday. The last bus left Sunday and got back to the day after.

"But he was my brother..."

On Thursday, last week, within a few days Bible Conference delegates were playing with a volleyball near the lake at Camp Alumina. The ball went out of reach of the players and frustrated Alphonso. Ron, 19, took off the footbag he was wearing and jumped from a raft to retrieve the ball. He swam past the ball, stopped, went under the water, came back up and cried out for help.

After he had gone under once more and yelled again, those present realized that he was not just playing. Several fellows went into the deep water to help him, but to no avail. Finally, after Alphonso had been down for about 20 minutes, fellow classmate, Teouncer Johnson, secured an underwater flashlight and was able to retrieve Alphonso's body. Johnson later said of the incident, "When I found Alphonso, I had run out of air and I didn't know how I would bring him to the surface. But he was my brother and I knew I had to somehow."

After trying in vain to revive him by artificial respiration, students put him in the bed of a pickup truck and took him to the nearest clinic where he was pronounced dead.

Alphonso was a good swimmer, so it was supposed that he suffered a stomach cramp (he had just eaten). On even perhaps a heart attack. The night before, he had told his roommate that he didn't feel too well. It was later determined that he didn't make it back to school from this Bible Conference, but I want to see you in heaven."
Adieu to the man From So Dakota

by Floyd Greenleaf

Watching the campaign on election night a realization again that all presidential elections have their idiosyncrasies but that they also have something in common—the political game is long and grueling and the stakes are high.

The rules allow for no time-outs or substitutions so when a contestant begins he must continue until he is eliminated by sheer exhaustion or inability to keep up with the rest of his competition. The spectators are sometimes wild and frenzied and may treat the presidential victor with all manner of uncivilized behavior, while the press is always on hand to report shoddy play, weak moves, poor strategy, and any other matter that might explain a bad position.

If one loses, seldom does one get a second chance to play the game although there have been a few who have undergone more than one engagement. The playing field is continental in proportions and is paved with the political cobblestones by those who tried but failed to finish the game. The Big Prize is a job in a large city with a nice house and office but with responsibilities that are killing.

In the last centuries many have played the game either as a hobby or for the profit. None others simply went the law by default, taking the place of a winner when he died but not playing the game on their own. In all only thirty-seven by one another have occupied the winner's seat.

It is obvious that this is no game for the weak. Those who join the contest have conditions forged from cast iron, steel, and the persistence of a robot. They must smile when it would be much easier to become angry, be optimistic when they have little hope, be happy when their game is disheartening. Their personal lives become a matter of public purview and if they should win they can hardly go anywhere or do anything alone. Privacy in the presidency is virtually non-existent. But so is the game's keeping going and players keep playing, seeking the reward. Among the losers are the Henry Clay's, the William Jennings Bryan's, the Thomas Dewey's, and the Adlai Stevenson's, none of whom could be termed poor players. It takes a special breed of men to play the game. George McGovern and Richard Nixon may each have their inadequacies but each has played a Big Prize. The winner has usually been around a long time and has often displayed his prowess on the field. His primary strategy in this encounter was to take advantage of his opponent's mistakes, which he accomplished with consummate skill, although adding nothing to the substance of the political game.

The Axios race in each league has tightened up last week as just a week and a half remain on the schedule. In the "A" league, Corbett met McKeen in a rematch, their first meeting resulted in 13-13 tie. Again, McKeen's defense held firm, allowing just 12 points and picking off 1 Corbett pass. This time, however, McKeen's offense got back on the right foot and produced 27 points en route to a 72-1 victory.

On the previous night, Nelson defeated Spence, 16-6, to put the pressure on Corbett. Corbett needs to finish the year undefeated now. Their showdown game, the loser played both extraordinarily and frustratingly and at times was frustrated with what seemed to be a game of solitaire.

The big boys' game may be traced to 1775 when the officers for an entertainment for the game were first put into action. It was thirteen years before the first encounter occurred and since that time the game has been repeated every four years with Olympic periodicity. The celebrations and bright lights that surround the victors have.

Mom tours library

By Andy Woolley

"So glad that you could come this weekend, Mom. Now I'll be able to show you through the library." "I am too. I've heard so much about it.

Here we are. Over here is the current periodicals." You just wouldn't believe it, Marge. He tried to show his arms around me. Well, I got out of that one all right."

"This is the browsing section.

Weber went long and missed it. Right in his arm! Sandhuck was the prompt."

"This is where all the bound periodicals are. Most of this audiovisual equipment is for the nursing department."

"Lucy, don't you think you acted kind of funny this morning. I walked in the door inside half an hour. You said you loved me." "Reference department is through these doors. Most the subjects are in there."

Apathy discusses voters, students

Although the test day is a plain brown folder, as a souvenirs of the 1972 election, the envelope, with the return address of my county clerk, contains my absentee ballot. "This is the first time I'm able to vote. That's the reason I'm here with you. I'm not really sure, but I feel that I have contributed to the American distress of apathy."

"In seeking for the past candidates competing for the presidency, I had a preference as to which ticket won the presidential election. But that preference was not strong enough to compel me to find a party to vote my ballot."

Hundreds of thousands of Americans appear to have been struck by this same feeling of apathy and indifference. Many stayed away from the polls Tuesday because of a lack of concern in the campaign solutions offered for the nation's political problems. Others voted for what they considered to be the lesser of two evils—Nixon or McGovern. SMC is not immune to the malady of political apathy. Its symptoms have become evident in the Collegiate community. Worse yet, political apathy is spreading—has carried over into the entire lives of some."

In the hollers of college life it is likely that students will become somewhat immune to the things that threaten their very existence. This past week has been the Fall Week of Prayer. For the over increased awareness of apathy, it has sometimes been heard in campus, is required during the fall. The projects themselves, have little to do with it not if $100-block-long-endurance test.

But for those who have been perceptive in the real issues at hand, the rewards have been great. This week has had the potential of being dramatically successful. The only factor preventing is the effectiveness of the faculty's presentations would be the feeling of indifference on the part of the few attending the meetings."

"I know you well—no, neither are you too cold; I wish you were one or the other! But what you are mostly is pure bliss!"—Rev. 3:15,16 (Living BIBLE)

Should old phones be forgotten?

By Steve Grinley

Should faith have saved Alfonso?

We played Thursday afternoon for Alfonso's life to be spared. His death brought about searches for questions to mind as we discussed faith during our weekly Bible conference. How do we know if it's lacks of faith or the willings of the will? How do we distinguish between faith and presumption?

These unsettling questions caused us to see more clearly how we regard Christ's times. We are content with our devout relationship with Christ never having thought of the subject of faith.
Expert shares alcohol views

A Drug Education Series is to be presented in the Collegedale Seventh-Day Adventist Church November 7-10 by Adrian J. M. Lauritzen, Coordinator, Alcohol and Drug Education, University of Minnesota.

One of the topics of discussion is the 500,000 liquor store operators in the United States ("A Day," an alcohol education talk centering around the statement, "I cannot afford to lose another addiction problem in our society scene.")

The audience face up to this fact and deal realistically with it, the better. It is possible to develop a rational approach to the drug abuse problem: it is also possible to develop a rational drug control law."

(Samuel Irwin, "Drugs of Addiction"

"Mind Alteration: Escape to Nowhere" will deal with drug usage, its effects on physical, psychological potential abuse and sociological implications. It will not cover the entire field but will touch the community, frequently discussed areas and some that are rarely thought of.

"Music and the Drug Cult" will be a lecture on popular dance music, entering around the phenomenon. Stated Lauritzen, "This will be an effort to subject the research around the problem of "popular music" prior to the mid-50s, then the rock-and-roll era through the late 60s."

Before going to the University of Minnesota, Lauritzen held a two-month position at one of the centers of "popular music" at SMU from 1952-1957.

He has done extensive lecturing on narcotic drug education in high schools, colleges, seminars, civic clubs, summer camp programs and churches. Lauritzen is also author of Narcotic Drug Education.

No meeting

The Executive Board meeting, originally scheduled for November 16, 1972, has been cancelled, according to President Frankity.

A rather close study is being made of all the industrial operations for which the SMU membership was responsible. We will also be reviewing productivity and effectiveness by a committee appointed by the Administration. It is felt that the SMU committee just won't have all their material and data in and come up with the proper statement at the upcoming Executive Board meeting, according to President Frankity.

Bible types Discussion

Dr. Nielson, President of the Tennessee Student Christian Council, announced a workshop on modern Bible translations and paraphrases of the Bible—these are not being used by Dr. Nielson among these questions.

Dr. Neufeld began the meeting of the Student Ministerial Association Thursday night in the Talpe Hall Chapel, the sub-ject being the "Church and Biblical Language in the Ministry." Tuesday, he met with the Greek and Pauline Epigraph classes, and this evening he will present a slide presentation on the "History of the Bible" at 7:30 p.m. in the Talpe Hall Chapel.

Noon meeting

The SMC orchestra under the direction of Mr. Orl C. Gribert of the music department is to present the first of three scheduled campus concerts in the college gym this Saturday evening at 8 p.m.

Included in the program are four vocalists and two groups of instrumentalists, and Mrs. Dorothy Ackerman of the SMC music department. The band and orchestra will perform the Brandenburg Concerto No. 4 in G on the program and the "Minuet" written by Susan Ziegler and Jan Phillips of SMC on their clarinet. Miss Ackerman will sing the "Song of a Wayfarer." Concerting

The SMC orchestra is the basically as it was given a week ago when the orchestra went on tour to Mt. Pisgah and Fletcher academies, according to Mr. Gribert, except for the addition of the husband and wife duo, Two and a half concerts have been scheduled for second semester.

Gribert, who has been teaching at SMC since 1969, commented on the SMC for the last six years, commented that the membership of the orchestra has increased from 16 in the six last years five from about 20 students to 30. "This is sounding better," he added.

As the president of La Sierra College in 1964, Mr. Gribert followed his education by taking advanced studies at the Universities of Minnesota and Wisconsin, and then received his Masters at Madison State Teachers College in Virginia. He came to SMC in 1967 and has been building up the orchestra ever since.

This month, the orchestra will accompany the SMC choir in the presentations of the " Messiah."

Vending machine proposal presents problems

Student Association Pres- ident, Reggie Tryon, reported to the Senate that the Nicaragua Vending Project will be postponed until December. The Senate proposal will provide a chance to organize the project more effectively, according to Tryon.

SMC public relations director, William T. Champion, reported that the students try to raise the funds themselves rather than be sponsored elsewhere in the college.

At the S.A. Senate meeting, a resolution of the working panels of the Student Association was voted on.

According to Lee Hess, senate president, the reason for the reorganization was to make working panels more adequate and effective.

Senator Peggy Davis, Denver regional executive chairman, gave a progress report for that committee and the committee members talked with the dean of Denver in Fletcher and foster opened later than 7 p.m. in the evening. The dean said they were working on it. A more complete report will be given at the next meeting.

Senator Gates, student services chairman, talked with the Senate that he had discussed with Miss Ellen Zollinger, of the home economics department, of the new Student Center concerning snack machines and what would be the place for such machines, the school said she was not sure where it would be placed and she would serve them.

It was voted out that if the senate wanted vending machines before then, the S.A. Senate would rent those machines.

The suggestion presented by Fletcher, was that some machines should be present. The present center student would be the one to rent them. The suggestion would be put to Fletcher. However, Lynnwood Hall and the first floor of the new student center were other places suggested. It would be voted to hold the ball. The idea of buying a machine was voted in depth at the expense of the question since machine costs around $1,000. Having machines would be more economical but would run into problems.

If a vending machine was rented, the company it was rented from would probably have to supply much also in a soup or sandwich type machine this would present the problem because the companies could not supply appropriately food or other machines.

For student nurses

By Kathy Kummer

Last weekend thirty-two sophomore nursing students, three faculty members, and two drivers, boarded a bus at 6:30 Thursday afternoon for a 12-hour trip to Florida.

This trip to New Orleans is sponsored annually by the BS nursing department to acquaint the potential junior with De Beauregard and fun of the extension

Mr. Greenleaf plans this year to initiate a program of raise funds by alumni members, as opposed to the specific alumni which have come into the Association in years past.

Letters will be sent to all members asking them to contribute something, no matter how little, to the Alumni and expenses, each year, for the purpose of increasing the funds available to the Association for scholarships and projects of interest to the college.

A decision on which projects will be worked on this year has not been made. According to Mr. Greenleaf, this will be decided when the alumni council can get together with the college during the next few weeks.

The Association’s bi-monthly publication will continue to appear in the SOUTHERN COLUMNS helps keep alumni informed on what is happening at the college and with other association members. Miss Mabel Wood, full time employee in the Alumni office in Wright Hall, is responsible for the publication and also for keeping the records of alumni activity up to date.

This year’s Alumni Association chairperson is Barbara Pine.

President, Floyd Greenleaf (’55), President-elect, Howard Cummings (’55), Treasurer, Wallace Blair (’53); Secretary, Diana Templeton (’55) and Assistant Secretary, Barbara Platt (’53); Publicity Secretary, Mary Ann Carr (’55).

There are at present over 3,500 alumni members.

He planned to broaden the facilities and possibilities of the department to include more students. He also encouraged teachers to make more use of the resources available to them in ads to teaching.

Davis hopes eventually to get into the area of group counseling (not to be confused with 1 counselor group) and eventually, counseling. In this way a larger number of students who might otherwise not come in for counseling on their own.

Nelson, Lovejoy tie; Hallock clinches first

Nelson, who has been close at Lovejoy's heels all season, finally pulled into a tie for first place with them with only one game remaining on their schedules. To obtain their tie for first, Nelson needed to win both of their games and Corbett and Lovejoy. The schedule would appear to favor Nelson, as they play Ambler and Lovejoy finishes Corbett.

It's not a two-team race, however, as both Corbett and McKenzie are still in the race, but their chances are still rather slim.

Sears has been on a late season surge to pull themselves out of the cellar, as they have defeated Corbett and Ambler in two of their last three games.

Hallock has long since clinched the title in "B" league, as they have nearly run over every team they have faced. Their remaining games are with Christianson, who in the meantime is battling with Mechanics for 2nd place. Christianson, Christian Jenness and Sears have gone on dual games late in the season to try for 2nd place. Bretsch & Parker have all played a notch, as they each have three losses, however, injuries and sickness have knocked down some of their key players.

Lastly, the question remains, will Hallock's team win a game, or will they finish the season invinciblly? Much credit should be given to Bradley's Seniors for being captains, even though freshmen, they were similar to their senior counterparts, and S.M.C.'s interpretation of the rule book. The annual Hallock vs. Corbett game will be held this Saturday night behind the Village Market at 6:15. Hallock vs. Corbett are organizing the entire team, while Eilers and Nurnberg are taking care of the team's squad. Be sure and come out and watch the players.

Departmental Basketball, which will proceed under the organization & direction of Randy Cockrell, will begin right after Thanksgiving, on Nov. 27, and proceed through Dec. 15.

According to Cockrell, teams must be made up of work department, Academic Department, or school organizations. In other words, if your major is Chemistry, you can't play on the F.E. Team, or any other team that you wouldn't belong to. The departments should get together and submit their names to Coach Lovejoy no later than Nov. 26, and preferably before Thanksgiving.

It is nice to know of the concern everyone seems to show for the ACCENT. When small problems crop up, concerned individuals round the already embarrassingly small newsroom proportions. In the meantime, the solution has already been worked out by the staff.

During the past few weeks we have attempted to bring out a copy of the ACCENT daily. It seems that only when the grapevine picks up a bit of gossip that grows throughout the campus do we find that people realize there is a college newspaper being put out every week.

If you have a comment, be pro or con, write it down and send it to the ACCENT. We would like to discover that we have more than just foul weather followers.

Look for an insight on the operations of a newspaper, coming in a few weeks. JC

Chuck Cutk Mr. Hod Orall bunged the fumigated from door to window Victorian-style door. At bay, he leaped to the gray weathered heavens and gazed as he watched a lightning bolt strike a stately pine. The pearly shrapnel showered in the roof. Just then, the door was opened with a commotion of a small crack. Fragile as the lightning, Mr. Orall ran through the opening to lead up to his nose with Count Stoltenberg.

"Good evening, if you have come for your appointment," the Count said coyly. Mr. Orall smiled and shyly added, "Is he ready?"

The Count pulled away and demurred, "Yes, and he is a masterpiece, much greater than all my other works combined." The Count stood still, his eyes glittering with pride.

"May I take a look at him, Count?"

"Yes, follow me." The duo descended a set of spiral stairs which must have been at least twenty levels. The Count said some magic words and a large head door opened before them.

"Welcome! Program Correct!" The Count walked to the control panel and started twirling the levers. Lights began to dim; winds began blowing; and a small earthquake started. Mr. Orall had to hold on a chair to steady himself. The Count laughed and turned on a microphone.

"That's wonderful, anyone!" added SiMiC quivered as wires of electricity wrapped his body.

Finally it all stopped. The Count moved over to SiMiC and shouted, "Behold, thou cursed!"

Magically a pair of shears appeared in SiMiC's hands. He began to raise the scissors to his head in a jerky fashion. His synthesized syrups flow to the laboratory floor.

"The words SiMiC uttered were, "Boop, boop, he's a dope."

Mr. Orall jumped for joy. "He cut his hair and stopped grumbling! Ye is boop, boop all he can say."

"That's right," the Count assured him.

Wondrous, wonderful, more dimension, it's never forced into anything by our words. The most laughter of slambang of SiMiC's is some possible! But what about the TV?

"Just a minor multitudinous-fix that'll fix it right now," said the Count.

The Count then gave SiMiC a correctional blow to the poster's memory bank. SiMiC then obediently turned the camera to "The Lawrence Welk Show" and bubbles filled the screen.

Mr. Orall returned to his province and appointed SiMiC the word President. Then, every sing Hallelujah-except the members of the waad.

"No one can ask beauty or hopefully to be delivered from temptation unless he has himself honestly and firmly determined to do the best he can to keep out of it." Rusklin

Class for Professor Ostrich
Has happy Finnish finish

By Mark Nicholson

It was a bright sunny day in Professor O. Ostrich's out- dusted laboratory and he was having his daily discourse. Two of his students were gathered, intent on learning everything of the techniques that Professor O. Ostrich imparted to them. After about ten minutes I.C. Red, the only student in the class, showed up. He had been out on the stump, it was a little late as usual.

"Today we are going to learn three words in Finnish's unique and different vocabulary."

"And I'm afraid of water," interjected I.C., the feline introvert.

"Class, class, we will have order or we will have no class" exclaimed I.C. Ostrich right fully. Everyone immediately became silent for no one wanted to be without any class.

"Think of the future" whirled Josco as he thought of tomorrow's complexion.

"Right-off" clenched I.C. "We will learn them kind and dedicated instructor said Slow-Slow, the conservative rat and leader in the class, those at least ninety-eight percent skilled added Slow-Slow skillfully.

Dear editor:

The tour of the recent Week of Spiritual Emphasis was well set by Dr. Khalide's statement that the faithful speakers did not aim to shock but to enlighten. We "just want to talk to you." During my four years at SMU, I have proven to lose my patience for their intent in the student, for their underlying human weaknesses, for their childlike imaginations and humility, for their buoyant spirit in the face of all obstacles. Through, of course, not all have shown has grace in equal degree.

I have seen professors' anguish as they re-evaluate their teaching after a disappointing presentation by students on a test. I have prayed that they might have courage to endure the challenge, student type and yet have wisdom not to over-burden students with work. (Fortunately, of course, not all have shown this grace in equal degree.)

St. Knickolas lites tree

By Ken Wilson

The annual Christmas Tree Lighting began at 7:00 p.m. last Tuesday evening. A pop band and choir entertained as everyone anxiously awaited the arrival of Santa Claus (alias Dr. Knitted).

Due to the absence of snow, Santa rolled down the path in a pony-driven carriage instead of a sleigh. A Datsun sports car gently pulled the pony up the road for the pony was a bit reluctant in the excitement and didn’t know which way to go.

After wishing a Merry Christmas to all and throwing candy to the children, Santa proceeded to the little house sitting in Wright Hall parking lot where “Kid,” such as Dean Spears and SA President Reggie Tryon got pictures taken while sitting on Santa’s knee. The Olga Mills photographer was a little late, because after arriving 45 minutes early and setting up all of his equipment he discovered that he had forgotten the camera. He made a record-time return trip to the studio for it.

The little house was formally a dollhouse built on the Thatcher plantation, now the SMC campus. It has, since then, been used for a business office, the President’s office, and various other functions. An interesting history of the dollhouse may be found in the book A School of His Planning in the lobby of Wright Hall.

The house was in a stage of disrepair residing near the College Print until recently when it was restored for the Tree Lighting.

Before the Lighting and during it, several people were strolling cars on the main road in front of Wright Hall and wishing occupants a Merry Christmas and giving them candy.

The large tree was found about 7 miles from SMC in a farmer’s pasture by Ken Davis and Edgar Grundset. Elder Davis did all the electrical wiring for the project. The tree will be lit every night until the New Year.

In a hustle and bustle, the 1,500-2,000 people present clamored to devour the 2,000 donuts and 55 gallons of hot chocolate which were served.

Renee Schults, SA Program Committee Chairman, was in charge of the program. Group Dutton handled the food.
Amahl and the Night, Handel's Messiah and Children: holiday events

A number of special Christmas music programs are being planned by the SMC music department for the holiday season. According to Dr. Marvin L. Robertson, chairman of the department, programs in the line-up include: "Amahl and the Night Visitors" and "Christmas Vespers." The following are brief outlines of the various programs:

December 14: CHRISTMAS TREE LIGHTING in the Mall (hours, the great tree lights, Santa arrives and refreshments are served).

December 2: CHRISTMAS BAND CONCERT directed by Dr. Jack McClarty, appearance of "true" Santa Claus and helpers and goodie bags.

December 8 (p.m.): M TENTH NIGHT VISITORS presented by the College Choir with Dr. Robertson as narrator and Richard B. Reigel, SMC president, as emcee. The program includes Christmas music sung by the College Choir, a reading of the Christmas story and an introduction to the SMC music department.

December 12: "CHRISTMAS VACATION officially begins!"

McClarty and gang to perform

By Debbie Perleos

December is almost here, and with it a deluge of activities. A glance at your schedule should confirm the myriad arrangements, performances, term papers, and tests. You'll need to spend time money on everything and everybody except yourself. So why not suggest a break before the last breath of the race?

On the evening of December 2, at 8:00 p.m., the New SMC Concert Band will be playing the annual Christmas Concert. (Now all together, "Ho, Ho, Ho, . . ."") Bite your tongues! Give 'em a chance! This is the "New" and Dr. McClarty's gang have put a superb program in store.

Their repertoire will include Santa's three favorite melodies, "Festival Overture" by Smetanovitch and a Trumpet Trio will be featured. The Collegiate Children's Choir, directed by Dr. Marvin Robertson, will perform the "Single Hymn Project" (from Heimnitz's "Hallelujah and Gently)."

An extra-special treat will be Brenda Conner's "Jingle Bells" by John Thompson. If you don't want to miss this young lady, on top of all this, Santa and his reindeer will be around with goodies for everyone.

Well people, I just wanted to encourage you. In the event that you're tempted to study to the last breath of the race, come all the same, but the Christmas Concert is once a year. It's free. It's a good show. And we'd love to have you join us on "do yourself a favor!"

Approval of a record-breaking budget of $59,322,000 marked the close of the 106th Annual General Conference of the SD&A church into this week.

In the budget meeting for 1973 enrolled by 5,418,000 the program's budget, will enable continuance of the work in 189 countries.

A five-year, six-phase program was approved budget to the council, Adventist world teacher, Kenneth H.

Emerson, the_and faithful support of the more than 12,000 of faithful of this generation, also, the financial needs that will be faced in the future of the mission.

Emerson pointed out that in the recent mission budgets were increased some reducing would have been necessary. For example, the thrust amount of an setting, "Go to founded, "we cannot afford treathen."

More than half of the budget is earmarked for overseas work of the church.

The closing session of the council brought a message of "new" from the world president of the Adventist church. Robert H. Pearson suggested that the church's leaders make the theme of the session their theme, "We have the now generation," he said. "We need to work among younger people, now evangelists, now teachers."

The president added, "Too many of us have misunderstood.

"We thought that Christ said, 'Go hold masses.' Go make budgets. Go

The president's words challenged stakeholders to give up time for an enlarged evangelism with at least half of the members of the denomination in some form of witness for Christ.

A report on the evangelical efforts of 1973 showed an increase in baptemis during the first half of the year, making a total membership gain of 140,490 for the fiscal year endning June 30.

Probably the most far-reaching action of the council was the first step in recognition of the church. Advised at greater conference, the council voted that the denominational's

Public Relations Bureau and its

Radio-Television Department shall present a delayed merger of the Lay Activities and Sabbath School Department, a study of a merger of its northern and Central Union

Conferences involving a new state area in the central part of the United States.

It was further voted that the specific administrative and departmental areas would be assigned at the General Conference level to devote full attention to the workings of the church in North America.

Previously this had been a general responsibility of all in the General Conference. It is anticipated that such specific merger will relieve some manpower at world headquarters for attention to this end.

Elections at the council met-uated C. Darrell Hendy, president of the East African Union cch of Adventists with properties in Nigeria, Kenya and points of the General Conference.

We can easily forgive a child

Ten Art students

visit New York

During Thanksgiving vacation

art and interior design students visited museums and other places of interest in New York

City on a one-day credit field trip. Ten students made the trip, accompanied by Miss Ellen Zollinger, instructor, Robert

Garren, art design. Robert

Garren, art teacher; and Garren's wife.

On Thanksgiving Day they watched Macy's Parade. Then

Garren bought lunch plans for the group. The plans was about 3 inches thick and, according to one girl, tasted more like a sand-which the planned for the group.

Thursday afternoon the group visited the Metropolitan Museum of Art, who housed a wide collection of modern paintings.

Not until they continued their field trip by visiting Knoll

Museum, famous for its show of furniture

Other displays of furniture were seen at the Post Museum, the Steinig furniture showroom, and the showroom of Edward Fields. Wednesday the Guggenheim was the main attraction. It was a circular building which housed the main atrium.

Also, the group visited

Contemporary Crafts and Greenwich Village.

Flagball finishes, basketball begins

John Maesteth

The flagball season has finally ended, but a championship wasn’t determined until the last day of the season, as Nelson dumped Amber, 20-0, and captured first place. The post season games proved just as exciting, as the teams met in their annual clash. Playing in a drizzle, the team scored the first two times it got the ball, and led at half, 14-7. The big play in the first half was made by John Stewart as he took a pick-out and scrambled some 65 yards for a touchdown. The rain increased in the second half, but Nelson managed an insurance touchdown to win, 20-7. West Holland scored two touchdowns on plays covering 55 and 49 yards.

Two nights later, Nelson’s team faced the All-Stars in what promised to be an exciting game. Nelson jumped to a quick 13-0 lead, behind the passing of Dean Nelson, and the running of Stewart. Full control was Nelson’s game plan, as they sit up the yardage, and the clock. With just 18 minutes remaining in the first half, the All-Stars converted a fourth and goal at Nelson’s six yard line on a touchdown. As Howard pulled in the punter, neither team could maintain much of an attack the second half, until with about 2 minutes remaining, and the score tied, 13-13. Shaky pulled in a long bomb and went out of bounds at Nelson’s 3 yard line. Glory was stopped in the hole. Nelson’s defense stiffened, however, and on the first play, Bob Hamilton pulled off a big interception. Nelson was still in the hole, but, by using the option, he scrambled for a big yardage, and finally the winning touchdown with just 30 seconds remaining.

Final Score: Nelson 70, All-Stars 13.

The “B” league title fell to Holland, who had only a tie in the last game of the season to ruin their record, as Christianson tied them, 14-14. Holland’s team showed their championship form as they defeated the All-Stars, 14-13.

Departmental basketball has started, and will run until Christmas vacation. A double-elimination tournament will determine the winner. Teams to watch for are P.H.U., Business, and Chemistry.

“B” LEAGUE ALL-STARS

NEWCOMER OF THE YEAR—Jim Semeniuk

Most Valuable Player—John Eberhardt

Most Sportsmanship—Fred Plosh.

I Hold Your Hand, America

America, I hold your hand with a firm grip.
I hold you tight that your freedom may not slip.
When your fathers first conceived you, they did not understand you.
But ruled you and moved you and dream for you.
Now you are mine.
Your future and my future are the same in one.
Just as past glories are yours, so too they are mine.
I planted my feet in your soil,
I took the strength of your soil to make my life.
May my strength make yours life.

America, we'll walk hand in hand the corridors of the future.
With our mutual love, together we will walk never growing tired of one another.
Yet, all my love for you, all my care and all my fear.
Will not keep you from falling in love with another.
Yes, America, your love will turn your new lovers into superior to me.
His words are smooth and have great drawing power.
To you, America, your new lover shall be Rome.
Why do I compare my love for you to your new love?
Is it that my love is not as strong?
I feel your hand gradually loosening and pulling away from mine.
Can it be?
America, you have given me my own strength, my own ideals.
Because of what you are, is why I'm in love with you.
Now you led me, America,
So that when you turn your back on me love
I may not be able to let go.
Is it that you want me to love you to be so great?
That I will follow you to my own death?
Even to the loss of my own soul, in betraying that you can do nothing wrong?
Soon I will stand apart from you, America.
Still feeling the warmth of the once Great Hand clasped.
America, I love you.

By Mark Nicholson

What is an American? How many times have you wandered on that subject in grade school or high school, or (maybe) even college? I've lost count of all the government lessons I've had to take. Passed them all too. But not exactly as an outsider, I did make a mark for myself as a bolide American my whole life, and blue make green in my book. Great like money, like politics. You know what I mean?

Of course the article will be a little biased, but that is okay, you're probably a little biased yourself, so we will more likely end up even anyway. The free enterprise system includes the writing fields also. At least what I learned in eighth grade.

John Prine has a song called "Your Flag Decadent Won't Get You Into Heaven Any More," and I think that sum it up nicely. So maybe that I wish I'd written the song. The song is about a man who put so many flags decals on his car windows that he couldn't see where he was going, so finally wrecked his car and that was it.

What in Mr. Prine trying to say? I think he is attempting to tell us that we are going to need more than our blindfolds to lead us through the particular time in American history. The idea of "our country, right or wrong" simply doesn't go anymore. Although it did give certain demagogues quite a bit of leeway in letting the rest of us know how to think.

What if it, could do with im- punity, just doesn't work now; we cannot pass over the bombing Hanoi with 18 bombs. We simply cannot deny that our enemies are much like ours, when sent they can't be recalled. Bombing the rest of the world into submission won't make us any better citizens, and probably wouldn't make us any better either.

We are now on the last top of the first semester, mid-term exams are over and mid-term grades have been posted. Now is the last chance for some of us to cram in that work we've been putting off till the very last minute before raising our grades. It is a time when students have the freedom of the mid-night oil will be burned, and a hold still have the ability to get through the time when fluffy, red-rimmed eyes will appear on many faces. At a time like this we often ask "What are our goals? Is it really worth all this?"

Can we be considered educated just because we have crammed a certain amount of "knowledge" into our heads or because we have turned out a specific number of assignments? Is it right or even intelligent to shove health and other principles just to accomplish an objective which may be even a questionable one at best? I realize that these questions have been raised hundreds of times before. But what, if we know the consequences of "knowing everything," do we consider this our obligation of the supreme objective of our education?

I think that as the new semester approaches, both students and teachers should again re-evaluate their aims. What is the value of the knowledge we are seeking? What kind of truth or knowledge should be presented?

As a Christian school, we have admitted that our search for knowledge is governed by specific principles that were set down by our Lord. Yet we often teach too much material in so short a time that the little if any serious thought is given to any one point. We emphasize memory work instead of encouraging the development of critical thinking skills.

There are some things that the student can do to make his education more meaningful to himself, and more relevant to his goals.

Students should seriously consider what they went out to school and look at their goals in terms of what must be accomplished here and now.

I feel that as students and should make our own education worthwhile.

It's all work together to make next semester more mind- ingful to ourselves. Keep your eyes on your goals and keep your fingers crossed.

SMC promoted to Full NASM member

Southern Missionary College was promoted to full membership in the National Association of Schools of Music on Monday, Nov. 20, at the 48th annual meeting of the Association.

Dr. Marvin J. Robinson represented the school at the meeting which was held at the Radisson Hotel, Minneapolis.

SMC became an Associate member of the NASM in 1968 and was granted full membership at the opening session in Minneapolis.

Membership of the Association includes 400 universities, colleges, and conservatories in the United States. Sixteen new schools were admitted to membership at this meeting and 17 were promoted from associate to full membership.

To NASM is designated by the National Commission on Accreditation as the responsible agency for the accreditation of all music degree curricula in schools of applied music, music theory, composition, music therapy, musicology, and music as a major in liberal arts programs. Its deliberations play an important part in the music education trends in this country.

The 49th annual meeting will be held at the Denver Hilton Hotel, Denver, Colo., November 19-21, 1973.

Messiah to come

Under the direction of Orlo Gilbert, the Collegiate Chorale, college orchestra and choirs are preparing Handel's Messiah, December 15, at 8:00 p.m. in the Collegedale church. The chorale groups are led by Dr. Marvin Robertson, music department chairman.

Soloists will be as follows: soprano--Nancy Hughes and Gail Jones; contralto--Elizabeth Diller; tenor-Warren Roll; bass--Mark Dalton

All the arts and recitative from section one will be presented, and the orchestra will do the overtures and pastoral openings.

Bus line extends Services to SMC

By Wynne Fenderson

Beginning with the first of the year, Collegedale will join with the Mass Transit Authority in providing a regular bus service for local residents and SMC students.

Following a regular work-day schedule, the buses will transport passengers to Chattanooga, Cleveland, Lookout Mountain, Daisy, and possibly other nearby areas. Stops will be made as frequently as the shopping centers. If a substantial number of people request the bus service for work transportation on Sundays, a special schedule may be arranged to satisfy their needs.

The Mass Transit Authority was instituted by the government when many bus lines simply disappeared from small towns. It ordered to keep transportation available for people, and to assist local merchants in getting potential buyers to the stores. Local merchants have joined together in sharing the operational costs of a bus service.

Hamilton and Walker counties have requested a bus line, and it will be serviced by other local government. Equipment costs will be partly covered by the Federal Government assistance.

Perhaps the group who will benefit most from this new service will be the nursing students. Not only will the service take students to early-morning labs, but also return them to the campus from late-night labs.

Buses will also be available for group charter. Collegedale, as well as the SMC, may take advantage of the service for their off-campus activities.

This new development is just one of many that are taking place this year. Back in May, the local sales tax was voted upon and passed. In November, the city commission received a check from the additional car-hall sales tax, amounting to $2,464.00. This and additional funds coming from the sale of property will be available for street work. Some work has been done, and the streets remaining will be completed in the spring.

The city commission invites visitors to stroll recently Town Council meetings held on the second Thursday night of each month in the city hall. Progress is in the making, and new ideas or suggestions are more than welcome.

The Danish Gym Team will be performing various gymnastics and folk dances under the direction of Erik Flensted-Jensen Saturday night at 8:00 p.m. in the SMC gym. The team was selected from the most skilled gymnasts in Denmark, whose aim is to develop the entire body into full harmony.

Martín to see SM's

This Friday evening, Dec. 8, at the regular 8:00 vespers service, Pastor C.D. Martin, associate youth director of the General Conference will be speaking to the student body.

It is expected to visit with prospective and returned student missionaries, Martin will go over some of the details and mechanics of the student missionary program.

In a recent letter to Dr. Marvin Campbell, of the choral department, he said, "Included in the program will be the six choruses: "And the Glory of the Lord," "And He Shall Purify," "O, Thou That Feltest Good Tidings to Zion," "For Unto Us a Child Is Born," "Glory to God," and "Hallelujah".

The combined choruses consists approximately 80 members and the orchestra approximately 55.

The agenda for faculty meeting last Sunday evening included token approval of College Senate action, a report by Bud Nixon on the Temperance program carried out last week at Heber High School, and the film, "Sit Down, Shut Up, or Get Out."

The Senate action had to do with the revised wording of the SMC Handbook regarding the selection of two students to sit on the College Senate. Formerly, the pass was read:

Two students—the president of SMC and the highest ranking SA officer of the opposite sex (members exempted)."

The recommended version as submitted by the Handbook Revision Committee, Dr. Bradley chairman, reads:

"Two students, one male and one female, shall be appointed by student association senate to serve for one non-renewable term of office expiring in the College Senate year. A married student and a single community student shall be represented at least once each three years. Student senators shall have a minimum of 2.5 cumulative GPA."

"Sit Down, Shut Up, or Get Out," an hour-long color film about the problems an 8th grade boy had with his teachers because of his gifted intelligence, was shown following the temperature report.

According to Dean Spears, the faculty meetings have been reduced to more general purposes, the more business being carried out by the newly formed College Senate.

The Danish Gym Team has taken a year off without salary to show their dedication to Physical Education in demonstrations of Danish gymnastics and colorful Danish folk dances.
Greasy auto mechanics
Serves women's lib lab

By Kathy Silver

Displaced as a Auto Survey class, the SMC branch of the Women's Liberation Movement has been meeting in Liedebro Hall quite regularly now every Sunday from 3:30 to 5 p.m. in fact for months.

Under the direction of Dr. Wayne Baldwin, of the industrial arts department, the girls have been studying hard learning to protect themselves, and their autos, from those filthy male mechanics (usually referred to as "mechanics") who continually molest innocent, unassuming, young feminine drivers.

"The class is working out fairly well," said Janet (And we all agree--Gloria will be proud!) Having offered the class for three years now, SMC has become accustomed to seeing plans and girls turning to and fro, clad in those grease-spotted, figure-flattering, green overalls, followed quite shaby by a faint odor of lubricating oil.

Fioneer women have thus far broadened the Auto Survey class.

GRE deadline soon
Seniors take note

by Darryl Ludington

The General Record Examinations (GRE) will be administered in the testing department this Tuesday, according to R. K. Davis, chairman of the examinations. Six seniors are required to take the examination.

Most graduate and professional schools require the GRE for admissions to graduate studies. The examinations help graduate schools appraise the academic experience and qualifications of applicants for graduate study and assist sponsors of fellowship programs in selecting recipients of their awards. The GREs are intended to serve as a standard measure for use with the academic records and recommendations presented by candidates with widely varied educational backgrounds.

Test development, research, and administration of the examinations are carried out by Educational Testing Service (ETS) under policies determined by the Graduate Record Examination Board.

Candidates whose religious convictions prohibit them from taking tests on Saturday, ETS has made arrangements for a Monday administration following the regular administrations.

The GRE are divided into two parts--the Aptitude Test and the Advanced Test. The Aptitude Test, a thorough test given in the morning, measures general scholastic ability of the graduate level and yields separate scores for verbal and quantitative ability. Included are verbal reasoning questions, reading comprehension questions drawn from, for example, several fields; and quantitative mathematical questions that require arithmetic reasoning, the solution of algebraic problems, and the interpretation of graphs, diagrams, and descriptive data.

The Advanced Tests, each about three hours and four minutes long, are given in the afternoon and are designed to measure general ability and comprehension of materials basic to graduate study in each field. The test is intended to allow candidates to demonstrate their knowledge and aptitude for the field. Each test emphasizes the basic concepts and principles of that subject area and includes questions that require reasoning, analysis, and decisions based on one's knowledge of these principles.

The Advanced Tests cover the areas of:

- Biology, Chemistry, Economics, Education, Engineering, French, Geography, Geology, German, History, English Literature, Mathematics, Music, Philosophy, Physics, Political Science, Psychology, Sociology, Spanish

Applications for the GRE schedules for February 23 must be in the GRE offices at Princeton, N.J., or Berkeley, California before Dec. 13. Students desiring more information should contact Davis in the testing department.

Photo lab-free for all

Beginning second semester of this year the Photo Lab in the basement of Lyndsay Hall will be open for students and community residents to use reports Bill Garber, instructor in communications.

Previously only qualified persons and photo class students were allowed to use the facilities. Those involved in the new operation have met once to discuss and plan the new procedures that will have to be used in this service.

Requests for this service have arisen from both those experienced and inexperienced in developing pictures. There will be a training session before Christmas vacation for those who wish to gain acquainted with the darkroom.

The lab will be staffed with six enlargers, two developing rooms, a large washer and an adequate dryer.

The lab may possibly print newspaper pages and film that are on hand. A small charge will be made for those supplies whose person brings his or her own developing chemicals, paper, and film.

Craft's to be displayed

On Dec. 13-19, projects made by the students of the crafts class will be on exhibit, on the second floor of the Home Economics building, under the direction of Ellen Zollinger, of the Home Economics Department.

Such things as rugs, Macrame, stitching, and tie-dyed objects are just a few of the articles to be displayed, many of which will be for sale. "The projects turned out pretty good," says Jorge Flechas, a member of the crafts class. "Many of them would make good Christmas gifts."

The purpose of the exhibit is to show what the students have done, and to generate interest in the class. Specific articles from other classes will also be on display. These will be from the sculpture, weaving, and ceramic classes.

"We hope everyone will come see the exhibits," said Flechas. "It should be very interesting."

Hamburgers for Communion?

By Teddi Searle

One day a Niccian said to a Lutheran, "THINK That we should have hamburgers and Coke for communion." "Because," he philosophized, "Times have changed."

"We need to be relevant, updated." "We're the Grape juice is one..."

The devout Deacon, Iowa, Presbyterian Church is doing and they claim shorty everybody will be doing it." 3. Then, too, it is an individual matter for individuals must be expressed so as not stultify individual freedom.

"7. Furthermore we Niccian have different opinions from some of you. You are worried about whether it conforms to the world or not; the big thing is to eat your hamburgers in the love of the Lord and you heart will be told all..."

Not long after the Niccian said these things "Christian." And not long after that an Archil Sunday Law was passed. That month of trials really started. And many voices were being heard. They have! You've just been told—food and clear.

P.S. Would you like to know about Niccian? See Rev. 2,10,15,73DNCJ57.

Along THE WAY...

by Andy Wooley

November 6. Went to the tree lighting, I'd really enjoy the singing if I wasn't done. Santa's grace joke or Coke either missing me or stomping me with the little paper bag. I'd rather have something free for people. I lost one glove, one scarf and a pair of gloves.

November 29: Have a big test tomorrow, WSMC, decided to start blaming Christmas Music. I've never been prejudiced, but the Lennon Sisters.

December 1: Went out to find a Christmas tree for the house. Overturned this bill for thirty minutes, found a tree on the other side. Also found a road that lost in three directions.

December 14: At President's Club she gave me a hug and said, "Philadelphia is a Fun City."

December 19: Well, my last test. I can't believe it. Going home. Let's see. Passed. I'm the moment when we find out something you love and believe in, let's say, ranging with an old condition, find that you're all your moment you have the best enemy can do your job as well as you can, and you go for your enemy. They remain you are forever alone, but not always the way you are more together than ever, and a hundred different moments when you are. It is letting life happen in your own good order and making the best of what there is.

What is maturity?

Maturity is the growing awareness that you are neither wonderful nor hopeless. It has been said to be the making of a place between what is and what might be. It's a destination. It is a road.

WE GOOPED! Yes, but we left some good rolls to our photographers. Here they are: Page 1 and 2 were drawn by Rev. B. Nicholson; page 3 was by Charles Malle; page 4 was by Bob Nicholson; page 6 was by John MacRitchie; and page 8 was by Dante Halbeck.

What's the news?

This week's news is: President Nixon had a meeting with President Johnson on the phone.
SMC, Listen co-op
On Dunn story

By Mike Couillard
There is some unproductive and relevant classes coming in, Academic Dean, Dr. Cyril F. W. Fletcher, stated
He brought up the idea of adding a class in horn to the physical education department, and the need for a typing room which all students could use as a new business. He is looking into these areas.

Registration, A new twist

Registration for second semester will have a new twist to it.

According to Dr. Alton Kutner, director of admissions, student registration material will be fed into a computer which will record the information for immediate and delayed recall. Three terminals are being installed at present to be operable by registration time next month.

Computer registration will eliminate much red tape and save considerable time in sorting, alphabetizing, and classifying. A complete roster of all classes are made available in just a few hours after the last person has registered.

Kutner commented that a wealth of benefits will come out before registration that there will be no class cards to pick up.
Instead, students will sign class enrollment cards in the individual department tables and then go to the second computer at the department terminals to have the information fed into the computer. The first four letters of the last name and two initials, and the class numbers assigned to each course.

The computer will print twenty-five copies of the information and the student will receive a copy.

Even greater uses for the computer are in the planning for registration next fall. The student will merely fill out a registration sheet which will run through the computer, if desired. For all desired classes are available, the student is registered. No departmental tables, no I.D. numbers, no endless copying of class schedules, etc.

After all registration information has been fed into the computer, any number of services can be made available, such as:

- Instant class changes, instant
GPAs, grade reports.
- Instant letters to parents (complete with address and envelope), possibly even instant demotions.

Those SMC students who were lucky enough to do their registration Tuesday, include
Dixie Hocke, Alane Stenger,
Ken Wilson, and Greg Runyon.

The initial three are from SMC, Garbler's and the local department, NSCM, who was noted for a radio interview on their nationwide broadcast, the Sound of Life.

When asked as to the press type of report that was posed to Governor Dunn, Mr. Garbler related that they were indeed general queries, intending to draw the governor out on his life pattern and his personality background and interests. They then moved on the question of the opportunity and youth and their
and demand in the world today.
It is hoped that the insight was given in a Christian way in the interview and that though rare, Christianity and politics can be blended together and used for the general good of humanity.

New class, faculty, Addition next semester

In reference to a personal turnover for this coming sem-ter, Dr. Fletcher stated that it would be almost nil. Mrs. Bill of the English department was recently trapped into returning to complete her M.A. study. Nelson Thomas of the P.E. department will be away.
And Don Runyon of the music department is still in study leave.

Those joining the registration faculty include a number on the Orlando campus.

It will be necessary to add another teacher to the AD meeting department because of the number of demanding students.
One teacher on the Orlando campus has taken charge of the LD division.

Anja Uphoff Rother has recently taken charge of the LD division at Orlando.

Phil Kienstein has taken this interim.
Karate club gains official status

The Southern Taekwon-Do Association (STA), more popularly known as the Karate Club, became an official organization of SMC on November 10, when it finally cleared the Student Affairs Committee, according to Sophia Ho, director of the association.

"Now that the club is official," commented Lee, "we are making plans to acquaint more of the students with the STA and its activities." The club plans to hold a table at registration to provide students with information about the association and sign-up sheet for those interested in joining the club's second semester. Lee predicts an enrollment figure exceeding 50 new students. There are presently over 30 STA members at SMC.

Two karate classes will be offered each week: an advanced class meeting Wednesday evenings at 8:30, and a beginners class meeting on Friday afternoons at 2:30 in the gym. Club dues have been set at three dollars a month.

A test will be given January 12 to separate STA members into the two classes. On January 20, club members will take a trip to Memphis where freshman John Whitehouse will try for the tournament cup. A week later, January 24, a large demonstration will be held in Talge Hall housing. Lee expressed hopes that arrangements soon will be made to give SMC credit for the classes.

Chemistry meets P.E.

After two weeks shake

By John Maretich

The departmental basketball tournament has narrowed down from nine teams to just two, after two weeks of action. In the finals, Chemistry meets P.E. 1 in what should be an exciting match-up.

Chemistry has a well-balanced squad which boasts fine board strength, and excellent team work. They really only lack an outside scoring threat.

P.E. 1, on the other hand, depends primarily on big man Warren Halverson, who is averaging 25.3 points per game. Halverson has been particularly effective in the late games, as he usually gets three-fourths of his points in the second half.

This was readily seen in P.E. 1's game from behind victories over Biology and Religion as the P.E. team ran them off the court.

Games Points Average

W. Halverson 4 103 25.8
Mike Schulze 3 36 12.0
Jim Schroeder 3 34 11.3
Bruce Blaine 3 33 11.0
Ed Halverson 2 29 14.5
John Maretich 4 46 11.5
Delmar Lee 3 28 14.0
Lyle Hentgen 2 26 13.0
Rick Jacques 3 40 13.3

Ward wins tennis championship

Favored Rodney Ward, a sophomore chemistry major from Orlando, Florida, went up in the way to win the Full Tennis tournament which was sponsored by United Delta Phi.

The final match was between Rod and a second-year theology major, Jim Greek, from Jacksonville, Florida. I might add that Rod won the first set and Jim was the second seed in the tournament.

Jim fought courageously, but Rod's consistent return and second effort shots were just too much for Jim to hold on to. The final match by games was 6-1, 6-2.

There were 26 players who participated in the tournament which included a seeded player, Rod beat Seeawala, Milt Tolson, Bob Forster, and Jim Greek to win the last place trophy.

If we lost, Dan Bowes, Rich Huberohrun, and LeRoi Lifebuoy to take the runner-up trophy.
Interior jobs available

Senator Bill Block (R-Tenn) said in Washington today that there are thousands of summer jobs for young people available through the federal government.

"The United States Interior Department is offering an exceptional summer employment program for young Americans, and I urge anyone interested to apply as soon as possible because it’s first come, first served," Block stated.

He also said, "There are several types of job classifications under which a young person might be eligible. In the sub-professional group, clerical jobs, such as typists, clerks, office machine operators, etc. are available.

"All young people situated in one of these positions would be required to take the Summer Employment Examination, and applications for the exam are available at college placement officers, post offices and the Civil Service Commission.

"The Department of the Interior also has many jobs that do not require the Examination. A young person has a choice of work here, in the Bureau of Land Management, the National Park Service, and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

"The Youth Conservation Corps, a pilot project, has an exceptional summer job opportunity at the Department of the Interior and Department of Agriculture. It’s for youths ranging from 15 to 18 years of age, and is designed to help them develop an appreciation for the natural environment.

"One of the outstanding programs for the disadvantaged is the Summer Aid Program offering youth from 16 years to 21 years of age at the rate of $1.60 per hour. The work ranges from manual labor to technical assistant positions," according to Block.

The Senator stressed that the number of jobs, with the Interior Department are limited and there are always more applications than positions. Filling dates are from January 1st through February 15th. Deadline for the National Park Service is January 15th.

Anyone interested in employment should complete an application, Standard Form 171, which is available at the Civil Service Commission Office, U.S. Post Office, or any federal agency. Send it along with a copy of the notice of rating from the Summer Employment Examination, if applicable, to the particular Bureau of interest.

The Senator also pointed out that those interested in applying with the Department of the Interior should not forward their applications to its Washington office or Tennessee field offices since it would only cause delay.

Andrews to sponsor Musical Viennese summer

The 1973 Summer Session for Music in Vienna, Austria, offered by the School of Graduate Studies at Andrews University, will be held June 10 to July 23, 1973.

Condensed since 1966, the Summer Sessions in Vienna include courses in music history and literature, a symphony orchestra, and discussions taught by Adelphia professors with private instruction in applied music and guest lectures given by professors of the University of Vienna and the Vienna Hochschule fur Musik and members of the Vienna Philharmonic.

The summer session includes evening performances in the 1973 Vienna Festival and the Vienna City Hall and Palace Concerts series, in addition to field trips and optional excursions and other travel.

All instruction is in English. Courses are recognized by the American Association of Schools in Music, and credits earned in Vienna can be applied toward different types of degrees and can easily be transferred to other American colleges and universities.

Attending the Summer Session in Vienna will add little more than attending a summer session at the British Spring campus of the School of Graduate Studies. Teachers and other professionals

Pewman stepped up

A second Witnessing Workshop is scheduled for the Pacific coast at Oakland, Cal., February 15 to 22, and a third for the great heartland of America and Canada, February 23 to March 1 in Kansas City, Mo.

Ministers participating in the three major workshops will be looking at evangelism through the eyes of laymen rather than career specialists in evangelism.

Students’ Views of Christmas

CHRISTMAS MISING
by Linda Patterson

The Christmas tree was lighted
All the mistletoe was place and the cookies were all piled
Just waiting in their case
All the pretty gifts were waiting
all wrapped and sealed with care
And the mistletoe was hanging
in its place above the stair But lonely little Debbie sighed very plaintively
That something was missing
What ever could it be
She looked out through the window
At the lightly falling snow
And then she heard the singing
It was so sweet and low

Oh, I know what is missing
As she wiped away a tear
Christ Jesus is what is missing
I’ve left him out this year

There’s lots of children round here
That I could make quite glad
And when you let Christ
Jesus in
You never will be sad.

CHRISTMAS
By Debbie Durrick
Christmas is the time of year When Christ should be thought of often
A time when He is near
But a time when He is forgotten

JUST IN TIME FOR CHRISTMAS
By Mark Nicholson
Oh Christmas time, oh Christmas time.

A dollar here and a dollar there
A shrinking billfold’s hard to bear
A lot of change to feed the world
After that there’s always the gracery

Hundreds of friends, but my billfold’s small
And by New Year’s Eve, it’s nothing at all
I shouldn’t hate Christmas, it’s so near
But horror of horrors, there’s one next year...

Amahl, wins over Kings, Collegedale

By Ken Wilson

Amahl and the Night Visitors, a retelling of a Christmas story, was climaxed by a standing ovation Sunday evening December 10 in the P.E. Center.

The plot is as follows: Mother begs Amahl to go to bed, but he is in another world playing his pipe, and comes to, hobbling on a crutch, only after repeated warning of punishment. Mother refused to believe Amahl’s tale of a large star with a long tail, for he had a habit of telling tall tales.

Shortly after retiring, Amahl slowly rose out of bed while hearing strange singing voices in the lane. After a loud knock at the door, Mother instructed Amahl to lie still who might be waiting outside in honor.

Amahl couldn’t believe his eyes after answering the knock, but ran to Mother’s bedroom announcing that there was a King at the door! Unpersuaded by Amahl’s imagination, she sent him to the door again, and bid him to return with the truth.

Returning again, Amahl announced that there really was a King there.

Mother warmly greeted his statement, but Amahl breathlessly announced “but there are two Kings!”

Racing away angry at her tales, Amahl’s mother again sent him to the door. Upon returning the third time, he confessed that there weren’t really two Kings at the door, “But there are three and one is black!” At which point, Mother took Amahl holiday to the door, only to be flabbergasted at the sight of three Kings instead, and a page with them.

Mother made excuses for their poor house and cold fireplace, but the visitors insisted on resting there. “We can stay here for a short while,” explained one King, “For we can’t live apart of the star.” Mother then knew that Amahl had for once told the truth in his bedtime stories having over the universally bright star.

Mother went to gather some wood for the fireplace. Meanwhile Amahl made conversation with the Kings. He asked King Bathsheba if he had royal blood.

Bathsheba retorted, “Yes, the same as yours!” In disgust, Amahl answered, “Then what good is it?”

King Kaspar showed Amahl his magic box with the three drawers which he always carried with him. With this Kaspar showed the contents of the first two drawers. The third drawer was for little boys, with black boots, a real treat for Amahl. Upon her return with an armful of wood, Mother sent Amahl out to bid other shepherds to come see the Kings. Curiously winning her trust, Mother asked the Kings who the beautiful gifts were for. When she heard the description of the Child King, Mother said she would only give gifts to children not to bring such gifts even though she was poor, sick, hungry, and cold.

Then giving shepherders and some who arrived with one of the shepherds carrying crippled Amahl on his shoulders. They brought a few simple gifts of food, for which the Kings profoundly thanked them. Each gift was usually and quickly placed before the Kings because of the social-class barrier, felt by the poor.

At the suggestion of Mother, a young lady and a sharpened danced a folk dance in honor of the King’s presence.

Because the Kings wished to sleep, the shepherders fished singing, out of the busiest small and into the night.

At the rich Kings nodded in deep, the thought of “all that gold” for her crippled child possessed mother. Thinking that rich one just didn’t understand her benefit plight, she wept across the floor to take a few nuggets from the King’s money pouch.

Just as she placed her hands on the covered gifts, the page awoke and cried “What’s, What’s,” while the Kings stood with pointed fingers champing “Shame, Shame, Shame.”

The page pointed on Mother, grasping for the stolen goods, while Amahl frantically threatened the page and flitted his weak arms at him “Don’t hurt mother she’s good I’m the Danes in retrospect . . . Again!!

The Danish Gym Team, made up of skilled gymnasts mostly in their early twenties, presented the Danish concept of physical education, Saturday night December 6, in the gymnasium.

Some of the gymnasts were students and others represented a number of different careers ranging from teachers to mechanics to office workers. Having all taken time off with out salary of any kind, their common interest is dedication to physical education.

The teams came together only a few months before the tour, having all been members of various gymnastic organizations and clubs throughout the nation, and some having also attended one of the famous Danish folk schools for gymnastics and sports.

Their demonstrations included a variety of modern Danish gymnastics for men and women and a selection of Danish folk dances in colorful native costumes.

The men’s and women’s programs are different, primarily so that the men will develop muscle and the girls develop grace. Made up by the instructors, the anes of gymnastics is accompanied by music, choral and modern, most of which is played by a piano and accompanied by the team’s own pianist.

Beginning in August, the tour, the swiftness for director Finnveden-Jensen, took in behind stopped in Kent, Connecticut to hold a training program, and then continued to Southern California back.

The team plans to be back for Christmas before leaving on another tour which will include Bangkok, Hong Kong, Indonesia, and a final performance in their own country.

The Danish Gym Team is a non profit organization approved by the Danish government.

Florida physician

Donates services

Dr. Melvin Campbell, faculty sponsor of the student missions committee, returned Tuesday evening, Dec. 12, from a flying visit to Orlando, Florida to meet with Dr. Charles Kurth, who is planning to donate part of his time to the Nicaraguan Mission.

Dr. Kurth, a Lutheran M.D. who lives off the Florida Hospital in Orlando, is leaving about the 26th of January for an 8 or 9 day visit to offer his services and assist the Nicaraguan situation.

According to Campbell, Dr. Kurth is interested in assisting other Orlando physicians to donate time and supplies for the mission and he establishes the exact needs.

Dr. Kurth has been in general practice nine years and at present specializes in physical medicine and rehabilitation. He and his wife, both Lutheran ministers' children, have three chil-

"I'm willing to pay," said the man. "How expensive?" "Oh--- fifty cents apiece," said the boy. the man said. "Alright," said the man. "Fifty cents apiece," the boy answered. "Alright," said the man. But the boy thought he should have set their price higher, and opened the cage door. One of them flew the opening, and in a flutter of feathers, soared out of the door, now free, and over the treetops. In a few minutes he was out of sight.

The other had sat in the cage and mooped. A few times he tried clumsily to fly, but ended up blinking his head on the cage bars after which he slumped dozed in a corner. A few days later he died.

One day Jesus was walking along. He came upon a young man playing with some caged pigeons. "Who's got?" he asked. "I've got a small bunch of them," confessed one of the boys. "How many?" Jesus asked. "Oh, he's got around a dozen," admitted the boy. "And after that?" "I've got them with me," explained Jesus. "Oh, kill them, I guess. Yes, I'll kill them," said the man. "Would you sell them to me?" asked Jesus. "Well," said Jesus, "they're expensive people."

Blindman testifies

By Keith Kummer

The student association presented Forrest Cave, of Forrest Cave Feeds and the Chattanooga Choo Choo as the chapel speaker Thursday, Dec. 13.

Blind since the age of three years ago, Cave continued his education, even though he had never been a successful car dealer who couldn't even drive a car. Introducing himself as "not an expert, preacher, preacher, or Bible scholar," Cave gave a personal testimony of how the Lord had blessed him in affliction.

He began with the statement, "Every time I think of this, I might tell you there is a God. He does care. And He will see you through your particular problem.

But Cave did not always have this conviction. It was only after the "smoke screens and enchantments of our own nationalization cleared away that the truth came.

Throughout his talk, Cave quoted John 9:3 to stress the idea that God takes the whole blame for all afflictions one should leave not only the "un-thinking of heaven, but also affliction in the hands of God.

Cave believes that affliction is part of the human condition and the love of God. He illustrated this point with the story of an anonymous baby whose parents, having a "negative attitude towards the Lord's blessing" with them, was a manifestation in bringing 300 persons to a knowledge and acceptance of the love of God.

Stressing that even is only a heartbeat from death, Cave recommended accepting the assistance found in the "works, plans, and love of God are being made manifest" in him.

"Being blind is hard, but, it's funny," Cave explained. Only the inclusion that it's for a short time, a little while he went through.

Cave concluded his talk with the prayer statement, "Thy grace is sufficient."

Americanism revisited

Part 3

By Mark Nicholson

You know, we have whole chapters full of the smallest people we've ever seen. I've supposed that our book of our lasting positions as related to war and the enemy of course, the stand you take is a very personal matter. But whenever your stand is made you're changing someone's life. It's only after the "smoke screens and enchantments of our own nationalization cleared away that the truth came.

Throughout his talk, Cave quoted John 9:3 to stress the idea that God takes the whole blame for all afflictions one should leave not only the "un-thining of heaven, but also affliction in the hands of God."

I realize that we are in the dying phase of a religious crusade, and still are there times when we must stand up and be counted as Christians, and it won't be easy. Disregard all the propaganda. Ignore all the speeches for party. Go back to your Bible and find whether there really is a mandate for us to conquer with the word and the sword. Find out what you believe, and what you've been accustomed to hearing.

So, what is an American? Is that question really important? Recognize that "What is a Christian?" should be foremost in our minds. One final step, it doesn't say "Hallelujah are the killers, do you?" Or "you saw me struggling, and killed me." The birdwatcher is not placid. They are real, flesh-blooded birds for living. Perhaps we should believe them.

SANTA CLAUS IS COMING TO TOWN

by Steve Gringley

Last Christmas I was told that Santa Claus's knee was begging for my own Anatole Massignon, who was going to take me up into my stay at Southern Missionary College. To my surprise, Santa Claus was a bit of a disappointment. In fact, I was shocked when he spoke. I had thought that Santa Claus little old might go no, ho, ho, to school and SMC sounds like a good place to go. I proceeded to explain the rules of the school and how hard it would be for Santa to keep them. He still insisted on coming down into my dormitory. He continued to say, "Santa, really you don't understand..." I had little boy what Santa give you for Christmas.

Before I could get another objection in, Santa had already finished his second wish, a Sherman tank, and an ABM System to a group of kids. I was soon forget about what Santa had said. I rationalized and thought I'd finally decided he was just promising me a gift or something.

I headed out 2nd Senator without giving Santa another thought. I just a great summer even though I never did get that Anatole Santa.

However, I was slightly disturbed by a piece of music which didn't quite belong in the room. The whole room was living to the rhythm of "Shanty Clowt". I decided I was hearing it in a piece of music too.

The time ticked around again to begin the fall semester at SMC. I returned to SMC and was soon thinking about my heart patient going up to get the next day and register.

At 7 a.m. the door of my room opened. I was awakened by a terrible clattering sound. I glanced to the right and saw Steve let old Shanty Clowt in the room.

"Aren't you my trying to step?"

"You're roomy Shanty!"

"Oh, wait a minute," I gave in digesting my own new roommate. I was living in a dorm with a Santa, also also.

As I opened the door my eyes were assaulted by a horrid, ugly, red Santa. He was dressed completely in red. My dreary world was set on fire with the reminder that this was Santa Claus. "What on earth are you doing tonight?"

I let him in. He was a bit of a joker.

"I'm an unscrupulous Elmera named Shanty Clowt who's never seen a picture of him and who also has an IQ of 100."

"But you never make it through registration with that beard and face of yours."

"The problem is solved. I got one of the make up men from the Mission Impossible crew to help me."

I didn't have the nerve to laugh at him. I was too busy trying to figure what to do. "I'm not that kind of people. I should be working on some new plans, but we though we'd pull it off.

Registration was hopeless! Everyone thought Shanty was a very funny person.

"Did you see that weird dude over there? We limp don't move when he speaks."

The sauces at the New Year's dinner made me laugh. Shanty's sculpture kept coming out of his face. We thought he had a veraity at the table.

"I could never have a Santa at my house!"

"I'm a hard going man and I don't want any lines when you talk. And the left eyebrow is kind of loses," he said trying to make himself better.

We spent the rest of the night looking for a way to conceal his sculpture. It was definitely a science in our plans, but we thought we'd pull it off.

"Did you see that weird dude over there? We limp don't move when he speaks."

The sauces at the New Year's dinner made me laugh. Shanty's sculpture kept coming out of his face. We thought he had a veraity at the table.

"I could never have a Santa at my house!"

"I'm a hard going man and I don't want any lines when you talk. And the left eyebrow is kind of loses," he said trying to make himself better.

We spent the rest of the night looking for a way to conceal his sculpture. It was definitely a science in our plans, but we thought we'd pull it off.

Registration was hopeless! Everyone thought Shanty was a very funny person.

All SDA's survive Nicaraguan quake

The devastating earthquake of December 23, 1972, leveled Nicaragua's capital city, Managua, and claimed five thousand lives. The Inter-American Division reports, however, that no SDA's were killed. Homeless SDA's have been gathered and transported to a local member's farm where food and other supplies have been provided.

The division office added that a secretary was sent with twelve thousand dollars to aid in the relief work. An equal amount was sent by the SDA welfare service.

Two large SDA churches in the city were demolished. The Nicaragua Mission office was damaged beyond repair and will have to be relocated. However, all official records were preserved.

The church operated hospital, La Trinidad, located seventy miles from the city, was untouched.

Though no messages from SMC's mission station have arrived since the quake, no threat of danger to personal safety exists. Managua, unfortunately situated atop a highly active volcanic belt, is 375 miles from Francis S. Byrd. Mass damage was restricted to the city.

Christine Puslits, student director of the SMC Mission Board, stated at a Friday evening worship service January 5, that the quake may directly affect the mission's ability to purchase needed supplies. Also, the pouring of all available funds into Monganab rehabilitation by the government may thwart the state poverty program among the Indians. More burden is thus placed on our mission programs.

All potential problems, however, are speculative due to inadequate information.

Survey reports ladies want late male visitors

One hundred sixty-seven Thalcher women out of 230 who responded to a recent survey voted to have Thalcher Hall's lobby open to men until 10:30 p.m. in the evenings.

Mrs. Florence Stuckey, head diet of women, reported that 700 women received questionnaires about the subject.

Fifty-one women voted against having the lobby open to men. Their reasons ranged from "we want privacy from the men in the evenings" to "we want freedom to roam at will in the lobby, dressed casually or in house coats." "I'm against that anyway," said Mrs. Stuckey. "The lobby is a public place."

City frozen but thawing

Returning students received a non-Southern greeting of icy tracks accompanied by automobile accidents and spin-outs. Some students were stranded, because of bad weather, as far away as Texas, while almost 40 students spent a couple of days in the Atlanta Airport.

Meanwhile in Collegedale, uncharacteristically low snow cut off water and electricity for two and a half days. Several college buildings were unaffected, faculty members slept with their families on the floors of their offices.

Registration went faster slowly that planned because students held over by bad weather didn't register at their scheduled times, thereby jamming lines.

For the first time at SMC registration was done by computer, which was to alleviate most of the lines. As of Tuesday night, 1175 students had registered by the new method.

The greatest benefit of the computer registration was the time saved. Students were not required, as before, to fill out two class cards for each class they attended in.

Four computer terminals were set up in the gym to feed the computer with each student's class schedule. The computer stores the data, and is able to immediately print class schedules and class rosters, automatically alphabetizing the list of students.

According to Dr. Arno Kutter, Director of Admissions and Records, registration will be improved next year by means of a scan sheet. Instead of the student writing out his class schedule, he will blacken his class schedule into the oval marks on a computer card. This card will then be fed directly into the computer, eliminating the program that was necessary at the computer terminals.

One problem encountered was the using of the catalog class numbers, instead of using the new computer class numbers, which are somewhat different. The cold weather and bad road conditions around the country prevented many students from registering on time. Therefore the late registration fee was suspended for those who were unable to make it back from vacation because of the weather. Kutter expected between 75 and 100 students to register late.

In running up registration, Kutter said that everyone seemed to be happy with the new computer processing. He added that computer registration at SMC will be greatly expanded in the near future.
Robert Hale, head of the Voice Department at Westminster Choir College of Princeton, New Jersey, will present a sacred concert on Wednesday, Jan. 17, at 8 p.m. in the church at 8 p.m.

In addition to their individual performances in opera, oratorio, and recital, Hale and Wilder have appeared internationally with symphony orchestras and recital groups. Hale and Wilder have been the leaders in the development of American music in the United States. Their work has been recognized and awarded the highest honors in their respective fields.

Four SMC students recently spent a month in the office of Westminster Choir College, in Princeton, New Jersey. They were chosen as participants in the Westminster Choir College's Vocal Festival.

The festival, held from January 17 to February 4, provided students with the opportunity to work with some of the leading voices in the field of vocal music. The festival included master classes, workshops, and concerts, offering students a chance to gain valuable insights and experience in the art of singing.

Robert Hale and Dean Wilder will present a sacred concert Wednesday night.

Dear editor, students, faculty and administration,

Dear editor,

While welcoming the student senate's decision to restrict the term "bad attitude" from its regulations, I would like to reply that student senate's decision was taken at the behest of many other student groups. They believe that the term "bad attitude" is not acceptable because of the negative connotations that it may carry. The student senate's decision, however, is not final and the policy may be revised in the future.

Mark Nicholls

Dear editor,

There are many reasons to receive a "bad attitude" label at Southern Methodist University. We should give every student the benefit of the doubt until we have reasonable suspicion that they have diddled someone. The student senate can and should do this.

B.J.

STEVE GRIMESLY

"Mr. Jones, it's too good to see you. Please sit down and do your best.

"Yes sir.

"What have I to say, Mr. Jones, really won't take too long. You've been with the Company for quite some time, right Jones?"

"Twenty years, sir.

"You're a splendid, well-behaved, but, Mr. Jones, I've noticed an accumulation of demerits on your record. This has been read and written down by our chief examiner for suspension or expulsion."

"Oh?"

It has been the first case some of the executives of our firm have told me that you do not salute them in your locality. Secondly, the executive committee has sent you 16 notes, in the past twenty years, ordering you to return the company's allegiance song on your way to the school.

"If you can't say your way of thinking or give up a more important task, then help me you grow spiritually mentally, spiritually, physically, and socially.

That is your choice.

Secondly, you must be in the place of enforcing and acting up rules. That is when you should be in a position to be allowed to deal with faculty students with your spirit. For this reason you should consider the need to communicate with faculty. Is it or are you are the right attitude will take care of itself.

Sincerely,

G.W.

Eighty Days to Fitness Program

By Warren Red

"Around the World in 80 Days," the SMC Temple Society's Physical Fitness program, will be presented January 25 at the weekly Thursday Assembly. Open to all faculty and students, the lobby-jogging event will attempt to stimulate interest in personal fitness while contributing to the college goal of maintaining a healthy student body.

Talent show Tryouts begin

Beginning the first of this coming week, sign up sheets for the annual SA Talent Show will be available in the offices of Mr. Stearns, Mr. Schmitt, SA Programs Consultant, and Mr. Houston. Wednesday, January 15, any SA member can sign up for the try-out. Further details for the talent show will be mailed January 17 to all SA members. The talent show will receive $10.00 for entering the contest. The Grand prize will be $50, first prize $25.00, second prize $15, and third prize $10.

The exact time of the tryouts has not yet been determined, but will be scheduled on the try-out day. There will be two screening committees of judges, one for the try-out day, and one for the final competition. The committees will consist of the program committee, and a Faculty Approval Committee.

Any talent is invited to be welcomed in music, art, literature, or any combinations of the preceding.

SMC gets new minor

A new instructional department is being set up for inclusion in the bulletin for next year according to Charles Davis Librarian. The department of library Science will be offering a program in librarianship. The program is designed by Mr. Davis assisted by Mrs. Marion Lettman, associate librarian, and presently the instructor for the library science classes being taught are Mr. and Mrs. Lorraine Ganoe, periodicals librarian. This fall semester the new program was presented to the State of Tennessee, Department of Education, by the SMC education department.

On December 10, 1972, Mr. James Cartwright II, Coordinator of Student Library Services for the State of Tennessee, visited Mr. Sallie Jones, the instructor, and discussed the new program and what he would like to see accomplished in this area. Mr. Cartwright stated that he was very pleased with one of the facilities here at SMC and also states that the program would not be accepted by this state by the State Education Board. This means that a student completing the eleven hours of library courses would not be eligible for state certification as a school librarian, grade K-12. Another advantage would be that he states with state accreditation, SMC would also receive NCATE accreditation in this area.

SMC will be the only college offering this service to students and school librarians in Southeast Tennessee.

Senate opens SA election; Thatcher lobby open til 8:30

By Alane Wheeler

Student council elections were announced at the first S.A. Senate meeting of the semester Monday, January 14. The filing of prospective candidates and platforms for the elections will be from Monday, January 21, through Wednesday, January 23. Officers which will be up for election are social vice-president, social secretary, and three senate seats. George Dodson, social vice-president, and Pam Mander secretary from first semester will be running again. The three senate seats are: one for the Orlando campus; one for Pine Hall; and one for village students.

Voting will take place Thursday, February 1, from 12:45 p.m. until 5 p.m., and Friday, February 2, from 9:45 a.m. until 12 noon in Lynn Wood Hall. There will be a meeting in the Village Lobby of Thatcher and Thatcher from 7:30 p.m. through 9 p.m. Thursday.

The issue of second semester student elections will be voted on by the students at the policies committee Tuesday, January 15. The problem in the council continues to be S.A. wise their final exam provided they have an "A" or "B" grade in the course, was presented last semester.

In the press report, Lee Hov, S.A. senate president, stated that the lobby of Thatcher and Route an open until 8 p.m. for main exits. Collier has been dedicated by Mr. Spears, Dean of Students, as going in to call a get and then leaving, not visiting in the lobby.

The S.A. Senate has originally planned a lobby open until 10 p.m., however, since opening time was 6 p.m. is considered early by the senate.

The returning of the overhead road sign on Apison Pike is being directed a sign in which to add an additional sign about an industry to it.

The senate voted to have a "feel the ground" done on the Village Market, Campus Shop, Campus Kitchen, and all areas by the student services committee. The first report date will be February 15. The study of the campus will be postponed until it has minimal students in order to aid the student council.

Our other item brought up was the changing of the exam schedule for this semester and having no test earlier than 8 a.m. This would mean that the exams would end at 10 a.m.

Two disadvantages of this would be problems in work schedules, and having to wash on campus until 3:30 a.m. if a student plans to travel at night.
Ludington Wins

Darryl Ludington, senior communications major, recently won the Grand Award in INSIGHT's Narrative Contest. Darryl received his $500 prize check in the mail last week.

Ask Jones, INSIGHT editor, reported that there were over 750 contest entries in the true-life experiences contest, which has been advertised in the INSIGHT Magazine over the past few months. The first, second, and third, and fourth place winners were, incidentally, all professional writers. Respectively they are G. W. Target, Joan Marie Cook, Robert Nathan, and Mark Darryl's article, titled "The Judas Realization," is a symbol-student story of an experience he had as a student missionarv English Teacher in Haadys, Thailand last year. Editor Jones spoke of the story thus: "not only well written, but also a very positive statement as it points the reader to Jesus in a fresh and unusual manner." It has not yet been decided when the story will be printed, the story is a four-thousand word length.

Darryl wrote the story for the requirements of Article Writing, taught by Bill Garber. Garber and Darryl were both surprised by the story's success. Garber said, "I knew the story was good, but Wow! Grand Prize!" Darryl reported that he sent the story in just before the deadline, December 15, and hoped only that it would be accepted as a regular story, certainly not expecting Grand Prize.

Four days after the contest deadline, associate editor Chuck Scrogg, Pat Horning, and Editor Mike Jones, made a personal call to Darryl notifying him of his success, an early Christmas surprise!

Darryl, 23, from Glendale, CA is the son of Mrs. Louis and Aileen Ludington. He has attended SMC two and a half years. He also attended Loma Linda University and Newblood College. Darryl is presently a。k—reporter, photographer, and layout editor.

Cliburn to Visit SMC

By Randy Elkins

Van Cliburn, world famous pianist, will appear as concert on the campus of Southern Missionary College, Saturday night, February 3, at 8 p.m., in the physical education center. This program is presented under the auspices of SMC's Artist-Advisement Series.

This season, as with every season since the pianist's dramatic triumph at the First International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow, Van Cliburn is performing a full schedule of concerts throughout the United States, Canada, and Japan as well, before a total audience estimated at a quarter million people.

This will be Cliburn's first appearance on the SMC campus.

Tickets for the event are now on sale in the Campus Shop in College Hall. All seats will be reserved.

With more than twenty confirmations to his credit and appearances with every major orchestra in the United States, Cliburn's artistry and popularity continue to grow. RCA Records declared October, 1971, "Van Cliburn Month!" and celebrated with five new releases of his music.

Cliburn's last two concert seasons have been highlighted by his first visits to South America.

SMC Gets 5 New Teachers

Five new teachers have joined the faculty teaching staff of SMC for second semester, according to Academic Dean Dr. Cyril Ritcher.

They are as follows: Miss Debra Stone, Miss Beth Stepp, Mrs. Delores Mautz, Mrs. M. Scottan, and Dr. Clyde Bushnell.

Miss Stone, who graduated from SMC last semester, will be working full-time in the four-year nursing department as a lab instructor.

Mr. Stepp and Mrs. Mautz will also be working full-time as his instructors, but for the two-year nursing program. It will be their responsibility to take students to the various hospitals and orient them to the practices and procedures of nursing. They will also serve as supervisors.

Mrs. M. Scottan, although not totally new to the SMC teaching staff, is coming back to teach the Health and Life classes on a part-time basis. Dr. Clyde Bushnell also is returning again to teach Geography this semester.

There are presently 96 full-time and nine part-time teachers at SMC—ONE TEACHER TO EVERY THIRTY STUDENTS.

One week Fifteen

By Caesar D. Knittel

Wow, just finished my first week of school and sort of enjoyed it, might even become educated. The only problem I see is finding my classrooms so I can expose myself to the educational process. One other thing, I sure hope no one keeps a record of absences the first week of school. You have to know what I'm talking about.

I checked with Dr. Futcher and he told me that I definitely couldn't get PE credits for walking up and down the stairs and going to and from meals. He said he understood my suggestion though and would give it consideration. I took the elevator down.

Also talked to Dr. Dick, my advisor. He had nothing but en...

I like him, but the media communication isn't great. I figure I'd like to know the man better. I'm sure I'll tell you about him in due course. I wonder who the heck he is! If you have heard of him, please let me know.

SOUTHERN ARPTMT down; Lore to go! right be: the CK.

I felt very Western as I found Dr. Futcher to visit. Good food at reasonable prices. I had a small $1.88 snack, and it was quite good. My number was 22, but it was worth the wait to get my Lominio. Love those things.

If you want to see well-known personalities and famous, nay, legendary campus people, by all means it might take all your manners, too! Go eat at the incredible Campus Kitchen. On a good night you might see Bob, Ted, Carol, Alice, Dianne, Bill, Doug, Janet, Ann, Floyd, Chet, hundreds of Lomians, a few faculty members, and maybe one or two locals.

When I was there Monday, I was right behind Dr. Futcher in line and behind me was some gal from Jones Hall who ordered two trays of food, all for herself. She said she hadn't eaten since dinner. I said "Obviously." I counted the steps today, and from the flag pole in front of Wright Hall, it is exactly thirty steps further to the CK than to the Tabeteria. But either way you work up an appetite. That is the way it is. Love it or leave it.

Before I close this pitiful column, I'd like to tell you about a new feature in my column, (maybe) I am going to have a progress report on things that are progressing in an outstanding manner here on campus. You know, things like the new Student Center, the porch lights on the Library, the program in the signout procedures for girls, and things like that. You can send me a note in care of the Accent and tell me what you feel is really progressing in an outstanding way. If you catch my drift.

One more thing. "Don't look back; something might be gaining on you..."

Judy says I'm good at putting out the news on this campus. (Photo by Tim)

Hixson Outreach plans
Result in new SDA's; More helpers needed

By Ken Wilson

HISTORY
In the past few years, the need for an evangelistic thrust in the city of Hixson, Tenn., has been felt by the large number of SDA families living in that area of Hamilton County who have in recent years been attending church each Sabbath.

For the last three years Col. Hedley Chamberlain has been visiting the churches of the area. The result of meeting each Sabbath is a rental building for Sabbath School and church services, in which the people can attend the church each Sabbath.

For lack of better facilities, the group soon stopped meeting and those attending chose to attend an SDA church in this geographic area.

Elder Des Cummings, College Chaplain, had this in mind when he met with Elder Walter Watford, Presiding Secretary of the Southeastern Union Conference, and asked if he could have a week in September of this school year for a training program in New Testament Witnessing. This program will be held in the area.

Each night for a week about 450-500 students and faculty attended these meetings on how to tell your story of cooperation of the gospel of Jesus Christ and a short personal testimony of Christianity. At the end of this presentation, an opportunity is afforded the listener to accept Christ as his personal Savior from sin, and he is then invited to attend church.

This program has been repeated for the Hixson area, and has had good success there. But a problem arose: there wasn't a church of our faith in the area, but the prayers of those involved in this Outreach have been answered, for recently student Dave Merling, one of the Hixson Regional Directors, arranged for the rental of the Ashland Terrace Christian Church for SDA services there each Sabbath. Sabbath School Services begin at 9:30 a.m. and an organizational meeting will be held at the church, with the local people present. This Sabbath School has a SDA Treasurer, a SDA Secretary, a SDA Superintendent, a SDA Pastor and SDA Secretary, and a SDA Treasurer.

HISTORY
In the past few years, the need for an evangelistic thrust in the city of Hixson, Tenn., has been felt by the large number of SDA families living in that area of Hamilton County who have in recent years been attending church each Sabbath.

For the last three years Col. Hedley Chamberlain has been visiting the churches of the area. The result of meeting each Sabbath is a rental building for Sabbath School and church services, in which the people can attend the church each Sabbath.

For lack of better facilities, the group soon stopped meeting and those attending chose to attend an SDA church in this geographic area.

Elder Des Cummings, College Chaplain, had this in mind when he met with Elder Walter Watford, Presiding Secretary of the Southeastern Union Conference, and asked if he could have a week in September of this school year for a training program in New Testament Witnessing. This program will be held in the area.

Each night for a week about 450-500 students and faculty attended these meetings on how to tell your story of cooperation of the gospel of Jesus Christ and a short personal testimony of Christianity. At the end of this presentation, an opportunity is afforded the listener to accept Christ as his personal Savior from sin, and he is then invited to attend church.

This program has been repeated for the Hixson area, and has had good success there. But a problem arose: there wasn't a church of our faith in the area, but the prayers of those involved in this Outreach have been answered, for recently student Dave Merling, one of the Hixson Regional Directors, arranged for the rental of the Ashland Terrace Christian Church for SDA services there each Sabbath. Sabbath School Services begin at 9:30 a.m. and an organizational meeting will be held at the church, with the local people present. This Sabbath School has a SDA Treasurer, a SDA Secretary, a SDA Superintendent, a SDA Pastor and SDA Secretary, and a SDA Treasurer.

Women's Lib (1 more time)

I am a male, and certainly not the ideal person to write on a subject that few of us understand anyway, or try to understand. But like the built-in-China-shop, I am going to stumble through your fragile collection of well-covered beliefs with my meager supply of reasons, explanations, and perhaps prejudices.

First, I want to state that the women's liberation movement is a movement that is not primarily aimed at women. It is a movement that is being advocated by enlightened people who call it "fair." And this has been the case for a long time. It has only been recently that women have been able to improve their male-ordained role. I would imagine that history is now being made by a few brave contemporary women who refuse to accept that role that has been fostered on them.

A friend of mine told me recently that women "rebellious" against men was a sign of the last days. Well, I don't know about that. We gain more knowledge all the time and perhaps the awareness of women being

The Man That Ate Granola

Mark Nicholson

There is nothing wrong with being fat. I want you to understand that. This story is about the man who ate granola and I don't want you to think that I'm anti-granola or anything like that. I admire anyone who can eat granola steadily and not gain weight. After all, it is so simple. All we have to do is develop a taste for it. But, back to the man who ate granola.

The man who ate granola was an average sort of person. He was probably quite a bit like you and me. He had a family, a car, two jobs, and a few friends. And he had a great belief in the merits of granola eating. Not that he was a wild-eyed fanatic. He wasn't. He just had a strong belief in the future goodness of granola eating.

And he was certain that his body was the best of all possible bodies. He felt that it was the most compatible to his taste. Like I said, granola is something you have to develop a taste for.

Now it just happened that all his friends were granola eaters also, and they would gather together once a week in their big spacious granola house and have a big meal of granola. They were happy that they had a place of their own for granola eating. It was handy for their apartments. And because they all ate granola, no one had to explain why granola was the best food. They had great pride of mind.

It was a close-knit group, for after all, there were never more than a few grams in their store. At least not that you could see them hand out granola. So, the group had to stick together to stretch. For that reason they would gather and eat granola. What a wonderful meal! All they could eat for a small donation. They would talk about the state of their granola and compare outfits.

Although they had one rebuttal, each person had his own way of eating granola: one fellow would eat it dry so much that you couldn't tell it was granola; another would pour sugar on it; another had hot granola in a strainer so no one could stand to be around when he ate it. He didn't have many converts in his way. Each person

JCS-all 'rp round Failure

A Critical Review

By "2"

Jesus Christ Superstar made its triumphant entrance and exit to Chattanooga (this past Tuesday day, filling Memorial Auditorium for near-capacity.

The audience reaction was warmed with a deep enthusiasm, and who wouldn't be after spending $5 to fit for royal seats.

The "Congregation" would have been better off financially and spiritually if they had stayed home.

There were only a few instances where the words or music differed from the original sound track, which is understandable since the "Opera" grew out of the record.

Where the whole thing went astray, besides Biblically, was in the staging, acting, and choreography: all of which doesn't have much that the reviewer could speak positively about. The orchestraing was the only thing that was good and it wasn't by much. Staging was nil, the only thing on stage that would have been great was what was going on was the white robe of "Jesus." And this was an improvement ever.

Jesus Christ Superstar could be a moving and impressive production with the proper design. But with dimples running the show as it was run Tuesday night, I don't see much hope for it.

Lit recruits to Meet next week

Over $324,000 worth of literature was sold by 164 SMC Student Literature Evangelists during the past five summers, according to the student finance office.

The recruitment program for next summer and Literature Evangelists' Emphasis Weekend begin with vespers Friday, January 26, at 3 p.m. and continues through the day and on to Wednesday, January 31, at 6 p.m.

Currently, 160 students are interested in literature evangelism. Secretary has attended club meetings, and ninety more have indicated their interest.

For the first time a Christian Scholarship class is being offered this semester. Twenty-one registered, and three more enrolled to audit the class, including one faculty member. The instructor is Henry Fish, a graduate of SMC and now Southern Union Home Health Education Service Representative. During the semester, personal from SMC, the business

B bindery closes

As of the end of this month, the College's bindery will be officially closed, making one less place of employment for SMC students. The bindery has been in operation for 11 years.

The bindery has been in operation for 11 years, during which time it has provided jobs for students who were interested in the field of printing. The bindery has been a valuable resource for the college, providing employment for students and contributing to the overall operation of the college.

Completion of new cafeteria is in sight

By Dorril Lapidgson

Prices will remain the same, but following spring vacation, students won't have to walk quite so far to receive food for their taste.

According to R.C. Mills, assistant general manager, the new cafeteria should be open for use before the students return from spring vacation in March. The new cafeteria is in a new student center, however, and has no simple design; rather, it is "designed to be a little bit longer than the usual cafeteria."

Construction on the student center complex began in the winter of 1971 on the site directly across from the current cafeteria building. The complex will be the first to be completed, followed by the new student center. The new student center will be located on the second floor of the student center complex and will include all of the present student center area.

Mr. Mills commented that although a scrabbled system of food service will be used, it is not expected that students will get their food any faster than before. The advantage of the system is expected to be realized with a "fair rate of payment."

Church services in Hixson begin

God's Low Song, as they appeared last Sabbath for the church service in Hixson. (Photo by Mark Nicholson)

Lad Sabbath, January 20, church services were held for the first time in Hixson, Tenn. At 9:30 a.m., the Ashland Terrace Christian Church was filled with a crowd of over 150 people. Not only 100 worshippers were there, but at least 4 adults of other faiths were present also.

The Cedric Roll department was the largest children's department, with over a dozen children. Next in size were the Kindergartens, with 7 children, and the Primary Junior division with 5 children.

In the adult division, it was expected that such a large crowd would be present. Dr. S. W. Hawkins, SMC President, was the Adult SS Superintendent. There were 5 adult SS classes including a pastor's Bible class. They were taught by Elder Dave Cushman, Willis Cummins, and others.

Staff services on the platform for church service were Elders Glanton and Cummings, associate pastors Ken Wilson and Milford Martin, and community leaders Jim Davis and John Odom. The choral responses and special music were provided by the church's well-organized music department.

Church services will be held at the church each Sunday at 11:15 a.m. and 6:30 p.m., and at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesdays.

Officers for the various functions of the church are being chosen from the newly formed congregation by the church executive committee, of which Hixson Pastor Jerry Glanton is the chairman.

A church newsletter will be published next week and will be included in the next issue of the Southern Accent.

A news article about church outreach was published in the Sunday Chattanooga Times.

By Steve Gonomy - A milestone of progress has been achieved in the installation of telephones in Ashland. The engineering department last week completed their job of installing the conduit to the building and the telephone company has completed their part of the job. The new telephones were estimated to be the center of SMC activity, and Mr. Mills said, providing a common link to most college activity.
Running the world

Dear 10-Day Runner,

We have been extremely gratified with the responses we have received in our "Around the World in 30 Days" program. However, you have all been up to your usual high standards, and we are very pleased with the feedback we have received.

We hope you are enjoying your travels and finding the information and tips on running around the world. Please let us know if you have any questions or feedback.

Love is everywhere (Look around)

By Casor

This last week your faithful and sometimes fearless reporter (that's me) set out to areas of interest around this fair and partly crowded campus. Really rubbered shoulders with some of the famous of SIC.

On place I checked on was Thatcher Hall. Too much. All those noisy young people really bugged me.

Unfortunately, the time I chose to visit was 6:45 p.m., a time filled with tender nighttime. I passed a couple on the sidewalk who had been saying goodnight for forty minutes at Tremendous endurance.

I felt horribly out of place as I threaded my weary (ward?) way between, excuse me, around the various young people. Truly dreary.

The actual parties were the most tender. There was one couple (she is from Florida) and I could easily tell they were in love. She really loved him, I could tell by the fact that she had to pinch him on the arm and me in the face. A real knockout.

Overall, I didn't love in his eyes. Hesquinted her delicate hand to demonstrate his affection. There was a rude crunch and a single lady-like snap as her hand broke. They looked deep into each other's eyes. No man is an island...

I don't know what to do about all that evidence of love that I still don't. Guess I would declare it a natural goody and sell tickets or turn it into a show as last resort for students.

General Psych, (this all this somehow) is almost more than I can bear. The kind Dr. told us, "If I have to memorize your name, my dear, do you have to memorize my book...?"

So, I did one slightly opened book to the growing list of best-sellers the Campus Shop falls off on unsuspecting innocents. My dreams are filled with Siggy Sprig and his galloping Liddle.

In further wanderings, I noticed a bizarre phenomenon in the Business department they have electric pencil sharpeners. So far they don't have any electric pencils however. Also there are no clocks in there. Said they didn't have time. I agreed. I will continue investigating in my usual dogged manner. Are you with me?

Now for the odds and ends department. No. 1: The Student Senate, in it's just get together, stayed awake the entire session. That was one and one-half hours. Something of a record. Senator Tabwell however did the sleep scene. Credit goes to Les Hess and his sleepy holler.

No. 2: Elder Camnanger has lost his eyepen (count 'em yourself, folks...) as a result of running around the gynanum. This certainly beats my exercise plan. I just ran around.

No. 3: Mr. Pricing figures that phones will be operating in Talpe Hall sometime within the next three years. Hold on ladies, you'll be able to ask that dummy out yet.

No. 4: If you look in the areas above from the top on the right side of Dr. Knol's desk, you'll find September's copy of "Rolling Stone". Check out his collection of Cat Stevens records.

No. 5: Strolled through the Student Park last Sabbath. Never did find that Student Association shelter though. I did find the ACCENT editor out there. She was writing letters.

No. 6: You'll be surprised to know who they're thinking of naming the new student center after.

No. 7: Have you noticed that Dr. Clark is happy these days?

No. 8: Aren't you glad the Campus Shop doesn't have a selection for little green details? That computer puts under my skin whenever I see it. Like when I have to order a Encyclopedia headlined and can't charge the milk to my statement ever again.

No. 9: They've added a couple of new bricks to the new student center since my last writing.

No. 10: Told the editor about all the coverage I got last week. He embarrassed me, turned gray from tip to toe. He said that the ACCENT cover picture wasn't really a part of my regular story on the inside but a slight editorial comment on certain registration procedures.

According to Nip, my face said a thousand words.

No. 11: There are six guys taking foods preparations class. Bake out, brothers, bake off.

One last thing, a close friend mentioned that if you look closely at the peak of the front porch on Thatcher Hall, you'll find a well-preserved wavy nest. Think of the implications.

Most close. Will study general psych and IF I don't, I'll end up in the doghouse.

The fiscal problem of the republic is how long can we finance the world without going broke?

Basketball underneath Halverson leading

By John McCrack

Basketball season has gotten underway and Halverson has jumped into the lead with a 2-0 record. Holding a slim 6 game lead over Jackson, Halverson defeated Jackson by a 10-point margin in their first meeting. In the billing of the week, Reader smashed Schleier, 110-60.

To this writer, Jackson looks like the team to beat if they can put it all together. They've got a lot of height, a solid defense and a balanced attack. Their only real problem may be their lack of depth.

Hanging close to their heels should be Halverson and Reading. Halverson's team is capable in all categories. However, their lack of depth may turn out to trouble them before the season is over.

Reading, on the other hand, has a scrappy little team with plenty of hustle and a solid bench. With luck, they could go all the way.

Holiland and Schleier have the task to beat if they can. Both teams rely too much on just one or two men. Schleier's overall lack of height is going to hinder them all year long.

In "B" league, Anderson and Westley look like the teams to beat. Both have height and an aggressive defense. Either team could easily slip away all the way.

Close behind should be Hoover and Davis. Both have good potential, but just need a little more team play. Green should be the spoiler.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company Of New York
Dear Editor,

I don't know what the recent statements of the SMC students in classes, on halls, in our home, on campus or off campus means, but I don't want to be put in a position of explaining the implications of any of them.

I'm sure this is the position of many of you, and I expect this to continue with no further explanation.

EDITORIAL NOTE: The "bad attitude" column is a regular feature of our underground paper circulated about a month ago by "community leaders" who charge that there is a mix-up in philosophy. In response to this, we wish to state that the students who wrote it are from the same group as the previous ones who wrote to us, and that we cannot accept their argument.

The real problem was not with this much of these attitudes, but with the attitude of the students themselves. All of them, however, are not interested in the "bad attitudes" column.

The SOUTHERN ACCENT column is the only column in which the attitudes of the people who write it are not taken into consideration. We have no knowledge of the people who write it or their interests, and we have no knowledge of their mental health.

We have received feedback, verbally as well as written, that it was not written last week, so we assume that this is indeed a problem real problem.

We have received feedback from the students of this issue.

Appalling Review

To Whom It May Concern:

First, let me comment on the management of the newspaper. In general, I could not find fault with the newspaper, but the attitude of the writers was questionable.

However, in the January 19, 1973 edition, there was an article that I found offensive. The article, titled "A Better Tomorrow," was written by a student who had a right to know who is writing what.

But the "unreasonable" part of this is that we were not able to speak directly with the writer, or to be informed of the reasons for this article.

Sincerely,

George B. Ramey

Urban Development

Looking At The Title

In America, to be a part of our society, you must find the answers to some of our most pressing problems. These problems range from urban development to rural development, and they affect everyone in our society.

We need to find solutions to these problems, and we need to do so in a way that is both effective and efficient. This means that we need to be able to communicate our ideas and solutions to others, and that we need to be able to do so in a way that is clear and concise.

The SOUTHERN ACCENT column is one way that we can do this. It allows us to share our ideas and solutions with others, and it allows us to get feedback on those ideas and solutions.

Feedback

When I first started writing for the SOUTHERN ACCENT, I was a bit nervous. I didn't know what to expect, and I didn't know if anyone would read what I had to say.

But after a few months, I started to see some results. People were starting to respond to what I was saying, and they were starting to ask questions about the issues I was writing about.

This was a good feeling, and it made me want to keep writing. I knew that if I could continue to get feedback like this, I could continue to improve my writing and my ability to communicate my ideas.

So I'm still writing, and I'm still learning. But I'm enjoying it, and I hope that you will enjoy reading what I have to say.

Sincerely,

Warren Kase

This is the latest in a series of articles about making a difference. In this installment, I will be discussing the process of making a difference.

The key to making a difference is to identify a problem and then to think of a solution. Once you have a solution, you can then work to implement it.

In this article, I will be discussing the process of making a difference in a broader sense. I will be discussing the process of making a difference in a community, a society, or the world.

One of the most important aspects of making a difference is to be able to communicate your ideas to others. This is where the SOUTHERN ACCENT column comes in.

Platforms, exams, typewriters
Receive senate scrutiny

By Alane Wheeler
The days for filing platforms for the office of Student Association president and vice-president were Tuesday and Wednesday, January 30 and 31. The balloting will take place Thursday and Friday, February 8 and 9. The senators voted to accept the changes of the constitutional amendments and the working policies in the Senate meeting Monday night.

The possibility of winning an attorney was brought before the Academic Policies Committee at their meeting January 18. It was discussed for an hour and a half, however, no decision was reached. The subject will be discussed again in the near future.

Senator Abby Vence brought up the proposal of a typing room for the students. He discussed the idea with Mr. Charles E. Librarian, Mr. David Suggett feels that possibly some typewriters could be placed in the study booths on the south side of the second floor and in the periodical room. The main obstacle is obtaining typewriters; the president looked into by Senator Vence.

Three other ideas that were mentioned are: 1) The proposal of having two worship in the evening for the young women will be brought before the dorm council at its next meeting. 2) It was suggested by Senator Rick Carey that the final exam schedule be changed so that no test begins earlier than 8:00 a.m. This would mean that the last exam would end at 5:45 p.m. as opposed to 4:45 p.m. 3) Lee Hess, senate president, has suggested for the SA Campus Day, April 22, 1973, an intercollegiate art and craft show. It would include the surrounding colleges and universities with SMC as the host.

The decision is not final as to the Campus Day. If anyone has other ideas, they are asked to give them to him. Also, they can present to him any ideas for an SA project.

New 2-year major
Soon to be reality

The home economics department announced the introduction of a two-year program here last Friday. The program, under the direction of Mr. Kenneth Davis, assistant professor of home economics, will be scheduled to begin next fall.

The official title for the new program has, as yet, been undecided, but the course outlines are already taking shape. This two-year nutritional program, culminating in an A.A. degree, is open to both men and women.

Details for the studies are yet to be decided, but the requirements will include management, mass foods production, table service, and other courses to be added as they are decided upon. General requirements in each of these fields of study, in microbiology will be included to give background into the home economics department.

The new program promises to be appealing to those students who are interested in the nutrition major that fear low requirements in the chemistry field. Chemistry will be stressed only lightly under this program which is designed to produce efficient food service personnel in a much shorter amount of time.

Housing cost criticized

By Kathy Cowie
There is a increasing criticism recently of the housing shortage of Jones Hall compared to that of Thacher. It is true that the students have been appealing for lower rent on grounds of inferior facilities. Jones, which houses 71 girls, costs $364.00 a year while Thacher, housing 479 girls, costs only $34.00 a year. Dr. Frank Knittel, president, said that the upkeep in Jones is "astonishing." As an example he mentioned that in order to heat one room the entire building must be heated. Dr. Knittel then said the cost must remain the same in order to operate the building.

Speaking on behalf of Jones Hall, Mrs. Hazel Henderson, resident hall mother, said what they pay for. Even though Dean Henderson feels that Jones has a more home-like atmosphere than Thacher he said that the better food that gets served up should be reflected in lower rent.

Built in 1917, Jones Hall, has been in its lifetime as both a men's and women's dormitory and now also contains the art and english departments. At one time the attic was in the basement. The age of the building makes it the most serious fire hazard on campus according to the fire department.

Jones has one large shower room which is designed in a circular fashion. Thacher Hall contains a bath between each two student rooms. Jones also has a very small lobby while Thacher's lobby provides plenty of room for the girls guests. There are two pay phones in all of Jones while Thacher is not as equipped with as many pay phones for every floor. Thacher has a kitchen and extra bath while Jones has one kitchen for the entire dorm. Thacher has a recreation room downstairs and a large trunk storage area. Jones Hall is without an air conditioning but the windows can be opened for fresh air.

Two students who recently moved from Jones to Thacher were overjoyed at the facilities offered in the newer dorm. Janet Norman, freshman, and Bethia Pfister, sophomore, said that Thacher was quitter and easier to study in than the J.H. R.C. Mills manager, said that he is recommending to the Board of Trustees in next meeting that rates be reduced for Jones Hall next semester.

Voting Feb. 8:9 Platforms take shape

By Randy Ehrle
The vacancy caused by the resignation of SA President Reggie Tryon will be filled in a special election next Thursday, February 8. The process for qualifications of candidates will be the same as in the normal election.

Prospective candidates must fill a petition with the SA Vice President Lee Hess. Grade-point average and attendance are the major criteria a candidate must meet to qualify. Certain continuous residence at the school is also required.

Tryon stated grades in the reason for his stepping down and handing the office to someone who would have more time to execute the duties of the SA President. Tryon is the first SMC student to hold the position in six years to relinquish his office in the middle of the year.

Rumors spread that the candidates to succeed Tryon are Traci Trumble, Gary Tidwell and Bob Houchess. Tidwell, Trumble, and Houchess are currently members of the student senate. As of this writing only Tidwell and Tryon held the platform positions. They have promised to place their names in the list on February 8 and 9 ballots. Houchess, it is expected to place his name in the hat before the deadline.

Cliburn performs tomorrow

Van Cliburn, who in 1958 delighted the world with his stunning performance at the International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow, will present a piano concert at the physical education center tomorrow night, February 3, at 8 p.m.

Cliburn's dramatic invasion of Moscow was largely responsible for his worldwide popularity. Tickets to Cliburn auditions were in such demand that people had to wait for three or four days in advance to buy them.

The student music from the age of three years, fast from his mother then at Juilliard Music Conservatory, did not graduate with highest honors.
Nicaraguan mission started
By SMC students of 1970-71

by Lynda Henderson

Would it be possible for College students to build a mission station? That was the question in the mind of John Kor, 1970-71 SA President and Ben Chamberlain of the SMC faculty. They wrote to Lester Phillips, a graduate of SMCS, who was working in Costa Rica. The idea was discussed in the student senate and later was presented as a project before the whole student body. The general assembly voted to support a mission station.

The summer of 1971 seven students and two faculty left SMC in a truck full of supplies. The group, tagged as the Nicaraguan Nite, knew that they were to work with the Miskito Indians but the location of the Mission Station couldn't be decided until they arrived in Puerto Cabezas. For, as the students came to the town, was when they made their temporary headquarters.

The local priest, Peter Wind, helped the group get in touch with the forestry department. A man named Tony agreed to help the group find some land. Then an Adventist man came from Cephal and asked the group to come up north near 70 miles and look at a place to build. The group drove the truck to Francis Sirpi and was met, twenty-four hours later, for two-and-half hours on a jungle trail to Cephal.

The myth of mission glamour faded as the group traded back into the muddy jungle track, flies buzzing around their sweating bodies. No, Cephal was not the place to build. Just as the group was about to leave Francis Sirpi someone suggested that they go about 40 miles in another direction to talk with the regional director of JAN (National Union of Agriculture Nicaragua). But the group decided that they had been far enough that day and returned to Puerto Cabezas.

About a week later, Carl Harley, the Director of JAN, came to Puerto Cabezas. He brought with him maps and assured the group that they could obtain land just outside Francis Sirpi. The group decided that Francis Sirpi was the place to start the mission station.

On July 26, 1971 the Nicaraguan Nite arrived in Francis Sirpi. The first thing they did was build a house. This was a big job in itself because supplies were hard to get and transportation undependable. While the group was building their own house, the SMC gave them their office headquarters in Francis Sirpi a bunch of these. SMC students of 1970-71

Positive way course Grows in popularity

Seven years ago at La Sierra, a program was started and it was called "The Positive Way." Its purpose was to introduce the Holy Spirit through the experiment. The program has now been introduced on the SMC campus by Edwin Johnson, assistant professor of religion, and is being taught by college students and faculty who have had the complete course.

Elmer Zacharias believes there are three significant aspects about the "Positive Way." 1) It is an answer to satisfaction. 2) It is a chapter's program in which the lesson plan can change. 3) It takes away the fear of witnessing.

Elmer Zacharias had this program on this campus with 14 students during the lessons. After the course, over half of these students became Christians.

"Positive Way" is a seven-week program in which students learn to apply God's promises to everyday problems in life. The class meets Monday, 217 and 218 in Lynnwood Hall on Thursday and Friday evenings. There are now 40 students in the program and one teacher for every two to three students.

The population of the class increases each time the class is offered. Elmer Zacharias states that there would be approximately 80 people in the class at this time if it had been offered if there had been another 50 teachers. There is a waiting list of people wanting to take the class.

Film/sound awarded Gold chalad at banquet

Film/Sound Productions was recognized as the winner of the "Best of Gold" and a gold and two gold ribbon award. "Chalad" was the annual Chalado Advertising Federation's awards banquet at the Red House Friday night.

Film/Sound made two entries and came away with three of the top awards. "We were, of course, unable to attend the banquet Friday night," said Curt Carlson, director of Film/ Sound, "so we will pick up the awards at the first of the week." The entry which won both the Best of Show award and one of the gold "Chalad" (Chilla gos Advertising Awards) was the series of three television commercials produced for the Village Market.

The third was a 60-second commercial producing a general tour of the ultramodern shopping facilities. The other two were commercials. Rock of the baking and the natural food departments of the store.

Sales increased 25% as a result of the commercials. According to Bill Burkett, manager of the Village Market, "The commercials will be re-ran in late April or early May," said Burkett.

Two commercials, by Williams, Rypal and McCready, also received recognition. For the pair played in helping to write one of the commercials. The second entry, also a gold chalad, was the six "Horizon" spots produced for the General Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists. The spots were sent to all the radio stations in the United States and Canada and all the stations in the SDA district fields.

John Robinson, associate director of Film/ Sound, pointed out the film entered the TV campaign and Radio Public Service categories, and all award winners must present on to regional competition, where the regional contest will take place in New Orleans in February according to officials of the Chalado Advertising Federation.

World runners rip

First major step in the "Around the World in 80 Days" is Cocoa Bay in northern Labrador, said Sid Nixon, director of the program. And much more will come. Already, five runners have finished to enter the ranks of the Elite club last weekend.

For example, Art Garrison, a sophomore religion major, decided to run across the black. He started out down college drive, and upon reaching four corners he noticed that it was beginning to darken. So he ran a little faster to cover the four miles back to school.

The instruction was to not be out- done, came back with the record. The record is not like," said John O'Brien, associate professor of English in modern languages, ran his nine miles in 10 days.

An estimated 300 runners have already signed up for the program, but much room is left for any of those who still wish to participate. The sign-up sheets can be found in any of the dormitories, the library, or Black Hall建成后，它将吸引人到附近图书馆。The second entry, also a gold chalad, was the six "Horizon" spots produced for the General Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists. The spots were sent to all the radio stations in the United States and Canada and all the stations in the SDA district fields. They were presented to the regional contest, where the regional contest will take place in New Orleans in February according to officials of the Chalado Advertising Federation.

Piza, pizza, ice for young, hot dogs, hamburgers, hamburgers, Italian fried rice, ... In fact, just about every type of food to be featured at the International Food Fair, Sunday, February 11, at the P.E. Center from 5 to 8 p.m.

The Food Fair, sponsored by the Home and School Association of Spalding Elementary School, will be conducted by the families and students of Spalding, said Mrs. Ruth Batts, leader of the Home and School Association. "We want to get the Primor to involved," she said.

Booths from different countries will be set up throughout the gymnasium for you to sample and enjoy the food, drink, entertainment and company.

Food Fair fling

The college students will be able to use their Campus Kitchen books. Proceeds from the fair will go toward the pub- lic use of the campus equipment." Mrs. Batts said. She re- ports that the fair was such a success last year there was a shortage of food but plans have been made to alleviate this occa- sion of this situation and there will be plenty of food for every- one.

The association made a trip to 750-8500 $500 to the fair. This money was used to buy some lab equipment for the science department of the ele- mentary school.

Howard Kennedy, principal of the school, said that the entire student body will take part in the fair. The fair will be held on the second floor of the school.

Basketball going strong

By John Marekich
Halverson has now gone unbeaten in his last five games and is beginning to increase his lead in the "A" League basketball race.

Except for his opening victory, each successive win has been impressive and has left little doubt in anyone's mind that Halverson's is the team to beat. They run just as hard, and seem just as fresh in the fourth quarter as they are in the first quarter.

The "B" League race is tighter, as both Carman and Wesley are fighting for the lead. Carman led the team to victory last week with an 8-point scoring performance. Fighting for second place are Davis and Anderson.

Rusnak has jumped ahead to an early lead in the "C" League followed closely by Christiansen and Lindens.

Gals' basketball has been organized, and the first games were played earlier this week. Three teams have been formed, with the possibility of a fourth team.

Any interested faculty should contact Mimi Cassubber.

A schedule of six or seven games is being planned. In games earlier this week, Straughan defeated eatman and Keegan beat Fender.

The 3rd annual Rees Series is fast approaching and the Talge Hall team is practicing long and hard each night under the direction of Dean Botimer.

The hour-and-a-half practice sessions begin at 10:30 p.m. include scrimmaging, drills, and lots of running.

Last year's series was won by Talge, as the series went the full three games.

Many are speculating over the possibility of Coach Thomas returning to assist the village team in the Series. Reliable sources have disclosed that he will be here for the weekend and eager to play.

With the start of "Around the World in 80 Days," it might be interesting to see how he will handle the series, and/or precautions.

This week's schedule: Saturday, February 15, at 8 p.m. The second game will be played Saturday evening at the same time. If needed, a third game will be played at 8 p.m. Sunday evening.

This year's guest speaker is to be Elder Ed Webb, who is Secretary for the Lake Union Conference and moderator for the Andrews Gymnics. Elder Webb will be assisting at the Friday evening worship service and will also give the sermon the next morning.

Also, Mr. Don Taylor, former assistant dean of men and member of the Talge team in the first two Rees Series events, has been invited along with his family as guests of their home for the weekend. Talge states.

The Rees basketball series was initiated two years ago by the Men's Club organization and was named after Dr. C. N. Rees, former president of SMC. Dr. Rees, who served as president of the college from 1925-1928, was always a strong supporter of the series.

The two competing teams are comprised of the best players of the village against the best players of Talge Hall.

The series is presently split, 1-1-1, and the Village is leading 1-0-1. Last year, Talge took it, winning in the third game by one point.

The sponsorship of both teams has been excellent in the past, said Liljeros. He added:

"I personally feel that the Rees Series has helped to add to the overall Christian sportsmanship on the campus of SMC as well as make a bigger distinction between the goals of the earthly game that some of us participate in and the games that we are all involved in—the games of eternal life."

Remember—Rome wasn't built in a day.

Get a friend, roommate, R.A., or dean to go running with you. Running alone gets very depressing. Above all, don't go running alone in the evening.

Something must be done, Or, safety in numbers

Recently our campus has had a few cases of girls being molested with little sexual intent. Four incidents of a similar nature have occurred, and we know that there are many more who are going to have similar cases on our campus with greater security.

Sure we have examples "copal" boys are always flying some threads over town, (although this behavior is being frowned upon), sitting in Whiting Hall, and looking for couples in darkened places, and sometimes they are needed.

I admit it is quite difficult to plan an event which will happen before there is time, on the other hand, I am sure who will need and who would be there to help. Some sort of GTO be done.

In what one does to relieve this problem has come up. And they were unable to enough to have murder on top of murder at the same time around here and what is involved in this. Now light be shown.

We have noticed lights being erected in the girl's parking lot. Now, it is too much to ask that we have some person connected with security to patrols that area. We think back to last year when a girl was abducted between the parking lot and the girl's dorm.

This is a very serious matter and the only thing I am making fun of the security on this campus. I just feel that we need more.

How many men we need for security, and where they are going to sit and set up to go, but I am looking that this is an issue, or should be that I can say with some confidence.

Girls, you can help out your group of classes at night with a group of places. I am not limiting your "friends" in numbers in the office of President or in the public eye. When the general interest and Adams created the presidency the was an experiment. It was the first paper in the world to carry one of these stars and guts and, possibly if you are in a situation in the administration will not consider that you are providing a little more security, then we went from a common bond of friendship, and protect each other in any way we can. Honoroble-peace-Aveterners view

by John Smith

President Nixon has groveled on "Honorable Peace" to America for the past several years. January 27, its honorable peace became official.

Someday, I think that honor of a matter of human life, not the amount of 39,500 dead and missing Americans, but as a whole, I have heard, and when I heard it, I shouted. Trying it was best not to be melancholy, I wanted to be happy.

Larry Mackey was from home, calling, "Hello, is that he? A brave, red-haired fellow from Oregon, safe and snugly steady and lights and lights, Larry Favorite has a home for good friends."

In May of 1970 he became a father for the second time. In April of 1970, he was killed during a rocket attack on the New China. Larry's honorable peace is a symbol of our friendship.

Richard Nixon was a small, 22-year-old college student from somewhere in Wisconsin, but a special man, the most energetic people I have ever known.

Steve and I had joined the Army for excitement. We got into and Steve's handsome peace was a Congressional Medal of Honor, and a cold, lonely grave.

William McKinley Jones has black, and hailed from Tarboro, N.C. "Boil" trained in center home and played football for North Carolina A and T College. He also wanted to be a lawyer, and he was.

In 1970, he was killed during a rocket attack. The New China. Larry's honorable peace is a symbol of our friendship.

We are still friends, but a little more distant. Larry's honorable peace is a symbol of our friendship.

In 1970, he was killed during a rocket attack. The New China. Larry's honorable peace is a symbol of our friendship.

Runners hit Labrador, Press on to Paris

By Bruce Closter
This is your on-the-spot report from Goosebay, Labrador, Canada where quite a few runners wearing SMC track suits just passed through during the night.

The total for the program has reached 3413.19 miles. Several runners have failed to report their mileage which will undoubtedly raise the total some more.

This reporter talked to several of the runners early last night. While a few were skeptical of some feet, most of the runners are optimistic about the program. The only other major obstacle cited by the runners was the disadvantage of nighttime running. Most of the runners failed to use the ice and the polar bears in the darkness.

Otherwise, things seem to be running right along. The next stop will be Paris, France, where this reporter hopes to catch an interview with the top runners who are expected to arrive within two or three days.

The shoes fitting right, along with a short rest in Paris. Oh, yes, don't forget the cameras and the water bottles.

New SM’s to be sent

Mission Enthusiast Weekend occurs at SMC this weekend with guest speaker, Pastor A. E. Gibb, associate secretary of the SDA General Conference, hosted throughout the weekend.

Mission Enthusiast Weekend is basically a time for recruiting students to spend a summer or year in mission service. A time of dedication for those who have already been chosen to serve, and a time to speak to the general student body about the possibilities for and needs of service in this type of work.

Talent stars act

By Lynne Henderson
"Love It" will be the theme of the annual Student Association Talent Show this Saturday night in the gym at 8:00 p.m. Participating in the Talent Show will be judged by Mrs. Oriel Grant, an instructor in the nursing department; Miss E. C. M. Mifsud, chairman of the music department at Forest Lake Academy; Bob Garren, an art teacher at SMC; Frank E. Rile, an art teacher, and Dr. Richard Cornwell, conductor of the Chattanooga Symphony. A hundred and seventy-five dollars will be given away in prize money.

The participants are as follows:

- Lonnie Pasch will present a reading entitled "Rinderla." Dennis Hunt (guitar), Gail Mifsud (cello), and Sid Norton will perform a song entitled "Dennis Hunt: Thoughts on Martyrdom and Ashes.
- Michael Mattin and David Detrask will sing, accompanied by the piano by Gail Jones.
- Bob Zoller, Dave Bryant, Mike Couley, and Jeff Davis will be singing "Wild Blackbird," with apologies to Handel.
- Richard Helms will play a saxophone solo, "Crepusculo." Wayne Liconos and Karen Ronge will do a tumbling routine on a tower.
- Pamela Jones will perform an "African" dance by Schuman.
- Julie Marchant will sing "Love It," accompanied by Lisa Mifsud, accompanied by Gail Jones on the piano.
- Tim Creby will play an original piano composition.
- The special feature for the evening will be performed by a Brain Ensemble from Forest Lake Academy, under the direction of Mrs. Pat Mifsud's Silver.
- As part of the "Love It" theme for the evening, Valentine sandy will be sold to students.
- The money will go to support the mission station which the Student Association started three years ago in Nicaragua. About 15 students and faculty plan to spend the summer in Nicaragua to raise funds.
- Bonnie and Harvey Ottman will work as a husband and wife team in Nicaragua. Harvey graduated in December with a degree in industrial arts. Bonnie is a nurse and will help Crisis Police, who is returning for a second term of service. Arthur Carron, a seminary religion major, and Leslie Smart, who is graduating from pres-vent in May, will also be going.
- Brenda Smith, from the Orlando Campus, will be spending the summer in the mission. It is hoped that four men with experience in construction will apply to go to Nicaragua to help build up the clinic this summer.

Dorm rent to increase

By Colleen Cowan
In the recent Board of Trustees meeting in early May, Jones Hall resident Mr. Mill said that there was no reason for the increase in the other two dorms. He said that the increase was needed and it was decided that Jones Hall rent would not be increased.

Jones Hall rent was not increased and will remain $544.00 for the upcoming school year. This will allow the greater difference in rent between the two buildings is required for newly arriving residents.

Mrs. Mill stated that the rent was not the reason for the increase in the other two dorms. He said that the increase was needed and it was decided that Jones Hall rent would not be increased.

It was also decided that all students will have a flat rate, not a full rate of $544.00 per month according to Laurel Wells, director of business who created this. This fee will be automatically placed on each student's account, regardless of whether the student has actually eaten that much or not. Any amount over the $40.00 will be added to that meal charge. The current per meal rate is $40.00 for students not eating enough was used as a reason for the charge.

59-year old ex-Marine is student here

By Ken Wilson

Editor's note: Francis "Top" Stone is an unusual student at SMC, having been in the US Marine Corp for 24 years. Now retired, he takes a heavier class load than many students 40 years younger than he is.

ACCENT: Mr. Stone, how did you happen to move to Collegedale to retire, and why are you going to college?

STONE: Well, it's really a long story. My wife and I joined the SDA church 6 years ago when we were living in Orange, Calif. I was stationed in El Toro then, and some folks came around asking if we were interested in Bible studies, so we consented. The daughter of the lady who brought us into the church had attended SMC, so that's how I heard about it.

1932 Graduate

As far as coming to college goes, I've always wanted a college education. I graduated from high school in 1932 and had little money for going to college, but I did go to the University of Maine for one semester. We checked out Lorna Linda and CUC, but when we arrived the college here in Collegedale—there it was! It is beautiful here, and we wanted to get away from the city. I retired September 30, and I was here October 4, 1972.

ACCENT: Where was your place of duty?

STONE: I was stationed at Camp Lejeune, here on the east coast. That's where I met two other Marines who are now here at SMC.

ACCENT: What jobs did you hold while in service?

STONE: I was in Marine Aviation for 20 years, and when I retired I held the position of First Sergeant at the status of E-8. I was stationed on both coasts, the Mediterranean, 4 years in Japan, and served two tours of duty in Viet Nam. In Viet Nam in 1968 the Lord was with me, because I was stationed 5 miles below the DMZ zone.

Passed to WW II

ACCENT: Why did you join the Marine Corp?

STONE: I was drafted during World War II and had a choice of services, so I chose the Marines.

ACCENT: Could you tell something about life here at college, and how you like it so far?

STONE: Yes, I love it! I am taking 17 hours of classes now, and my wife says that in order to let me have an appointment, my major is education, but I'm trying to fit in. I have made arrangements to take classes at the college here, and the other will have to be major.

ACCENT: Do you have any children?

STONE: Yes, a son and a daughter. And, believe it or not, a 14-year-old granddaughter.

59 Year Old

ACCENT: When I think of a Marine, I think of a tall, towering fellow. How tall are you?

STONE: I don't mind. I'm 5 feet and 6 inches tall, and went into the Marines when I was 30 years old. I'm 59 years old now. I remember when a secretary came running to Dr. Kistner during registration saying, 'This can't be right! This card has a birthdate the year 1914!' Dr. Kistner knows me, and he assured her that it was correct.

ACCENT: In closing, I'd like to talk to you about your hobbies.

STONE: Yes, although I don't know how it will go over on the school paper. I love to fish!

I Love You Truly

By Ethel Teach

There's more "blud" word in musical lyrics, the most dramatic word in drama, the most current word in courtship. Yes, it is the most practical, the most written, the most used, and the most misunderstood. Even brother Mammon, the Talmud, doesn't know its price; it needs a clear look.

We see different kinds of types in Christianity to depict it. They are: Mr. Love, Mr. Love, Mr. Love No. 2, Mr. Love No. 3, and the Doctor.

Doctor No. 1. What is Love? And he replies, "It is:

1. More important than discipline so we should preach love, not sin.
2. Emotion, feeling, affection.
3. You. You decide what is best and let the machine, the sports car, or the computer determine love unless you experience it. So each individual in the finder of what is best.
4. Personal, that is, putting the person first before all regulations that tend to define it; otherwise love is not free to act as it should. Love lies, love critics.

One Thing

No. 2. What is Love? And he recommends, "It is:

Who do you think is best? Perhaps we should ask God to identify himself.

No. 1. What are you? I am Mr. God, God of Love.

No. 3. Who are you? I am Mr. Primitive Goodness Christian Love.

You have a wonderful world in your language; you have increasing refinement, "love, love, love!"

There is more "blud" word in musical lyrics, the most dramatic word in drama, the most current word in courtship. Yes, it is the most practical, the most written, the most used, and the most misunderstood. Even brother Mammon, the Talmud, doesn't know its price; it needs a clear look.

We see different kinds of types in Christianity to depict it. They are: Mr. Love, Mr. Love, Mr. Love No. 2, Mr. Love No. 3, and the Doctor.

4. Personal, that is, putting the person first before all regulations that tend to define it; otherwise love is not free to act as it should. Love lies, love critics.

Council elected

A residence hall council consists of a group of twelve elected representatives, one from each section of the campus. The council has been instituted at Thatcher Hall.

According to Mrs. Florence Burkey, director of women's activities, the council will serve as a liaison between the residence halls and the administration. The council can make suggestions, recommendations, and comments to the administration.

Girls will be free to go to the council on any problems or questions they may have. The council will be held in the formal meetings.

Because some of the comments and the interests of these students are being directed to be regarded dorm them and other problems not involving the administration, another responsibility the council has is that of taking disciplinary actions against those who may be disturbing the privacy of their roommates.

When asked why the committee was made up of twelve, Mrs. Burkey said that there is usually a total of twelve students from the residence halls who have been elected to each committee. She said that the committee completely divorced from any questions of figures of authority such as in the RA's. There is a RA's which might suggest the way girls can be on the campus and some emphasis in their direction.

According to Shirley Wilson, senior two-year nursing major, and newly-elected representative to the council, it may be very effective.

When asked about the prospect of success the committee, Shirley pointed out that she feels an effective department, one that receives praise of the students.

Help needed for story hour

There is a pressing need for more help on Saturday afternoon during story hour programs at the West Chattanooga, according to Director, Robin George. The West Chattanooga Story Hour has been discontinued due to the lack of volunteers to run the program, however the West Chattanooga Story Hour has resumed operational under the new name of "9th Street Story Hour".

There are currently 100 children, K-3 aged, in the program. "The main goal is to provide a fun and educational experience for children through storytelling," said Miss George. "It is a great way for parents and children to bond and build a love for reading." The program runs from 10:00 am to 12:00 pm on Saturday mornings.

Volunteers are needed to help run the program. Volunteers will be responsible for setting up the room, helping children choose books, and reading stories to the children. "We are looking for volunteers who are patient, kind, and love working with children," said Miss George. "This is a great opportunity for those who want to make a positive impact on young children's lives." Those interested in volunteering can contact Miss George at 555-1234.

Fires frequent here

Volunteers needed

For the month of March, volunteer drivers are needed to transport children to and from their homes. "The program is called "Friends of the Library," and it is a great way for children to get more involved in reading and writing," said Miss George. "Volunteer drivers are needed to transport children to the library and back, and to help with other program-related activities." Those interested in volunteering should contact Miss George at 555-1234.

Resident assistants for hire

Applications are currently being accepted for the position of Resident Assistant. "The Resident Assistant position is a great opportunity for those who are interested in working with children and helping to create a positive learning environment," said Miss George. "Applicants must be at least 18 years old, have completed at least two years of college, and have a strong interest in working with children." The position includes a competitive salary and benefits.

Program details

The program runs from 9:00 am to 3:00 pm, Monday through Friday. "The program includes a variety of activities designed to help children develop their reading and writing skills," said Miss George. "We are looking for residents who are creative, energetic, and committed to helping children succeed." Those interested in applying should submit their resume and a letter of interest to Miss George at 555-1234.
Accent interviews

(Editors note: Elder A. E. Gibb, Associate Secretary of the General Conference, was on campus for Missions Emphasis week, February 14-19. He spoke at the Thursday evening chapel, was on stage at Friday evening vespers, and spoke for the 11:00 worship at the Collegeplaza church.)

ACCENT: Elder Gibb, will you give a brief resume of your duties at the GC?
GIBB: There are actually seven associate secretaries at the GC, but my main duty is to serve as liaison between the General Conference and two of the overseas divisions, the Australasian and Southern Asia divisions. It is my duty to recruit personnel for service in these fields. In addition to this, I am editor of both the North American Division and General Conference working policies. I usually go overseas once a year, besides the travel in North America. This requires a lot of legwork, because you don't just go to the GC Committee and say, "We need somebody to work in such and such a place," you go there with at least 10 couples in mind.

ACCENT: About what age do you accept missionaries for duty?—do you take college-age youth?
GIBB: Well, we don't determine at the GC what the calls are. This is determined in the field, and we have to fill these applications. They generally want surgeons, chemists, Ph.D.'s, and specialists, etc.

ACCENT: In your estimation, is there a balance of effort between American missions and foreign missions?
GIBB: Yes, we see, we have an interesting organization in the GC. The world is divided up into divisions, and each division has a division organization except North America. So the GC serves in a dual capacity, being the division for the world field and for North America. So because of the organization, it is inevitable that the GC spend more time in North America than foreign countries.

ACCENT: Where do you think emphasis should be put in our colleges, as you see the needs for the world missions?
GIBB: I think we were starting before college, in the textbooks of the elementary schools and academies, by stressing the personal involvement of every church member in the total mission of the church. So, looking at the whole thing, you aren't really an SDA unless you are personally involved. If you read the Bible, you'll see that God doesn't picture a Jew finishing the gospel commission, but rather he pictures the church members doing it with their Bibles under their arms, a one-to-one type of thing. I think that's what God is waiting for right now—every church member getting ready and developing a witnessing lifestyle.

ACCENT: In the near future, do you see communications media playing a larger part in the spreading of the gospel?
GIBB: No, I don't anticipate that at all. But I do think that the new ways of technique work will play the largest role. The printed page, though, probably plays the largest part in bringing our beliefs into homes. Radio and TV play a bit part initially. Now, the only one that is left, and that is the personal approach. We have a generation of youth growing up with no religious ties. This represents the realization that the young people do have religious needs, and that's where our church must be large in the future.

It is much easier to be critical than to be correct.

Women to be studied

by Norma Carton

"The Status and Role of Women in the Seventh-day Adventist Church" will be the subject of a study group that will begin meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 20, in Room 210 of Lynn Wood Hall.

Interest in exploring this subject further has arisen as a result of the "Sabbath School Forum" held here last December in which the role of women in the SDA Church was discussed in a roundtable format that stressed, whereas before our present day there was a generation brought up in a doctrinal age, I think the devil, though, is preparing the world for a pseudo-religion that he is going to use for his overrunning act of deception. If I see correctly, I think many of the forms today are related to spiritualism, such as the tongues movements that is becoming so prevalent. You can't talk to a person who has experienced these things, for instance, trying to point out to him which day of worship is correct, for he insists that he has had an experience, and insists that the Lord wouldn't mislead him.

It is much easier to be critical than to be correct.

—Benjamin Breazeale

Panel moderated by Dr. Larry Hamon and composed of Elder Frank Holbrook, Mrs. Barbara Reif, Mrs. Norma Carton, and Mr. Bill Garber.

Study groups for the sessions include two research papers written at the request of the Biblical Research Committee of the General Conference. The authors of the papers are Lena Rountree, professor of Biblical Languages at the SDA Seminary, Andrews University; and Jim Watts, assistant book editor, Review and Herald Publishing Association. Both papers examine the topic in light of the Bible and the Spirit of Prophecy. Special guests from along the faculty and from the church ministry will be invited frequently to participate in the sessions.

A special feature at the first session Monday night will be the 8-minute thought-provoking film "Anything You Want to Be," which captures humor and pathos of the female experience of growing up.

Good linux/hosmoderators for the sessions are Dr. Frank Knittel, president of SMC; Dr. Stanley Blayer, chairman of the SMC Education Department; Miss Kathy Mitchell, instructor in History at SMC, and Mrs. Norma Carton, 1971 SMC communications graduate.

Editorially Speaking...

by Sandy Likes

Sundays Like wanted badly to go to the pool party that was being held on Friday. If only one of the handsome princes would invite her! And then one day it happened! She knew it was pretty, but she was asked by a handsome prince to go to the party. She was beyond excited.

The Land of Gitimony

"President Nixon, in an recent nationally televised address, said that the reason why I have continued this action is because of my bewitched attitude to all the young people in the 17 to 25 age group.

"Friends, Americans, and freaks..." Nixon continued. "I have been met with resistance from young people playing on the sandy beaches of Gitimony making kind statements and telling community jokes, buying little souvenirs to take home, buying big souvenirs to take back home, buying cars to take each other to school, and taking the island with money—Oh!... Besides if you young, bitte, radical, freaks don't go, we'll just take the money out of your income tax.

The island is very poor and C.A.F. can't run it. But now we recently acquired the islands from Russia. And now, you young hippies, racists, brats are going to help us run Gitimony. Ha! Ha! Ha! Our island. Ha! Ha! Ha! On the islands Ha! Ha! Ha!extra payoff! getaway!

Three days later, Simicella received a message from the martien. It said she had received 110.54 in 50. And she had to go to the bank and give her carriage behind the handsome prince's castle and walk the rest of the way because her own carriage had small and oversized wheels. Woah! Woah! Woah! As she crossed the road towards the castle, she almost tripped over the stone.
New student loan policy
Now available to $2500

By Carol Wilson
Several major changes in policy regarding the Guaranteed Student Loan Program have occurred recently and will become effective the first of March, according to Mrs. Laurel Bell, director of Student Finance.

First, every application for a loan under this program must now be accompanied by a "need valuation," which includes a total financial statement.

Previously, loans were available to students regardless of income level, with no special attention given to determine the amount of need in the situation.

Secondly, the maximum loan available has been raised from $1500 to $2500 per year, although total loans for four years cannot exceed $7500.

The third alteration deals with the federal interest benefit, in which the government pays the total interest due on the loan for the period in which the student is still in school.

Under previous regulations, this could only be claimed if the student's family had an income of $15,000 or less.

However, now the income level determination has been completely dropped, and eligibility for the interest benefits is determined solely by the "need analysis."

Students not qualifying for federal interest subsidy may, of course, still apply for a loan but will have to pay their own interest.

And now, as before, all students will be responsible for paying total interest charges during the repayment period.

When asked the reason for the changes, Mrs. Wells said that "the program was being abused by those who really didn't need the loans. The present arrangement, in which the need must be defined, was there to prevent unfair borrowing to be checked."

Mrs. Wells estimated that at least 125 students are under this loan program at SMC and will be affected by the changes.

Mrs. Wells also specifically wanted to encourage all students interested in any type of loan to apply during the school year to apply NOW.

25,000 appeals sent
For $200,000

The amount asked for the requesting fund for 1973 is $200,000. The fund, which will last the year and which will continue each year, is an appeal for financial support for SMC to all people interested. Those interested should include alumni, employees, parents of students, and all of the Southern Union. Twenty-five thousand appeals were sent out.

The recent issue of the Southern Columbia, SMC's alumni newsletter, dedicated the entire issue to the Scholarship Fund. Dr. Kratzer's office has sent out NOW.

Kindergarten, library programs
Approved by State Department

By Daryl Ludington
SMC received word last Friday from the Department of Education that its program in the preparation of kindergarten teachers, school librarians, and art teachers have been approved.

According to Dr. Stuart Berkley, chairman of the SMC education department, verification for these programs are to be administered through the department as endorsements to the regular elementary and secondary school programs.

Dr. John K. Smith, associate commissioner of education for the elementary schools, and other specialists from the Tennessee Department of Education, visited SMC last December to attend the program offerings in the three areas concerned. He also met with members of the administration, art, library, and education departments.

Development of the Kindergarten Teacher Training Program is credited to Mrs. Mildred Spears who received her masters degree in UF and has had several years experience of the primary school teaching. She has also taken special work at Middle Tennessee State in the area of early childhood education.

The art department, instituted two years ago under the chairmanship of Mr. W. Hale Jackson, has grown from 12 to 32 majors. According to Mr. Jackson, the men from the Tennessee Department of Education were "very favorably impressed" with the department's offerings and faculty qualifications.

"It's hard to believe that a small college like SMC could offer so much," they remarked about Mrs. Jackson.

The officials were also impressed with the college library, commented Mr. Charles Davis, librarian, with its equipment and staff of graduate students holding graduate qualifications. Courses now given will meet requirements for the school librarian's certificate.

Substantial credit for the recent state approval, added Dr. Berkley, must be given to Dr. K. M. Kennedy, of the SMC education department, who has cultivated an excellent rapport between the SMC education department and officials of the state department.
Runners reach Pakistan: Top ten joggers noted

By Bruce Kloep
This year marks the spot where the Midland runners broke through the Khyber Pass in Asia where runners from around the world are expected to arrive in just a short while.

Last week, as the runners passed through Paris, I was able to interview some of the runners. One of the first runners to arrive was Bill Shirley, a junior in engineering, at the school, I asked Bill just what he thought of the running program. He said that he was glad to be involved in running even though he had been running before. The best part of Paris, said Bill, was the sunshine after all the rain of Correction.

I met the runners again in Cairo, Egypt. Here the main problem was sun in the eyes. After a quick adjustment of the crown around the area of the pyramids and the runners pressed on to Karachi where they were expected to arrive shortly.

To date the grand total logged by the students is 8,000 miles. As some groups that failed to report so the total is somewhere around 10,000 miles.

The top runners in the program are:
1. Keith Barker, 150.00
2. Bill Shirley, 147.50
3. Mary Lou Lofland, 120.00
4. John Kundall, 87.00
5. Jan Donaldson, 83.10
6. Art Garrison, 82.75
7. Bud Less, 78.00
8. C. M. Wrenn, 76.00
9. Terry Cmichalk, 75.00

New England tour
Set for early summer

By Les Hess
The greatest determining factor of the success of the Student Association is personnel. Now is the time to contribute to the future of student life here at SMC what is needed, and what do you have to offer? The Constitution and By-Laws of the SA here set down some guidelines, but there is a lot of room for you to define and shape things as you see fit.

Don’t be afraid to shadow your neck out! Students need to lead the Student Association involved in the bettering of school. If we choose to remain idle, then there is no self determination for students. Without active effective student leadership in the process of school administration, we are negating our educational atmosphere, as we do, no effort for self learning.

There are many different areas and offices where the student can serve. These are made obvious by the Student officers now open for filing.

Some people feel that to serve is to bow. This is the greatest deceit, for the more responsibility you take, the more you are serving the students, they have the title that you can share. Some organizations and clubs are open to students who are interested, where you will be able to affect your school or your own.Interested? Come in to see what you need, seen it. Not what are your hopes, but what are your answers. When you have decided where to direct your abilities, you have given the student body an option to choose. It you and your abilities, answers, patience, and intelligence are chosen by the students, then go to it. But first you have to go to the student body itself and ask, "Are you interested?"

Pick your office and file for it! This is the first and hardest step to getting involved. You have to decide to do it and keep on doing it. Once you’re fired for an office, you’re going to have to file again. Just a brief speech for the office you wish to serve. The student body will decide when and where the students will be interested in the office.

Positions open for filing:
President, Executive Vice President, Social Vice President, Elections, Tugger Editor, SOUTHERN ACCENT Editor, SOUTHEND MEMORIUS Editor, Public Relations Chairman, Student Services Chairman, Program Committee Chairman, Recreation Committee Chairman.

Filing for available offices will be open at 8 a.m., Feb. 16.

The history and English departments are sponsoring a New England tour from June 3 to July 22, under the direction of Dr. W. E. P. Clark, chairman of the history department, and Mrs. Barbara Fed, assistant professor of English.

The states to be visited include New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, and Maine. Major cities to be visited include Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, and Boston. A student taking the tour can earn three hours of credit in any of the four courses American Literature, 93, Readings in Colonial America 165, Survey of American Literature 3, or American Literature 110. Tuition for the four hours is $315 instead of the $792 usually charged for such credit. Reading will be done after June 22 and the examination will be on July 2 at which time all work in the class is to be completed.

The basic cost of the tour is $225 which includes transportation, overnight lodging, and admission to the various places visited. A number of nights will be spent at Atlantic Union College, the rest of the accommodations will be at AAA motels or hotels. In order to sign up for the tour, bring $50 cash or check or money order for $50 made out to Southern Methodist College to Dr. J. L. W. Reed, 220, the history department.

Since this is a combined history-English tour the classes visited will have historical and literary significance. In addition, the tour will include a number of spots sacred to Adventist history such as the first SDA church at Washington, N. H., places connected with the early life of Ellen G. White, and the hometown of William Miller.

The University of Maine, which will be visited, will be interested in their activities or to visit the site of Professor Dr. J. L. W. Reed, 220, the history department. The town of Surprise, Maine, will be interested in their activities or to visit the site of Whitefield. Other places of interest will be visited are Williamburg, Jamestown, Yorktown, Fredricksburg, Mount Vernon, White House, Arlington National Cemetery which is the burial place of the late President, and Jefferson’s Monticello, the Library of Congress, the National Archives, Gettysburg battlefield, Fort Monmouth, Clearfield, Boston, Gloucester, Salem, Plymouth Rock, Adams family home in Quincy, Mayflower II in Nantucket Island, Portland and Brunswick, Maine, Yale University, Independence Hall, Benjamin Franklin’s grave, Congress Building, Dyer’s Wharf, Darien, Monticello, Bull Run, Ash Lawn.

The history and English departments are conducting this tour in the conviction that the study of American literature will come alive for the student as he sees the scenes which history was made. While literature was written or about which authors wrote, history students will have the advantage of learning about literature, and literature students will have the advantage of learning about history.

Mrs. Raff comes from the Boston area and is a graduate of Atlantic Union College in South Lancaster, Mass. Dr. Clark is also a graduate of Atlantic Union College and spent almost all his boyhood summers in Maine. At least one of the tour directors has visited every place on the tour at least once. Jerome L. Clark.
Lee, tournament
Guest of honor
Ten members of the Southern Tae-kwon-Do Association, the Karate Club on SMC's campus, visited the United States Open Karate Tournament, which was held in Huntsville, Ala., on February 17, 1973.

Jim Lee, President of SMC's Karate Club, was a guest of honor and participated in the officiating.

The tournament took place in the Lee High School gymnasium and was attended by an estimated fifteen hundred spectators. There were five divisions, according to rank, with sparring or fighting and forms, which are a set of memorized moves. In chided in the five divisions was a Pre-Woo division consisting of elementary-age children.

The group from Collegedale went as spectators, not participants, and were present only for the 8 p.m. finals.

Me again. Mixed last week due to a slight cold. The editor said I would understand.

Lots of things haven't changed much. Like Mr. Buffett's picture is still on the P.E. Board on Lynwood Hall. No offense intended, but it just looks as if nothing is happening, Hmmm.

And the telephones haven't changed much in Talga. I guess that's because we haven't had any rain. The telephone company decided to give us all of their rainy days—so kind of them. Now we'll have the hot weather we've had in years.

Oh, one thing that I thought was very important. Just a small oversight I'm sure, but perhaps a few of you fellow students could help us all out. If any of you know a board member personally, talk to him about the $40 minimum charge next year.

See, the problem is, they always eat on a guest card when they eat here, so that somewhat explains the situation. I'm sure if they knew, they would help us.

I was going to move into the dorm but I can't pay the bill so I'll stay at home. I understand that some folks eat well balanced meals in their rooms and get by on lots less than a dollar a day in the cafeteria. That's just a little off.

Besides, just for interest's sake, I had breakfast in the cafeteria one day last week, and out of the six girls behind the desk, two were actually doing nothing resembling work in any form. That looks to me, like a lot of wasted labor.

Oh, and speaking of moving into the dorm, security has improved somewhat. The lights are up on the sidewalks around Thatcher. That's good. Now if we could only transfer a few of these security men to the track at night instead of giving parking tickets, we would be even safer.

A friend of mine parked his car once outside Jones Hall and got a ticket within an hour. Not that the two dollars was too much. It's just the principle. They didn't ruin the car, but couldn't stop the trouble on the track.

And you will all be pleased to know that the new cafeteria is coming right along. So far they have only torn the front step out once. That's good—keep it up fellows.

Oh, by the way, do I report my miles to?

25,000 APPEARS

letters to all full time employees of SMC asking for each family to give $100 a year. Also included in the donation is a special Com- mittee of 100 that will give $500 per year.

According to Miss Mabel Wood, of the public relations office and secretary for the records of the drive, many reasons indicated the need for the appeal.

Miss Wood also stated that SMC at this time is paying in interest on the debts owed but that the debts themselves were not touched. She also stated that the same several financial crisis is plaguing other Adventist colleges. Much of the problem she said is that churches and church schools are supported locally but that the colleges are largely ignored.

On independent education

It is important to consider the role of independent education. When students are allowed to choose their own courses and instructors, they are more likely to be engaged and motivated. This approach has been shown to improve academic performance and foster a sense of ownership and responsibility. Independent education encourages critical thinking and problem-solving skills, which are essential for success in the 21st century.

In summary, independent education offers numerous benefits. It empowers students, promotes creativity, and prepares them for the challenges of the future. As educators, we should value and support independent education practices to ensure that our students are well-equipped for the world they will face.

Editorially Speaking...

Caught in mid...

DEAR EDITOR:

This is a follow-up to my previous letter, dated March 21, 1973. I am writing to express my continued concern about the lack of accountability in the board of trustees. I believe that the board is not adequately representing the interests of the students.

As a student, I have noticed a pattern of decision-making that seems to prioritize the interests of the university administration over the needs and concerns of the student body. This lack of transparency and accountability is becoming increasingly frustrating.

I urge the board to consider implementing more inclusive decision-making processes and to regularly communicate with students about its actions and decisions. Only through greater transparency and accountability can we ensure that the needs of all stakeholders are being met.

Sincerely,

Seniors can waive finals; Hair to bottom of ears

By Mark Nichelson

The tenth regular meeting of the student Senate on Monday, October 11, at 6 p.m., with devo-natical observation by Bob Becton, religious vic-e-president of the Student Asso-ciation.

Leo Hess, president of the senate, announced that as a result of Senate action, 80-year seniors be able to waive final exams on upper division class-work if they have a grade of "A" or "A-". Also, next school year, hair of male students "will be cut at the bottom of the neck to touch the collar," Hess said. The question of hair was not decided on as of yet.

The question of the status of winter practice was dis-cussed and voted on with the decision that a senior could miss two meetings with good cause and the Senate Judiciary Committee would define "good cause." A senior would not be allowed to miss any Senate meetings on the day after a game, Hess said.

Mr. Charles Fleming, general manager of SMC, spoke to the Senate about the 40-dollar per month minimum cafeteria charge that will go into effect next school year. The maximum was decided on, he said, to counter the effects of inflation. Fleming stated that the minimum was not an irreversible idea. "Hopefully, by November or December we can do away with it," he said.

The new Cafeteria will be in operation by the end of March this year, and at least hopefully, it will be, and the amount of busi-ness it does will directly effect whether or not a 40-dollar mini-mum will be needed. "The past two years have been bad for the cafeteria be cause of the weather," Fleming stated.

Upon the suggestion of Hess, the Senate passed a resolution to the effect that the 40-dollar minimum be dropped if school doesn't need it.

Also passed was a resolution pro-moting that pantsuits be allowed for all general campus use except in the dormitory, church, and chapel.

Recruiters out for Florida seniors

Six representatives from SMC interviewed more than 100 seniors at Fort Lauder-dale and Greater Miami Ad-missions last week in an attempt to persuade seniors to come to SMC next year.

This trip to the two Florida academies is part of a plan conducted by Arno Kratzer, director of admissions, to visit all of the academies in the Southern Union. Dr. Kratzer has personally been to all of the academies, taking with him faculta-try members to discuss college attendance with the prospective college students, said Mrs. Sue Bieker, assistant president of English and a member of one of the most recent teams.

The interviews, designed to answer questions about college entrance requirements, have met with much success. Teachers from the SMC and St. Andrew's Academy begin discussions about such things as employment, fu-nances, social and religious activi-ties, and courses of study.

Recently, the group of students from Florida have been called "Rudolph Ammon," associate professor of modern lan-guage, Sue Bieker, assistant pro-fessor of English; Kenneth Davis, director of teaching and coun-ciling; George McDonald, associate professor of speech; Laura Dodds, director of student financial aid; and Dr. Kratzer.

After the church, the members became better acquainted at the pot-luck dinner. At 7:00, the Organizational service began, with Elder Des Cuningham, S.C., officiating. He challenged the members to advance the gospel message in the South Florida area of Chattanooga, also giving suggestions on how to suc-cede in the cause.

Immediately, after Elder Cuningham officially pronounced the group a company, Elder Jerry Gadilson, pastor, baptized a new member, Mr. Murray, a chemist at the DuPont plant in Hixson, who had been working with SDA's for some time.

A young girl, 13-year-old Beverly Roper, was decided on at the con-ference and made the true deci-sion known publicly at the meeting, imploring that she wanted to be bap-tized, but after an additional pastoral committee meeting, it was decided that she should wait a year. There was also a baptismal robe on hand for her blessing, and the water was considered too cold. She will be baptized tomorrow, March 1.

After the baptismal service, 40 people came forward to sign the cluster membership roll, indicating their desire to carry forward the church program.

Several other projects have been under way lately in the Hixson area, David McElroy has been the primary driving force, holding meetings on the topics of Daniel and the Revelation prophecies each Monday night at the home of a member. He reports that he has been able to begin each week, besides several church members, two of whom have already been baptized, and an effort is being made to break a legal road block that would prevent them from carrying forward the church program.

Prayer meetings have been held throughout the week, and in the area. The first one was organized by Elder O'Neil, in Hixson, and Elder Searles, in Chattanooga.

The second Sabbath is designated to be Casual Night, with warm weather and a peculiar dress code, but no one quite expected to see so many people out on the streets.

After church, the members decided to spend the day with the neighborhood, bringing books out to the people.

Dave McElroy, the president of the church, had to quit because of a plane crash, and Dr. H. A. McElroy, who was ex-pected to arrive, were unfortunately engag-ed in other things.

After church, the members decided to go to neighboring church, but no one expected to see so many people out on the streets.

The two scholars, Bruce and David, must have been very much surprised at the crowd, but no one quite expected to see so many people out on the streets.

Q: Did you enjoy the last reception on a platform of "Women's Lib"?
A: I'm not a women's libber at all. I didn't try to run my campaign on that basis. So if it doesn't matter whether the Presi-dent of the Student Association is male or female, the impor-tant point is whether or not the person can do the job.

Q: In every interview the question is asked, "Well, how do you plan to improve the S.A.?," so I guess I better ask you, how do you intend to improve the S.A.?
A: If I'm not sure of the exact answer, but I believe that the plan to improve the Student Association is to make it more interesting to the students. I think that students would take in the S.A.

Q: Well, thank you for your time, President Treble, do you have any other time left to make before this interview is over?

A: I don't really know. I'm not sure what more you are about it. It has been decided yet, I'm afraid.
New VM manager

The Village Market has a new manager, Cliff Myers Jr., formerly assistant manager to Bill Miller. Myers has taken the job as assistant to Charles Phillips, general manager of the college. Myers is presently degregating a series of saintly Hannah Blackwater to sell to anyone interested in growing their own vegetables.

As the new manager of the Village Market, Myers says he intends to keep things running smoothly. He says it may be quite a task to supervise the college radio and television advertising campaigns in the future.

Myers claims that since the Village Market television advertising has been increased by 25 to 30 percent. He feels people will ask more questions about the products they see on television. He feels they want to know more about the products and where they can buy them. He feels the Village Market can provide this information.

Why are you here? McEwen speech topic

By Brian Closer

The most difficult thing to do is to answer the question "Why am I here?" to students. Students were compared with the disciples of Jesus who also found a similar question. The disciples' question: "Where do you want to go to dinner?" was compared to the question: "Where do you want to go to college?" In effect, it is the students' words instead of the students' bodies that are ready for college. The reason most students choose a particular school is that they are the probable most difficult thing to do. So, let us ask ourselves, why do we want to attend college?

Economy is the first reason to consider.

Today's economy is to apply to the offer's experience.

And what do You think of Eighty Days?

By Kerry Fetter

The SMC Temperance Society held the "Around the World in 80 Days" program entitled "Around the World in 80 Days." Although, many opinions have been formed about the program, not everyone seems to have been completely satisfied.

There were some opinions from the Tally (a few have asked to remain anonymous).

Rick Nason: "My ankles are aching." Ket Mistak: "Good program." Anonymously: "I wouldn't run if I paid me!"

Dennis Draper: "Great evening." Gary Kirke: "You last." Anonymously: "No interest in the film."

Hank Williams: "Best idea in a long time." Anonymously: "I really don't know how they know that." Sam Smith: "Great social activity." Dave Smith: "Guess people something to do." Anonymously: "Isn't that a movie?"

Anonymous: "What's Around the World in 80 Days?"

You might also enjoy hearing some of the novel ideas for ways of getting around in the world.

1. Running in the bathroom. Question: What is running in the bathroom?

2. Running from class to work. Question: Where is the campus? In five minutes.

3. Joining the SMS Marching Band. Question: Where is the campus cafeteria?

4. Running to answer a phone call. Question: Who will answer the phone call? The campus cafeteria.

5. Answering to phone calls. Question: Should he answer the phone call? He should answer the phone call.

The majority of the men who interviewed favored the phone call, and would support other exercise programs in years to come, so the Society should continue with them.

SMC chucklelogues

With Midgely again

By Don Gereaux

Stan Midgely returned to SMC this last Saturday night, with another of his famous "chucklelogues." This time he guided a tour through the state of California. Starring at the southern end of the state and going to the north, he stopped at many interesting, unusual, and beautiful places.

As usual his film was sprinkled with the trick photography he is known for. One particularly delightful scene showed him hovering sideways across a large boulder with a cat on milk and a cup in his hands. When he attempted to pour the milk into his cup, instead of flowing naturally, the milk flowed sideways onto the rock beside him. At which he quipped, "Sure it was icy out in the spiritual value of California. After the program, one person was heard to say, "That sure made me want to go back to California, I'd forgotten how good it looked."

Realization of Luther improved

By Don Gereaux

The first, given by Brian Stenger, senior history major, dealt with the biographical aspects of Luther's life. In the second, Gretenholt commented on the spiritual value of Luther's life and the doctrinal ideas of the Reformation movement. One specific objective of the series, as cited by Gretenholt, is "to reassert our human spiritual heritage and revitalize the spiritual fervor of our time." Gretenholt went on to say, "The members of the society felt that they had the problems of today to consider and that Luther's ideas were applicable to those problems."

A question-answer period is scheduled to follow the final meeting this Wednesday evening, March 7th.

Trek with Coronado

Don Cooper, noted Northwestern film traveling producer, will present Trails of the Coronado "Trellis In the Garden" in the Physical Education Auditorium Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. Tickets are on sale now at the Campus Shop in Columbia and may be obtained at the door the evening of the presentation.

Cooper's program will include the 1846 Coronado trek for the Seven Cities of Gold, a trek along the Oregon Trail, a Wyoming cattle drive, a close-up view ofizzly bears in Alaskan mountains and a walk down the edge of the American frontier.

A witty narrator with his wriggling pictures will be provided by Cooper, who has often been referred to as the "Man of the West." Will Rodgers of the lecture platform, is considered the result of the use of humor in his ability to understand the audience. He is the "King of the West." Cooper has been producing traveling monologues p" with his brother for twenty years and before audiences all across North America.

The program applies only to upper division courses.

Students hear Brass Quintet

By Don Gereaux

"It sure would be great if we could have them in our brass ensemble," remarked Dr. Jack McEwen, associate professor of music. Students were thrilled when Mr. McEwen on the edge of the American frontier.

A witty narrator with his wriggling pictures will be provided by Cooper, who has often been referred to as the "Man of the West." Will Rodgers of the lecture platform, is considered the result of the use of humor in his ability to understand the audience. He is the "King of the West." Cooper has been producing traveling monologues p" with his brother for twenty years and before audiences all across North America.

The program applies only to upper division courses.

Bach to a selection written in 1727.

Two of the most outstanding of these numbers were "Perseus" by Ludwig Rostier, and "Quintet for Brass Instruments" by George Crothers. The other numbers included "Canzona Bergamasca" by Samuel Pepys, "March to the Marriage of Carlo Gemellio, Contrauntus No. 15 from the "Act of the Fuge," by Johann Sebastian Bach, "Sonata for Trumpet, Horn, and Trombone" (1723) by Ferdinand Padello, "Quintet No. 2 for Brass Instruments" (1773) by Robert George, and "Settimo" (1950) by Patrick

Girls bring the spectators

By Dave Bryant

In "A" league action, Jackson proved to be real competitive with only four players by going. Reading a close battle for second place. With Ed Jackson, Rich Harvest, Steve Speairs, and Dave Smith, Reading's team had all they could handle.

Jackson's team showed some great teamwork as they managed to stay even and sometimes load despite being outnumbed. But in the end, close didn't count and Reading won 85-81.

Later, Reading managed to gather steam and pulled over Schleifer by 15 points. Schleifer is having a run of bad luck and it held true when the Holland boys stormed off the bench and quickly put the game out of the reach of Schleifer by 16 points. Rick Griffin led the charge with a fast break and showed Schleifer what quickness can do.

In "B" league, Dave Wiegley's team came from behind with only four minutes left in the game to take what looked like a win from Davis, 53-57. At the start of the second half, it looked as if the fast break between Nathan Williams and Dan Davis might get Wiegley his second defeat of the season. But Wiegley finally put it all together with the help of Jim Clark's rebounding, and went on to win. Girls' Basketball

The Straughan team showed some real hustle and proved that they were true champions as they edged out the Koester girls, 36-24. The girls assigned the lead during the first half, but then in the second half, Jay Jay Koester couldn't get the team started and they missed their chances to win the championship.

All the teams played some great ball, and they all deserve much credit for their competitive and Christian spirit. The games proved to be really exciting. Don't know whether it was the games or the girls who drew the spectators!

It's surprising how much time one thinks he will have tomorrow.

Most people are limited by their inability to appreciate others.

500 steps to better health; Who ripped the ribbons?

By Caesar

Dear friends and fellow students. In trying to decide what important information to present this week in my provoca- tive column, I decided that a bit of trivia would be in order. Did you know that there are well over 500 steps on campus? I didn't until someone told me yesterday. They say that you can tell a senior from a freshman by looking at his calves. I also thought of finding out how many potatoes the home economics department uses in a week but no one knew. So we'll try that one a little later. Also it might be of interest to know that there are at least 49 columns on campus, I know because a friend of mine, to be nice on Valentine's Day, put red ribbons on all of them. He went to a lot of effort in the rain and cold, only to be closely followed by someone, who shall not mention here, (though the thought had occurred to me) who ripped most of them down. Maybe if they were to apologize that would help to set things straight. Anyway, I thought that it was a nice gesture on the part of my friend to brighten up Valentine's at the risk of gnawing fingers.

Oh yes, to those of you who were concerned about the lights on the track, you will be comforted to know that lights are being installed and by now are probably in operation. That should keep the ladies safe.

Happiness is Being

Editorially Speaking...

If you are on Satan's side, you can see you'll have much more to fight. How can you be happy when you have been all your life? You needn't be discouraged by seeing a mistake in your life. But because the battle in this life is for the mind. The most important aspect of the Christian life is not acts but a personal relationship with God. This relationship, maintained by communication, will keep you from sinning, stated Vanden.

All you need to do for happiness and success in the Christian life, Eddy Vanden concluded, is "Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus." Philippians 2:5. With infinite power on your side you can't lose! ALC

The Board For Everwards

Probably everyone, in some way or another, is a critical person. I know I am. We all are. I have on occasion allowed my curiosity to get the better of me and sometimes we wonder, though, likely unconsciously. These words, but even in the midst of spending several hours of study and rushing the place around the around, do we think and notice them.

Did it ever occur to you that these thoughts and/or observations, which of the most of them, might be of interest to more than just you alone? Apparently not because in case you haven't noticed, all you college students are being bulleted boards located all over your campus remain empty much of the time.

Some stay locked, it's true, but most others don't. Try putting them to a practical use in your life. I suggest you put them to your posters, pictures, or anything you think would interest your fellow students. Since it's here, you can help others also.

Martin Luther King said, "I have a dream." But we don't have to dream. We have the reality-the reality of living with a God who wants us to love and in the people as currently as any of us has ever determined to hold to identity and survival. These people in America in all of us. All of us. God and the most that we believe the issue in this Book as it well as the people who do not believe we sometimes do more thinking and less running.

Dear Editor:
Another election will be held by the students on Tuesday next, on March 19 and 20. During these elections we will be voting on all Student Association offices for the next year. The winning for executive vice-president. The executive vice-president, in my opinion, is an important position within the affairs of student government. It works with the president in dealing with faculty and students, he represents student feeling to the faculty, most importantly, he is chairman of the committee.

The Senate is directly representative of the student body, in the sense that all elections within student government are by the students. The Senate makes decisions the Senate makes. One of the biggest factors of student government can be illustrated by a question I have heard many times. What does the SA do? I would spend much time and space explaining what we have done and what we could do, but I believe that what I would like for the SA to do in the two years I have left is to put a focus on the student body.

As far as the opinion of the executive vice-president's job is to bring cartoons and other things into the college every night to programs. That responsibility certainly belongs to someone else. I am not of my opinion that the SA Senate's job is to engage in shady rhetoric trying to get one hundred percent of the student population. If that's going to be a problem, we can be dictionary and reference meeting. I am not of my opinion that the only job of the SA Senate is to initiate several demonstrations concerning length of lunch and dinners, although they are inevitable.

I have expressed before, however, how much more important is the fact that a young married couple, a high school student government, without any vote at all in the campus wages: more important than the different...of the College Tele- of the College. I would like to see education made more practical with students having a hand in the student body, behind a convinced, working leadership can get things done. I have gained experience in getting things done through high school student government through three years in the Army and a squad leader in Viet Nam and presently as a senator in the SA. If elected, I promise to work toward the best interests of student participation.

The last thing the administration to come is Mr. Flaxing dad, and discuss this issue with the students as to whether Dr. Kwal and Dean Spurdo did this twice this year. I feel that it would be healthy for the Student-Administration communication for this to be set up some day. President, and I feel that it should be due to the fact that the executive vice-president should have some real involvement of student interest.

The primary role of the executive vice-president is the president of the Student Senate. In this position he must be able to establish goals which are in alignment with the expressed will of the student. In

Fowler-P.R.

The importance of the S.A. Treasurer is sometimes overlooked by a student body. This may be because the students aren't interested or they may not understand the function of the treasurer. The S.A. Treasurer is there to record the income and to an extent, control the expenditures of the Student Association. He must also keep accurate records of the transactions.

Budget Committee:
I believe one of the most vital roles of executive vice president is working on the budget committee. The Student Association has under its control over $31,000.00 of your money. The main function is in the efficiency of the office and in the limits that are set. There are a number of areas that I plan to work on in order to achieve greater efficiency in financial management.

I have had a great interest in student government in both academy and over my past two years at S.M.C., and during this year I have served a full term in the senate. As senator, I have been thoroughly involved with the preservation of the school and the student body and have gained much experience from this position. In my remaining two years, I plan to work on improving the student government.

Thomas-Social V.P.

The office of social vice president is rather a general office. By that I mean that the social vice president can make the office a place to appoint others to do his job or he can step in and mediate a wide range of activities. In either case the job can be accomplished but the second method is my choice. The activities covered by the social vice president are those that are varied as picnics, intramural sports, and for the whole of the student body.

The social vice president shall have the responsibility of coordinating many social activities and shall work directly with the Student Association President in the execution of all programs.

Don-Treas.

The office of S.M.C. Treasurer is sometimes neglected by a student body. This may be because the students aren't interested or they may not understand the function of the treasurer. The S.M.C. Treasurer is there to record the income and to an extent, control the expenditures of the Student Association. He must also keep accurate records of the transactions.

Bringing an accounting major to our student body is a sound idea. I have a thorough understanding of the S.M.C. financial position and I would like to incorporate the computer to help handle funds more efficiently.

Hallock-Accent

The main goal of the Southern Accent should be to report the news, and not to attempt to make the news. Too often this has not been true.

I feel that the Accent should not only present news and information, but that it should also adequately reflect the views and opinions of the students, as well as those of the faculty and administration.

In the years that I have been associated with the Accent, I do not feel that the editorial policy has always attempted to maintain an objective point of view. Neither has the paper always maintained the highest ideals of Christian journalism.

My purpose here is not to criticize the Accent. Frequently I have been associated with the shortcomings of the paper. But hopefully, the experience gained from these mistakes will guide me in the avoiding of such mistakes in the future.

OBJECTIVES

I plan to improve the Accent by eventually publishing eight pages a week instead of the regular four page issue. Perhaps it is impossible to attain this intention because the budget for next year will be determined after the editor is elected.

More emphasis should be given to certain things which are now under-emphasized. For instance, sports coverage has not received the attention that it should.

Another improvement would be to streamline the organizational structure of the paper by cutting down on unnecessary staff members. This can be done by selecting the most competent and experienced people to help with the various facets involved in the publishing of the Accent.

A "beat system" for reporters to follow will be incorporated into the system for next year. This will greatly assist in the gathering of news on and off campus.

Other additions in the Accent would include a section of short paragraphs summarizing college news, a calendar of coming events, and space devoted to the rereadings and feedback of readers.

Distribution racks will also be installed in the College Plaza.

QUALIFICATIONS

I am acquainted with the operations and processes of the Accent, having been a member of the staff for the past two years. During these two years I have served in the following positions: Associate editor, News editor, Layout editor, Reporter, and Free-lance writer.

I have also served on the staffs of two different academy newspapers, being an editor of one.

Major in communication, with a minor in journalism.

I have had experience working in two printing shops, and I am now taking the graphics arts class, which will enable me to thoroughly understand and relate to the printing processes of the paper.

Burke-SCC

In submitting my name as candidate for Student Services Committee Chairman, it is my belief and goal to see that this committee is accorded a larger degree of its full potential in serving the students than ever before.

True, the first duty of the Student Services Committee is to stand ready and willing to serve in fulfilling the projects and executing the assignments as given by the Student Senate and General Assembly. But above and beyond this, I see the Student Services Committee as more than just an executive arm of the Senate and General Assembly; I believe the Student Services Committee should and can be a dynamic and independent force on campus doing its best to deal with Student problems as (and possibly before) they arise, rather than solely a dormant and subjective force waiting only until told what to do. I see the Student Services Committee as one of the most versatile S.A. structures on campus capable of working right with the student, taking surveys, doing research, presenting findings, and submitting the student's interests before the proper administrative organizations.

This year while representing the students as a member of the Student Affairs Committee, and working in conjunction with the deans and other faculty members, I have seen many student interests dealt with and many others merely by-passed, or never discussed at all. Pertaining to the "by-passed and never discussed", of course there's always the problem of the administration not wanting to, or rejecting the discussion of the issue, but then too there is the problem that the students interest is not always represented correctly, in its entirety, or to the proper governing body.

I can't promise that our committee will solve students' problems, but if elected I'm going to do all that's in my power to go to the students, with an uncomplicated means by which we can solve problems and interests, and through the Student Services Committee represent these views to the proper faculty body or campus organizations in a form that will best propagate the students interests. Incidentally, we will also do our best to implement and carry out revised election procedures to avoid an election setup like we witnessed this year.

In summation I can say I'll do my best and I would like to submit my name as candidate for Student Services Committee Chairman for the 1973-74 school year.

What's reasonable is true, and whatever is true is reasonable.

G. W. Hegel

Samma-Walson

I, Samma K. Walton, purpose if I am elected to the office of Social Service Chairman to work with the student body and the faculty to set up better social involvement on campus.

I want to see more participation of student dates and non-dates in the social functions. The social events should have a wider scope to bring in all those involved. Therefore, I set my goal to do my best in achieving the above with the approval of the faculty and the student body.

The classifications of the social events can and sometimes need to coincide with the program set forth by the Program Committee and I will also work with the committee on these events. I will take suggestions from all and they will be considered.

My reason for applying for this position is that I feel there should be a greater emphasis placed on the social environment of this campus. One that will be uplifting and wholesome for everyone. Mainly that parallel with the teaching of Jesus Christ. I know that this office will be a challenge to me and I feel that I can meet it with great determination. I promise to do my best to achieve my goal as stated in the above.

Getting to Know Us

Dear Editor,

In a recent issue of the Accent, Dean Ferman wrote an article on how the faculty is victorizing the students with the new minimum wage policy for the cafeteria.

I don't understand. Haven't they new policy a balance in it?

Dear Editor,

It is marvelous that some students will be unhappy with the new cafeteria policy. It is nice to be aware that the complaints that are made are not based on the Accent account, no

SNEA host Claude Bond

On March 22, the SNEA Club will be having a luncheon for Claude Bond as their guest speaker. Claude Bond is the president of the SNEA Club.

Jug Personal Services for the Chattanooga Public School System, will be giving a talk on "The world of the Integrator and the Integrated Classroom."

This din meeting will be something which will be beneficial to the students in and outside of school. Bond will talk about some important issues in the world of socializing.

Dear Editor,

In response to a letter that appeared on the back page of the February 23rd issue of Southern Accent, I would like to say that, while I am not attaching the author personally, it seems quite obvious that the majority of the complaints contained therein were gratuitously disparate with the assistance of the actual problem.

To eliminate the possibility of needlessly wasting editorial space or reader's time and opinion, I will deal with only specific issues that are presented as a matter of possibility.

SNEA as an institution of higher learning is closely concerned with educational, moralistic, and financial well-being of the student body. In view of this fact, a decision reached by one of the governing committees shall in no way be challenged.

An affix to a refrigerator in the third paragraph of the previously mentioned article shows little insight into the value of such an item. The household would not be potentially more efficient with the construction of books that have been translated from the traditional theme into something that could become an art form.

As editor, I would attempt to complete this translation. I would seek, through this column, to introduce students to the Joek. Work is on the way. The Joek would be finished in the first semester of the current year, and it is not likely that the Joek could devote any time to the Joek. However, I am not convinced "double of the Joek" will work, and I will enjoy spending more time on either publication or both of them.

If elected as student editor, I will give my best effort to present to you, the student body, a work representative of college life in all areas, reflecting the personality of you, the students of S.M.C., and your life here.

Sincerely,

John Turner

Dear Editor,

In this issue of Southern Accent we have featured an article on the Joek's "blues" in regard to the "neat idea" that the Joek is the student's best. Maybe this will prevent an answer to many of the Joek's problems, and some of the Joek's men will remain with the Joek's intentions.

As far as the Joek's minimum charge for the Joek's cafeteria is concerned, I am not in favor of it. I don't believe it was the right way to solve the problem and try to convince everyone why there's no reason to defend the Joek. We must not do it this way. The Joek's problem is so serious and complex. It's a matter of survival.

Dear Editor,

I am sorry to hear that the Joek is in trouble. Many of the Joek's problems are due to the Joek's intentions.

As far as the Joek's minimum charge for the Joek's cafeteria is concerned, I am not in favor of it. I don't believe it was the right way to solve the problem and try to convince everyone why there's no reason to defend the Joek. We must not do it this way. In conclusion, let's be fair and try to express our apologies to the Joek for the Joek's intentions, but do not be adverse to the Joek's intentions. A peaceful solution is in our best interest.

Faculty petition

By Dr. Frank Knittel

On February 15, 1973, the Academic Policies Committee noted that a barroom below the senior senator shall have the privilege of choosing whether to give his or her final examinations in upper division courses immediately prior to graduation. The following conditions are fulfilled: (1) Any major class projects must be completed at least two weeks prior to the final examination week. (2) No extra credit may be applied to a student's grade which would allow him to be excluded from a final examination in any given course; and (3) The major must be achieving an A or B grade in any given course; (4) By request the senior shall be placed in his final grade within the last three days of the semester. (5) The existing grade shall be the final grade. Presently, the senior continues the acceptance of class responsibilities and class appointments until the class terminates. Approval of the senate may be reviewed, overturned, or otherwise considered by the faculty in one of two ways. First, through submission to the senate for its consideration by a majority vote of the senate, or second through a petition signed by at least 20% of the faculty. This petition explicitly states the matter(s) to be considered. Petitions delivered to the president later than four school weeks following the senate action will not be considered.

The president has received a petition signed by more than 20% of the faculty asking that the senate action on senior activities be referred to the general faculty for discussion. The general faculty will discuss this decision at its regular faculty meeting on March 25.

WOP — A 3 man job

By Carol Wilson

"Propotional truth," now the facts of the Scriptures before the Christian living, and squaring with reality—are some of the ideas to be discussed at the Week of Prayer meetings scheduled for March 26-31. Departing from traditional, sermon presentations, this week's service has a new preaching pitch, as did last year's. Three joint speakers, Elder Don Reynolds, president of the Pennsylvania Conference; Ray Greenkey, director of the Gate in Washington, D.C.; and Clarence Schreiber, pastor of a three-church district in northwestern Pennsylvania, will be taking turns at the pulpit in a mini-effect to effectively communicate thoughts on that topic for the week. Juliann Litchfield came up from behind in this week's Student Association elections to win by a large margin of the presidential race, much to his own and everyone else's surprise. Litchfield takes the throne.

The vote totals were 232 for Litchfield and 67 for his opponents. Mike Doherty, with 118 votes, was in third place with 63 votes behind Doherty's "team" concept. The winning team did not work as a team. Neither did the losing team. The contest was between two individuals. The president-elect Litchfield is a junior business major attending SMU this year for the first time. He previously attended here.

Chorale to tour Bass county

Although planned and compared to Noah's deluge, last week's flood was a deluge in every sense of the word. It caused millions of dollars in damage to 8,000 Executives.

Walker reported that in the city approximately 3,000 persons were evacuated and approximately 2,600 homes were hit by the flood. There were 524 families who were not received at the tent city. Dimple, which is at the intersection of the Second Soret and the Second Street, was damaged to several homes.

Mayor Fuller said that although there were no insurance providers covering flood damage, some help might be expected from the national government in the form of relief grants and loans.

Dwight Forrester

Called the flood "in half a century," but work's deluge appeared to be minuscule. Thousands of rain inches of rain fell in the area but Thursday and Friday the Tennessee River was over 2.5 feet above flood level. Instead, it crested at 3.0 feet, reducing the potential for flooding.

Still, the floods and damages were significant. Some buildings were swept into the river, and in the process of flooding, the river increased in viscosity, causing the Treasury to over-flow their banks.

Forrester also said that the flood was not the result of rapid ascent of the levee. Instead, it crested at 3.0 feet, reducing the potential for flooding. Monsoons hinder runners; 527 miles to go

By Bruce Clower

This is your on the spot report of running from Adelaide, South Australia, where advanced runners have already trained from Bali, Indonesia. To date a total of 14,473 miles have been reported leading the runners 25-46 short of the projected total.

A rain of unbroken progress in Indonesia, but fair weather was predicted for the coming days promising to boost the running spirit and raise the needed miles. The main body of runners are reported to arrive in Adelaide.

Here in Adelaide, the weather is still rainy but the skies are clearing and the local residents are preparing a welcome for the marathon world runners. In an effort to reach Adelaide, leaders of the world run sponsored a 5 mile run in which few individuals participated. Of those who did, runner Keith Batters added total of 17 miles while Art Garbor and those runners for the total. The other runners were Terri Cermich, 10 miles;
Keith McHarten, 10; Dom Wilson, 10; Joe Kolenaasto, 10;
Bruce Judd, 5; Lee Hays, 5; Percy Moncor, 1.5; and Cheryl Hay and Linda Taylor, 1. That means that 1256 other students missed a beautiful day to run.

Special congratulations go to Jay Jay Koster, the only girl to finish the five mile marathon run. Times were Keith Batters:

33 min. 31 sec.; Don Wilson: 37 min. 14 sec.; Joe Kolenaasto: 41 min. 56 sec.; and Jay Jay Koster: 44 min. 57 sec.

Many thanks to those who helped, but a special boost to the runners who either aren't reporting or have slowed off. Let's push on.

There are only 32 running days left until the program will be done. Don't slack off now. This reporter will want a daily diary at the end of the program or his editor might make him lose his job. Let's keep up the good work.

Until the runners report, please look into the making habit of the kangaroo—now let's see, the kangaroo is an animal having a large pouchable pocket on his stomach. Maybe he should run.

John Daniel, of the industrial education department, "charmed" a crowd during last Saturday night's faculty talent show. Other acts included a magic routine by R. C. Miller; a vocal solo by Dr. J. L.
Clark; a piano duet, "Country Garden's," a trumpet duet, a chalk drawing exhibition, a saxophone solo, and a reading. The show was planned by the Student Association Program Committee. (Photo by Mark)

Editorial Speaking...

Who said SMC is old-fashioned? Did you mean it, the last to do anything sensible? Who said we don't know how to dress? We are a lot older than we look, although we may not seem as old as we are. This is a fact, not left, they are always dressing up as if it were a play. They have a great deal of spirit, and great a problem this year as in previous years. Surprisingly, the rules against wearing skirts have been enforced. A woman went to the dean's office and said the hair length of the guys is too short. They don't have anyone complaining about this.

Maybe it's better that way, to enforce more rules with the rule of be must be before changing it. These people don't notice the change as much and the tend to go enthusiastically overboard in leniency.

What about beards? At the moment, no at least not yet. To avoid problems such as PAC encouraged last year between student and board members over the board issue, Dr. Knittel feels it wise to wait until the next board meeting scheduled for April and ask their permission to let the faculty make a decision on the matter and thereby verify any possibility of a misunderstanding. If and when the board gives its final go will, the Student Senate and faculty members can then begin to work on a satisfactory solution to the. murder.

Dont sound too good. Well, we'll see. Have faith in the Board.

For those worried about how we stand in relation to our sister colleges, Southwestern Union College and SMC will probably be the only SDA colleges not allowing beards next year.

Environment questioned

The environment here at SMC is beautiful, and it really has been a blessing to me. I never had any idea that I would come here to finish my college work, but, with the help of some doors and here I am. What really impressed me most about SMC is the division of the faculty and staff to God and His Holy Word. This is not the case with a student to know that those who we all know, it is hard to close the door to the student who asks for help and guidance from God. Students (at least, I have heard that this is true in my case) can go to a professor or staff member with a problem and feel sure inside that the individual in question is interested in the well-being of the individual, and will do all they can to give a helpful answer to all problem.

But like all environments there are those things that need to be addressed. This includes the need for a better library, and the need for more study space. The students of SMC need a better place to study, and a better place to study for their courses.

Now my question is this, what is the environment seems to be the stumbling block, why can't the college change places for students to participate in activities like bowling, skating, or miniature golf in an environment that will encourage the character. Is it any shock belief that organ ize and support sports and entertainment for students to be physically, mentally, and most important spiritually. I also feel strongly that the student body should not be placed in the position where they are attempting to or actually lie about their activities. If there is an answer to this grief, please speak boldly on this matter.—Venice Strohman

By Caesar

Somehow, someway, sometime, the student body should have a chance to infiltrate Talley Hall, just to prove that nothing with an ID is a real a chance for being what they want to be. It felt that I might fade out naturally, but I prevailed. Well, in another corner, a physics major denounced on why he was not satisfied with the answer. His premise was that we cannot comprehend how the universe was created, and so how can we comprehend the universe.

As I left, the intellectuals were starting to discuss why foxes have white tips on the ends of their tails. I decided they should discuss "In depth" why people step on all night to talk about anything.

The environment was dead. Maybe living on the north side of the dam has something to do with it. Maybe having only two showers that work is another reason. At any rate, it was dead down there. Like a sign on one door says, "Everybod knowed".

I finally escaped out the back door just as someone in a stopped-up Chevy car came charging in, thirty minutes late for a lecture. I wonder what kind of excuse he'd have for the dev. But I didn't stay up all night worrying about it.

Faculty/seniors romp

Hey, spaghetti, and apple pie greeted the usual of faculty and seniors last Sunday evening as the festivities of the annual Faculty-Senior Banquet got under way.

The banquet was held in the gym which was decorated with bulbs of hay, old kerosene lanterns, and a series of卡通 caricatures of various faculty members shown by Ed Lamb of the behavioral science department.

Jim was present. Doug Brooker thanked the faculty for putting on the banquet and for taking a personal interest in the senior class.

melodrama by Mrs. Malt, a piano solo by Dr. Frank Kniittel who played a slightly dramatic version of "Moonlight Sonata," and a series of cartoon caricatures of various faculty members shown by Ed Lamb of the behavioral science department.

Now will the real Dr. Knittel please stand up.

Waiver revoked

By a vote of 51 to 25, the college senate voted on March 25 to revoke the action of the college senate which permitted the waiver of senior examinations for seniors making at least a B in the three exams. The recommendation was made by the faculty committee and approved by the senate. The action was taken away the right of a teacher to give a final examination was an infringement of a teacher's academic freedom, application of the policy only to students making above a C in certain classes was discrimination and the significance of final examinations as educational experiences.

The recommendation was made to the faculty that if the waiver of the seniors examinations was not rescinded again, it should be closely tied into a thorough study of the entire system and procedure of final examinations.

Orchestra Pianorama

The SMC College Orchestra-directed by Dr. D. Gilbert-has been invited to perform at this year's Pianorama, a music festival for Cl.angton area pianists. Performing March 31 at 7:30 at Memorial Auditorium, the orchestra will play Slavonic Dance Number 8 by Dvorak and Willi Amelles, a Haydn Piano Concerto. A major focus of the attraction is to give every piano student of all levels the opportunity to play in mass. Dr. Gilbert will also direct four of the mass piano concerts.

According to Gilbert, the invitation is a home for the orchestra. Never before has an orchestra been used for this attraction and that is the first time anyone from SMC has participated.

Litchfield plans for next year

"Apparently we have won the confidence of some of the people, now the next step is to win the confidence of the rest," stated president-elect Leclare Litchfield in a special news conference with the news reporting class, March 27.

Outlining some of the ways that he plans to accomplish this, Litchfield said that he felt the faculty, especially the graduating seniors, needed a better program of job placement. According to Litchfield, looking for a job has become "like taking English classes, then refusing baptism."

The problem here, said Litchfield, was whether or not the school was doing enough for the students. There is not enough practical education. To assist in the placement of the seniors, Litchfield suggested a better

WDP emphasizes "How to live"

By Don Granows

"No Longer Strangers" was the title for this week's prayer. This week of prayer was different in several ways, the first being that it is being given by a team of three men instead of the usual three. Don Reynolds, president of the Pennsylvania Conference, Ray Greenley, successor of the founder of "The Gate," and W. Clarence Shilborn, pastor of a church district in Northwest Pennsylvania, are giving the work of prayer.

The three just finished recently a Senior Youth Quarterly for 1974, on which they spent a minimum of thirty hours per week working together. Another big difference is the fact that all three of them were here at SMC talking to students, faculty, and anyone else they met asking what kind of work of prayer they have. They came up with what most people seem to feel. As Elder Reynolds put it, "People are getting tired of being told what to do in the Christian experience." And, what should happen-they want to know how to do, and live. "People don't just want to hear about it, that's enough, you need to experience it," said Greenley. The experience is not enough practical Christianity, too much theoretical, everyone saying it should be, but hardly anyone really experiencing it to the fullest extent.

The morning meetings were given by one of the men, while the evening meetings were a little less formal, and followed by a series of talks, after which Elder Reynolds would talk to the group of people about the new group, and the things that go on with the organization, and everyone was asked to say a prayer after the talk. The meetings were very helpful, and everyone felt that they would be "like to relate to the young people" which is why he chose the other two men, who have worked together in the program called "Quest."

W. Hanson explains veto

Final senior exams was the topic of much discussion at the Student Association senate meeting on Monday, March 26. Dr. Hanson, chairman of the math department, was there to explain to the senators Hanson as to why the already passed policy was revoked. (See his "Rectifying the Math Policy." ) The policy, basically, was that a senior making an A in all four fields in an upper-division course could waive the final exam if he wanted.
Another flood; 500 seniors

Approximately 500 academy seniors from 13 different academies and high schools in the Southern Union are expected to participate in College Days April 8-10 according to Mrs. Lois Mickle of college relations.

Those seniors arriving between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Sunday will be escorted on campus by the customary parade from Four Corners.

New activities to this year's College Days will include an art exhibit Sunday morning, under the direction of the art department and featuring SMC students, and a kite flying contest Sunday afternoon from 1-4, sponsored by the Student Activities Committee.

Sunday and Monday evenings at 8:00 they will be entertained by a Ferrante and Fitchett concert and the best acts from the student and faculty talent programs.

All day Monday and Tuesday will be spent in the traditions quest for information regarding work, classes and college life in general.

In all it will be a busy two and a half days for our 500 guests.

It is hoped that the new cafeteria facilities can accommodate our guests and students better than in years past.

Sovex spreads 4-way grant

The business department last January received a grant from Sovex, Inc. The continuing grant of $2,000 was suggested by Sovex.

Dr. Wayne Vandervoot, chairman of the business department, said Sovex is interested in the school and wanted to help in some way.

The grant is divided into two parts, $1,500 for student scholarships and $500 for equipment for the department.

The scholarship money is stipulated to be given to other accounting or business majors. The scholarships themselves are cash for $500 and are allotted by the department to students, a senior and a junior.

This year Don Wilson, senior; Joan Copeland, junior; and Cheryl Hay, sophomore, received the scholarships.

The $500 allotted to the department was spent this year on typewriter equipment.

April 16 target date;
Finishing touches near completion;
Cafeteria sports ultimate innovations

By Ken Wilson

The first meal served in the new cafeteria will probably be on April 16, reports food service director Grange. The previous date was March 11, when spring sunshine ended, but there was too much involved in the completion. The finishing touches are the main holdup now, and there may be some finished such as doors, the tentative opening date of April 16. Grange said that if all went well, the cafeteria may be opened during the week prior to April 16.

Regarding the modernization of the new complex, the new cafeteria will feature the utmost in innovations. Microwave ovens will not be used due to some recently discovered radiation problems in the area, but cooking will be speeded up by the use of ovens with fans which will force the heat into the food.

The ovens are also lower because food is heated at oven temperature naturally.

Besides the ovens and fans, very little equipment is in the present cafeteria will be used in the new one. The new machinery is being stored and installed there now. The equipment present in use has already been sold, pending the opening of the new cafeteria.

The scramble system — which is not designed for many checkers but instead is designed for the flat rate system — will be used. A line will be formed outside of the scramble area, but once a person is inside the scramble area there will be no lines to wait in, because he can go to whatever deck of food he desires, whether it be beverages, cold food, hot food, desserts, salads, etc. When the checking system is not used, this system serves 250 people per minute, but it is planned that 20 people may be served even though checkers will be used.

There has been a rising number of students eating at the cafeteria since this semester has begun. An average of 100 more students are eating the noon meal now that were last semester, with the same increased ordering at the supper meal.

So, progress is being made, as any resident of Talke can testify, judging by the checker, flag and trench lines around the dorms.

Phones to be hooked Dirt, flags, trenches promise one-to-one offensive

By Mark Nicholson

Although no one seems to know for certain when the telephones will be hooked up in Talge Hall, rumor has it that the phones should be installed a week or two after the opening of April 16. All rooms do have phones installed.

So, progress is being made, as any resident of Talke can testify, judging by the checker, flag and trench lines around the dorms.

It seems that something must be happening. Also in the making are talks of conducting floor-to-floor telephone warfare, for example, third floor will phone the fourth floor next morning, a sort of one-on-one offensive. A "phone-y war," if you please. All of this course is more speculation and not fact.

At this point, the only certain conclusion is that we will have to just wait and see what the future brings.

Extra worship, T.V. privileges:
Outcome of council

By Carol Wilson

Two major accomplishments can be attributed to initial recommendations of the Residence Hall Council in Talge Hall, according to Mrs. Florence Backey, dean of women.

First is the newly instituted 3-day worship on Monday and Tuesday nights. After the council suggested this option be made available to the girls, Mrs. Backey called a special meeting to the Student Affairs Committee. Here she was informed that, because it was a matter that pertained solely to the dorm, she could proceed with whatever action she wished. So the late evening worship study sessions were begun two times weekly.

Second is the more frequent presence of the television in the second floor lobby, which was also requested by the council. When asked how the program is monitored, Mrs. Backey said that she has appointed two dorm students to set up "young men" dealing with the program to be watched for the following week. Although the list is submitted to her for final approval, she said that she rarely has to make any changes before giving it in the lobby.

Mrs. Backey expressed real appreciation for the council’s work and suggested that she felt it was accomplishing the task for which it was established.

"Girls go to their RA’s when they have a problem, they go to their council representative when they have a "pipe,"" she sincerely getting down to some of the petty-grain complaints that are on the girls’ minds."
Big sister expands

By Carol Wilson

It all began about three weeks ago with a few concerned people and a small Christmas party for thirteen orphaned girls. It was the Big Sister project, a first and mini campus throng of SMC (Student Project in Recitation Activities for Youth), which has taken an organized form and a positive direction.

Linda K. (Purdy), sophmore behavioral science major, coordinator of the program, explains what happened. "When we had the circle for some of the Beany Oaks girls prior to Christmas, we had found special Christmas collections, we had no idea what would result."

"But a few days afterwards, some of the dorm kids who had participated began asking if and when they would be able to see these girls again. It was at this point, when we saw theotional attachment that had developed over a short period of time, that we realized the possibilities for these challenges that lay before us."

Soon after this, the approximately twenty SMC "Big Sisters" involved began the practice of visiting their children once a week. During this time at the orphanage, usually two to three hours on Sunday afternoon, they play games, talk, and generally try to communicate with love and care for the individual child in a one-to-one basis.

Many of the Big Sisters have also been visiting Beany Oaks on Mondays, especially for the purpose of teaching their child in schoolwork on the one who desires it, and that is possible. Students, however, are not restricted to these two nights, but are encouraged to go as often as possible if they can provide their own transportation. And mother is this program limited to the women on campus. For any guys who may be interested, there is a Big Brother program currently being organized that will operate similarly to the Big Sister project. According to Kit, there is no limit as to how large this project could expand.

"All we need are more dedicated students who are sensitive to the needs of others and are willing to give up a small portion of their time to make someone else happy. It's hard for us to realize, but loving and caring for these children are giving these people something which they have experienced very little of in their days of life. It's such a small sacrifice for the rewarding results," concluded Kit.

Anyone wishing to become involved in either the Big Sister or Big Brother programs is asked to contact Kit at Jones Hall.

"The fruit of the Spirit," said Lucas to the 36 nursing students. "What really matters is what happens in you rather than what happens to you."

Three ways were emphasized by Elder Lucas for the development of a Christian Life: Bible reading, prayer, and sharing your faith.

Elder Lucas and his wife were in Wales vacationing a week before combining their efforts toward Orlando's Spring Week of Prayer. Their doors were open all night and day for students to come and talk when they wished.

Kathy Roma commented, "I've never heard anyone speak on the Fruits of the Spirit before. This work has really helped me use them in a new light."

Teen house to open

The New Testament Witnessing program, begun here in September, has blossomed into a full scale church program in Houston.

Some have thought that SMC students have been the backbone of the newly formed congregation but during the recent spring vacation the attendance was up to normal Sabbath when few students were around. However, SMC students have been real leaders there, and without the year-round support and leadership the spirit these would not be as strong as it is.

Chuck Lauer, after months of searching, has located a house in a business/residential district on Houston Place to be used in catering to a youth ministry for the teenagers. The tentative opening date is in the middle of April. Although different in nature from the coffee house approach, the program will be planned by Luster and Chapel Cummings is a very attractive and workable one.

This summer 4 SMC students will be on scholarship from the Co-Cumberland Conference and will be having involved training in Houston. If more are interested, that number may go up to 6. These students and their phase of ministry in Houston will be announced in a future issue of the Southern Accent.

Orlando-Land of Promise or giants

By Andrea Dickinson

"Get thee out of this soil, and from thy kindred and from thy father's house, into a land that I will show thee. And I will make thee of great men, and I will bless thee, and make thee an hundred thousand of men, and Thou shalt be a blessing."

So the company departed as the Great Voice commanded, filled with rejoicing and anticipacion. For the spies had returned from the Land of Promise saying, "Surely the land flows with milk and honey, warm weather abounds on the beaches and lakes thereof. Then dast sit in the shade of the palm tree and under which shade you shall eat good things."

But none told of the giants that dwelt in the land the city walled and great. And it came to pass, when all days had ended, there was walking and grasping of teeth throughout the land. People were raining to and fro, not knowing what they were doing. The giants were indeed strong, bullying heavy tasks that brought blood upon the bow of many.

There was one certain giant dwelling in the Promised Land called "Inconsistency." His influence was undesirable, persecuting the living quarters and study conditions and breaking down all attempts of concentration.

The walls were indeed great, confusing all but the most determined climbers. And behold scroll of tidings and new propositions from the Great Voice took many, many days to reach the small company and the paper crumpled with age.

Landing and success perched on the camp of nurses and a dry, went forth from among the giants. The giants, great with knowledge in all things, modulated their voices together. Even tears of sorrow fell upon their eyes, and many were struck down.

Ambassador sent by the Great Voice came and went, but all were bound and tied. The giants, in fear of one unlooked, did recognize themselves, but the burdens were heavy still and Inconsistency still reigned. Moreover, one fell branch, the land, and the small company gathered themselves together, taking the lead of the Great Voice.

Upon dry pass, the giants began to shout, but the company just smiled and heard not. There was a great lack of understanding. Even intercessors were urged with giant indignation. "This is the land of the Giants," and the small company grew smaller.

And behold all measured or hid that was lacking in all good things — polarized, except the Great Voice.

Approximately 1,400 persons turned out for the last Faith for Today Crusade in downtown Pittsburgh held Sunday. The remaining SMC orchestra and the New Life Singers will perform several songs "Will the Old Book Stand?" "Tampering with the Bible," "Top of the World," and "The Great Question God Cannot Answer." Poor photos

Dear Editor:

I realize that every photograph cannot be the pride of an SMC beauty contest, but I think that a photograph should not create a situation before it is allowed to go to press.

Someone is going to have a hard time identifying the 1972-73 senior class officers by the picture in the February 23 edition of your paper. Ten years from now students will call Don Wheeler "Ollie-Divided Face" and Leslie Lewis "White Teeth."
The photograph is now history, and I'm afraid it is an editor you will be more discerning in the history you choose to preserve.

Sincerely,
Mark Dresnam

Fallen signpost

Dear Editor:

As an academy student, one of the things I enjoyed doing was visiting a college campus. The thought that real college students assembled for chapel in this building, or studied the sciences in that one_fascinated me. But the building and imagine what it might be like to be a college student and sit in one of those rooms and listen to a college professor lecture.

Every time I would come up to a new building, the first thing I would look for was the name of the building and the subjects studied there. The identifying sign or plaque seemed to give the building a sense of belonging to be college—a fitting part of a campus.

If you visit SMC today it is an academy student, and fondly remember by Lavenwood Hall, I believe I would wonder if the people of this institution ever cared that the signposts were once there, trying to be up to par.

Sincerely,
Richard Helm

Pantsless needed

Dear Editor:

I wish that the girls could wear pantsuits, even if it were allowed only four months out of the school year. Many girls need to be closer to the upper part of the body.

She even described a pantsuit, called a reform dress, which she thought was nice. It was slacks, worthily lined, and a longer one. I'm sure that if we were pantsuits that cover the "posterior," we wouldn't be interested, either.

The school certainly isn't enforcing the dress code, that's for sure, but must it punish their students by making them go out in freezing weather wearing nothing on their legs but hose?

Carol Clark

*10 charge unfair

Dear Editor:

I believe it is a loss of personal liberty to have to pay $10 for a cafeteria food.

To look at this from a different aspect, I feel that our education should be a preparation for practical things we will meet in life, not just for a career. I didn't have much cooking practice before I came to college. Now I'm thankful I could do my cooking in the dorm last fall, not only because I cut my fondle bill by approximately 1/3 but also because I didn't have to learn on my husband this year and burn things for him.

I look at college in the dorm as a good way to improve your skill without making other people taste bad and stomachs on soggy entrées or a fish that's hard as a brick. I didn't take much cooking or nutrition because I didn't try my program. I could leave without the tuition charge by reading books on the subject, and by everyday practice. And nothing can breath practice (and I don't mean once or twice a week in a lab with someone telling you what you need to know).

You sure those pushing the charge on us don't mean to be against the students. But I hope they can see our viewpoint how it will cause financial burdens and reduce our knowledge outside of classes if students aren't giving us our own cooking, if they so choose.

Sincerely,
Louise

Girls need lights

Dear Editor:

I wish to express strong feelings concerning the lighting around the dorms and over the entire campus. Everyone has heard about the girl who was stabbed several weeks ago. Many excuses could be made for this happening, but I feel that the incident should never have happened.

This campus is dark and semi-dark in various areas over the college, entirely too dark for a girl or two of fifty.

Why hasn't the track been lighted right before now, because no actual body injury was ever made known? An area greater, does not attack another, but scaring girls appear to be fun in a way of fifty.

What could we do to remedy this situation? I know, we could wear cow bells around our necks, better yet, wear foghorns with grenade and knapsack in hand. Whatever our jokes, the problem still exists, and I think some thought should be carried on in the near future.

Come on girls, get going for a worthy cause: "The life you save may be yours own."

Sincerely,
Denise Porter

SMC-poor winners

Dear Editor:

During the Van Cliburn concert I was amazed. Sitting next to a visitor from East Germany made me more acutely conscious of the differences of the music on the part of some of our students.

I was in K-5, not a very good seat to begin with, but made worse by the obvious lack of interest of some people listening. Listened more and the consequent club that half the way through the piece, far too busy to be able to find two seats near the front, but managed to find spots, with visitors who paid $3.50 for the privilege of hearing Van Cliburn, the calling prices.

Incidentally, I am pleased to have saved the atmosphere of a concert hall but being a gymnast would have, of course, account for that.

But there comes a horse that cannot be controlled, or a girl friend who wants to lay her head on her boy friend's shoulder while he whispers sweet nothings into her ear, why do they have to choose a program in which to do it, particularly of the one presented Saturday night?

I realize students ticket out them only fifty cents and there was probably nowhere else for them to go. I also realize that the number of those who did that as the occasion demanded far working schedules and不大 but it is a pity that this witness Southern Missourians to the numerous distractions is spoiled by the few. Can anything be done to educate them? "In our neighborhood, it certainly would have been better had they never attended.

Sincerely,
AN OBSERVER

Industry coverage

Dear Editor:

Since many students work at the McKee Baking Company and the Meeks-Young College, surely there should be some periodical space (even a month in a meek's column) devoted to the working force.

As an Accent has covered such important matters as telephones in the USA, and society, etc, and on and on, I am sure many students have complained, and I have been only larger. It is important for their peers their views. I feel we are not only in the vicinity to be heard by our employers. Many pressures are put on students to work more hours and work harder. And certainly they may be exposed to our looks in just plain trash.

I feel the students should have some kind of representation. I think it would be a step in the right direction in the way we could have a group of committee to be appointed to represent us, the working students.

Let us blow off some steam and get some things off our chest. Have some students write to the paper and if there are others who might feel the way I do, please don't stay back and think to yourself, "Well, nobody else has written to express such matters." Take the initiative and get the ball rolling.

Husband hunters.

Dear Editor:
I have been wondering about the problem of Mrs. Diggins for a while sometime now, and maybe she is of the same way. I have had faculty members explain about how big a problem we have here over this campus, but only a small fraction of the students are involved in this multi-center. The students are involved, but then why is it that we get upset when some people? It seems like a lot of things that we can be confused about, and it is no use to me that girls and we have enough rots to fill that adding this extra worry. Women are now, the teacher girls try too, in your pressure, and all for the same reasons. I think to begin to feel there is something dreaded to be if we are not dating, we will be able to do this. It is really no wonder that the attitude to date because the ability for the students to be "Husband hunters." Being a student in a coed school, establishing themselves financially, and also that a normally expected relationship may end Abner. After all, the divorce is one out of two marriages.

Attitude Hogwash

Dear Editor:
I think this all talk about disgustments and spirit is a bunch of hogwash. All that printing it up in theAccent does is make people wonder about the others. Now, if you write it for the Accent, you can find something in every bit about everyone. Why don't you print something that all the good students have done? There are plenty of them. Why not start looking for them?
Sincerely,
Julie Bridges

Criticized criticism

Dear Editor:
The Accent seems to sponsor a great deal of negative comments about all the students involved in those many and terribly misinformed students. I haven't found anything truly wrong with my understanding and, the students seem to be more or less human. Never have I noticed any conscious trends toward bad attitudes, and courtesy seems to be as popular as a ketchup on a Boy Scout. Instead of making jokes, I've written this as an expression of my personal need.
Sincerely,
Karin Hoenig

To the Editor:
I am ashamed by your article by Caesar. Could I have been more than around angry myself?
Do you really believe that we, as striving college students, take "sincere" notice to an article by a dog? Too long we have hidden behind a facade such as Caesar, too long we have had, "This is just the way we please don't quote me." How long will we degrade deeply feel human emotions by authorizing them as thoughts of a dog?
I sincerely hope that one day in the near future, we really want our opinion to be respected because they are our "opinions" (not because they are voted respectably), that we only want our opinions "noticed" and right.
Sincerely,
Dominic Blanchard

To the editor of the Accent:
I find many of the articles on the back page of the Accent are well written, and I enjoy reading the amusing and, many times, true criticisms.
But I do find one thing lacking, at times, in the paper. Editor Vanden brought this to my attention a few weeks ago at the academy Youth Congress. He emphasized the concept of not thinking "what" so much, but thinking "how."
If half the energy spent on pointing out what is wrong with the school, what is wrong with our society, was used instead on how to improve things, we might mend some problems. Constructive criticism is constructive. Thank you.
R. Norkov

Dear Editor,
I am tired of all the feedback to the editor complaining about everything imaginable. Why can't some people write about something good once in a while instead of ranting on the school down all the time and complaining about the faculty?
Students choose to come here, and they know the rules, but can't seem to go along with them. Also, I know that most of the faculty are doing more than their part to make SMC a better school, and most of the students appreciate this, but of course some don't.
Let's forget about all the things we don't like and start looking at the brighter side of life.
Sincerely,
Carol Brown
Hugging cactus is
A ticklish Situation

By O. E. Cear
I’ve had a terrible week. Tuesday was the worst, but Wednesday was a close second. Wednesday was the day I got the letter saying I had been seen by the night watchman at exactly 11:27 and one-half, and perhaps I’d better come in and see Dean Spars about the matter. Perhaps sometime Thursday evening? Well, one thing I have to say, they sure don’t waste time. So I went to see him. First, let me tell you what happened to cause all that, maybe you can even profit by my mistake. You know, someone told me once that there are two classes of people in the world; those who want to do well, but aren’t red and guilty because they want to be bad, and those who do bad and feel guilty because they are afraid they’ll get caught. Well, I’m of the latter category.
But Tuesday morning I was reading my Chattanooga News-Free Press and happened on TV schedules. I saw that there was going to be a particularly good Luxic show, and I have always admired her, so right away I started thinking of the house I could go to where I could watch the program. You wouldn’t have it—you wild? The Knutille wouldn’t have it—all we do in the evening is read or passages of Chance (I’ll tell you more about that next time), so there could be no way.
Finally, I thought of a friend who had a trailer court. (People there do all sorts of things that dorm students only dream of.) I said I was going to do some research at the Library of Nighttime TV over to the trailer park. Fantastic. The movie wasn’t over till 11, but I chose a night, either to pretend I was reading or to go to sleep and probably get caught, or sneak around and maybe not get caught, and braved what the night watchman knew won’t bother me.
I was trucking along by the gymnastics when all of a sudden I saw the watchman coming over the hill from the church. I think it was Tim Thomas, who isn’t normally a bad guy, but at 11:15 he’ll go out of his mind! I dived for the bushes and discovered right away why there were brushes planted around the buildings. They aren’t there for ornamentation, they are there for hiding cactus. Tim is pretty good. He spotted me and went on in a hundred feet away, of course I won’t forget that freshman asking a girl for a date. He shone his light on me and asked what I was doing late at night. I assured him I would rather be anywhere else, “like horse in a basket.” He was nice light, but how can you be and still be thoroughly empty.
Anyway, he escorted me all the way to my house and woke Dr. Knutille up when he tripped over the hose that had been left out because someone had gone out to fetch Masterpieces class in a hurry. All in all I had a good evening, and when I got home to the trailer park. Fantastic.

Disney compliments SMC band members

By Warren Ruf
With sin blushed faces and cherry cheeks like recent takers at a tugger box in 1956 corset Band, after a five-day tour, returned to Collegeville Tuesday at 6:00.
The half day at Dunky World ranked number one of the most enjoyed list. After marching down Main Street, U.S.A., the band gave a concert at a conceptional pavilion. It was so windy that the music stands kept falling over. A Burning of the candle said the band was the most precise as he had seen, and heartily invited them back.
The most unpleasant part of the trip was arriving minutes after a two-car collision on Southern Florida’s Somnambule Parkway. Two people were killed or impact. Lynn Car- penter, senior clarinetist, said, finding one of the injured choking, aided his breathing and applied pressure to stop bleeding. A helicopter soon arrived to carry the man to hospital.

Carnival to be Held

The Student Park will be the site of Collegeville’s first craftsmen’s carnival, the Purple Egg Arts & Crafts Fair, to be held April 21 — Easter Sunday.

According to Les Hew, pres- ident of the Arts & Crafts Fair, currently enrolled college student can show his work. Awards for the best shows will be given to students from Alabama and Cuba. The prizes will be presented at the Art and Craft Fair.

The idea, incubated and hatched by the Student Association, will be an annual event.

There will be three prizes given; first prize of $150, a second prize of $25, and a third prize of $10. There will be a "best show" and presented to "best show." The award for "best show" will be awarded by the judges of the Arts & Crafts Fair.

April 3 the College Senate will meet to decide what the judges and/or the president of the College Senate will decide who will have the privilege of selecting the "best show." The students will also discuss the names of specific individuals to fill committee vacancies.

"Perhaps it is the weather, or maybe the time of year, or perhaps it's the "time of man," but something is wrong with school going. I somehow feel that the time comes in the fall, a few observations about school, schooling, and the end results of school. This may be a hasty judgment, and even though I've had my share of teacher-induced bruises and boos, (and a few of them were my own fault), I'm concerned. This is the final diagnostic. "education" was not worth the effort.

I haven't lived my whole life, so I have no one to thank but my teachers for their sincere help, etc., yet I have this nagging idea that in my case, at least, somehow, somehow- whatever is normal educational process hasn't fulfilled its purpose with me. Grade school was not a bad experience, and only in retrospect can I see the motives of certain teachers who had little else in mind but to conform classroom conformity for the sake of "standardization and systematic education." I do not blame them totally, but it worries me when the present teacher, lacking knowledge of the doors of learning and perception thereof all it away just to satisfy the "status quo" of education. Since school is an experience full of conflict, stifling and exhaling the time. "Life" was kept away from me as much as possible. Mental control and conditioning are more important than the reasons why. All in all, the education was never trouble, if not at that time, then later.

When I came to college, I thought that at last I would find people who were more willing with their personal experience. I was wrong. They would help me on my side, but it was not the same as the "help" I got at school. This is the only time I have a feeling of being left alone at school or being teacher to a student and a teacher to succeed in "education." I have to play the role I am told. And that is not too bad, not only for me, but for all of us.

I support any teacher who can vouch for their students. When a teacher can't hear out other voices, that teacher is not doing their job in an efficient way. I have had a few self-developing classes. Collecting intellectual data is not enough, there is something wrong.

In some cases, I think that specialization, any specialization that divides an individual that avenue of growth must bear the responsibility for the destruction of individual. That and a weight I wouldn't want to bear. MKM

You can grow (On your own)

Lawrence Histon, Professor of Mathematics

On several different occasions during the past few years the Student Senate has submitted proposed to the Academic Freedom Committee which, under certain circumstances, would exempt unions from final examina-tions in courses taken the semester immediately preceding graduation. To my knowledge no other Adventist college has such a policy nor many other colleges and universities. In the past, such proposals have been rejected here with little failure by the faculty. This year's proposal was more carefully thought out and drawn up and much more vigorously promoted by S.A. leaders than in favorably votes in the Academic Policies Committee and the facul-ty senate, turned down by a 51 to 25 margin in Sunday's meeting of the faculty assembly. It was taken to the faculty assembly on the basis of a petition signed by thirty-eight teachers.

Even those of us who were sympathetic to this particular cause were favorably impressed by the way the students presented their case. They were ag-gressive, yet inoffensive. They fought hard and were under-standably disappointed by Sunday's vote.

What was the proposal voted down by the faculty? In my opinion there was one overriding reason. It interferes upon the teacher's academic freedom. A teacher's goal is to promote learning whether it be a skill, factual information, the interrelation-ship of ideas, or approaches to problem solving. To accomplish this task he needs various instructional techniques involving assignments, written assign-ments, reading, discussions, films, quizzes, and examinations, to name some of them. The value of these is analyzed and judged, by the students, and the students, and the students, and the students.

SMC has a good course program. Yet there is little space in the course room for examination under the given circumstances. This is an amount of time needed to prepare for them—needed to plan careful. If I were a student I would be able to prepare for three or more examinations at one time. Here, they are given a week or two of vacation, and then the week of graduation is often determined solely by a final examination. While I do not concur with this practice, I would hesitate to enact a policy which prohibits a teacher from following it or at least give considerable weight to a final examination, especially in upper division courses.

As a student I found reviewing for a comprehensive final examination to be an extremely important part of my semester's work. It was a time when I used to read the textbook, rather than just the texts. It was a time to study in the context of the comprehensive final examinations. I was led to believe that if I attended class and took good notes, and if I spent time studying, I would be able to get a high grade in the course. I believe that the course is not worth the time and effort if I do not receive a grade that is comparable to the amount of time and effort I put into it. If a course is not worth the time and effort, I would prefer not to take it.

The faculty Great

An understanding faculty one that will cooperate with and encourage a student who is truly interested in the course. As it is often stated, "be worth-while," is a little different. We would like to see a faculty that is willing to help and guide the students.
500 Seniors arrive for College Days

By Daryl Lohudington

Over 500 academy and high school seniors are expected to arrive at SMC this weekend for the 500 Seniors College Days, according to William Taylor, director of college relations.

"We've really got a good line-up for them this time," Taylor said, outlining the main events of the weekend.

The event is split into two over-200 planning on the part of the Student Association.

The band will be playing as early as Friday and from as far away as Miami, New York, and Ohio. The main body of seniors, however, will come Sunday morning from the four main colleges in the College Union and stay until Tuesday morning.

The program begins with a welcome parade Sunday morning when the band will escort the floats from the core to the mall where the seniors will be introduced to the college. The parade will consist of a College Band, a special parade, the various clubs on campus. These parades ($25, $15, and $10) will be awarded for the best decorated cars.

Sunday afternoon will include a grand tour of the campus, the S.A. sponsored kicking contest, baseball recreation, and a special reception with the dorm groups. Later, the seniors will be asked to the Feast and Teas Court.

A special entertainment will be held Monday morning so that the seniors may have the opportunity to meet the department heads and talk with them. The afternoon will include a trip to see the new college building in the North Outlook by the industrial education class. Taylor said that the college hopes to encourage greater interest in this area next year and include home or students by letting them fully decorate the homes which the industrial students build.

Everyone is asked to meet that evening in the church for a joint worship service, which the college orchestra under the direction of Otto Gilbert will perform. Then, on to the gym where the visiting seniors will enjoy a student-faculty talent program interspersed with performances by the college chorale and band. The talent program will consist of the best entries from the students and faculty talent programs performed earlier this year.

For those seniors who want to join a special tour to Lookout Mountain Tuesday morning will be provided, and Taylor, otherwise, most of the visiting students will return to their academies, or, continue on with their class trips.

Taylor said that out of the 500 seniors visiting SMC during this College Days, about 600, or 300, could be expected to return as freshmen next year.

"College Days has always been a tradition at SMC," added Taylor, "and the visiting seniors generally enjoy the attention and interest the college shows to them. And this is good."

SMC Concert Band Plays to Florida in March

By Kerry Pettit

Within the month of March, the SMC Concert Band, under the direction of Dr. Jack McClary, assistant professor of music, has given a total of ten concerts of sacred and secular music. The locations of the concerts given range from Monterey, Mexico, to Miami, Florida. The main purpose for both the California and Florida tours was to emphasize the need for "Christian Education," with special emphasis on the musical part of it.

Even though the busy month of March is over, the month of April is here and the band is just as active as March. Tonight, the band will be performing for the Fruit and Today, a country home being held at the Trovola Theatre in Chattanooga. This concert will feature selections taken from the sacred concert given by the band earlier this year.

On April 28, the band will be presenting their annual spring band concert. The special performing guests of the band will be the college gymnastics team, who will present a 15 minute portion of the program.

After the spring concert the SMC Band will have ended its 1972-73 performance season. The total of concerts will have reached 25 for this year and plans for the 1973-74 band are already in the making.

Band-watchers visit Florida

By E. O. Grandstaff

The band-watchers, under the direction of instructor, Dr. E. O. Grandstaff, logged over 2000 miles and 150 concerts in the Florida area. The students are well known and recognized for their performances and the band's reputation is such that they are constantly asked to perform at the many beaches and college campuses.

At the present time, rain is falling because it's the last week of the rainy season. Reports from Collegegale say that this is the worst rain in the Florida area for the past 100 years. The students have been asked to stay at home and not perform any concerts.

The band will be on tour again in the spring of 1973 and will be performing in the southern states and in the Midwest.

Caesar barks back

By Caesar

Friend's, there's one thing I'd like to talk about at the present moment, and that is about how everybody hates me. Now that may be a subject which you don't think I would mention, but, then, I've been on the wrong end of some very twisted logic recently.

Last issue of SMC's biggest news source, "Accent," contained a whole lot of thinking that caused some minds that obviously hadn't been touched by "Read the World in 80 Days" exorcist. In other words, there are some folks out there with a urge to put me in the dog house.

It seems that I have garnered a really bad reputation for really bad puns. That is unwarranted, unnuanced, and unfair. As to the charge that this column is not "really," I doubt that anyone on this campus would want a paper with repetitious words.

Maybe some of Temple's first-floor assistants would welcome an "all-plan school" paper, but by and large, we really don't want to know reality. Like who wants to think about the poverty that literally surrounds our "valley"? We don't want too big of nipples on our heads.

What Will They Think?

Further down the gauntlet, I see that one of Temple's best young residents is worried about what others will think of our school policies. In the future, I agree, I can see his point. I would urge him to stay up with the visual shoddiness that sometimes overshadows our paper. This is the age of cheap-think. I'm sure College Comp teachers have noticed that.

Moving right along, another dear soul wrote about how a whole issue of the "Accent" had gone to the dogs! Well, I wouldn't want to back up the garbage truck, but to be frank, I suspect jowlsy, I can hear the noise of all those pictures, "the Accent" sure wastes our money. Ad infinitum.

Stale ACCENT

Well friends, I don't want to totally destroy the myth you're with, but this year's "Accent" has been more "stable," cost less than recent years, and even tries to present more than one side of an issue.

I hate to take away the whipping-boy you love the most, but just because the "Accent" comes out and drops around once a week doesn't mean it's just a sissing duck. The "Accent" is not designed to be a paper for intellectual interplay. If you want that, subscribe to IQ. (I Quit)

Want to feel your IQ? Think about the danger of cigarette smoking, then pick a day to quit, an IQ. Day. That bit of good health advice comes from your American Cancer Society.

Dr. Fatcher gives consultative advice to complaining Caesar.

The job of this paper is to report campus-oriented news, and sometimes make you think. Now if pinking you think makes you mad, then friend, I want to make you safe.

One of the real dangers was the idea of "It's not my nasty things about SMC's say construcive things..." That reminds me of the doctor saying to the nurse, "The patient needs help, but let's not think about the condition!" He's so employer that the patient is still breathing..."

I would be the first to state that SMC is a nice school. I like it, but that doesn't mean I can't think or see. Really now, why pretend that we've reached perfection here in College Dale?

There's A Real World Out There

If SMC cannot stand some criticism, then I am worried about its health. You know we can't battle our misconceptions forever. There's a real world out there, and whether we want to admit it or not, a bit of "imperfection" exists. The College Dale has no faults to deal with the reality of being human. I don't mean to mean, but that's perfect. Office when people are eager to emphasize the "good" parts...some conditions are the worst. Check out the political jargon for comparisons.

I looked through the "Joker," (whose pages are now very close-bound) and found no inspiration for a closing paragraph, but all I could find was a crossing of lines...sometimes they don't talk the truth. Finally, as this can't get beat, so I don't know the importance of dogs. They're man's best friends.
Editorially Speaking...

Two weeks ago, you, the student body, elected the Student Association officers for next academic year. I want to congratulate you on your involvement in the S.A. and thank you for taking the time to vote. Our school has much to offer, and I hope you'll consider running for office in the future.

Letters useful

Dear Editor: I was very interested in, and sometimes amused, by "College Cop: Students Sound Off." But I would say that the majority of the letters were more or less "boredom breakers," an empty tree.

All I can think about are the college students who are doing little or nothing constructive. After all, we all pride ourselves on being seekers after excellence. So what if a person did nothing except sit in the Student Center or attend a few class lectures? Would the world be any worse off as a result? I would say that it might even be a little better, for the world would be a little more quiet, and the noise would be a little more agreeable.

As for the college students who are doing little or nothing constructive, they should consider themselves as "boredom breakers," a group of individuals with no purpose or goal.

Brian sings new song

Dear Editor:

After recovering from the shock of reading last week's edition of "Toni Courter's Column: Your Own," I read it through from beginning to end. I must say, it seemed as though you had written this column specifically for me.

As a student in the Communications Department, I have had the opportunity to work with many talented and creative people. I have learned a great deal from them, and I am grateful for the experience.

I am interested in learning more about your work and how you arrived at your current position. I would be happy to meet with you to discuss these matters further.

Sincerely,

Brian Courter

The statement "Moral controls were more important than the academic program itself." is a crucial point in the argument. It is clear that the individual, the society, and the government all play a role in shaping moral values. I believe that the statement is well-supported by evidence, and it is a topic that should be discussed further.

In conclusion, the article "Moral controls were more important than the academic program itself." is a well-written piece that presents a compelling argument. It is a topic that deserves further discussion and exploration.

John Smith

Students have the right to express their opinions and to engage in discourse with others. This is a fundamental principle of a democratic society. It is important to foster an environment where students can express their thoughts and ideas freely.

Sincerely,

John Smith

Long live Caesar

Dear Editor:

I am a Caesar fan-unashamedly so. I believe that the character is a projection of the ideal of the Roman Empire, and that he represents the perfect ruler.

Caesar was a man of action, someone who did not merely talk but actually took action to achieve his goals. He was a man of vision, someone who saw the potential for greatness in Rome and worked to bring it to fruition.

In my view, Caesar's greatest achievement was his vision for Rome. He saw that Rome could be a great power, and he worked tirelessly to make that vision a reality.

But Caesar was also a man of the people. He was a leader who understood the needs and desires of his citizens, and who worked to meet those needs.

In conclusion, I believe that Caesar was a great man, and that his legacy lives on to this day. Let us remember him for all that he was, and for all that he could have been.

Sincerely,

Joe Smith

What We Can Do

Right now, without learning a new thing from the research findings of 100,000 additional dollars (yes, there is a research project on the American Cancer Society's website), we can help our patients gain access to early diagnosis and prompt, proper treatment. We can save the lives of many women who are in the cancerous stages.

Warning Signal

Women who are in the cancerous stages of their disease are often unaware of the symptoms. But there are some early warning signals that can help.

Lumps:

A lump in the breast is the most common early warning signal. It may be a hard or soft knot, a thickening or a painless mass. Women should check their breasts regularly for lumps.

Nipple changes:

Changes in the nipple, such as discharge, inversion, or retraction, can be a sign of cancer. Women should check their nipples regularly for any changes.

Soreness:

Soreness in the breast or in the underarm area can be a sign of cancer. Women should check these areas regularly for any signs of pain or discomfort.

Warning signs for women:

- Changes in the size, shape, or texture of the breast
- Nipple changes
- Soreness in the breast or armpit

Women should consult a doctor if they have any of these symptoms. It is important to catch cancer early, and early detection can often lead to a better outcome.

Sincerely,

John Smith

SOUTHERN ACCENT
Memories may be changed

by Mark Nicholson

The future status of the Brigham Memories, the possibility of a basic philosophy course being offered next year, and a report from the Board of Regulations Committee were among some of the items presented and discussed at the 13th regular meeting of the Student Senate, April 9.

Although panned by some, a board did exist, and the meeting began with LeClare Litchfield, president-elect of the SA, giving a brief religious talk. LeClare Litchfield then presented a brief report on Board of Regulations Committee findings in regard to SMC’s policy of “Late Matrics.” Litchfield said that SMC was in “the middle of the road” compared to other SDA colleges in regard to the matter. Litchfield also reported that Thacher Hall now had a TV and two evening worship services.

Leo Haan entertained a motion that the Student Senate back the idea of a basic philosophy course being offered. Haan stated, “Our Christian philosophy degree should stand as it was presented in a factual manner.”

The Senate discussed the merits of creating the Joker and the Southern Memories to provide a flagship of “most” pictures. It was felt that money could be saved and the student body would enjoy both more if the Joker were made of more durable material and the Southern Memories would not have “most” pictures, but be more of a literary creation.

Whether or not the Student Senate should back the idea of CLEP tests was also discussed. CLEP is a system of tests that a student can take to challenge courses. This idea would be presented at the Academic Policies Meeting April 12.

Card trouble to continue

The chapel card system now used at SMC is proving to be more trouble for the students than the old method, and some of the problems are those who check the attendance said Kenneth Spears, dean of students.

For the newer method, students pick up a card at the beginning of chapel and fill it out.

The older method, which allowed students to bring pre-punched cards to chapel, was easier to keep track of cards, and more of the computer and a read-out sheet of absentees was given back. For the present method, the card information must be typed into the computer.

Even though the newer method is a disadvantage for students counting the cards, it will be continued. The reason for the change, according to Spears, is that it is a more effective in keeping students from being late to chapel than the older method.

McCormick, VandeVere

Turn to city politics

Two of SMC’s faculty members are among eight candidates running for Collegeville City Commission. The names of Mrs. Granville McCormick, associate professor of speech and Dr. Wayne VandeVere, professor of business administration, will appear on the ballots.

Voters will elect four commissioners for a four-year period. The election will be held in the Municipal Court Room in the City Hall on April 17 from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The other six candidates running for the same position are: Fred Fuller, Warren Hammond, Walter Horrell, L. D. Houdy, Edward McKee, and Eddie Robson.

Each candidate gave a short talk Thursday evening at a public City Commission meeting at which the four-year period of time thought Collegeville could be made a better city.

Each candidate was required to submit a petition containing at least 25 signatures to the city office by the March 16 deadline.

Mrs. McCormick, if elected, would count in the woman-city commissioner. She explains that she feels “the city commission could profit from having a woman’s viewpoint.”

Both of the candidates from SMC feel that it is essential to have representation from the college on the city council because the community and city grow from the college.

After the election, the City Commission will select one of its members to be Collegeville’s mayor and another to be the vice-mayor.

285 to graduate

Largest class yet

By Darryl Ledington

Approximately 285 seniors are preparing for graduation next month in what appears to be SMC’s largest graduating class ever, according to Mary Elain of admissions and records.

What swells the number so much, she said, is that the fact that about 40 students who normally would expect to finish their requirements this semester will not be allowed to do so for the first time, to sheno at home in the spring graduation service. Their enrollment, however, will be withheld until the end of the summer.

Out of the total 285 seniors, approximately 95 will be graduating with a baccalaureate degree and the remaining 95 with the associate degree.

The departmental breakdown is as follows:

Baccalaureate Degrees
9 Accounting
7 Art
10 Behavioral Science
6 Biology
10 Business Administration
2 Chemistry

7 Communications
29 Elementary Education
9 English
2 Foods and Nutrition
3 Health, P.E. & Recreation
9 History
4 Home Economics
6 Interior Design
4 Mathematics
2 Medical Technology
6 Music Education
6 Nursing
2 Office Administration
2 Religion
2 Spanish
1 Theology
1 German
1 Industrial Arts
20 Total (7 students have two baccalaureate degree majors and 2 have both a baccalaureate degree and an associate degree major)

Associate Degrees
1 Building Technology
4 Medical Office Administration
20 Nursing
16 Office Administration

Joan-Alice Patterson-Canada

Graduation weekend will begin the evening of May 4 with feature speaker Elder John Lott, ministerial secretary for the Michigan Conference, at 8 p.m. in the Collegeville church. Dr. C. E. Wulffbothe from the religion department of Andrews University will speak Sabbath morning at 11 a.m. in the gym. And finally, D. W. Holbrook from Home Study Institute in Washington, D.C. will give the commencement address at 10 a.m. Sunday morning in the gym.
Canons, campus, concerts; College days rates success

By Judy Straw

The Purple People Teater get the yearly weekend run weekend showing academy and high school seniors around the SMC campus.

The influx of seniors was simply due to the annual SMC College Days Program, designed to promote interest in college study in general and attendance at SMC in particular.

Approximately 470 seniors attended the College Days program. Forest Lake Academy claimed the most, 83 seniors, with Mount Pisgah Academy close behind represented by 75 seniors, while Collegegate Academy scored 45. Other academies included were Bank Memorial Academy, Fletcher Academy, Georgia-Cowan-Iand Academy, Greater Miami Academy, Harbrit Hills Academy, Highland Academy, Laurelbrook School, Little Creek School, Madison Academy, Pine Forest Academy, and several high schools.

Besides campus tours on the 22nd the academic seniors were introduced to college life first of all by a welcoming parade with police cars, fire engines and be-streamered cars. Then they were treated to a kite flying contest, a softball game, Ferrante and Teischer, swimming tours of Lookout Mountain, recreation, and a student/faculty talent show.

On the lighter side, the visitors were oriented to various aspects of academic matters, student affairs, admissions, finance, major curriculums, and American College Tests. To note mention was as to psychiatry and calculus that (It was hoped that the new calculus would be open for College Days use but delays in equipment shipping squelched the idea.)

College Days was planned and executed by the College Days Steering Committee chaired by William H. Taylor.

Egg carnival coming soon; Popular turnout expected

By Mark Nicholas

Collegedale's first art show, the Purple Egg Arts and Crafts Fair, has all of the marks of a success, according to Les Hests.

This year's fair, which was held on April 22 in SMC's Student Center Park, has had a good response from potential participants, according to Hests.

UTC and Cleveland State Community College have shown considerable interest in helping to make the fair a success.

Although April 6 had been slated as the deadline date, entries are still being accepted. Hests stated that those wishing to enter could still do so, and he personally would encourage as many entries as possible from SMC students.

Prizes of $50, $25, and $15 will be awarded to "best show," regardless of medium. Judging will be done by Jim Franklin, well-known Chattanooga artist and architect. Hests stressed that all entries must be in before noon on the 13th. It is expected that entries will be submitted for the judging.

Should April 22 be a wet day, the Purple Egg will hatch in the SMC gymnasium.

Ferrante-Tischer Display expertise

The digital mastery of Ferrante and Teischer, duo-pianists, was displayed on the SMC campus last Sunday night. April 22, as a climax to the program of the 1973-74 Artist-Adventure Series. Selections included a medley of forms which they have recorded on their own soundtracks, an arrangement of Broadway tunes and various other songs, mixed with a bit of humor.

Ferrante and Teischer are successful recording artists. They have recently released their one-hundredth album of duo-piano music. They appear throughout the United States and various foreign countries. This program, according to many, was the finest in the Artist-Adventure Series so far.

The series for 1973-74 will include many fine performing artists included in the lineup are: The Romeros, classical trinity, the Johnson Station Orchestra, The U.S. Navy Band and various others.

This has been a year which many will never forget because of the programs which were presented here on campus. Starting with Victor Borge in the fall of last year, students then heard Van Cliburn, and ended the year with Ferrante and Teischer.

Far-freaking-fantastic

By Caesar

Trotting down the halls of Trach and walking very straight, I overheard someone talking about a dog. One twisted soul said that I thought like a dog, too, so Dr. Kate said convulsive laughter was too much for a few of the students around here. Someone had got to be wrong. Anyway, I thought I'd try to understand them and see if I could find some positive aspects about college life.

I guess the greatest feat I've accomplished since dropping all over Frank's carpet during the final was getting those lights up on the track. The rumors about the lights are not to be believed. I know that some of you think that they are there for the safety of our vicarious young women, but you're wrong.

The real reason in two-fold: it wasn't until some of the girls from Talge Hall were attacked by a pack of seemingly Thatcherites, that a real need for lights was seen. Ask Joe or Bob about it. Exciting College Days was a big factor. When academy students come here, they want to be a part of the whole thing, so there had to be lights out there. Also, I helped Ken Spense bike a few miles around here. Effective method of getting things done, I guess my plea to Mr. Leacy was profitable after all. I was both surprised and thrilled about the whole thing. And that tree scare! When grounds department started digging the possible roots of the tree today, I got worried. That's a critical situation for a student in my position. Think I'll tell him next time, I see him and much I'm enjoying all the flowers around campus.

About the You-Know-Who-D-O-Day, perhaps it's just as well that the cute little taste of the door didn't sell me a ticket. It was such bowling-good music that I couldn't contain myself and had to go outside. I came back in just in time to hear this strange call I've been hearing in photography lab lately.

Late night must have definitely got me in trouble with the dean the other day. The thought was one of those academic seminars.

Let me get this straight now, the Law of Life is “What the mind discerns can be reproduced in all manners and actions?” Love, joy, peace, long-suffering... D.K. I'll remember that. (Photo by Mark)

MV officers

Report to Andrews

MV officers from this year and next year will meet at Andrews University, April 16-18, said Bob Brench, senior theology major and Student Association Religious vice-president.

The purpose of this meeting, said Brench, will be to report the religious progress of the schools, suggest new ideas, meet past and new MV officers, and gain inspiration from GC men who will speak to them. The delegation will meet in committees to discuss plans for next year.

According to Brench, all SDA colleges will be represented at the meetings. Those representing SMC will be Dea Combines, college librarian, and students, Bob Brench, Bradley Brench, Bill Shelby, Dwight Nelson, Dave Wedgley, Linda Purdy, and Caryn Carman.
During the past two weeks, we have heard lots about love and relationships. It seems that personal relationships and the roles and expectations people play here have been enlarged by many. If we stop for a moment and reflect on this in our own lives, we become defeated. Week of Prayer and Social Ethics Week are over and relationships are still torn and people are still playing roles to protect themselves. The healing of broken loneliness was not done in two weeks nor was the need of its pain ever reached.

The performed love in relationships pioneered by Jesus when He told us to love another as He has loved us can be reached. But it won't be found by definitions or discovery of its lack. We must realize that beautiful Christian expressions that we have heard all of our lives are not meaningless repetitions.

Love in its perfect form is non-essential. I can say easily, 'I love you,' to someone. But if the words become activated in action, then I am beginning to love, defined. Just as He became flesh to dwell with us, our thoughts and words of love may become real day to day experiences as we touch people as He did.

We can do this because God is the source of love.

Is this a cliché? Am I giving the perfect "Christian" answer? I am not saying love stays a word that we use, yet never experience. In 1 John 4:20 we are told to love. God does not ask us to do something that we are not capable of, therefore we can love as His verse commands. But first we must become powerful enough to do so. The power of love through His promises.

I began to experiment with this with some brothers and sisters in the past several months. It has worked for you. Every time relationships are broken in our lives we claim a related promise and trust that at the perfect time for everyone involved God will heal the relationship. Love needs no longer be words. The power of God can bring to life so cherished words into flesh and blood experiences. We only need to claim what He has promised. C. C.

SMMC's "50 Days Around the World" jogging program concluded with a final total of 31,744 miles. This figure, 6,664 miles above the projected goal of 25,000 miles, was achieved with a tremendous final report of 11,408 miles on April 23. The average bi-monthly figure has been only around 4,000 miles. Both Frohman, conductor of the program, attributed the high collection total to the visit from the 150 or so joggers who didn't report until the final collection.

British added that the faculty came through "just great" completion of the 72 joggers. One hundred ninety-nine nurses will receive the special "50 Days Around the World" badges, designed especially for those who have run sixty or more miles. Criteria for the patch, which may be eligible for the patch, are shown to ten runners in each group as listed below receive Olympic-style medals.

By Ben Self

President Frank Knaut has announced that a number of "pre-closing decisions affecting the future of SMMC were made by the College Board at its last meeting on April 15.

The agenda for the meeting included:
1. Employment of salaried personnel by auxiliaries
2. WPMC accreditation plans
3. Bonds policy
4. Lease purchase contracts
5. Earthquake insurance
6. The "Big Day" in Southern Union
7. Laymen Foundation projects
8. Report of sustaining fund
9. Building for nursing education
10. Grooming of men
11. Modern Languages—redaction of French minor
12. House Economics—Interior Design
13. Art Department—Chairman of the committee
14. Director of Development
15. Personnel changes and new appointments

Items which did not appear on the agenda but were discussed by the board included universal building charge for next year and "The Big Day" in the College of Architecture.

The board has decided to construct a house to house the bacteriology and science departments. The site designated for the building is the space between Jones Hall and Miller Hall, the music building. A private gift of $100,000 has made this building possible. Presently the bacteriology science department is housed in three mobile homes beside the science building, and associated nursing department is in Lynwood Hall on the first and second floors.

Mrs. Eleanor Jackson, chairman of the art department for the last six years, refers this year and the board has appointed Mr. Robert F. Carter to take her place as chairman of the department. Under the direction of Mrs. Jackson, the art department has grown from a few students involving a very limited number of students to a full major involving hundreds of students annually. No decision has been made at this time as to who will join the staff to take some of the lecture class responsibilities, according to Dr. Cyril F. W. Fitchett, academic dean.

Park shelter budgeted

By Alan Whiner

The senators voted to provide up to $1700 for a picnic shelter to be built in the student park for the STA project this year in the last STA Senate meeting for the last quarter of the year. There have also been three type writers purchased for the students' use. These will be placed somewhere in the library.

The senate budget for the 1973-1974 school year was approved by the Board of Trustees.

There were a few changes made, the main one being how dues are levied. The senate must now ask the Board of Trustees without any pressure from the student senate.

It was voted by the senate to recommend to the Academic Policies Committee a course in Survey of Philosophy for three hours to be added. Furthermore, it was voted that it be counted toward the student's social science credit, and it be counted by the religion department.

The senate also voted to strongly urge that the class schedule for next school year be published as soon as possible.

The Senate President, Lee Hess, told the senate that is looking back over the past year, felt it has been a successful year. He made this move clear by saying that the senate has done a job. He made one thing to look back on is the direction in which it is going. If we are satisfied with it, then we should continue if not, we should change and go in another direction.

Hear 'Focus' Now on air

"FOCUS" is a new short devotional program produced by local personnel and aired daily on WSMC FM.

The program coordinator is Edith Goodlund Cummings Jr., SMC chaplain and former student manager of WSMC. The series includes devotional by the Collegeboard national staff, faculty and students of SMC, as well as community laymen and ministers from different churches in the area.

The program has been aired for three weeks now and has already received many favorable comments. "FOCUS" is on at 8:00 a.m. Sunday through Saturday.

Women donate

A check for $500 went to the Nicaraguan Mission last Thursday, April 5, announced Mrs. W. E. Whitcomb, executive officer of the Women's Club.

The money, which was raised in the form of a two-dollar donation per club member, will go to purchase two new refrigerators for the mission station at Mitan, Nicaragua. The locomotive powered refrigerators are already ordered from a company in Miami. Dr. W. E. Whitcomb, with few minor repairs, the type of equipment will soon be ready to follow to the station.

The project of helping the mission station replaces the Worthy Student Fund, formerly the project club.

Industrial arts teaches John Dourrichuk, who received the check and the typewriter, said that the next major item of importance was the purchase of a type writer which would continue the contact radio equipment with the station.

Previous arrangements with radio operator Bob Wyatt were all stopped at his death. However, his wife is willing to arrange a sale of his equipment to the mission station as soon as a price can be agreed upon. Funds for this project, with around $700 to be raised by the slide club, will be at the present time it is necessary to travel as much as 40 miles into Puerto Cabitos to make radio contact with the school, said Dourrichuk.

Other needs are medical instruments, sports equipment, especially for softball, a gas or diesel powered generator capable of producing 10,000 watts to replace the inadequate generator for now in use, and a Chevrolet or some other convertible car. The station has no power plant as the jeep now in use. Parts would thus be interchanged to assure a continuously driveable vehicle, said Dourrichuk.

Along with 15 others, Mr. Dourrichuk was last year in Nicaragua on the 18th of May, where he plans to complete construction of the clinic and begin a church and community center. Of the 15 people accompanying Dourrichuk, ten will stay for the summer and are forming a five year plan to remain for the next several years.

Milford Crist, a 1971 Communications graduate of SMC and former head announcer at WSMC, is returning to the station as the new Operations Manager. His replacement as the new Operations Manager will be announced at a later date. The new Operations Manager will include some of those previously held by Don Sall, program manager, according to director of broadcasting, James Hanum. Crist is to be responsible for the training and recruitment of announcers and newsmen. He is also coordinator of production and programming personnel, said Hanum.

The new position was created to allow Sall to spend more time in the area of fund raising and development.

Hanum continued by saying: "Sall will concentrate his efforts for the next few months on selling underlying to local building firms. If he can get the development program working for us, the plan is to bring someone in for full time to work in that area in August or September.""""Crist graduated with a communications major, broadcast emphasis. Since graduation he spent one year as director of the mission station SMC sponsors in Francia Sirpi, Nicaragua. More recently Crist was promotions director for Miami's WLS near Orlando, Florida.

During his sophomore, junior and senior years at SMC, Crist worked for WSMC as announcer, news director, and also head newsmen director. He also worked in the area of community services. S as i write, i am sitting in dacca with the beggars at the car windows whispering to me for money in a way they typify bangladesh with its needs and dependences on others.

the aid program to this country, following the cyclone of 1970 and the war of 1971, has been the largest ever conducted in a disputed area of the world. it has been my privilege to help in this aid, through the arrival war late and our person's part is rather insignificant. but even though i arrived in july of 1972, the needs were still there. and since that time, my activities have centered mainly on two areas of relief and rehabilitation, those of housing and agricultural programs.

at present i am still working at godalming. here my duties are to visit the supervision of construction work, both for the agricultural shore and general building of the sda secondary school which the war will be conducted. a need last to be completed from the main highway to the school building. a water tank is nearly finished, a house for the director of the training center is under construction; and greenhouses will be built for the vegetables grow--all many things to complete before the first of july, when the program is due to begin.

my experience of being in a country very shortly after a civil war and independence has made me think often of what it must have been like in the usa in the years following the revolution. the usa, shared many of the same problems following its independence, but significant differences in the countries with a soviet, well-organized young fairly which is left on getting you? obviously, a lot of people can't explain. of course, with all the people so truly in love, you'd think every young girl would be a girl of roses, etc. of course you're wrong too. no one argues more than cousins. i never get up, and lovers do.

Looking Back

May 6 marks the end to another year of higher education at Southern Missionary College. Of us, and I include myself in this group, look back on this year and I believe we would have done just a little better. We say, "Boy, I wish..." We would have done those four assignments, that would have given us a B instead of a C."

Some will be going home. Home to good food, no room checks, no signing in, no late ministrations, no communal showers or classes to study for. As we pedal our work during this past year, some of us will be taking summer classes and will return to SMC, or get taking a course at home so we won't have to take it here, or maybe taking a course just to prove to our parents we aren't as dumb as they think we are.

We will come back next year ready to go, and with high ideals as to what we plan to accomplish during our next year. As usual our work will probably dominate this article as we will go through the same patterns. Fainly, it's not that we really want to get good grades, we really want to improve ourselves but... well I'll be back next year to sum it all up again.

Don't think that just because you know that you won't do what you really plan to do, you shouldn't plan. At least it will make you feel like you're doing something. D.F.

New Language Course

Work is similar now toward a new arrangement in SMC's elementary and intermediate foreign language programs. This fresh approach, gradually taking hold across the field, is called "individualized instruction." That is, students are given individual packets of materials and assignments. When they complete the packet, they are tested, and then-if the set is satisfactory-they go on to the next unit.

This makes each student pace his own progress; and since he does not begin a unit until he passes the preceding one, failure is virtually eliminated-unless, of course, he neglects to do his work at all.

In some places, a "concentrated" arrangement is also included in language classes. Students select or contract for a certain grade for the course, and then fulfill all requirements specified in the accompanying syllabus. This is being given to this approach, too, and finally, SMC's language classes will include elements of both plans.

In the mean time, a great variety of appealing overload programs continue to exist. Reasonably, middle schools in places ranging from Mexico to Italy will give up to six courses for a week or semester of intermediate or advanced study. For example, Memphis State University offers six credits in intermediate German at the University of Vienna for about $500, in Spanish at Madrid for about $600 and in French at Paris for about $75. These prices include all living facilities and meals.

Andrews University has a summer program in three languages, with study trips to Switzerland, France, Belgium, and Darmstadt, Germany. Their price is slightly higher but includes a longer stay and 20 credits.

Among academic year-abroad programs, Adventist College Abroad remains popular among SDA students. ACA classes will be held next year at Collonges, at Valencia, at Bogonhof in Austria, and at River Plate College in Argentina. Several SVU students are applying to study overseas next year under ACA auspices.—Dr. R. Morrison

College Days Outrageous

I was outraged at the recent treatment of Academy Seniors at the College Days festivities on our campus. It brought to my mind elementary school carnivals that the P.T.A. sponsored every year. The big thing was to try to win a gold fish by throwing a ping-pong ball from a distance into a bowl, or to buy a lizard that you could actually safely pet in your shirt.

It was not fair to present it as such to the visiting academy students. College is an academic stairway. It is knowledge, growing relationships, and the beginning of the deepest pursuit of self-discovery.

There are so many things we could offer academy seniors which would bring them back wanting to grow spiritually, emotionally, and academically. We did not need to entice them with childish bait.

"When I was a child, I used to speak, as a child, think as a child, reason as a child; when I became a man, I gave up childish things." I Corinthians 13:11-12.

Getting it done

(Or how to survive the last week of school)

By Mark Nicholson

Yes, dear friends, you too may easily fall into a pattern of sloth just three days away from those troublesome book reports, term papers and other grueling exercises.

There is an easy answer to your problems. Yes, you may know this knowledge for as little as $227.00 per year.

So, dear friends, the answer is simple, and it's right here; all you must do is believe. Believe what? I hope you say. Once more, the answer is simple: believing what we already believe. Starting now, trust people who love you more and don't skimp. The first thing you must do is subordinate. Constitute your needed resources. If you're strong out, "real", you'll be up (for down), as the case may be.

The next step on this long walk to peace of mind is to straighten out your living habits.

Some of that begins all day and some of that bring out all day.

Yes, boys and girls, a lot of you suffer from the "student syndrome," characteristics varied by chronic non-thinking note-taking and the bizarre ability to believe in nothing.

Health rules are to be carefully observed.

Try to get some sleep when it's dark and not in Foundations Class.

I understand, of course, the many problems students may have, and one of us will not forget the hilarity of staggering

The Accent story

(What we can print)

By Judy Stone

If you've been wondering all year what goes on behind the scenes on the Southern Accent staff, just keep on wondering! It is surprising.

However, just to give you a small insight into how the paper has been put together this year, we've included pictures of our printer (above), our typist, our 'paper boy,' the Swimmem News in Georgi, along with pictures of the ACCENT actually being printed.

Make-up of the ACCENT began each week on Friday afternoons when staff members met in the cafeteria for news stories, discussing policies, planning, editorial content and making story assignments.

Assignments went to staff members over the weekend and to Bill Garber's newswriting class on Monday mornings. Then, during the week, the stories were researched, written and submitted to the editor on Wednesday morning.

The Accent marketing manager, Adrie Unmiddle, swarms the halls every Wednesday morning to check up on each class's progress, and brings back 3,000 copies of the Southern Accent in less than 15 minutes, and the finished copy off the press.

Priced at 25 cents right from top to bottom in The Swimmem News Life-line magazine for reypiters, their new press will turn out 3,000 copies of the Swimmem Accent in less than 15 minutes, and the finished copy off the press in time for the next day's edition. (Photos were by Daryl Ludwig.)
