Knittel New SMC President

Outgoing President
Dr. Wilbert Schneider

Incoming President
Dr. Frank Knittel

Three major shifts in administrative positions took place in April and became effective May 17 at Southern Missionary College.

Voted by the SMC Board of Trustees were a new president, academic dean, and director of admissions and records.

Dr. Wilbert Schneider resigned to accept the position of educational secretary of the Pacific Union Conference.

Dr. Frank A. Knittel, formerly academic dean at SMC, is his successor.

Dr. Cyril F. W. Futch, formerly director of admissions and records at SMC, is the new academic dean.

Mr. Arnold Kutzner, of Thunderbird Academy, Scottsdale, Arizona, has been hired as the new director of admissions and records.

Dr. Schneider served SMC as president for the past four years and was also formerly academic dean from 1960-63. Since he came to SMC as president there has been a steady increase in enrollment. The college's net worth has gone from $6.1 million to $7.5 million. During the last four years the total designated funds for capital improvements was over $4 million dollars—a million a year.

Serving as the new president now, Dr. Knittel came to SMC in 1967 to be academic dean. Prior to this he was the vice president for student affairs and associate professor of English at Andrews University, a position he held for eight years.

Dr. Knittel earned a double major in English and mathematics at Union College, and received both an M.A. and Ph.D. in English from the University of Colorado. He has served a total of 20 years in various administrative capacities.

Born in England, Dr. Futch has served SMC as director of admissions

SMC Graduates 198 Seniors

Dr. Winton Beaven, commencement speaker for SMC's graduation exercises Sunday, May 16, at 10:00 a.m., told 198 graduates that each of them "can handle more facts than all the computers now in operation."

In presenting the candidates for diplomas, Dr. Frank Knittel, SMC's academic dean, noted that 65 students received bachelor of arts degrees, four students were awarded bachelor of music degrees, bachelor of science degrees were conferred upon 93 students, and 36 seniors received associate of science degrees.

"I find that young people are tremendously overawed by the world we live in," stated Dr. Beaven, recounting some of the fears and phobias brought on by hectic modern life. He then charged the seniors to never forget that each one was a unique creation of God with unlimited potential and whose capacities as individuals greatly exceed computers.

Dr. Beaven, formerly president of Columbia Union College, is now academic dean of Kettering College of Medical Arts in Ohio.

"It's difficult to know at this point how many of you will be in leadership," remarked SMC President Dr. Wilbert M. Schneider, addressing the seniors.

"To accept leadership is an awesome thing," he continued, "and yet, warmth and true happiness can best be experienced at the crossroads of humanity where one's talents may meet the world's need. . . . Members of the

Glenn F. Henriksen is a resident of Sylmar, Calif., a place that has been prominently featured in the news since the Feb. 9 earthquake. Glenn writes: "This alumnus had the dubious honor of experiencing a small earthquake while writing this, and the much greater and more dubious honor of owning a house five miles from the epi-center of the Feb. 9 quake. Had it occurred two hours later, my office at the Community Mental Health Center would no doubt have been my tomb, as it was flattened literally. Hundreds of smaller shocks have followed, and we keep wondering if the next little one will just keep getting bigger and bigger until our house is again shaken like a rabbit in a hound's teeth."

1951

Jamile Jacobs, president of the Pakistan Seventh-day Adventist Mission, reports that the Pakistani people are amazed but thankful for the spontaneous and liberal contributions being made by foreign Christian countries, such as the United States, since the typhoon struck East Pakistan in November.

Sharon Doneva Howard—secretary to principal of San Gabriel Academy, Calif.

Meredith Ann Jennings—
Verna Elaine Johnson—
Joleen Marie Leland—nurse in University Hospital, Loma Linda

Alice Jean Lemon—
Dianne Weeks Martin—nurse in Chattanooga
Gwendolyn Vertelle Martin—work part time and school part time on a B.S. degree

Janice Celeste McElroy—work as secretary
Rhonda Gayle Merickle—nurse at Madison Hospital
M. Marie Meyer—possibly nurse in Hawaii

Linda Arnold Miles—
Lois Lacy Mohr—work on B.S. degree at SMC
Margaret Elaine Mote—nurse at Loma Linda

Terry Justin Phillips—nurse at Madison Hospital

Southern Missionary College has completed major renovations on two of its main campus buildings.

The physics department was moved from Hackman Hall, now housing only chemistry and biology, to Daniells Hall, the old library made vacant by the completion of new McKee Library and now remodeled at a cost of over $100,000. Joining the physics department there, are the mathematics and computer science departments moved from other buildings.

Hackman Hall, built in 1951 and 1961, was remodeled and equipped at a cost of $89,000 to include an additional classroom, two new biology labs, one new chemistry lab and two student study rooms. The addition of the biology labs brings the total to four, accommodating up to 140 students at one time. The interior was repainted and carpeted.

Equipment added includes 84 new American Optical microscopes and a nuclear magnetic resonance spectrometer.

Built in 1945, the three-level Daniells Hall now has four lecture rooms (one 175-seat, one 70-seat and two 20-seat), seven teachers' offices, a computer center, two labs (one for general physics and one for electricity, magnetism and astronomy), two study rooms and a nuclear research area in the basement.

Physics department chairman Dr. Ray Hefferlin chose the interior color scheme of shades of yellow and green in the halls and classrooms and "electric" blue in the nuclear research area.

One of the lecture rooms is completely equipped for video tape instruction. The larger physics labs contain telescopes, high-powered electromagnet, air track and analog computer, among other equipment.

The advanced physics area features a 25-foot research-quality spectograph—"an unusual piece of equipment for a college," said Dr. Hefferlin.

In the last 10 years Dr. Hefferlin's department has received more than $84,000 in grants to conduct physics research at SMC. He has published some 40 papers on spectroscopy as a result. Dr. Hefferlin regularly serves as a consultant for Arnold Engineering Development Center in Tullahoma and for McDonnell-Douglas Corporation in St. Louis.

The computer science department features a new 1130 model IBM computer with its accompanying unit record equipment—three key punch machines, verifier and sorting machine. A third-generation computer, it has one magnetic disc drive which can hold a half-million words of information.

With the computer available, a new minor in computer science was developed and offered for the first time this past college year. Two students graduated May 16 with this minor. Last semester 76 students were enrolled in the eight courses offered by the department.

The primary function of the computer, according to Robert McCurdy, director of the program, is to provide academic training for the students in computer science courses. Secondly, it functions to provide computer service to the college and the surrounding community.

Among SMC operations now computerized are registration, student payroll and statements, grade reports and cafeteria billings. In the future Robert McCurdy, director of the program, hopes to interface the cafeteria data directly into the computer. He also sells computer time to business firms in the Chattanooga area, thus providing additional realistic learning experiences for students and offsetting the cost of the program to the college.

Judith Jo Ratzlaff—nurse at Georgia Baptist Hospital, Atlanta

Karen Ann Rutledge—student at SMC
James Melvin Stewart—nurse at Memorial Hospital, Chattanooga

Sandra Mayes Sweeney—secretary at McKee Baking Co.

Sharon Elaine Swilley—student at SMC possibly

Nancy Colleen Trefz—nurse in Calif. or Hawaii

Janet Kreyer Truman—
Barbara Frances Ward—nurse in Atlanta or Calif.

Sandra Sue Welch—nurse at Madison Hospital
Sylvia Anita Youngberg—work on B.S. at LIU

The former library retains the name Daniells, but it now houses the Math, Physics and Computer Departments.

The new computer takes up residence in the recently renovated A. G. Daniells Hall.

Hackman Hall, formerly housing all the sciences and math, has been remodeled and now has new classrooms and labs for the Chemistry and Biology Departments.
