READING ACROSS THE CURRICULUM

In an effort to promote reading and guide students, faculty, and staff through the book selection process, McKee Library has developed a collection of reading lists on various topics.

Here are four reasons to spend time reading:

• Reading improves your mental health
• Reading helps you connect with people
• Reading improves language skills
• Reading reduces stress and increases relaxation

Each reading list includes nonfiction, fiction, and juvenile. Depending on the reading list, other sections such as poetry, films, memoirs & biographies, and pictorial works are included.

Available Reading Lists

The following reading lists are available on McKee Library’s website:

• Asian American and Pacific Islander Heritage Month
• Award Winning Titles
• Black History Month
• Celebrating & Cultivating Diversity
• Mark Twain
• Presidential Reads
• Women’s History

Under Development

In addition to the published lists, McKee Library is currently developing the following reading lists:

• Biblical Foundations of Faith and Learning
• Classic Literature
• Faculty & Staff Recommendations
• Hispanic Heritage Month
• Seventh-day Adventist Pioneers
• Top Checkouts by Category
• Vegetarian & Vegan Cooking

Promoting the Reading Lists

We encourage you to promote the reading lists in your courses and conversation with students.

Custom Reading Lists for Courses

If you would like a reading list created on a specific topic for one of your courses, or you have a suggested topic of interest, please contact Deyse Bravo-Rivera at dbravo@southern.edu.

This book follows a group of photographers who band together while covering the end of apartheid in South Africa. This remarkable memoir looks at rivalry, comradeship, and exhilaration experienced by the young photographers. If you are interested in photography, this book is a must read.

Smart Kids Who Hate to Write
Directed by Francine Rivers
Recommended by Katie McGrath
LC4704 .S63 2010

Do you know a smart child who seems lazy, sloppy, or unmotivated? There is a strong chance he or she is none of these, but rather suffering from a correctable writing glitch called dysgraphia, the most common learning block that gifted children have.

This DVD teaches how to identify these smart but struggling students and details a system for correcting this learning glitch so they can write with ease.

From the Vault

Classic biology work part of McKee Library’s Origins and Biology Collection housed within the Center for the Study of 19th Century America.

About the Work

The Botanical Atlas: A Guide to the Practical Study of Plants, Containing Representatives of the Leading Forms of Plant Life with Explanatory Letterpress, written by D. M’Alpine in 1884, is part of McKee Library’s Origins and Biology Collection. This collection houses books on creationism and evolution. The primary focus of the collection is on materials that provide 19th century creationist counter-arguments to Darwinian evolutionary theory.

More Information

A digitized copy of the work is available through archive.org. To view the work in person, please complete the online request form to view any materials in the special collection. For more information, please contact Deyse Bravo-Rivera at dbravo@southern.edu.
