NEW LIBRARY WEBSITE & RESOURCES

McKee Library launched new and improved website based on feedback from faculty, staff, and students.

McKee Library’s new website offers improved functionality and usability for all library users.

Improved Search Tools
The Google-like search tool, known as OneSearch, is available directly on the library’s homepage. Using the search box, you can now directly search for course reserves, books, online resources, journals by name, and Google Scholar on the library’s homepage.

Faculty Services Link
The “Services for Faculty” page provides faculty members with direct access to teaching resources, research and publishing support, tools for requesting and borrowing materials, and the ability to search for resources by type.

New resources such as a “DVDs for Classroom Screenings” page, a persistent link generator, and a course reserves search offer faculty additional classroom support.

Instructional Support
Information for library instruction is listed in detail on the new website. Faculty are able to easily request an in-class instruction session or workshop, as well as the embedded librarian service, using online forms.

A complete list of instruction sessions and workshops that can be held during course class time or at an alternative time is available on the website.

Flipster
McKee Library is proud to offer Flipster, an easy-to-use digital magazine newsstand for libraries. Flipster offers users unlimited, on-the-go access to a variety of publications via computer, smartphone, or tablet. Simply click link under Research Tools & Collections to access the carousel (coming soon) on McKee Library’s website to see all of the periodicals currently available through Flipster.

Website Training Opportunities
Be on the lookout for library website-related presentations at Faculty Showcase and TechBytes during the Fall 2018 semester. We’re also happy to meet with you one-on-one or provide training at departmental meetings.

Before Amen: The Power of a Simple Prayer
Written by Max Lucado

BV210.3 .L825 2014

Max Lucado, author of many best-selling works, explores the topic of prayer in an in-depth look at the power of simple prayers. We tend to think as Christians we need to have elaborately thought out prayers, yet Jesus instructed otherwise. Using Biblical examples, readers can learn the power of prayer in its most simple form.

This is a modern, high-quality, theatrical presentation of the Millerite movement and the foundational activities of the early pioneers that eventual culminated in the organization of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in 1863. Viewers will meet many pivotal characters and become familiar with their triumphs and struggles as they wrestled with their faith and their focus. Of particular note is that the church was blessed to have had many faithful, brave young people in its early history, who laid all their resources on the altar for God. Many themes are explored, including prophetic interpretation and inspiration, eschatology, prophetic gifts, health, education, literature evangelism, Sabbath observance, and church organization. You will want to watch it with family and friends, believers and nonbelievers. It is an excellent educational tool as well as a tool to witness to people from all walks of life.

The Pennyroyal Caxton Bible with Illustrations by Barry Moser, on loan from Melissa Hefferlin, is on display at McKee Library.

Bibles have long been masterpieces of great typographers, printers, and illustrators. Yet no major Bible has been illustrated by a single artist since Gustave Doré’s Le Saint Bible in 1865. After over three years of artistic creation, Pennyroyal Caxton Press presented in 1999 its edition of The King James Version of the Holy Bible fully illustrated by Barry Moser.

The 233 illustrations in this Bible were engraved in a material called Resingrave that has become the key substitute for the lack of good quality wood engraving blocks.

The special edition of this Bible is made of specifically bound hand-made paper with typographic elements designed for this project, including a new Hebrew typeface. Moser’s rich illustrations include both close parallels to the narrative as well as symbolic, interpretive, and metaphorical images.

The Bible is located on the library’s main floor, near the From the Vault display case. For more information, please contact Deyse Bravo-Rivera at dbravo@southern.edu.
