Celebrates 90 Years
Keeping In Touch

Welcome back to school and for those of you who are new—we welcome you to Southern College.

Anticipation seems to occupy our minds for the first few days on campus. Then after the anticipation wears down and the college routine becomes real, fear seems to take control.

Now, it isn’t fear of the current situation, but fear of the unknown. It’s a sort of anxiety mixed with anticipation.

No matter how many years you’ve attended any learning institution, every year proves to be different.

Our school has been around a long time. In fact, this Accent issue helps commemorate the 90th Birthday of Southern. During its long history, the school has grown, matured, and progressed.

We believe it should be the same process we undertake. Because college life-style tends to mature us subtly, we need to do everything we can to keep in touch with our changing, growing selves.

The Accent is a newspaper designed for you to keep in touch. We want this paper to be a reflection of you the student body. Letting us know what concerns you, giving us your opinions on any pertinent issue, helps us create a paper worth your time.

You can help achieve this goal by communicating to us through “letters to the editor”. Also write your reaction to a column and mail it in the conspicuous red mailboxes in the dorms or student center. This makes us aware of your interest.

Consistent striving, hard work, and dedication have helped Southern reach its 90th year of Christian education.

Maintaining these same ideal and learning from your input, the Southern Accent will be able to keep the communication lines open for a more successful year.

<td>For new and returning students alike every year is a glorious challenge for everyone. This includes teachers as well as students. We welcome each of you to the campus as you take hold of the excitement of a new year. I give you our promise—our teachers are here to do everything in their power to help you succeed—that is their challenge. Your challenge is to claim their resource. And finally, the greatest challenge of all is to walk each day with Jesus Christ. That will be the basis of every true success you have this year.</td>

It is unfortunate and frustrating that the school had to face so much criticism lately. We all, faculty and students alike, have our share of shortcomings. Many others, however, have chosen to focus on shortcomings instead of the fact that Southern College is here to give us a Christian education and is doing a good job at it.

Fortunately, nothing requires us to accept other patterns of thought. The Student Association officers for this coming school year have determined to make the 82-83 school year the best in the school’s history. We intend to show to any critics that there is more substance to the program of Southern College than what might be seen from their point of view. We refuse to let things stagnate, and have determined to put down criticism by rising above it.

The positive influence of the students and faculty of this school by far outweighs any shortcomings that exist. With your help the Student Association officers intend to show all those concerned that our school is one which we have good reason to be proud of.

The SOUTHERN ACCENT is the official Student newspaper of Southern College and is released each Thursday with the exception of vacation and exam weeks. Opinions and expressed articles are the opinion of the author and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the editors, Southern College, the Seventh-day Adventist church or the advertisers.
Writing a religious column for a college newspaper is like kissing your mother-in-law. It has to be done but few appreciate it when you do. I mean, who reads a column on religion when you can read about social events, humorous columns, and local intramural competition. Usually it is the last thing you will read probably getting to those important studies in biology (like the eating habits of the paramecium) before you get to things like Accent religious columns. Maybe, just maybe, that is our problem. We use religion like we use deodorant. Sometimes we wear it and sometimes we don't. It has become an object that is easy to have it on Sabbath but we wouldn't want to live there. So we go to church and have religion there maybe even thinking it is the religious column for Sabbath reading. Such nice near compartments that separate the secular from the sacred things are a tracy to our religious experience and to the nature of Christianity.

Saying, "This is sacred—I will save this for Sabbath," tends to destroy the essence of religion. Religion that does not pervade the whole of life is like salt that is put on part of the food. I see religion as a quest, seeking to answer the fundamental questions of life such as "Who am I?" "Where did I come from?" and "Where am I going?" The answer to those questions impacts directly on what I do every day of the week whether you call those activities sacred or secular.

This column is called "Directions." That title suggests that what you find here should be more like a sign-post than a destination. Reading it should give pause for reflection on some of those basic questions of life. Because when it is written down it, social events, humorous columns, and intramural competition all find more complete fulfillment when we see them in the larger context of life's meaning.

I would like to solicit your letters and comments. We will publish some, edit some, and throw others in the trash—but write anyway. If you have some questions that you would like to see a written response to write them down and deliver them to the Accent office. It is our desire to scratch where it itches. The religion page will not exactly be the Ann Landers of Southern College but we will make an honest attempt at being a sign-post so that your religious experience will be a meaningful part of your college education.

We also need some guest religious columnists. I am a preacher. I graduated from college years ago than I like to think about. You might say that I am out of touch and if you said that, you would be right. So those of you who are in touch and have an idea that you would like to communicate to the student body contact me about writing a column for the Accent to publish in lieu of mine.

Well I spent a fair number of lines telling you about my philosophy behind the column and I suppose I should leave you with some bit of wisdom for the week. Many of you, having grown up under the rather close constraints of parental supervision may be looking for some freedom more freedom now that you are attending college. May I propose a parable?

"Once upon a time in Fenton Forest there was a small snail named Sammy who wanted to be free. Sammy was tired of dragging his shell around. He thought of his shell as a real encumbrance to living. He felt like it kept him from doing the things he wanted to do. Old Owl told him that his shell was important, and that he needed it for protection but he would not listen. He thought to himself that owl was an old fuddy duddy. Have you ever met a fuddy duddy? Let me know if you have I would like to meet one.) who didn't understand. Other animals kept telling Sammy that snails were created to have shells and that they needed them but Sammy was not convinced.

One day while he was crawling along thinking about his desire for freedom his shell got caught under a branch and he thought, "Here is my chance to be free." He pulled and tugged until he broke free from his weight. As he moved away into his newly found freedom a bird saw unprotcted Sammy and swooped down for an easy breakfast."
Throughout the fifty years of Southern Junior College, Southern Missionary College, and Southern College, the activities which centered the student body have changed a lot in some ways and have remained unchanged in other ways. Webster’s Dictionary defines entertainment as anything that amuses or holds the attention. Let’s take a look back to the early days of our school and see what held the students’ attention and what amuses us today.

Boys and Girls Clubs were a very important part of student life. The students worked hard to have perfect attendance, reach financial goals, and study the daily lesson. The interest in religion led to a cologne class which was taught at 5:00 a.m. Even though this class was a lot to consider even an involved hour, it was very popular among the students at that time.

In 1939, all students were required to exercise for one hour per day. Usually, the boys played volleyball and the girls played softball or went on hikes. During this year, the students were anticipating two new tennis courts that were to be built in 1942.

In Southern College’s early days, many students joined clubs in their spare time. Some of these clubs were the Triangle Club, Sunshine Band, Herald of Prophecy, and the Seminar of the Missionary Society. Boys and Girls Clubs were favorites back then as they are today. The girls club was called the Junior Junior Club, which literally means Young Ladies’ Self-Improvement Society.

The Boys’ Club was named the Better Men’s Society and worked to establish standards of morality and an essence of refinement to the men attending school. Annual campaigns were held awarded for various events.

Ladies’ Tai Chi, the Boys’ Open House, along with concerts and films, were some of the highlights of the school. The Christmas tree lighting ceremony was a favorite entertainment for quite a while. Speaking of favorite entertainment, we couldn’t overlook going out to cinema. Students probably wouldn’t survive the dating routine if it weren’t for Taco Bell, Pizza Hut, and Baskin & Robbins.

Looking back through the entertainment history of our school has proved that the activities of 1939 and 1942 are very different. But, the same thing has always been our goal to provide fun from starting in our youth to our current age.
If this school had a newspaper with a gossip column in the early part of this century, it might have read something like this: “The Southern Accent, January 1919. ‘The young ladies of this school are getting more brazen every day. Just last Thursday, Missie Wilson forgot to go to the school store and so she could be helped up and out of her nightgown. Of course, the dean had no choice but to restrict campus. That’s not all. In the months that followed, the deans represented the harsh discipline which may explain why there were five expulsions in the 1919-16 school year. If you think the current dress code is difficult to follow, count your blessings. In 1919 the role was played by no work, no breakfast. Finally, if the men didn’t keep their rooms neat, they soon discovered what cleanliness was next to. The dean handed out white cards for orderly rooms. Blue if they were a little untidy, and red if everything was a mess. These rules may seem a little absurd to us, but if you had to adhere to them, you would be thankful.”

The first catalog for Southern Junior College, 1935-36, stated that “Each student is expected to bring his own bedding—three sheets, three pillow cases, one bedspread, a pillow, and blankets or comforters; also two water bags, towels, dresser scarfs, and cover for study table.”

Along with the times, styles too have changed, even at our college. Around 1915 dress lengths began to creep to mid-calf level and in the early 1920’s the “bob” (short) hair cut for women came in along with the “Gibson Girl” style, which included mid-calf length dresses and less-feminine type clothing. By 1925 the shortest skirts that had ever been seen came in Paris. Rouge and lipstick were a must and the flapper era began. The 1920’s were called the “roaring twenties” due to the flapper’s new appearance and freedom. The return to the “flapper” era was seen during the 1918-19 school year. If you think the current dress code is difficult to follow, count your “blessings.” In 1919 the role was played by no work, no breakfast. Finally, if the men didn’t keep their rooms neat, they soon discovered what cleanliness was next to. The dean handed out white cards for orderly rooms. Blue if they were a little untidy, and red if everything was a mess.

In keeping with the Dow Jones Industrial Average, hemlines took a sudden drop in 1930-33. The dresses took on a more feminine appearance once again and by 1934 the “Gibson Girl” sleeves of 1895 were back again. Bathing suits now came without backs and were no longer the bloomer variety. Entering a new decade, the frockies, circle or “swing” skirts made their appearance along with rising hemlines (below knee-length) and strapless forms. Strapless bathing suits were also invented. The relatively short dress lengths of the early twenties were soon followed by longer, mid-calf length skirts. High floppy hats, raglan sleeves and very high heeled shoes were all in vogue. Men wore double-breasted suits jackets with baggy cropped pants.

During the fifties the classic saddle oxford and flat pump combined with or without skirts with large floral patterns became the word of the day. Teenage boys discovered white T-shirts, rolled up straight-legged blue jeans, white socks and black leather jackets and shoes. The hemlines of the fifties couldn’t stay down forever and with the advent of the 60’s came flower power. Flower children, peace, love, and yes, second skin straight leg pants, pointed shoes, and the beloved mini skirt.

In the late sixties collars got longer, skirts got shorter (now mid-thigh length). And bell bottoms, the all-consuming hippie thrust, ran their way through America.

Gradually through the seventies fashion designers relived the mini-skirt (though some believe it never left Europe). In the early 70’s “platform” shoes popped on the market, with women breaking their ankles and feet at an alarming rate until their demise.

Through these years deans and faculty struggled through the long hair and widths through the mini-skirts.

In recent years a battle over blue jeans ensued. The SMC student handbook stated that for “general campus attire” blue jeans and overalls were acceptable only on Sundays and weekdays after 7pm. At other times they were prohibited in all classrooms, cafeterias and the library.

Punishment for continual violation of this rule could be expulsion from school.

As of last Spring some students were talking about the proposal to ban jeans in the classroom. At last report the students were wearing clothing of their choosing to class, unharrassed.

Incredibly enough, enough girls received a memo from the dean in their mailboxes this past week. It went something like this, “Mini-skirts are not acceptable campus attire.” Have times really changed?

FASTPITCH SOFTBALL SEASON PREDICTIONS

After attempting to vain to obtain the expert opinions of certain sportscasters in the area on their ideas of the upcoming fastpitch season, I have decided to take the task upon myself. I do so at the risk of taking much verbal abuse, and the possibility of losing friends and gaining enemies. But when the call of duty comes from fellow sports fans, we must respond, so here goes.

No. 1 Team Brad Darby 6-2
A good strong team in all respects. Experience, leadership, talent - this group has it all. The talent level on this team isn't so much greater than others, but Darby's ability to motivate may prove to be the deciding factor. He will be depending on the likes of Dorie Sweeney and Dick Bird for their contributions.

No. 2 Team
Kelly Pettijohn 5-3
This team is solid at all defensive positions, as well as a good balance of power and base hitting. Pettijohn could easily give Darby a run for his money with a few good breaks. However, lack of experienced leadership could prove to be a problem. Some of Pettijohn's key players are Greg Cain, Fred Roscher, and Rick Greve. If these guys don't produce, then he may have his hands full.

No. 3 Team
Kevin Cummings and Rick Giebel 4-4
Giebel has plenty of power in Craig Stone, Greg Cul peppper, and Bruce Gibbons. But defense and lack of experienced leadership could possibly deter them.

Cummings' team is almost unpredictable, which is one of Cummings personal characteristics. He has an excellent shortstop in Jim Dobson, solid all-around play from John Grys, and good first base in Dave Botimer.

No. 5 Team
Randy Gabor 3-5
This team is basically centered around two good players, Haack and VanDeVeer. The rest of the squad is questionable. But judgment cannot be passed on too soon; some of those unproven players could turn out to be darkhorses.

This calculator thinks business.
The TI Student Business Analyst.

If there's one thing undergrad business students have always needed, this is it: an affordable, business-oriented calculator. The Student Business Analyst is a built-in business formulas let you perform complicated finance, accounting and statistical functions - the ones that usually require a lot of time and a stack of reference books, like present and future value calculations, amortizations and balloon payments.

It all means you spend less time calculating, and more time learning. One keystroke takes the place of many.
The calculator is just part of the package. You also get a book that follows most business courses: the Business Analyst Guidebook. Business professors helped us write it, to help you get the most out of calculator and classroom.

A powerful combination.

Think business. With the Student Business Analyst.

Well, it’s happened. Despite the horrors of registration, another school year has begun. I have been most graciously invited to give you a brief rundown on campus life in general and this year’s agenda in particular. So pay attention.

First of all, females, for those of you who have arrived starry-eyed in hopes of a quick and painless engagement, a word or caution: leave. You will find that Adventist Contact, the other major dating service, is much cheaper and much less competitive.

Now if you are interested in becoming a single parent and would like a little boy to adopt, I would definitely check out Talge Hall; you may find just what you’re looking for.

The remaining ten percent of the ladies can hopefully be thrown into the mainstream of school and kept occupied. And speaking of—I do have the agenda for the year.

In an all-out effort to save money, our illustrious business manager has decided not to have classes this year. Some of you may have noticed this at registration. I realize many of you may find this a bit disconcerting, but there is hope. By not having classes, the college will thereby be able to release most of the faculty. With no salaries except Dean Schlisner’s to pay (after all, someone has to be there to check the theater), the school can pay off its outstanding bills and be ready to open the halls of learning again next year. Sure, the plan has a few flaws, but it’s not bad for a school whose very name isn’t even a certainty.

In the entertainment section, “The Love Bug” has finally been replaced by a movie which will premiere sometime this fall. It was cast on location here at SC last summer and is called “The Diary of Our Frank,” a thrilling story about a college president who kept all his political secrets locked in a little green journal. SC’s drama group, Southern Players, is at this moment preparing to purchase the royalties to the play version. Auditions for the lead role will be held this spring, although it’s rumored that E.O. Grundset has already been cast as “Frank.”

I am running out of space but there is one last item of interest. The Southern Union Conference had planned on holding a seminar here at SC on the low cost of a Christian education but that has since been cancelled due to lack of funds. I’m sure all of us can empathize.

Anyhow, I will be keeping you posted throughout the year on other upcoming events. In the meantime, I hope each of you will have a great year.—No classes, remember?

New Profs on Campus

By Maureen Mayden

Southern College has added several new faculty for the '82-'83 school year. Four of these are on the Orlando campus. They include Marsha Rautz, Daphne Shah, Sylvia Skantz, and Marlene Young. Another Nursing teacher is Debbie Wellman. She is a Canadian who earned her degree from SMIC in 1976.

A new teacher in the English Department here at SC is Mr. Jao Haluska. He comes from GCA, where he taught English, Aviation, and Physical Science. He is now teaching College Comp. and World Literature. Mr. Haluska is married and has two small children.

The Religion Department has added Gordon Hyde to its staff this year. He is from Chatsworth, GA, where he was semi-retired from working for the General Conference in Washington, D.C. He is married and has three grown children. Elder Hyde formerly taught religion at SMC.

Mrs. June Hooper, also previously from Collegedale, has returned to teach in the Education Department. She and her husband have been working in the mission field in Pakistan, where she worked with a teacher training program.

The Music Department has hired Mrs. Pat Silver to direct the SC Concert Band. Mrs. Silver has been at Andrews University, where she also taught band. She is married and has two children, one of whom is still at home and attends Collegedale Academy.

Mr. Pat Morrison, from Collegedale, is working at the library this year. She had previously worked in the academy library and will continue to share those skills as she takes over Reference and directs the Orientation tours.

Another resident of Collegedale, Mrs. Sylvia Crook, is helping the Modern Languages Department by teaching several classes in addition to her job at CA. She is married and has three grown children.

These new faculty members have selected Southern College as their new career choice and are eagerly anticipating developing new friendships with the students and staff of the school.

Gilbert Accepts Chairmanship

By Pago Witters

Associate Professor of Nursing, Mrs. Ellen Gilbert, was appointed Chairman of the Nursing Division at SC in May 1982.

Having been with the Nursing Division for 16 years, Mrs. Gilbert has witnessed many changes. She has seen the division grow until it is the largest one on campus.

Within and outside the denomination, Mrs. Gilbert feels that Southern College has an exceptional division in quantity and quality of nurses because of the personal concern each instructor has for the individual student. Not only is there a concern with grades or career problems, but also with personal problems.

One of the goals she hopes to achieve is to improve communications between the Collegedale campus and the Orlando campus.

When asked how her family felt on her new position, Mrs. Gilbert stated, "My husband is very, very, supportive. I've always been a full-time career woman, so it was not drastic change for my family."

However, she says she still has time to be a housewife and enjoys the domestic responsibilities of sewing and cooking.

Mr. James Coffin will be Southern College's speaker for the Week of Prayer September 13-17. Mr. Coffin was recently appointed Assistant Editor of the Adventist Review. Coffin represents a somewhat cosmopolitan background, having grown up in Missouri where he attended SMC.

He is planning to go to Union College in Lincoln, Nebraska.

After one year at Union he served as a student missionary in Mexico, teaching English and Physical Education at Mexican Pacific Academy, near Navaja, Socoa. The next three years were spent at Newbold College in England, where he graduated in 1975.

In September of that year he married Leonie Stued, a Dutchman whom he had met at Newbold, but who had lived for several years in the United States.

With a love of travel in general, and more than a casual interest in Australia, he chose to begin his pastoral work in that country, "just for the experience," he says. The last three of his five years there he served as assistant pastor of the Avondale Memorial Church.

More recently Coffin has lectured in the Chesapeake Conference of the Columbia Union. And he has, as of the beginning of September, assumed his new position with the Review and Herald Publishing Association.

Coffin has two boys, Jamie four, and Jared four months, and they reside in Burtonsville, Maryland, where Jim serves as the president of the local ministerial association.

For the Week of Prayer Coffin has chosen to deal with issues with which all of us as Christians must contend. He suggests that in a sense his presentations will be a personal testimony of how he has come to receive the Christian life, its privileges and responsibilities.

It is his hope that as a result of his presentations, the opportunity to meet the students, and most of all, the working of the Holy Spirit, Christianity will take on new meaning and will be perceived as the beautiful experience that God intended it to be.
Getting out this paper is no picnic!
If we print jokes, people will say we are silly;
If we don’t, they say we are too serious.
If we clip things from other papers,
We are too lazy to write it down ourselves.
If we don’t, we are stuck on our own stuff.
If we make a change in a fellow’s writeup,
We are too critical, and if we don’t, we are asleep!
Now, likely as not, someone will say
We swiped this from some other paper.
We did!

The above case is just an example of how it is virtually impossible to comply with the standards set by so many people.
With every person, attitude differs. Each one of us develops his own opinion about certain issues. Each one of us seeks to satisfy his own desires. And each one of us, alone, is incapable of “pleasing all the people all the time.”
Our thinking is focused in one direction. Outside sources influence our thinking; but, the thinking process is still personal. Thus, decisions become the personal stance one adopts after a period of thought.
Attitude is the result of a conscious decision to react a particular way in a given situation. Environment, experience, and background contribute to the development of attitudes.
With the constant mental growth of an individual, some attitudes tend to change. As time progresses, new patterns of thinking are accepted and old decisions adopt to the alteration.
College is a learning center where our growth undergoes tremendous changes. As a result, our attitude begins to assimilate itself to our renewed decision-making process.
This paper wants to make you aware of how different people’s attitudes are.

Crossroads

Thatcher Curfew--Is it Justified?

There are many different views surrounding the men's 8:00 curfew of the humble abode of our lovely damsel's otherwise known as Thatcher Hall.

In the past, many of these young lovelies have found this rule to be convenient for their evening stroll to the lobby comfortably attired in a bathrobe. While the North the males of our campus residing in Talge Hall dress appropriately for female guests until 10:30.

The young men feel quite comfortable dressing for our welcome guests and would kindly appreciate the ladies bestowing this privilege on us as we have to them.

FDA has been considered a problem in some of a remedy. As a hopeful solution the administration has strongly encouraged that no one loiter in front of the dorm or enter the lobby after visiting hours.

To this, a question has been raised by many. Why should a dozen or so students spoil those privileges that were once enjoyed by the entire student body?

I realize that it is extremely impossible to post chaperones at convenient locations to see that everyone stays on their side of the couch. I would suggest the use of a remedy such as mild supervision rather than the old adage out of sight, out of mind.

Our lovely campus is known for its picturesque setting. At the same time it is not always favorably remembered. Especially for its unpredictable weather. In the old winter seasons, it becomes an inconvenience for courting males coming to pick up their dates.

Where else would a male have to encounter frost-bite as a possibility if he shouldn't perfectly time his rendezvous on the front steps?

Whatever happened to the trust in a polite gentleman calling on his favorite young lady for a date in a respectable atmosphere?

I believe that the inconvenience we face today outweighs the past reasoning when the rule was first established. The rule itself has merit in some ways but, at least a system could be devised in which a young man could simply enter the lobby to pick up his date.

Headlines

A quick look at last year's Headlines column is enough to beg the mind. The world is changing so rapidly and dramatically that it's hard to keep things straight. Before beginning this year's Newsbriefs let's take a brief look at the current state of world affairs.

The Lebanese crisis represents yet another serious setback. While the Israelis pounded their Syrian and Palestinian allies with US-made weapons, the Soviets did little more than sit on their thumbs. This lesson won't be lost on the Arab world. It's now clear that the US, through its powerful Israeli Client State, holds all the cards that matter in the Middle East.

The US has taken its lumps as well. An effective Soviet propaganda campaign and US policy blunders including the current oil-gas pipeline embargo have combined to create the greatest crisis in US-Western European relations since World War II.

Short sighted US foreign policy decisions have caused severe diplomatic problems with China and the Arab world.

US-Chinese relations have been hurt by the recent arms deal between the US and Taiwan. Fortunately, the Reagan Administration was able to cut its losses and patch things up with China.

The President has his troubles also. Although inflation has gone done, it has been so at the cost of a severe recession and unemployment figures are close to ten percent.

Now it seems President Reagan must drop his hard line ideological approach to both domestic and foreign policy.

For example, the oil-gas embargo, enacted after the Polish martial law declaration, must end. It will not prevent the building of the pipeline and may cause severe damage to US-European relations.

The US must also change its diplomatic policies with the Israelis. The 1973 war proved the US can manipulate Israeli policy when it wants to. President Reagan must simply show that he definitely wants to.

The most pressing problem is the economy. The time for high sounding rhetoric about all the problems the Democrats left Reagan in office. He should now show that he can deal with high interest and unemployment rates. If not, he will become Mr. Reagan's and, in 1984, we will see a repeat of the "throw the bums out" mentality that characterized the 1980 election.

Campus Ministries is alive and kicking this year at Southern College. If you’re on campus any Sabbath afternoon with nothing to do, we’ve got something for you. There are enough activities planned to save you from ever having a dull Sabbath on this campus again.

Our goal this year is to provide activities for you to grow in your faith and share it with others. It is hoped that you will take advantage of Campus Ministries this year and get involved.

One of the most exciting things in life is to bring hope and peace into the existence of another human being. Please consider how you can be of the best service to the Master.

Softball Scoops

It was the first game of the season. I was on my way to the softball fields. As I rounded the corner of the VM, I stopped suddenly. There were lots of people watching. I hastened my step in order to determine who had come to watch. As the evening progressed, the crowd kept growing. It was definitely the best turnout I had seen since I had been at school.

This is what our intramural program is all about—participation. Not only by the players, but by the fans as well. Whether we take sports seriously or whether we simply play for exercise, everyone can enjoy sports. The main thing is to get involved. "Involvement" is the key word this year in SC sports. You do not have to be athletic to take part in the optional activities. From softball to cycling, from basketball to jogging, you can participate in almost any sport that suits you.

This year the Southern Accent sports section will be concentrating on the intramural program and other sports activities here at SC. Time Out is all about what is happening here at Southern College.

The 1982 fastpitch softball season got off to a slow start last week. Most of the games were rained out on Wednesday and Thursday.

However, some fine play was displayed in the games scheduled for Monday and Tuesday. In "A" League action, Giebell defeated Gaber 7-5. A scoreless tie was broken in the third inning with a bases loaded double by Craig Stone. A throwing error enabled Stone to come home to make the score 4-0.

Giebell scored three more runs and Gaber rallied to score five with the home run by David Peterson.

Tuesday night, Pettijohn defeated Cummings 4-3. Pettijohn's team started off the game by scoring three runs in the top of the first inning. Cummings came right back to the bottom of the first with two runs, keyed by an RBI triple by Dave Botimer. The rest of the contest was a defensive battle, with the only scoring being home runs by Rick Greve and Botimer.

In "B" League, two games were played. Krall defeated Mock despite a home run by Glenn Greenlee. Tuesday night Lebo defeated Lamb.

Umpire scrutinizes a fast play against opposing players.
Southern Cynic

Editor's Note: We here at the Southern Accent, have a practice. We enjoy our leisure experiences and relish well-written material. One of our most beloved writers, who has moved on to a better world, still holds a special place. This week we remember, Steve Dickerhoff, as his spirit lingers in our office.

I am usually an open-minded person when it comes to alternative life styles, but there is one going around SMC that has gotten a little too close to home.

Last year, my best friend and I hung around together all the time. We wore Levi's and were proud of it, and then this Prep thing came along and kind of upset us. Of course, we were like every other non-prep, and sat in the cafeteria and made the prep jokes and rated every prep's clothes on their Blindness Factor (BF). We scored relative to how much we had to squat when looking at a prep. Well, Christmas came and went, and my friend came back wearing an Izod sweater. I approached him in disbelief and asked him what had come over him.

"It's a long story," he began. "I didn't have the nerve to tell you first semester, but..."

He couldn't go on. It was too horrible to even think about.

"I did a lot of thinking over winter break," he continued, "and I have decided to be honest with you and with myself. First semester, deep down inside of me was a latent prep. I realized I can't hide it forever, so I have decided to come out of the closet."

I stood there stunned. As I began to walk away, he handed me a "Prep, Are People Too" button. I didn't see my friend for a long time after that. One day as I walked through the lobby, there he sat playing back-gammon with one of "them."

"Long time no see," he said. "I really didn't want to be seen talking with him, but I forced myself.

"Nice pair of green pants. Don't believe I've ever seen a shade of green quite that bright before."

"Well, it's the newest, you know. What do you think of my Oxford's?"

I couldn't take it any longer. Here was a semi-normal human-being transformed before my eyes, and I couldn't do a thing to stop it. I decided I had to do something, so the next Sunday I went up to his room.

"How about going out and throwing the football around?" I asked.

"Man, I would really like to, but a bunch of us are going sailing this afternoon, and I can't make it."

"Why?" I asked in desperation. "Why did you change?"

"Well," he began, "I really don't know. I've always had this thing for brightly colored soda signs, and I guess I've always pictured myself as see. And another thing, matching clothes has always been hard for me, and with this new style I just get up every morning and throw on the first thing I see—and it works. I know it's probably hard for you to understand, " he said as he put his hands into his yellow pants, "but, I guess you must have to walk a mile in a prep's boat mocassins to understand."

Hey you! Yes, you with the anatomy book. We've got a club for you. It is the Allied Health Professions Club, and if our major is Pre- Dental hygiene, pre- dentalists, pre- medical records administration, pre- occupational therapy, pre- physical therapy, pre- radiology technology, pre- respiratory therapy, or medical technology, this is your club. We have a lot of activities planned for you this year—a campout, a banquet, a trip to Six Flags, and a Christmas party to name just a few. We also have guest speakers coming to talk about your field.

Our second activity (we already went water sliding) will be on Thursday, September 16, at 5pm in the banquet room of the cafeteria. It will be an informal get-acquainted party, so bring your supper and join us! We'll provide the dessert.

LEARN ACCOUTSTIC GUI- TAR in many varied styles by such contemporary and folk-gospel artists as: DALLAS HOM, AMY GRANT, BONNIE CASEY, and DAYSTAR and more! Also: Pop/easy rock/ folk/ country/artists such as: AIR SUPPLY, DAN FOGELBERG, and BREAD. For more details contact Bill Yoing at 390-4734 anytime or Box 174, Talie Hall.

BE A STUDENT ASSOCIATION SENATOR! If you or someone you know is interested in what happens on our campus and how it effects student life, then you should consider being a SA senator. A Student Association senator is a representative for individual precincts (Thatcher, Talge, Village, Orlando subdivided), and can express the students' views about issues which concern them and their college.

Filing for candidacy started Tuesday and petitions must be in to the SA office by Monday September 13th. Approval of the petitions will be posted Wednesday and campaigning will begin. Petitions can be signed at the Student Center desk and in the SA office.

Elections will be September 21 and 22. Requirements for candidacy were explained in the last Chapter, (SA Elections Manual, '82).

The Student Ministerial Association would like to thank all of those who had a part in making our softball game a success. Special thanks to Coach Jaeck of the Physical Education Department, the Religion teachers and of course, the theology and religion majors. Last but not least we thank the wives and friends who came to enjoy the game.

An evening dinner is set for China Gardens on September 19 at 7pm. Tickets will be sold for this occasion on September 8 and 9 between 8-10pm in Thatcher lobby. Limited amount of space, so hurry.

Sigma Theta Chi Attention Tri-Beta Members; there will be a party for club members and their dates at Dr. Carter's house Sunday the 12th at 6:30pm. Please sign up at Hackman Hall.

The final portions of the Joker were delivered to the College Press on Wednesday, September 1, according to Editor Jon Larrabee.

Preparation for the Joker started soon after the previous edition was released. Student Missionaries, Task Force workers: Orlando students, faculty and staff were personally requested and persistent- ly reminded to get their pictures taken. Ads were obtained and submitted to the press long before registration.

Actual layout was scheduled for Monday, August 30, so as to include the majority of late registrants. John Kendall spent many hours program- ming so that the type could be set automatically.

If everything goes smoothly, we can expect the 1982 Joker to be released soon.

Technically, yes: caffeine is detrimental to the body as far as we know, so the question of drinking it would pretty much fall into the category of the million other things that various people simply label "gray areas."

WE DID IT! RECORDS OFFICE REPORTED THAT AS OF SEPTEMBER 7, 1982 SOUTHERN COLLEGE REACHED A FINAL COUNT OF 1,801 STUDENTS. WHAT TO GO!
Coffins ministers to SC

Mr. Jim Coffin, currently an assistant editor of the Adventist Review, is conducting this semester's Week of Spiritual Emphasis at Southern College.

Concerned with a need to change our perspective about God, Coffin's meetings include personal stories, new twists to Bible stories, and an animated style which brings his talks to life.

Mr. Coffin served as a pastor in Australia before serving as pastor at the Burtonsville, Maryland church. Yet Coffin has found Southerners to be friendly, "I have been to SC in years past," he commented. "The buildings have changed but I received a very warm reception and have found the people to be very friendly."

Looking forward to being with SC's students, Coffin says that it is hard to start a week of prayer but he finds it "challenging."

"For real" closely characterizes student comments concerning the first part of the week. "He makes everything so realistic." "He is dynamic and illustrative." "He is interesting because of his energy and humor."

In addition to his speaking appointments, Mr. Coffin counseled interested students throughout the week.

Cutting to the heart of the issue about the outcome of the meetings, the speaker emphasized the "we need a 180 degree turn around for a dynamic relationship with God."

Mr. Coffin's ministry here at SC testifies to his hope of a spiritual regeneration for SC and elsewhere.

Haynes Appointed Learning Center to Open

By Maureen Mayden

Southern College's new Learning Center will be directed by Mrs. Carol Haynes, of Collegedale.

Haynes is currently working on her Ph.D. (her thesis deals with learning centers) at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. She has also interned for a time at Chattanooga State's Learning Center. Her specialties are teaching, reading and study skills.

Southern College's Learning Center will provide tutoring or help with any class students have trouble with. It will be a center of learning, according to Haynes. She also expressed the availability of the Center to faculty for improving teaching skills. Various other programs can be added to suit individual needs.

Dr. Frank Knittel, president of Southern College, stated that the official planning for the Center must begin by October 1, 1982, and that it should be fully open by January, 1983. Mrs. Haynes feels that a limited beginning, such as tutoring, could start right away, and agreed with the second semester opening date for full operation of the Center.

Haynes expressed the need for lots of space in a centralized location for the new center. She would not state a preference, but merely said that five places on campus were being considered. One of Haynes' first duties will be to rewrite the organizational material for the Center. As an unexpected cut in the governmental grant has necessitated a need for re-budgeting, Mrs. Haynes stated that the type of program has been very successful in colleges such as Chattanooga State and should prove very helpful to the students and faculty of Southern College.
At one time or another during its history, every business, institution and government questions its reason for existence. People inside and outside of the organization wonder which way things are heading and how they can help redirect the thrust of current affairs. Southern College has reached that critical point in its history.

Certain conservative forces on the outside have assailed the college for liberal and heretical ideas and policies. Some radical publications have urged the removal or resignation of top leaders at SC and the conferences and union affiliated with the college. This, they believe, will solve everything. On the other hand, students at SC are complaining about the strictly enforced rules and the seemingly harsh sentences meted out when they are broken. So which way will SC's administration turn?

The Southern College Board of Trustees, who met on September 15, will try to guide and direct SC's future. Yet those men walk a very thin line. A sharp swing to the right would alienate many students and faculty members at SC while a move to the left could further inflame certain factions in the Southern Union.

Some people have offered simple answers to the complex problems at SC. But these unwise and foolish solutions will not solve the complex problems, only compound them. Southern College's problems will not go away overnight. Only with dedicated effort and unity can SC pass this crossroad and continue on the path of service.

Franklin on Accent

Due to administrative changes within the framework of the Southern Accent this issue has been produced under extremely unusual circumstances. Under the situation at hand it is my Constitutional responsibility to appoint an interim editor. In order to maintain at least temporary continuity it would have been only natural to ask the assistant editor to take control of the paper until an election could take place. Due to his resignation, however, this was impossible. As a result I asked the remaining staff to combine their talents to complete this issue according to the plans already laid. The intent of this decision was to publish news that had already been researched while it was still current. It is my hope that this is not seen as an attempt to create a bias in the upcoming election. I would just as well wish each candidate the best of luck and encourage each student to use their own judgment.

Sincerely,
Avin Franklin
SA President

Woods Talk

Dave Mathewson

The bobcat, or wildcat, as it is called, is much larger than a house cat and has longer legs and a short tail. Its weight ranges from 15 to 35 pounds with a few individuals tipping the scale at 40 pounds. The color is yellowish to reddish-brown, streaked and with black spots, allowing it to blend in quite well with its surroundings.

The most likely spots to find a bobcat would be in a heavily forested area. The normal territory of one of these cats may cover about five square miles, but if food is scarce, it may wander over more than twenty miles in search of a meal.

These meals consist mainly of small mammals such as rabbits, squirrels, rats and mice. A full-grown bobcat has been known to attack and kill a deer. Indicating that the big cat was very hungry and the deer was very old or sick. A healthy deer would prove too tough for a fighter for a bobcat. The bobcat is very beneficial because it keeps down the number of small mammals.

This animal hunts at night and is aided by exceptionally keen eyesight and hearing. Its method of hunting is to creep up on its prey and pounce on it, making the kill by either a blow from its claws, or a quick bite to the back of the head. Being an excellent climber, it may even catch a squirrel in a tree. Like most cats, they dislike water, but they have been seen fishing while standing in water up to their chest. Once I saw a rather large cat swimming in hot pursuit of a swamp rabbit in the Everglades.

In the late winter, this normally quiet cat may startle many people with its weird screams. A few months later, in a den constructed in a hollow tree or log, the female gives birth to from one to five kittens. With the average being two or three. The gestation period is 62-63 days. The babies are about eight inches in length, have a heart girth of about five inches and weigh about eight or nine ounces. Their eyes are sealed shut at birth and usually open in nine to ten days. The eyes are blue at birth and will turn yellow within the next couple of months. The young usually stay with their mother until autumn and then go off on their own. Bobcats may live up to twelve years in the wild. During these years, the animal will undoubtedly come into contact with a few humans, but so secretive is the bobcat, that only the best observers will be lucky enough to spot it.
Southern Players plans plays

By Laurie Loca

"An actor must emphasize some da ta!" And remember, you are da actor. Cool. Walk like you owns da world. Like this..."

Actually, the mini-dialogue above is just a fragment of the conversation which abounds each Monday and Wednesday nights on various parts of the campus. Approximately 15 SC students participate, often making the room sound like a foreign language conversation at the UN building.

But these students really do have a method in their madness. They are SC's newest drama group, Southern Players. And although the practice session is not spent learning new dialogues and accents, the actors nevertheless are presented with various other challenges which they must meet.

The group really had its beginning last spring when Clyde Garey, director of the Players, cast the play "Flowers for Algernon." Being a newcomer to SC himself, Garey had entertained thoughts before of starting a group, but had nothing solidified.

"I hadn't intended to use the cast from 'Flowers' as the group, but everyone worked very well together and we needed a good solid structure, so we ended up."

The director has a unique purpose in mind for his actors. "Within each human being, there is a desire to participate in the arts. All of us have this desire, which comes out in art, music, writing, or some other form. Some people simply don't fit in the other categories; their talent lies in performance. I want to uncover that talent and make these individuals realize that acting isn't just an ego trip, but rather a worthwhile effort legitimate in and of itself."

Few people realize the amount of work and long hours which go into the production of a play. Since the Players' goal is to be as professional as possible, each actor must spend some time off-campus productions, though the group does not plan to go on tour.

Southern Players would like to show their audiences this year that while spotlights and applause are nice frills benefits, the main purpose of the group is to give those who take the time to attend the performances. Each actor has found out that the best part of acting is knowing that the audience will walk away with something besides a ticket stub, something that will stay with them long after the applause if forgotten.

And that, in a word or two, is really what the group is all about.

SEPTEMBER IS---

Yellow expressing itself in all the brilliant fall flowers (coreopsis, goldenrods, sunflowers, and sneezeweed) and tainting the trees with a tinge that is just a hint of the dazzling color-burst soon to come;

Fairs, exhibitions, campouts and hikes, garage and yard sales, and fruit stands overflowing with plump apples, grapes, tomatoes, and squash;

Baseball breathlessly winding down to the pennant races with football simultaneously breaking loose all over;

Students (especially freshmen) wondering if their teachers can conjure up any more projects and theories, discussion sessions, laboratory experiments, research papers, and module studies in order to get their courses "organized"--well, take courage, they can and will with no letup until December!

Aerobics exercise—is it right?

Rhonda Hallock

\( \text{NO} \)

Dr. Kamenski

\( \text{YES} \)

Aerobic exercise to music has gained widespread attention throughout the United States recently. Jackie Sorenson developed many of the early programs which resulted from the early stage of the fitness craze of the late 70's and early 80's. Aerobics to music is an excellent form of exercise.

Most aerobic classes are not competitive. It is a great way for women to exercise in a wholesome social surrounding.

While many aerobic classes are designed and centered around modern dance and music that would be "unacceptable" by Adventist standards, it is quite possible to develop programs based on acceptable movement and wholesome music. It has been our goal at Southern College to strive to make our aerobic exercise programs enjoyable and beneficial while maintaining the highest standards in movement and music.

When designed properly, aerobics can provide many physiological advantages. Increases in aerobic capacity or cardiovascular/cardiorespiratory efficiency result. Corresponding increases in muscular strength and endurance also occur. A reduction in resting heart rate, exercise heart rate, and cholesterol may also be seen. When engaged in, aerobics may also increase fat metabolism which in turn decreases the amount of adipose tissue present and the end result is an overall loss in inches. Aerobics also provides a social outlet for aggression. The end result is less tension. The feeling of accomplishment and group belonging is difficult to measure, but there is little doubt that these areas are important. Self-image may also be enhanced by participation with like members from your peer group.

When done on a regular basis of at least three times weekly for a minimum of 45 minutes with a qualified instructor, aerobic exercise to music can be an extremely satisfying means for fulfilling all the goals and benefits listed in this article. Programs are available for a minimal fee on Sunday, Tuesday, and Thursday evenings at Spaulding Elementary School. Choose a form of exercise that fits your needs, begins slow to prevent injury, and has fun! Fitness is a lifelong pursuit, so enjoy the ride to better health!

"A" LEAGUE FASTPITCH SOFTBALL SUMMARIES FOR THE WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 5

Monday night

DURBY 11 GABER 7

Durby's team erupted for seven runs in the third inning and held on to defeat Gaber. Brad Durby and Dick Bird each had a homer and a double. Don Sweeney added a pair of softies for the winners. Rob VanEvere drove in three runs with a homer and a double. Randy Gaber added two hits for the losers.

Tuesday night's game

CUMMINGS 3 DURBY 2

Tim Beaulieu's homer in the third inning powered Cummings to a 3-2 win over Durby. The winner was aided by outstanding defensive plays by John Gys and Kevin Cummings. The latter was a leaping grab of a liner off the bat of Ron Schaffer for the final out. The winners didn't commit an error.

Brad Durby had two hits in a losing effort.

Jay Kemmerer's single in the bottom of the seventh gave Giebell a come from behind 6-5 victory over Cummings. It was Kemmerer's second hit of the night.

Jim Dobson had two hits for Cummings. Doug Malin added a bases-empty homer for the losers.

Wednesday night

DURBY 7 PETTIJOHN 2

A double by Brad Durby and a two-run single by Dick Bird broke a 2-2 deadlock as Durby rallied to defeat Pettijohn 7-2.

Steve Fitzgerald had a pair of hits for the winners. The win by Durby forces a three-way tie for first place.

Thursday Night

CUMMINGS 5 GABER 4

Tim Beaulieu knocked in six runs as Cummings notched his second victory of the season. Beaulieu had two home runs and a single. He displayed himself to be the best hitter in the league with men on base.

Cummings' team also played excellent defense throughout the game. On three occasions Gaber had a man on third with no outs, but was unable to score. Jim Hakes contributed a home run for the losers.

NOTES

The last day to sign up for flag football for both men and women is September 20. There will be men's tryouts held Sunday, September 19, at 12:00 noon, on the Soccer fields. All new students who want to display their skills are urged to attend.

The annual Talge Hall golf tournament will be held Sunday, October 3. Tournament sign-up date is scheduled for Monday, September 20. If you are interested in playing, but aren't on a team, see Dean Christian at the men's dorm.

Once upon a time in Fenton Forest there was a squirrel who decided to develop a business of selling nuts. He was an industrious squirrel and thought that others might enjoy the good nuts he collected as much as he did. So Simon, for that was his name, set up the NUT HUT on a busy intersection of Fenton Forest. He worked his heart out getting the stand set up, spending many hours each day until the NUT HUT was really a very attractive stand. The NUT HUT carried a large variety of first quality nuts.

One thing that concerned Sammy was how to tell the other animals in the forest about the NUT HUT. He decided that he needed to advertise and so he hired Sammy Jay to do advertising. Signs were placed at appropriate places in the forest to tell other animals about the NUT HUT. Some TV advertising was even purchased to claim the goodness of his nuts. The NUT HUT became very popular among all the animals in the forest. He discovered that there truly were many other animals who enjoyed the nuts as well as he did and business prospered. He had to hire other squirrels to collect nuts for the business and he even bought a new stove to roast nuts. He expanded the NUT HUT to include a place where animals could sit down and eat. Business was great and Simon was truly enjoying himself. One day his son, Fenton, came to him and said, "Dad, haven't you been listening to the radio or reading the newspaper?"

Simon admitted that he had not been reading the newspaper or watching television— he had been too busy selling nuts. "Well," his son said, "If you would have been paying attention to what is going on in the world you would know that things are really bad. There is a big depression. People are out of work, interest rates are high and I heard that the market for nuts will fall. Who knows where it will all end."

Simon thought, "Well, my son's been to college, he reads the papers and listens to the radio and he ought to know what is going on."

So Simon fired the squirrels that were collecting nuts for him and canceled the TV advertising. He reduced the hours that the NUT HUT was open and told Sammy Jay that he wouldn't need his advertising. The sales of nuts fell dramatically overnight. "You're right, son," Simon said, "We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."

Accent interviews Coffin

Is it hard to start a week of prayer?

I always find it a challenge and wonder if the topics are on the level and relate to the students.

What one thought do you with students end faculty of SC to remember from this week of spiritual emphasis?

I want them to learn the essence of Christianity and that the Christian life is life at its fullest.

What suggestions do you have for the "post week of prayer" period? How can we maintain our relationship with God and draw closer to Him?

There is no easy way. However with study, prayer and self-discipline we can maintain this relationship.

How do you perceive the outlook of the church in the 80's?

I'm fairly positive about the future of the church. We have tremendous opportunities. There will be certain turmoil in the future but I believe these can be stepping stones.

Animal shelter starts

Since last September of 1981, Southern College has been operating a live animal facility next to Hackman Hall on the north side and next to Lynn Wood Hall.

Dr. Grandset, the person responsible for getting this project rolling, thought that at one time, Hackman Hall would require an addition, but that proved to be very expensive. The facility is a trailer donated by the village housing department.

According to Dave Mathews, who is in charge of the rehabilitation work inside and whom takes care of the many animals that now reside, says the purpose is "to have a place that not only has more space, but can keep all animals in one area instead of being scattered throughout the main building." There will be various experiments performed during and after class periods and labs.

Why is the facility so important? According to Dr. David Steen, "there was a general realization that the Biology Department needed live animals to study."

Matthewson also said, "it gives us more room to observe wild animals captured from our own biology trail, surrounding counties, and as far away as California and South America. We have already observed a Western Cottonmouth Moaicaux giving birth to live young."

It was recorded on 16mm film and the department's video recorder. Since that time the little birth of six Southern Copperhead snakes has been recorded.

As the present time, large and small cages are being built for different size animals. Already several large fish tanks have been fixed up with native fish such as Blue Gill Brent, Carp, etc. Later on there will be a salt-water tank available.
As I was finishing my last slice of pizza at Caesar's and watching the end of the movie they had on their video screen—oh, didn't you know? It's all those people you're supposed to watch as long as they sell pizza. (Beware of those popcorn places). Anyway, I came back for nightcheck and started to drift off when I heard a faint clacking noise, accompanied by moans. A light came close to my bed. Closer. Closer. From underneath my covers I peered out, and could make out a form of some guy wrapped in chains. He wore a beanie cap and called out to me. "OK, dean," I said, "I didn't pull no fire alarm." "I am here to warn you," the guy tried to get a word in edgewise. "Hey! Steve Dickerhoff," I yelled. "What are you doing here? Did you graduate?" "No! No! I am here to warn you. As a past Southern Cynic, I felt it my duty to help you, so you can avoid my fate." "Always clowning," I said. "Listen!" he whispered. "Do you see these chains?"

"Sure. And if you don't quit thinking the dean will really be here." Ignoring me, he went on. "Each link represents a time I wasted on a girl, and I picked on the wrong people. "Like what?" I asked, shivering slightly. "Don't ever pick on Schlissel!" he shrieked. "I must have 200 links on him! And remember when I said that girls are like dogs? They gave me a link for each girl in the dorm that semester!"

I tried to console him. "Look Steve, there's gotta be a mistake. You were such a good Cynic."

"Good Cynic!" he wailed, rattling his chains. "I should have been the religious editor. He only got half as many links." "Anything else?" I cracked. "Yes!" he replied. "Don't make fun of me, for it's my major. They have a real lobby here. And warn Lori Loga. She's been forging herself a real monster." At that moment I saw another figure in chains drift by. "Hey!" I yelled. "That was Dean Schlissel! What's his doing with those chains?"

Steve shrugged. "That's for picking on me. Works both ways."

He began to drift away. Good-bye Vic, good-bye, we'll be reading your stuff, and making your... "He rattled his chains."

"OK, OK I get it," I stuttered.

I watched Steve's form vaporize through the door. Lying there in the dark, with sweat on my brow, I realized what I was to do: leave the last slice alone.

Houck and Carter research topics

By Lorraine Facio-Jose

Doctors Diane Houck and Ron Carter, instructors in the Natural Science Division of SC, spent this past summer doing research in their respective fields of interest, botany and evolution.

Dr. Diane Houck, professor of biology, has written a paper that is to be published within the next year by the American Journal of Botany. The paper is based on research done by Dr. Houck and Loren Riesbeck, an SMC graduate of '81, on the bryophyllum caelestrum, more commonly known as the Life plant.

Dr. Houck discovered that little research had been done on the plant, and has been studying and observing it under various conditions ever since. The results of his research, which is cited in his paper, is that a chemical, starch, inhibits the embryo-like substance around the edge of the leaf when attached to the plant, but when the leaf is detached enzymes are activated that work against the auxin allowing the hormones to be stimulated and the buds released.

Currently, Dr. Houck, with the assistance of Terry Andrade, is doing more research with the hope of learning the amount of auxin within an attached leaf and its concentration when the leaf is severed and budding.

Dr. Houck explained the importance of his research.

"This plant appears to have a system that may help us understand how hormones work in all plants."

Dr. Ron Carter was invited to speak this summer, for the third consecutive year, at the Biblical Research Institute's and the Geo-Science Research Institute's annual joint meeting. The Biblical Research Institute, founded in 1952, is a committee of experienced men of varied qualifications that are appointed by the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists to study any Bible-related issues that they feel are important. The Geo-Science Research Institute was formed by the General Conference in the late 1950's to keep the Biblical Research Institute aware of the increasing number of scientific issues that affect the Bible.

Dr. Carter's presentation was on a concept of biological determinism, which is based on a new evolutionary theory, sociobiology, that he feels "is obliterating the minds of many professors in sociology, that the body is nothing more than the genes way of getting from one generation to another."

Dr. Carter, "says that the body is nothing more than the genes way of getting from one generation to another." So, any act that is apparent done by an animal out of love or selfishness is actually done for selfish reasons. When applied to man, this theory tries to blow away the argument against evolution that man is unique in his culture from other animals by his moral actions because his loving acts are also selfishly based.

Many scientists are readily accepting this new idea, and it is expected that it will be expected that it will be used as scientific data to support this new theory."

Knittell asks for one year sabbatical

by Maurum Maydn

Dr. Frank Knittel, President of Southern College for the past 11 years, has asked the Board of Trustees for a sabbatical, effective June 1, 1983. Knittel, who has given over 30 years of his life to administrative work in the denomination, feels that he deserves this year away from the pressures of work. It would also be a good way to get back into teaching--his first love. "For the last two or three years, I have been thinking about taking a sabbatical, and last spring, my wife and I decided that this would be the year," Knittel said.

Dr. Knittel stated that the Board was supporting him in his request for a sabbatical with the understanding that no strings were attached on either side. However, there are a few faculty members who disagree. At the last faculty meeting, Mr. Bob Garren, Professor of Art, stated, "Because of the current unrest on the Southern College campus, a change in top leadership at this time seems academically unwise. Therefore, the Southern College faculty and staff members request that the Southern College Board withdraw Dr. Frank Knittel's sabbatical request for the 1983-84 school year, and that he continue as president of the college so that he may continue to give us the strong leadership that he has in the past."

Other faculty members expressed their concern for what may happen when Knittel leaves. Still others supported him in his decision.

Knittel feels that the faculty that are trying to insist that he stay are overstepping the boundaries into a personal decision. "It is a personal decision of mine, and I do not think that the faculty should have a say in whether or not the Board should accept my request."

Knittel thinks that administration should be left up to younger administrators. "I just had my 55th birthday yesterday, and I think it's time to step down. There are plenty of younger people that can better handle the burdens of administration."

Byers blasts Bouvard

by Stephen Morris

"Quite frankly, I think Mrs. Bouvard is inept in the office and she's continued to hide that from the people," stated Dr. Glen Byers, Republican candidate for the Third Congressional District. During his brief visit to Collegedale Tuesday morning, Dr. Byers, a practicing physician from Cleveland, is challenging incumbent Marilyn Bouvard for the position of US Representative from the Third District which includes Hamilton County.

"Political office should not be given to somebody as if it were some kind of award or honor or certificate," Byers said referring to the campaign. "I'm not interested in a nice person serving as my representative in the Congress, but somebody intelligent enough to understand problems and enough common sense to find solutions."

Along with the economy and the impending bankruptcy of the Social Security system, Byers cited Mrs. Bouvard's refusal to debate and her unavailability to the people of the district as a major issue in the campaign. "Anybody who serves in this office who cannot debate a challenger certainly cannot debate on the floor of the US House of Representatives," declared Byers.

Following his meeting with interested residents at the College Plaza, Byers spoke briefly to SC students during chapel.

Red Clay State Park hosted crowds of SC students who attended the SA Fall Picnic. Originally scheduled for September 27 but postponed due to forecasted rain, the picnic was held on Sunday, October 3 and was favored with beautiful weather. Buses, as well as cars, provided transportation to the park where students participated in planned activities and games such as the stick relay, balloon toss, couples kickball, and the drink guessing contest. Chip and Jo took first place in the pie-eating contest, devouring a chocolate cream pie in less than one and one-half minutes.

The main attraction of the day was a hot air balloon for an hour and a half during the afternoon. Rides were available for the price of one dollar. Supper was catered by the cafeteria and consisted of veggieburgers, baked beans, macaroni, apple pie and ice cream. During the meal, entertainment was provided in the amphitheater by the White Oak Mountain Boys who sang "Foggy Mountain Breakdown," "Rocky Top," and other bluegrass favorites. For a change of pace, Bill Young took the microphone and sang a few selections such as "If," and "Leavin' On a Jet Plane."

The concert lasted about an hour and a half and was attended by both SC students and participants in the Cherokee Art Festival, which was also taking place in the park.

Beginnings

According to a recent poll, newspapers are the least trusted of all the media. Only 16 percent said they believed what they read in the newspapers. In the college area, the media has a credibility problem. Certain publications have slanted the facts, tainted the truth, and printed outright lies. However, they have mixed in just enough truth to give credibility to their accusations and stories. So where does all this leave the Southern Accent? Will Southern College's student newspaper become a radical publication, printing harsh, cutting statements about people in authority and questioning the basic doctrines of the church? Or will the Accent become a public relations tool of the college, printing only "good" news and side-stepping the issues of today? Hopefully neither.

The staff of the Southern Accent have one main goal—to relay the unslanted facts to the student body of Southern College. We will not attempt to make your decisions for you. Rather, we will supply the news to assist you in the important decisions in the future.

Keeping the Accent's goal in mind, we also have a second goal in mind—to entertain you. Through our "Southern Cynic" columns and other columns and features we want to keep you up to date on the lighter side of college life. This will not all be easy. To meet these goals will mean lots of hard work. But the students need to be able to trust their paper and be pleased with the outcome.

Here's your part. To help maintain a newspaper that is reliable, relevant, and interesting, you can make us aware when we are falling you, the reader. We may make mistakes, but we will be willing to correct our errors. The Southern Accent has great potential. With hard work and effort, we can achieve our goal of excellence.

Dear Editor,

In writing this article I do not intend to belittle or criticize our college's deans or administration; rather, I wish to relate to them a mounting concern and frustration which is manifesting itself among the student body. While I do believe it is the responsibility of the administration to designate a code of conduct and to enforce it, I do not believe in "rules for the sake of having rules." In the process of protecting our student body from both the unchristian influences out in "The World" and from themselves, it would seem that the "rules" are becoming more onerous. In an effort to curtail indiscriminate displays of public "passion," the administration's policies are regressing to a position parallel to those "strictly enforced" in our denomination's academies.

While there do exist irresponsible couples on our campus, most are considerate of both possible onlookers and their own privacy. I fear that by the strict enforcement of "No PDA," the administration is only making matters worse. In accordance with Newton's Law "for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction," we might be faced with more than just a public display of affection.

Human nature will always dictate rebellion when faced with suppression. For example, a young man (a student) walked his girlfriend to work in Wright Hall and, as he said good-bye, kissed her on her cheek. As the students were parting a faculty member promptly, in a harsh, commanding tone, reproached the young woman, telling her how disrespectful it was the act she has just witnessed.

Does a simple, innocent good bye kiss constitute offensive PDA? What will be next? Will it be to hold hands or sit next to a member of the opposite sex in the cafeteria or in chapel? While these may be extreme positions, it is also ridiculous to expect collegiates to act like pre-academy students! We have emotions that are real, mature and Christian as any member of the faculty.

It appears that I am attempting to judge our school by "worldly" standards. I am. For it should be pointed out that we live in this world and are creatures of it. We have human passions and desires, but as Seventh-day Adventists we see and react to them through the Word of God. If God had not intended youth to experience love, it would seem He would have limited our capacity to comprehend what the apostle Paul was expressing in I Corinthians 13.

Now would we be able to distinguish between our love reactions with our parents, pets, teachers, friends or Jesus Himself. While there are students in attendance here on campus who may not have reached the level of understanding it takes to become committed for a lifetime relationship, nevertheless, they are gaining both insight and appreciation from their existing love relationship. Out of which will blossom a deeper and more complex comprehension of what love can truly be.

What I am trying to express is a wish for the faculty and staff to be more considerate of those students whose possible maturity is being trampled. There is also a need for the student body to improve on its discretion concerning "Public Passion" versus "Public Affection." One last word of warning: the more strictly a rule is enforced, the more eager and determined the oppressed will be to overrule that law. In all sincerity we ask, are you emulating the phrases by attempting to enforce an unkeepable and unfair law?

Sincerely,

Keith Goodman

Letters to the editor should be addressed EDITOR, and should be mailed in one of the red mailboxes located in both of the dorms and the Student Center.

Competition—is it right?

By Steve Jaegs

Benefits derived from a competitive recreation program can far outweigh any negative outcome that results from competition.

Whether on an individual level or in a team situation, competition in sports can reinforce attitudes and behaviors that directly transfer over to one's everyday life. There are many business concerns that agree that being involved in some type of athletic competition. Their contention, with whom I also agree is that by being involved in sports competition a person can and has learned to cope with winning and losing.

As a team has strived for a common goal, cooperation, adaptation to various situations and loyalty have been established and reinforced. A competitor has learned to put forth his best effort. These behaviors so necessary to being successful in athletic competition are also seen as those characteristics necessary to be successful in the business world.

Looking at competition from another perspective, seems to also point out the need for a competitive sports program. During the past two years there have been well over 2400 participants in intramural programs here at Southern College. Why have so many people become involved in intramural?

There are many possible answers to this question. First, it is fun to compete and achieve success. Intramurals is organized in such a way that for the most part, the participant is competing with people of like abilities. This allows for success to be achieved more readily.

Second, Intramural competition provides a needed diversion from one's daily activity. Many individuals need this diversion in the form of structured competition.

Third, competition provides a way for a person to have some type of physical exercise. Many times competitive athletes is the only form of exercise a student takes time from his studies to participate in.

Through strong positive leadership, benefits derived from a competitive recreational program can far outweigh any negative outcome that results from competition.

Steve Jaegs is in charge of intramural sports at Southern College.

✅ YES

By Dick Winn

Perhaps more than is usually the case, I wish for this column to provoke serious, aggressive thought. I want to join minds with you as a reader. I want to challenge you to read these seven propositions about an experience that touches all our lives. Then I want you to wrestle with them until you can either say that you agree with them, or you know exactly, precisely, logically why you disagree with them. I doubt that, as a church or as individuals, we can afford much more "non-think" on this powerful life experience.

First, a functional definition of this thing called competition. It is any goal-oriented situation in which the motivation for action comes from an ego-centered desire to excel one's self above another. As such, we see competition not so much as an act or event, but as an attitude of the mind. It is one method for questioning after self-worth and self-esteem.

Among the many things that could be said, I would like to make those brief assertions about the nature and effects of competition in the life of a Christian. What do you think of them?

1. Competition is so popular because it is the most readily available motivation. Ask any parent, teacher, pastor, politician, or other person involved in getting people to do something, and they will agree that competition gives them an instant handle. "Kids, see who can first brush the floor and clean up your room." "The first ones to get their report cards will receive blue ribbons." "Pastors baptizing the most persons this year will have their names published on the back page of the Journal." Almost all of us will jump at a chance to have our ego stroked by being thought of as smarter, stronger, faster, more dedicated, more capable, than someone else. All we need is for someone to come a "win-lose" situation, and we're off and running not to be the loser. Competition is a constant revelation of our insecurity.

2. Competition places a low value on human worth. It tells us that when another person's loss for my gain, it teaches me to disregard the hidden anguish of the one who and what gives substance to my winning. It leads me to conclude that my worth is based not on some absolute accomplishment of my own in the world of real endeavor, but rather on whether I have simply bested someone else. And when a person can no longer compete, we put him on the shelf. Could this be why our society tends to "warehouse" the elderly, since they are no longer valued as winners.

3. Competition teaches conformity rather than individuality. Since the initial motivation for the act comes from the quest for the crowd's approval, one dares not do that which the crowd will disapprove. The individualist, by contrast, does not float with the crowd. Possessing a strong inner sense of self-worth, he neither plays to the audience, nor spurns those who do not fit his mold. But competition is an organized system of passing out applause or rejection for behaviors which either conform or fail to conform to the values of the crowd.

4. Competition reinforces the philosophy of evolution rather than of creation. It is an outgrowth of the philosophy that says we get here by the process of the survival of the fittest. It says that since there is no meaningful destiny beyond this life, I must grab all I can get this time around and that the only rewards I will enjoy are those that come by being tougher, faster, smarter, in this life. Cooperation, on the other hand, is the outgrowth of a philosophy that sees helping, caring human relationships as something directly related to our ultimate destiny.

5. Competition is alien to the spirit of servanthood which Jesus advocated. Jesus frequently commented on the spirit of serving against others which characterized the society around Him. And His appraisal was always the same: "It shall not be so among you." (Matthew 20:25-27; 23:1-11) By contrast, Jesus wanted His friends to be moved by the same spirit which had prompted Him to humbly step down from the exalted throne, and to go on such a costly crad of servanthood to save us. We are constantly faced with two polar opposites in our relationships: the ego-thirstier, either to meet out our own needs, or the needs of the other person. Servanthood says, "Jesus has already met my needs; let me help you meet yours." Competition says, "I've got to get mine!"

6. Competition is not necessary for the Christian. He has found something so much higher to motivate his life. It's called love. All that needs to be done, love is ample motive to do. If love doesn't motivate it, it doesn't need to be done. To try to cut a mature Christian into an action by the offer of competitive reward would be to offer him a painful insult.

7. Competition cannot be used to build the kingdom of Christ. There is no natural, harmonious place for competition in the life of the church, or of the individual Christian. For the kingdom of Christ is not buildings, finances, or even activities, but a spirit in the hearts of people who have been made secure in the love of their Lord, and who need no cheap human conquests to supplement the power of that great, healing gift.

Knittel celebrates fifty-fifth

by Page Weenies

Frank Knittel celebrated his fifty-fifth birthday on September 30 with students of Southern College. After Dr. Knittel's chapel talk to the SEA, Melvin Campbell and Jeanette Sepanaka escorted him to the cafeteria on false premises.

Upon his arrival, "the white carpet" was rolled out by Tricia Smith and Malinick McKen down the middle aisle of the cafeteria. As he proceeded down the aisle to the heralding of the brass quartet, students and faculty arose in tribute to his years of service.

Knittel was greeted at the platform by his wife Helen and daughter Sherry. Balloons were released as Frank Roman led the crowd in "Happy Birthday," with the accompaniment of the brass quartet.

Frank Roman then gave an analogy of "This is Your Life, Frank Knittel." During Knittel's response to this, a large birthday cake was brought forward with the traditional candles.

Student Association President, Alvin Franklin, presented Dr. Knittel with a gift from the students. After some difficulty in opening the package, Knittel found the gift to be a cordless telephone.

Celebrating Knittel's birthday has always been a tradition at Southern College, but it has not always been celebrated by the entire student body. In past years, personal jokes have been played on Knittel, such as filling his office with balloons and paper, or hanging in front of Wright Hall a banner saying, "Happy Birthday, Frankie Baby!"

Southern College Fall Retreat Scheduled

by Catherine Lurie

The Chaplain's office has been hard at work planning the fall Bible Conference. The Southern College Fall Retreat, as it is being called, has been slated for October 14-17 at Cohutta Springs Camp. Campus Chaplain, Jim Her- man, who is responsible for the Retreat, says, "It will be a mixture of inspirational and recreational activities. A variety of special speakers will present the inspirational part of the program while students will be in charge of the recreational activities." The featured speaker will be Elder Philip Samaan. Samaan graduated from Portland Adventist Academy and Walla Walla College. He received his Masters degrees in Divinity and Public Health from Andrews University and Loma Linda University, and is now pursuing a doctorate degree in ministry. He pastors in the Idaho Conference for three years before accepting a call to the North Pacific Union Conference as Director of Outreach and Campus Ministries. Pastor Samaan enjoys spending the most of his time in the field, involved in youth outreach on the nine academy campuses, at Walla Walla College and public university campuses and with other church youth.

The other speakers involved in the Retreat include Georgia Cumberland Conference Youth Director Lewis Hender- shot, Andy McDonald, pastor of the Cohutta church, and Dr. Frank Knittel.

The activities that have been planned include group games, volleyball, basketball, hiking, and water skiing.

Jan Rice, the Chaplain's secretary mented, "The transportation and lodging will be free so the only expense will be for the food, and that can be charged on their bill. I think this Retreat will give us a good chance to get away from it all, have a real break, and a good time together."

Anyone interested in attending the Fall Retreat should sign up at the Chaplain's office.

Edwards speaks at retreat

Dr. Rex Edwards of the General Conference Ministerial Department was the fea- tured speaker at the Student Ministerial Association sponsored Fall Religion Retreat held at the Kiwanis Camp last weekend. Approximately 100 theology and religion majors attended the meetings which began Friday evening and continued throughout the Sabbath. Among the topics of interest addressed by Dr. Edwards was the concept of "every believer a minister" in con- trast to a rigid distinction between clergy and laity. The Sabbath School lesson was taught in turn by representatives from the five conferences in the Southern Union. Later in the afternoon, conference officials including Union Ministerial Secretary Harold Metcalfe, told what they looked for in prospective ministers and fielded ques- tions from the ministerial stu- dents.

Time Out

Kelly Pettijohn

An excellent turnout was on hand to witness the all-night slowpitch softball tournament held on Saturday night September 25. The tournament was a double elimination format which was played straight through until a winner resulted.

Jerry Russell's and Kent Greve's teams, both having 9-0 records in the regular season, were seeded to meet each other in the finals, which, as most expected, was what happened. Russell went through the winners bracket undefeated. Greve, losing only to Russell, won the rest of his games en route to finals, including a dramatic come from behind 10-9 victory over Moore. Greve, losing 9-1 in the bottom of the seventh, scored nine runs, the last five with two outs to win the contest. The final blow was a three-run homer by Jim Hakes.

The final game between Russell and Greve was played at 6:00 Sunday morning. Russell needed only to win the game to clinch the championship. Greve, however, needed to win the game to set up a deciding game to be played at 7:00 p.m. Russell made sure that the contest was not delayed any longer with a 5-4 victory. Captain Russell gave credit to fine defensive plays by Brad Dury and Jim Schffer as the keys to victory. Dury and Greg Culpepper each hit four home runs throughout the night to lead Russell to victory.

A big thank-you is in order to the SC students for their cheers and support throughout the night’s events. The evening could definitely be termed a success.

The final fastpitch games of the season were played on Saturday night, October 2, in the annual dorm tournament sponsored by the Talge Hall Men’s Club. The tournament consisted of four teams: first, second, and third floors of Talge, and a village team with Tim Beau lieu, Jim Dobson, Don Duff, and Brad Dury heading up the four squads respectively.

The tournament started at 8:00 p.m. with first playing second and third playing village with the winners scheduled to meet for the championship.

The game between first and second was a tight contest with second floor scoring one run in the top of the first inning, and holding a 1-0 lead through three innings. However, in the bottom of the fourth, first floor erupted for four runs. Shortstop Jerry Russell led off with a home run over the center field fence. David Botimer then followed with a single to left. Then with two on and nobody out, Kelly Pettijohn hit another home run to make the score 3-1. John Gris scored another run in the inning and also made an unassisted double play at third base to end a second floor scoring threat, making the final score 5-1 in favor of first floor.

The game between third floor and the heavily favored village team was a complete surprise. Fred Reacher batted a three-run homer for third floor to account for all their scoring. Village just could not get it going, managing only two runs throughout the game including a steal of home by Ron Barrow. The ended, on a controversial play. Kevin Cummins’ bunt was caught in the air by the third floor pitcher, who tried to throw to first to force out Jim Hakes, but threw wildly into right field. Hakes attempted to round the bases and score the tying run, but he was thrown out at home plate to end the game at 3-2 in favor of third floor.

The championship game was called due to a forfeit by third floor because of lack of players. This was unfortunate because a good contest was certain to have taken place. Softball season is now over, ending on a good note, so get ready for the football season ahead.

The new pastor preached on repentance the first Sabbath in his new church. Everyone raved about his sermon and all were pleased with their new pastor. The second Sabbath he preached on repentance again. It was a good sermon but the church members were not sure it was that good. They let it pass for that Sabbath but when he preached it again the third Sabbath in a row, some of the members of the board went to him and said, "We enjoyed the sermon on repentance the first time and it was ok, even the second time, but three times for the same sermon? Who are you going to preach about something else?" The preacher replied with a question of his own, "Who are you going to repent?" Sometimes certain stories need repeating, and so it is with the following.

Once upon a time in Fenton Forest there was a lovely bluebird that enjoyed life to the full. She fluttered and flew from tree to tree and from bush to bush enjoying the sun, rain, and the sheer pleasure of flight. In fact, if there was ever a bird that enjoyed life, it was Bright Bluebird. Bright was not her original name, but she was given that name by the animals of the forest because of her cheery outlook on life. She enjoyed flying into the deep blue sky and liking the sun shine on her fluttering feathers reflecting an iridescent blue which blended with the blue sky. Bright had many friends because of her lust for life and she enjoyed them all; in fact, her natural enemies, like Curious the cat, even seemed to enjoy her distant company. When she was around, the day was bright and the air tingled with the crisp anticipation of life.

Bright was a sensitive bird and was always hurt personally when any little tragedy happened in Fenton Forest where she made her home. One day as Bright was silently winging her way over a forest path, she heard her name mentioned and like any curious person would, she silently swooped to a tree limb and picked up her ears to hear what was being said. It was Ears Rabbit and jealous Randy Raccoon talking together about Bright. Randy said, "It just makes me sick how Bright is always flying around like she has no stupid problems. I get tired of this eternally happy chirp, chirp, chirp." Randyimitated the song that Bright always sang as she flew over the forest. "I wish she would stop all this happiness routine and mind her own business." "I know what you mean," replied Ears Rabbit. "I would like to know if she knows how sick everybody is getting of her cheery routine."

Curtains the cat overheard this conversation and for a moment he had been eyeing the new next where little birds would soon be hatched and was happy to hear these complaints, because he had been afraid of what the other animals of Fenton Forest might do to him if he struck while Bright was popular.

Bright flew on through the forest after listening to this conversation, but she did not sing her happy song the rest of the way back to the nest. The day didn't seem half so bright and the air was not quite as crisp, and there was a kind of heavy feeling in her heart.

She warmed her eggs briefly and then flew off to get some food, but she was preoccupied and she couldn't find anything. She flew lower over the field - her wings a little bit droopy - it seemed that her heart was heavy and weighing her down in flight. Her mind was burning. "Am I glad for being so happy? Do the other animals in the forest think I'm a dumb scatterbrain who doesn't know what life is all about?" As she flew low over the marsh she saw a lot of birds chatting on the old dead tree that stood by the marsh. They had been talking about her and they had joined them, but now - she thought that they were talking about her, in fact she was sure that they were, and so she flew on, ignoring them.

Soon the animals began to notice that Bright was not so cheery anymore and they began to really talk about her and the more they talked, the more she avoided them and the more she avoided them the more they talked, and soon Bright began to have many conversations about her. "What is wrong with Bright? How come she is so strange? How come she has grown up in her nest." Bright was losing sleep and weight. She couldn't get the food she used to get, because her mind was on other things. She was hardly able to keep up enough heat to warm her eggs, and in fact she was spending less time on her eggs and they were dying from lack of care. Everybody was talking about her in Fenton Forest. Bright's wings were not as brilliant as they used to be. She wasn't caring for herself like she used to. She no longer flew high over the forest in the sun but she would dart in and out among the trees staying away from others and staying in the dark. Soon her natural enemies got the courage to do what they had previously been prevented from doing by popular opinion. Bright became afraid of every shadow and every noise. Even though she was uncom-

Report flying in the dark part of the forest, she thought that she would not be seen as much there.

One day after having eaten anything for some time, she was weakly flying home between some trees when a loud noise startled her. Not being used to the dark part of the forest, she quickly turned from the noise and in a second was going full speed in a different direction only to collide with a tree and fall to her death on the forest floor.

There lay unattended for a time until Ears Rabbit and Randy Raccoon happened by there one day and found a few faded blue feathers where Bright had fallen. "Too bad about Bright," said Ears. "Yes," said Randy, "she seemed to lose her lust for life. I wonder why," Ears said. "Yes," repeated Randy, "I wonder why?"

"We think with horror of the cannibal who feasts on the still-warm and trembling flesh of his victim; but are the results of even this practice more terrible than are the agony and ruin caused by misrepresenting motives, blackening reputation, de-secrating character?" -ED P. 235. The urge to tell is related to the urge to kill. He that hath ears let him hear.

Southern Cynic

By Laurie Loga

It's here! A new trend is sweeping the campus of SC. This one beats Valley Girls, alligators and even the tradition of taking all your dates to Taco Bell.

It's called Editor Trading, or E.T. for short. You may have heard about it this summer; it even made Newsweek, which was impressive, considering the fade just started a few weeks ago.

It really began when AENO (Accent Editor Number One) vacationed for a short period of time. Editor Number Two took the desk, only to leave it almost as soon as he got it.

According to him, he "just couldn't handle editing Victor Czarksi's column twice a month." Understandable. Number Two, by the way, is now undergoing remedial psychotherapy and hopes to be fully recovered by May. Enter Editor Number Three. By this time, the craze had hit full force. Posters were going up and speeches were delivered every hour on the hour. Kids from Spankling began saying "when I grow up, I want to run for editor of the Accent." Candidates for the coveted position were non-fadeable smiles and over-flowed with syrup.

For a week, Accent candidates were the only individuals on campus who likes everybody. It was phenomenal.

However, the exertion and strain from the race has taken its toll on our present editor. He announced just yesterday that he would have to resign for at least a year to recuperate from the strain of getting himself elected.

So in desperation our SA president is taking a new approach to the E.T. trend. Starting next Monday, "Editor-of-the-Week" will become a reality at SC. All of the student's names will be printed up on slips of paper and dumped in a hat. Every Sunday at noon, the editor from the previous week will make a guest appearance in the cafeteria to draw one of the names from the hat. The winner, of course, will receive a complimentary issue of the Accent and a bouquet of black-and-white roses.

However, lest you think that just anyone can be editor, let me clarify this. There are certain stipulations which a person has to meet before he takes the oath of office. He has to have at least a third-grade education, be semi-literate, have taken several public relations courses and know how to smile.

Aside from these requirements, all that is necessary is a valid ID card at SC. I know everyone is looking forward to the upcoming "Editor-of-the-Week" plan, and I'm sure this installment will insure a eww and excitingly different Southern Accent this year.

And—may the best person win!

Dear Howard Costell:

Maybe somebody forgot to inform you, but a women's intramural program does exist here at Southern college. What about some "Time Out" for the women's league? Two issues have been published without even one word mentioned about the games on the other side of campus.

We wouldn't expect you to analyze each team, but it might be nice to see the standings once in a while, after all, we pay for this paper, too.

The games are at 5:30 p.m., but if you have too many "other" games to analyze, you can always call the gym for the results.

What is your reaction concerning the board's decision to give Dr. Knittel a sabbatical next year?

Heather Northcutt
Senior Communication

I think it's too bad, but if that is his choice, I think we should support him in it.

Lorie Costen
Accounting
Sophomore

Dr. Knittel's fine personality and leadership will be missed on campus. Unfortunately, a few disgruntled people have questioned and have pressured others into questioning it also. We are looking forward to his return for the '83-'84 school year.

Sam McBride
Program Director, WSMC-FM

I think it's extremely poor timing with the current condition of the college. I also question the motives of the board.

Doug Gates
Junior
Theology/Nursing

It's unfortunate that a man with the sort of record Dr. Knittel has in education and spiritual leadership should be pressured into taking a premature "sabbatical." I fear for Southern College's "new week."

Bill Bobb

I think it's unfortunate that he has to leave, but considering the circumstances, maybe it's better all around.

I think such a decision should be his own. Considering the role he has played in the progress of this college, I believe he's still the best man for the job.

Phone system plans finalized

by Leonie Fischendorf

The familiar clicking of phones when all the lines on campus are busy will, by the middle of February, be only an unpleasant memory of the past as the new Centrex system is installed. The Ooltewah-Collegedale Telephone Company has ordered a new digital switching system which is "the latest in electronic equipment." The system is to be handled by Mr. David Atkins, administrative coordinator of the company. Call forwarding, call waiting, three-way dialing, and an increase in the number of lines are advantages of the system. The main feature, however, is that it will allow for "full path," which means that half the phones on campus, which is about 450, will be able to be used in talking with the other half. This is a big improvement to the 42 paths that are available in the present college-owned Centrex system. Another difference is that the system will be controlled from the newly constructed facility in Ooltewah, whereas the heart of the Centrex system is at the switchboard in Wright Hall. It is not presently known just to what extent the new system will assist in making long-distance calls and calls to Chattanooga and off campus, but it is expected that a great improvement will be noticed. When the switch to the new system takes place, new phone numbers will be assigned to the campus with the exchange numbers being changed from 396 to 238. Because of its large size and remoteness, the college has been chosen to be the first in the Colleges-Collegedale-Ooltewah area in what will eventually be a complete changeover for all numbers beginning with 396 or 236 to 238.

Music groups entertain at Pops Concert

SC's Division of Music presented the Annual Pops Concert on Saturday night, October 9, at the Physical Education Center. The concert offered a wide variety of entertainment, and refreshments were served during each intermission. Arrayed with ferns, flower arrangements and 24 American flags, the stage was a spectacle of patriotism. Todd Parrish, narrator for the evening, began the program by introducing the Die Meistersinger.

With director Dr. Marvin Robertsoo, and accompanist Crystal Patterson, the Die Meistersinger sang their first selection "Toto-Toto-Tootle," while wearing straw hats of the era. A quick switch from barbershop to cowboy and the group sang a medley, "Country Music Jamboree," which included one all-time favorite, "Rocky Top." Accompanying the group were Steve Martin on the banjo and guitar, and fiddle players Jeenie Fryling and Pat Franken.

Introducing the orchestra was Kevin Shaw who gave the audience a bit of background information about the orchestra numbers-the Strauss "Kaiser Waltzer" and "Tritsch-Tratsch Polka," "Pizzicato Polka," and Dvorak's "Slavonic Dances Number 8." Collegiate Chorale, with director Dr. Don Runyan, took the audience on a "Sentimental Journey." Featured in one of the selections was Evan Chenoway as "The Whistling Gypsy." They concluded their part of the program with "Ain't Gonea Study War No More," with a soprano solo by Karla Michaelis. Tom Breece on the bass, percussionists Lori Runyon and Rusty Sax and Sidney Whitley, pianist, accompanied the group. With director Pat Silver, the concert band performed several patriotic numbers including "The Spirit of Our Land," "Stars and Stripes Forever," and "Dixie.

Elder Farwell speaks to assembly

Elder Clay Farwell, president of the Kentucky-Tennessee conference, addressed the student body this past Tuesday at chapel. Farwell's talk was entitled, "Famine in the Land." It emphasized photostyling ourselves firmly with our Lord and listening to His direction. One of the main highlights of Elder Farwell's talk was an experience that he had in Acapulco. It involved a situation where Farwell neglected to listen to a para glider instructor. Farwell's wife and friends had successfully enjoyed their flight over the ocean and landed gracefully on the beach. When Elder Farwell took his turn, it proved to be wet and embarrassing since he was compelled to listen to his Mexican instructor. This experience was tied into the talk in which Farwell said, "People, there is a real famine in the world today, not just of bread and water but of listening to the word of God." President Knittel was scheduled to speak during this chapel, but a commentators mix occurred. President Knittel will speak next Tuesday instead.
There is a problem in our church and at Southern College which can no longer be ignored. The problem to which I am referring is not the difference of theological opinion, but rather that of the conflict over it. Theological discussion has its place; without a written creed, will there not always be minor doctrinal discrepancies in the SDA Church? But the shrieking and howling and the insults hurled ceaselessly between factions have no place. As I was observing a particularly vitriolic argument the other day, the thought occurred to me that, paradoxically, the people who are causing the most commotion are the ones who are the least sure of their premises. May I suggest that the next time you rise to the defense of "your side," ask yourself, "Am I fighting for a spiritual conviction or am I fighting to maintain my ego?" And if your reason is strictly religious, try to keep your discussion strictly religious also. Personal insults and scathing accusations only hinder the situation and point out the insecurity of your cause.

I have heard many people criticizing "the church" for the mess it is in. Can't we realize that we are "the church"? The time is past for us to stand proudly aside, virtuously pointing the finger of condemnation at an isolated group of hierarchy. God's church is a body composed of each one of us, and as Christians our ultimate goal should be membership in God's kingdom. We can't love God and hate our brother. We'll never be able to share Heaven without working together.

The whitetail is the most numerous and popular big game animal in North America. The habits of the wary and resourceful animal are well worthy of study.

The white-tailed deer is the most tolerant of our big game species. In contrast to the buffalo, elk, moose, and other relatives, the deer can live close to man with little difficulty. Few large animals are capable of such eye-popping increases in numbers when the basic needs of food and shelter are matched by good management.

The "rutting" season (when bucks compete for the doe) covers most of the fall and winter months. Production, like alliter growth and weight, is affected by age, heredity, and geography, but most importantly by the quality and quantity of food.

Winter is the critical time for most animals, and many whitetail problems can be traced to food shortages from January to March. While few deer die of starvation above, parasites and disease strike susceptible animals on badly overcrowded range. High water may also pose problems as did the heavy rains that hit the Everglades in June and July of this past summer. After a gestation period from 200 to 205 days the doe gives birth wherever they may be at the onset of Labor, and are devoted and efficient parents. Fawns are dropped from March to September, with the most being born in June.
VandeVere receives appointment
by Monica Hobbs
Dr. Wayne VandeVere, chairman of the Division of Business and Office Administration, was appointed Director of Administrative Development this last summer. According to VandeVere, the program is "designed to help administrators at all levels and all parts of the college campus."

The program to be utilized is one developed by the Higher Education Management Institute (HEMI). It involves needs assessment, the writing of goals and mission statements, and the implementation of these goals and mission statements. A 36-module training program for administrators, which was made possible by funding provided by a four-year federal grant, is projected to take from three to four years to cover. "What will become of the program after that, nobody knows at this time," says VandeVere.

Other members of the task force under the direction of Dr. VandeVere are John Beckett, Jean Davis, Betty Gorver, Marvin Robertson, Everett Schlissner and Randy White. Each one represents a different area of the campus. Currently planned administrative programs include: a seminar on College Marketing to be presented November 30 by Rayman Associates; a workshop on hiring and firing is scheduled for early in 1983. When asked about the difficulties of being director of Administrative Development and a department chairman at the same time, Dr. VandeVere replied that "being a little less available to the students" is the only problem he has discovered.

Players go Italian
by Laurie Lega
Knoxville is not the only place in Tennessee to play host to different dialects and cultures. This year, a bit of Italian flavor is seasoning Southern College's drama department.

Southern Players, the college's newest drama group, is currently working on a production unlike anything SC has done before. The play, a comedy, is set in Naples, Italy. Titled simply "Scapino," after the main character, the whole production promises to be pure fun for everyone involved.

The whole purpose behind a play of this nature is to give the actors involved the joy of producing entertainment at its best and yet have fun doing it. Generally speaking, although actors love their work and are committed to it, producing a good performance is more exhausting, frustrating and demanding than people realize. However, "Scapino" is different.

"This is a great experience for the actors," enthused Clyde Garvey, the Players' director. "It's just so much fun, not heavy serious work such as most productions demand."

This is not to say that the students in "Scapino" aren't giving forth any effort. The play was cast just before the end of school last spring, and each actor was given a tape of Italian dialect to study over the summer so work on the play could begin as soon as school started. In addition, the participants were expected to have most of their lines memorized by this time.

But rehearsals so far have been packed with enthusiasm, laughter and fun. The natural energy and humor which the actors possess is simply channeled into the play, instead of suppressed as is usually necessary. A spirit of fun is encouraged as long as the actors use it in the context of the play, as the characters they portray. The end result is comical, entertaining and yet remarkably very typical of everyone.

Another difference in this production is the place where the performances will take place. Instead of doing it on campus, the Players will be using the Read House in downtown Chattanooga. The play will be held in the House's silver ballroom, along with an Italian meal of spaghettis, sauce and salad. Several of the actors will be used as waiters and actually serve the audience while the play is in progress.

Ticket prices range from $19/couple, for SC students, to $25/couple. Individual tickets are $9.50 and $12.50 a person. The play will run October 24th and 25th.

Though "Scapino" is certainly deviating from the usual type of play performed by SC, students and faculty alike are encouraged to attend and enjoy themselves. "Adults and seven-year-olds alike will find this play refreshing. Different," commented Garvey, smiling. "And one thing's for sure; if you miss it, you'll definitely regret it."

The Student Association--Is it serving its purpose?

by Joseph Robertson

YES

The Student Association is exactly what its name implies, an organization on and for the students of Southern College (SC). Our Student Association (SA) serves the major interest of all the students through various means. The organization has yearly elections for its executive officers to guide the organization the following year. In the fall semester, Senate representatives are elected for each of the 26 precincts. Each year the SA budget is created by membership due which are taken automatically out of tuition fees; it is 1.25 percent of the full-time tuition charge. These dues are among the lowest in the North American Division, yet all SDA colleges SC has one of the most active SA organizations.

The budget each year is earmarked specifically for that year's activities and functions of the SA. What does the budget pay for? The biggest portion of the budget goes for the various publications; in fact, that portion accounts for 49 percent of the total SA budget. This includes the Southern Accent, Southern Memories, the Joker and the Numerique, which are distributed at no charge. It also may be noted that all of these this year have been out earlier than in times past. Another major part of the budget, 16 percent is used for the Social Activities and Student Services, including such things as the SA Barquettes, Saturday Night programs, and other parties in between. Student Services includes Take-a-breaks (Cookie breaks), vans each week to the local malls and many things to enable you to have a more enjoyable life on campus.

Aside from the busy social schedule that the SA works to create, they are the connection between students and the college administration. The SA is a dues paying member of the 'Committee of 100' and therefore has the rights of a member, such as voting power and the right to sit in on College Board meetings.

Here the SA can voice the opinions and mood of the students to those who have direct authority over the College administration the SA is able to let the administrators know just what they think about the issues at hand. The SA is fortunate to have a good working relationship with our College President, who has always solicited the SA's input, and respects their opinions as they speak for the student body. The SA may also sit on Faculty Senate and participate in the discussions so the faculty representatives can have a feel about how the student population feels about what the students may feel about happenings relating to the college, while at the same time the SA can hear the problems of the faculty members as to what they feel is important.

Whether an issue of major importance concerns the administration, or involves the students as to what they feel is important.

An issue of major importance concerns the administration, or involves the students as to what they feel is important.

As an example of an issue that involves both the student and faculty, the SA has decided this year is the placement of the new Learning Center. During the summer, when the college received the US Grant for the learning center, the administration decided to locate the center in the Student Lounge of the old Center and/or the game room. At first it seemed as though the administration was planning to go through with its plans in our Student Center, without consulting the SA. But President Franklin research showed that many students insisted that other alternatives could be used, such as the library, Miller Hall, the SA Passage, etc., which got the administration to re-consider their plans and the SA was involved in the final decision.

If students check the events calendar for next semester, they will see that in February there is a "Ski Day." On this big ski day the SA will host a day, and go on a trip to Beach Mt. Resort, North Carolina (A Snow Ski Resort). The day didn't appear on the calendar. It took quite a bit of lobbying of the administration to get them to agree to it. Here again, President Franklin did a superb job in speaking for the best interest of the student body.

Checking the not so distant past, it can be seen that it was the SA Senate who persuaded the faculty to vote in favor of a new jeans policy. That is, a policy permitting students to wear jeans to classes. In the 1981-82 school year the SA Senate did a great deal of research among the faculty and the students, and presented the results to the administration. Then they asked for the policy change and a vote was taken. Needless to say, the policy was changed.

Yes, I feel very strongly that the Student Association is serving a very valuable purpose, as it continually works for each student. If every student has a grievance, and they feel the administration is not handling it correctly, they should feel free to discuss it with any SA representative. There are open lines of communication between the SA Office and Wright Hall and the SA strives to use those lines to get what is best for the students of Southern College. The SA feel that their duty is to do all they can to improve campus life. Whether it is in planning big banquets or programs, or keeping the Student Center Lounge from being taken over, the Student Association is an important part of it all. All in all, what is the Student Association? It is each individual student.

by Dana Reed

NO

Many students don't realize that they are being pampered into submission. The main tool of the pampering process is the SA. If the students are kept happy with full banquets, great picnics, enjoyable movies on Friday afternoons, and decent chapel programs, everyone will go along with whatever is thrown at them. I think this is pure unadulterated bologna. It's sad that so many are lettered into thinking that nothing can be done about important issues, or as the saying goes, "You can't fight Wright Hall."

Social events should not be the main thrust of the SA. As a student at the Bronx High School of Science, I could depend on the SA to air the grievances of the student body in a most efficient way. I can remember the great student strike of '78 when the students peacefully did not go to classes until the school administration took time to really listen to them. Strangely enough, this tactic worked. I'm not suggesting that a mass revolt is the only way to solve problems. What I'm saying is that decisive measures should be taken to show the administration that we mean business.

For example, I was insulted when I was told that I could not have a television in my room because 1) I didn't know how to study and 2) I didn't know what to watch. I know there are many who feel the same way.

I think there is a feasible way of solving this problem. During the first nine weeks of school a freshman would not be permitted to have a television. Thereafter, if an acceptable GPA is achieved, he would be allowed to have a television set--only on the condition that he maintains a GPA above the minimum set by the school and stated in the SA catalog. If the student's GPA goes below the set minimum then he would not be allowed to have a television set for another nine-week period. If, and I mean to be a reasonable person. If students would take the time to state their grievances to the SA, and put them under pressure to take action, I'm sure some things would happen. But most students appear to be either indifferent, apathetic, ignorant, or just plain scared to speak up. I haven't forgotten that the faculty can veto any action taken by the SA. This is their ultimate weapon. But the power to veto should not be the end of an issue. The faculty should be obligated to provide a good solid reason for their decision, and the student body should have a right to ask for this reason.

Another factor that causes the SA to be ineffective is communication, or more accurately, the lack of it. It is known fact that those who don't speak out against the establishment either get shot, burned, or are given a custom-made pair of cement shoes. Martin Luther King and John Huss are prime examples. They wanted to communicate their grievances to the world. But, their attempts to communicate were repressed and they were punished. There is danger of being put on the SC hit list if one is too verbal in his complaints. What we need are people who are not afraid to speak out against the repression that exists on this campus. The silent majority needs to wake up and come alive. If we were to show the administration that we were serious, maybe some of the closed minds would open up. Then maybe we could have an effective SA. But until then I guess I'll just have to tolerate the repression and punishment.

Well, at least I have Friday night to look forward to. The SA over the past years has been ineffective in assuring student rights and speaking out against rules that hamper social and intellectual growth. The problem does not stem from incompatibility on the part of the student body, it is neither a result of the staff's inflexible policy, nor the apathy of the student body and the closed-mindedness of some of the faculty.

Paul J. Gaudin Bieritz

The blue sphere came off the back wall of the raquet ball court. This is going to be a piece of cake—"kill"—the thought goes through my head as I cock my arm and waist to blast the ball to infinity. Then in a nanosecond I think, "Fake him out, dump the shot in the corner," and my muscles that are prepared for a ball breaking shot relax ever so slightly. Then, in another nanosecond, I think, "But I have good success with the kill shot." My muscles tighten. Another nanosecond and the thought passes that I need to vary my game. Once again I think of softly eating the ball into the corner. You guessed it, by now the opportune time has passed. I hit a half slam, half dump shot which equals a piece of cake for my opponent who is not so indecisive. He rips the ball and I lose the point.

There is a time in life for decision and a time in life for discussion. The time for discussions is not when the little blue ball hangs over the floor at the serve line while you stand there with your racket cocked.

There are people who can never decide to decide and so they meander through life like the river whose course is decided by the silt that it dumps along the way. An embankment here, some rushes there, and the river turns, changes its course for the slightest obstacle. Like the bum who said when asked how he knew what direction to travel, "I always walk with the wind at my back." Knowing when to make a decision and when to discuss a decision will save your life from much heartache.

The exercise of the will—the power to decide is a God-given capacity that we prostitute at the alter of spolelessness. Sometimes it is important to make a decision even if it is wrong—at least you are grabbing your own destiny by the throat. Maybe there is something in your life that needs decision. You are putting it off figuring that it will go away or time will solve it. More time never makes decisions concerning your spiritual direction in life easier. The longer and deeper the mind runs in the rut of spiritual indecision the harder it is to get out. The longer you postpone spiritual commitment the less likely it is that such a decision will be made. There is a saying, "Not to decide is to decide." That is especially true in the Christian life. For in the Great Controversy between good and evil, not to decide for good is to decide for evil. Spiritual drifters don't drift into a relationship with Christ any more than driftwood goes up stream.

Contest announced
by Stephen Morris
The Third Annual Research Writing Contest, sponsored by the Faculty Writing Committee.

"This contest is open to any student currently enrolled at Southern College," says Gladson.

According to contest rules, any research paper between 1200 and 7500 words submitted for any course during the 1982-83 school year is eligible to win.

Prize money is being offered for the winning papers. The money will be distributed as follows: $75 for 1st place, $50 for 2nd place, $25 for 3rd place.

"The purpose of the contest is to enhance the reputation of research writing," explained Gladson.

The deadline for submitting papers is April 5, 1983. Winners will be announced at the annual awards chapel on April 19.

According to Gladson five finalists will be chosen by the committee from among the entries. Three judges, to be chosen from the community, will then decide the winners from the finalists.

Committee members include: Ben McArthur, David Smith, Barbara Ruf, Catherine Kearn, Carla Kannaplicki, Jerry Gladson, and Dwayne House.

Entry forms will be available beginning December 1, at the Student Center desk and the Religion department office. More information may be obtained by contacting a committee member or by calling Dr. Gladson at 4009.

"Join our BIG family!"
The SC intramural flag football season got into full swing on Monday October 4 with games being played at all three fields. This year's program is set up as in past years, with the men's play divided into "A" and "B" leagues and the women's league. The number of participants this year is at an all-time high, perhaps due to the excellent intramural program run by Coach Steve Jaeckels.

Captains in the women's league are Thompson, Arias, McKee, Reed, and Mullins. After last week's play it looks as though Arias' team may repeat last year's undefeated season as they won three games quite handily. However, Thompson and McKee each collected a win and could provide some stiff competition.

In Men's "A" League, Greve and Durby has season opening wins, each team looking to finish at the top of the league. But Manzella and Pettijohn could prove to be winners as well, making the league look very competitive.

"B" league is divided into East and West divisions with Bryant, Dickerhoff and Daff lying for the top spot in the East, while in the West, first place could turn out to be a dual between Montaperto and Mixon.

Southern Cynic
by Victor Czerkasij

Whenever I hear Greek students bellyaching about how hard Greek is and how they can't understand it, I get pretty upset. Most of them are from the South, which means that they don't have to take that ridiculous new class "Southern Tawk 058." This is now a requirement for all born north of Knoxville.

I remember trying to slip by as a good ol' boy at registration. "'Scuse me," I said to the final checkout. "Cain ah borrow a pen and paper?" She eyed me suspiciously. "Ain't yo from Noo Yoke?" I stared at her wide-eyed, the epitome of innocence.

"Shucks, honey, I ain't a Yankee!" Still not satisfied, she pried me some more. "Is Jawja yor fay-vorit state?"

"Yup, shore is." (What's so great about pecans, peanuts, and knuckles?)

"What about yore boll teen?"

"Why, the Etlanza Braves." (They needed a Yankee manager.)

"What do yoo et with yore algis?"

"With ma whut?" (Oh-oh, she's got me now.)

"Aligs! Aligs! Whut chicken lift!"

"Sorry," I breathed, "Mah ears got plum plugged up." (Stop sweating, you can still make it.) "Whal, I eats my algis ever mornin' with some deelicious grits." (Gross, I hate that tasteless, mushy cement.)

She beamed. "Yup, I Cain eat grits all day." (I believe it with one look at you.) "I use a heepa hunny and a dash o' sawt. Yoo too?" She jabbed me in the ribs.

"Sho' nuff, lotsa sawt," I nodded stupidly with an equally stupid smile. I didn't know how much longer I could keep this charade up. One slip up and she'd have me marching back to the registrar, making me a member of "Southern Tawk 058".

Determined not to fail, I kept smiling and rocking back from heel-to-toe with my thumbs up in my armpits.

"Walk," she drawled (what else do Southerners do but drawl?), "Ah guess's yoo ain't so dumb Nawthener tryin' to git by with a faken Suthen ax-ent." "Not me, fo' shore," I vigorously agreed, seeing the end in sight.

"Here is yore checkout sheet," she grinned, and then in a low whisper added, "Would you like my momma's secret recipe fo' okra and plum pie?"

Feeling a bit heady over my excellent acting, I bellowed, "Sho, jess' hand over a piece o' paper and pen." "Aha!" she scowled. "Ah know yoo was a Yankee!"

"Wha-Wha-How?" I stuttered.

"Everybody knows you pronounce it pain and papa. But don't worry. You'll be all straightened out soon." "How's that?" I groaned.

She smiled her stupid Southern smile and said, "Welcome to Southern Tawk 058!"

Solidarity, the independent Polish labor union, was outlawed by the Polish Parliament Friday. President Reagan responded to moving to limit Polish exports to the US and, in Rome, the Pope urged Polish leaders to end the crackdown "so that these tears of the Polish people may cease."

Democratic leaders called on the TV networks to boycott President Reagan's speech Wednesday night because it would "create an unfair advantage for the Republican party." At press time, ABC was planning to broadcast the speech while NBC and CBS were undecided.

Gdansk, Poland, birthplace of Solidarity, was the scene of violent protests this week as workers went on strike at the Lenin Shipyard to protest the ban on the labor union and the internment of its leader, Lech Walesa, last December.

The Dow Jones industrial average climbed over the 1000 mark for the first time in a year and a half and Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, the nation's fifth largest commercial bank, cut the prime lending rate to 12 percent.

There are openings available in the Southern Accent advertising department.

Symphony gives World’s Fair concert

"It's the best youth group we've heard perform all summer," exclaimed one stage hand after the Southern College Symphony Orchestra's concert at the World's Fair. The group performed at 8:30 p.m. on Sunday, October 17 in the Court of Flags. The concert had originally been scheduled for the Tennessee amphitheater but was preempted by a program of international interest.

Dr. Orlo Gilbert, conductor, received the invitation last year to perform at the fair after entertainment officials heard of the symphony's world tours and requested an audition tape.

The concert repertoire was quite varied and included works by Berlioz, Copland, Strauss, and Grieg, whose Piano Concerto was performed by pianist Sondra Snider. A favorite of both the performers and audience was Hayman's "Pops Hoedown," a choreographed collection of old-time fiddle tunes and square-dance music.

The audience who braved the wind and 55-degree weather gave the symphony a standing ovation as the performance concluded with 'Highlights from 'Annie.'"

WSMC gets development director

"The community and the students of SC are going to be made aware that WSMC exists," This is the goal of Michael Meriweather, the new Director of Development for WSMC.

"My job is to promote better relations with the campus and community and to help the station become more financially stable," explained Mr. Meriweather. "I also want the message to be sent out that I will be seeking volunteers for various fun raising activities."

WSMC, which holds a BA in psychology from Oakwood College and a MA in counseling from Andrews University, appears well qualified for this position not only because of his warm and friendly manner, but also because of his previous experience. After graduating from Andrews University, he co-founded a clinic for family counseling in Indianapolis, Indiana. As its executive director for four years, he became well acquainted with the various aspects of fund raising and public relations for a non-profit entity. Upon getting "a yen for a new business and the desire to return to the warm and hospitable South," he moved back to Atlanta, Georgia, his original

Dear Editor:

Dana Reed's argument that the Student Association is flawed in both of its foundations: that TV sets should be allowed in the dormitories, and that the SA does nothing effective about student complaints—particularly, student complaints about the prohibition of TV sets.

Point #1: He had no right to be "insulted" when "told" that TV sets could not be brought to the dormitory. A little research would have indicated that this is a well-known policy, traditional in all SDA colleges in our culture. Would I have the right to feel "insulted" if collared by the FBI for hiding out anti-communist leaflets in Red Square?

Point #2: The SA has indeed been effective, particularly in the matter of pressing strong interests of students. Discussions among faculty and administrators about such items as room refrigerators, pantyhose and blue jeans would have never reached the intensity they did if there had not been strong pressure from the Student Association. It just happens that the Student Association has not yet chosen to address Mr. Reed's pet issue. The apathy of the student body may exist, but I feel it is more caused by the intense pressure of studies and work. I can always tell when the leaves are about ready to fall because people come to me to get their work hours reduced. And with a Thursday afternoon class, I had to put up with a good-sized line of students who wanted to leave before the midterm test. If the SA's purpose is not being served, it is because its efforts are overdone.

Sincerely,

John Beck

Dear Editor,

Tick me off! I came out of the library after one of my classes a couple weeks ago, when I noticed a crowd of people outside the Student Center. My mind raced with the thought that it might be a "Cookie Break." Oh! How a cookie would make my stomach content, especially since I had skipped breakfast that morning.

But as I neared my goal, the doors of Hackman Hall burst open and the bone and microfreaks pointed down the aisles toward the grubs (no relation to Paula). I could see the blank look in their eyes as they shoved down the munchies handfuls at a time. My pace accelerated, along with those from the Nursing Building in hopes that there might be something left. But when I arrived at the table, only a few remnants remained. I gazed at the attendant with a bit of moisture in my eyes as I pleaded, "Aren't there any more?" My stomach grumbled for added effect.

He replied with a leer as he wiped crumbs from his own mouth, "Nope, but there's plenty of chocolate milk..."

I picked up a cup and wandered toward my next class. How could they be so inhumane as to build up my hopes and then smash them to my face? I charge that something be done. Committees should be formed, meetings held, anything to assure that this doesn't happen again. I desire that in the future everyone will be able to enjoy the benefits of a "Cookie Break."

Sincerely,

Bever Dikeberg

OCTOBER IS...

Autumn foliage in its final burst of breathtaking glory (maple, sweetgum, scarlet maple, dark red oak, yellow tulip poplar, orange sassafras, dark red dogwood and all the rest);

Raking up all those "gorgeous" leaves which have turned brown and fallen to the ground;

The World Series, end of the World's Fair, Fall Festivals, Craft Shows, and Tennessee finally beating Alabama;

Car dealers proudly and hopefully showing their "super-economy" crop of 1983 car models and every company that can possibly do so sending out a plethora of Christmas catalogs (they're not waiting at all this year);

Migrating ducks, geese, and sandhill honking and screaming their way south, frost-filled nights followed by sunny blue-sky days;

Piles of pumpkins in front of all the supermarkets just waiting to be carved into jack-o-lanterns or cooked up for pumpkin pies;

Crow looks, cider and doughnuts, bonfires, hiking and camping in the crisp autumn weather, and switching back to standard time;

My favorite month!

Southern Bel plans tour

by Catherine Linford

This weekend Southern Bel Canto will go on its first singing tour of the year. The ladies choir will perform Friday afternoon at Mount Pisgah Academy where they will give a free concert.

Saturday morning they will travel to the Spartanburg church to sing for the church. To conclude the tour, Southern Bel Canto will perform a sacred and secular program at Fletcher on Saturday night.

Larry Otto, the director of Southern Bel Canto, started the group three years ago when it was decided that there was a real need for an all-women's choir. Otto noted that there were so many talented women who wanted to sing and no choir for them to sing in. Thus, the group Southern Bel Canto came into existence.

Otto, who started teaching at Southern College in 1979 says, "From the beginning the group had a sound. But I think that each year we improve."

Larry Hodges, a new comer to the group this year, notes, "I've never been in an all-girl choir before. It's a lot of fun because we seem to harmonize well. I'm really excited about the tour."

The group has sung for church several times this year and participated in the Pops Concert. The number that was performed at the Pops Concert, "What Price Freedom," will be one of the many numbers that will be performed on the tour.

This particular selection is a combined effort of many different talents of the members of Southern Bel and others. A small orchestra gave the number an added dimension for the Pops Concert. On tour the group will use a tape of that orchestra. The flag that hung behind the chorus during the performance was made by Claire Wise who has been a member of Southern Bel since its beginning.

All the girls spent long hours memorizing their music, speaking parts, and the choreography. Ron Mackey, the accompanist for the chorus, adds a special touch to the overall sound.

Otto, who arranges some of the music for the group summed it up by saying, "I think we have a good variety of music to present and I know it will be a good tour."

Religion retreat held at Cohutta Springs Camp

by Ponte Louis

About 80 students out of the 765 who went away for the long weekend, attended the Cohutta Springs Retreat organized under the sponsorship of Campus Ministry.

Hayrides, water skiing, hiking, canoeing, meeting new friends, marshmallow eating, sports, delicious meals at a flat rate, and dynamic preaching were among the highlights of a relaxing weekend in nature. Chaplain Jim Herman said that they "were endeavoring to have a retreat not quite a meeting like a typical Bible Conference," but one with "plenty of time for recreation." It is not without reason that Steven Johnson, one of the attendants said, "I really had a good time."

The weekend came about by accident. It was originally scheduled for the Union Fall Retreat. The Southern Union unfortunately withdrew their support this year because of the attendance deficiency. In good faith, Herman deliberately assumed the responsibility to organize a college retreat instead. "The Union backed out on their commitment. We had the camp reserved, so we just went ahead with it," he explained.

The Campus Ministry Retreat proved to be the same itself implies—time to get away, relax, rest, and be spiritually fed and inspired. Philip Samson, originally from Syria, now acting as Youth Evangelist for the North Pacific Union, was the featured speaker; and special music was provided by the New Creation Singers, an all-black mini-choir from the Maranatha S.D.A. Church in Atlanta.

Though handicapped by a thick accent, Elder Samson did not fail to hold his small audience's attention as he admonished on relational Bible study. Herman feels that "the entire spirit of the weekend was a success" in every aspect. The cost, $10 chargeable, was unanimously labeled as reasonable, and was so designed to stimulate the students' interest. This year as an exception to the rule, the retreat was not overwhelmingy attended by theology and religion majors only; almost every major offered by the campus was represented in number.

The moments of the long weekend at Cohutta Springs were enjoyed by many. Already Willy Carreras is anticipating another opportunity for spiritual refreshment and activities. He stated, "I hope we have more retreats like that."

Movie attendance—should it be a moral issue?

by Les Mathewson

YES

At the risk of being misunderstood and labeled as a "legalist," I will answer YES. In fact, for the Christian, life is a "moral issue." Perhaps the better question should be "how does a Christian respond to the moral issue of movie attendance?" I shall spend the remainder of this short essay on answering the latter question, as the former has been hashed and rehashed so long on SDA campuses that any student who has paid his $600 a year could recite a half dozen reasons pro and con.

It would be easy to say (along with well-meaning parents, teachers, and deans) that the Christian should never, under any circumstances, enter a movie theater. In fact, one could quite easily find a fistful of quotes from some often too dusty red books that would rather quickly confirm in the minds of many that any worldly amusements are downright sinful. And one could conform to the traditions of our "fathers" and avoid movie theaters like the bubonic plague. I accept things that are inherently right and wrong are nice because they allow us to go to sleep at night knowing that we have refrained from going against the mandates of our "religion." Compliance to lists and traditions on the other hand, also removes our opportunity to develop a Christlike character. Such a character is developed not by unquestioning conformity, but rather by grappling with issues in light of the gospel and then, acting in a way that would best glorify God. I could provide a list of good reasons for not attending theaters, (e.g. it is a waste of money and time, "bad people" attend, with you, etc.) then you could spend your time rationalizing them away some by one (e.g. matinees save money, "bad people" bother you less at theaters then at the local Golden Gallow, etc.), and we would both be back to step one. The issue then is not one of theaters being intrinsically evil, that could only be called superstition, but rather the issue is one of what is at stake for the Christian when he attends movies.

It is a law of the mind that by beholding we have become. If you have read at all in the field of psychology, you are aware that even the world supports that. Is it wrong to go to movies? I answer yes if the theater you are going to hold before your eyes images which could be considered at best non-Christlike. We are here to develop our characters (this doesn't mean earning our salvation, let I be misunderstood), to become Christ-like ladies and gentlemen. Any thing that stops, hinders, or slow down that process is a sin. In Romans, Paul admonishes us to not be conformed to this (its principles, practices, or patterns), but be transformed by the renewal of your mind's. (Romans 12:2) One might do well to ask what effect the movies have on my attitudes and behavior. So somebody will say, "Come on now; I know what's right and wrong. I'm not going to change my lifestyle because of a movie! What's wrong with going to the movie just for fun?" Fun? Like the young lady who told me last week that after seeing Amityville II, she and her girlfriend returned to their church and prayed. Prayed!! What on earth for? Forgiveness? Protection? Wisdom in the future? I think that if we were all really honest with our- selves, we would admit that much of what we see at the theater is not worthy of our unwavering attention. Going to movies for FUN is just the reality of enjoying other people do things that we would never do. After Paul lists a number of sinful things in Romans 1:29-31, he says that some people not only sin but "approve those who practice them" (i.e. the sins). Are we guiltless when we allow some film star to vicariously sin on our behalf? No, we would never have prenatal sex, or steal a car, or "waste" somebody! But we would laugh, pant, drool, or shriek with excitement while somebody else does it on the silver screen. All the while reminding ourselves how good we are because we don't do such things. As Martin Luther is reported to have said, "Sins boldly Melanchthon, God only forgives the faithful sinner." In other words, if we want to enter into the forgiveness that God has already provided in Christ Jesus, we must be big enough to recognize and admit the sinfulness of our actions. So long as we claim that something is not "really the bad" we are rejecting the forgiveness that God wishes to provide to us freely. (John 1:8 - 2:2, Isaiah 1:18-20)

Is movie attendance a moral issue? Yes! Does that mean that God doesn't want us to have any fun? Of course not—be real! He wants us to understand that true joy is not to be found in isolating yourself in a fantasy (be it a movie at a theater, the TV sitcom, or a self-induced one), but rather in experiencing reality. We need to give of ourselves as Christ gave of Himself. We need to grow, even into the image of Christ. Next time you have the urge to attend the Sunday matinee, give God a try, spend a couple hours doing something for somebody else, and see what real entertainment is!

by Melvin Hobbs and Richard Sentelle

NO

Let's start by restating the question slightly to read "Should theater attendance be forced into a moral issue?" The answer to the original question is an obvious yes since all decisions such as this do involve morality, but such decisions should be a matter of personal morality and not a matter of applied social standards. No one should force their morals on another individual in such a way as to say, "This is correct because I believe it is correct."

This college has an editing board that screens all films shown on campus. This is applied morals. We are expected to accept these decisions as somehow justifiable because these people have considered them just; thus we see films like "Bomber," "The Apple Dumpling Gang," "The World's Greatest Athlete," and other movies that were obviously produced for children. Be realistic. As Adventists, we are to be "apart from" the world. True. However, we live in the real world, not as it should be but as it is. Thus we are faced with daily choices between right and wrong and the faculty cannot make the decisions that we must make in everyday life. This is up to us and us alone. Some people opt for theater attendance and others against it. This, like any other daily question of standards, is a personal decision. We are mature enough at the college level to make this decision for ourselves, and it is not the right of anyone to pass judgment on us, anyone but God?

Nitzche said that "The surest way to corrupt a youth is to instruct him to hold to higher esteem those who think alike than those who think differently. We are taught that those who think like one, or as we are told is "proper," are somehow above the rest. Let us rephrase—"We are individuals and as such should be allowed the freedom to choose as we see fit. At this college we have seen graphic violence such as the crucifixion of Jesus and certain war movies. These are viewed by the censorship board as justifiable yet when we go to the deans pleading to see "The Deerhunter" (which happened to these writers last year) we are told "No, I don't think the kids could handle it, our college isn't that way." We have seen this film in the theater and there was nothing in it that was as gruesome as a crucifixion, yet we are told that we are immature for wanting to see it. Are we college students or little children that need someone to tell us what we should consider "appropriate" and "immoral"? We all know the answer to that question. Is there any way that this statement is true? Obviously not. Let's be adults and keep it real.

"Let us have faith that right makes might; and in that faith, let us, to the end, dare to do our duty as we understand it." -Lincoln
Religion department—on the line

The Religion Department of Southern College held a symposium on October 9, 1982 to address questions raised by concerned alumni and other interested parties. The meeting opened with a song festival. Then Dr. Wayne Thurber, director of Public Affairs at SC, gave the ground rules for the meeting. Since questions were submitted in written form beforehand, no questions would be fielded from the audience. Thurber encouraged anyone with comments to write a letter to the Southern Columna, SC’s alumni magazine.

Elder Douglas Bennett, chairman of the Religion Department and moderator for the discussion, made an opening statement. He stated that “truth is more dynamic than static, ever searching and seeking. A church must have fundamental beliefs, but on certain secondary issues, such as the 144,000, abortion and capital punishment, we should be charitable to those who hold different beliefs.” Bennett also pointed out that the pre-Advent judgment, the investigative judgment, and salvation by faith alone. Bennett added that “this question period will give the teacher an opportunity to speak for themselves and they will be happy to respond.”

The first question was directed to all of the members of the department—Ron Springett, Norman Gulley, Gordon Hyde, Lorenzo Grant, Jerry Gladson, Douglas Bennett, and Ed Zackrison. The question asked, “What was the D Azle statement?” Bennett gave some background information. It first appeared in the February 21, 1980 issue of the Adventist Review and was meant to clarify the fundamental beliefs of the SDA church.

Each religion teacher then affirmed their agreement with this statement of doctrine. The second question was, “What about a literal translation to the heavenly sanctuary?” Jerry Gladson said that he was almost sure that the question was directed to Hebrews in the New Testament. He added that there is a group whose main line of thought was that the heavenly sanctuary in Leviticus 25:8, 31. Bennett then asked Ron Springett to address the question from the New Testament view. Springett said that his position is found in the Bible Commentary, volume 10, page 468. “This is the position I give to my classes,” Springett stated. He then invited the questioner to read the position for himself.

The third addressed to the issue of alleged heresy at SC. “There is talk of heresy being taught at Southern College.” Even though I don’t believe this to be true, what is given as the reason for the heresy charge?” Ed Zackrison addressed the question by stating that heresy is used in relationship to a creed. “These are four things meant by (the term) heretic,” Zackrison said. “They are 1) out of harmony with the Scriptures, 2) at variance with my understanding of the Bible, 3) at variance with the church’s understanding of the Bible, 4) at variance with my understanding of the church’s fundamental beliefs.

"Heresy is a very general term," Zackrison said. "We have already described our feelings about the fundamental beliefs (of the Seventh-day Adventist church). To my classes we will be teaching in harmony with accepted official teaching." After touching briefly on other subjects, each panel member reaffirmed their support of the Seventh-day Adventist church.

A certain matter has been brought to my attention recently. Just a few weeks ago I was reading everyone's favorite paper, the Accent, when what to my wondering eyes should appear but a small article about our president.

I wasaghast. Simply flabbergasted. Dr. Knittel, taking a sabbatical? Immediately my febrile, naturally organized mind began to think of suitable presidents to fill the vacated position after the best was gone. After all, things of importance such as this can't be left up to the Board of Trustees; they're still working on the same change. (Their newest, by the way, has been to start going through the dictionary alphabetically in hopes of finding some fresh ideas. Anyone for the American Association of Antitextility?) It became quite clear to me that this was something I should handle. So, in my usual methodical manner I combed the campus, conducted surveys and took polls. I am proud to be able to give you, the faithful readers, the results of my painstaking efforts.

E.O. Grunseth. A definite possibility; the man's tremendous leadership ability and superior imagination. I'm not entirely sure how Wright Hall would look with stuffed birds hanging from every corner, but I'm sure they can cope. And just think how exciting things will be around Fall Festival Week.

Frank Roman. Absolutely not. One Frank has been quite enough, although the idea of turning Wright Hall into Preppie Hall certainly has merit. Besides, I would love to see Dean Schlissin in a pair of bright red pants. Maybe... Gerald Owens. Now here's an idea worth thinking about. The entire campus could be operated from a huge multipurpose computer. I know from a very reliable source that Mr. Owens, if asked to fill the job, would be happy to implement systems like "Teller 24" whereby the student could simply slide in his or her ID card and receive instant cash. And think how much money the administration could save! The whole campus could be run by one brilliant compterist and his cat.

Garfield. Speaking of cats, we must consider this one. If Garfield were to become president of SC, we could look forward to: a) no Mondays, b) all weekends, c) lots of television. And let's be realistic; just what are we paying $5,000 a year for anyhow?

The Southern Cynic. Well, two heads are better than one, aren't they? One problem, though; the college would have to change its non-discriminatory policy. Anyone that pronounced "you all" as one word would never get past Victor Czerkasij.

Ronald Reagan, Jr. Not if he's anything like his daddy. Student Employment would be looking for a job. And who knows what would happen to a college with a president who wore leotards? Ziggy! I think it's fairly obvious to everyone that here is where the real potential lies.

After all, we'd be starting from the bottom and going up for a change. And he has enough humility for everyone.

Well, I hope I have sufficiently relieved everyone's minds about that new school year. Some adjustments have to be made, but actually, isn't that what people want?

SA officers - on the line

by Maureen Mayden

The Student Association chapel was an "open forum" Tuesday, October 24. It began with announcements and escalated into a discussion of Christian values.

Alvin Franklin, SA President, started with a list of projects that the SA would be bringing before the President's council this week. These included the late leave policy (equalizing the requirements for men and women), the change in room check time for seniors, various senior privileges, open communications between students and administration, and changing punishments to fit the "crime." Students were allowed to go to a microphone in the center aisle to ask questions or to voice their opinion about any relevant issues. J. T. Shinn, Junior Computer major, was the first to take advantage of this opportunity and spoke about his concerns for more cookie breaks. Other issues that were approached were possible pay phones on campus in a central location for the convenience of "together" phone calls, the insurance "rip-off" that was put on the statement, senior picture returns and choices, dorm lobby closings times, and the new phone system.

Stephen Springer, Sophomore Theology major, questioned the necessity of various magazines for sale in the Campus Shop and the VM. This topic was pursued by several different viewpoints and continued until Carl Langston, Freshman Theology major, presented the subject of television in the dorms. He felt that the TV was not necessary in a Christian school and that the SA should take that into consideration when planning.

This excited the students and there were conversations going on all over the gym agreeing and disagreeing, until Terry Shaw, SA Parliamentarian, got up and asked that the students show a little respect for the speakers. This quieted the crowd somewhat, but when the subject was pursued further, Tom Long stated that the issue was a personal decision. Franklin agreed, and asked that the topic be changed since it was not an SA matter. "If students can't decide for themselves what to watch on TV by the time they are in college, then they shouldn't be here," stated Franklin.

Mark Bolton, Senior History major, answered the request for different topics and asked about special events that are planned for the rest of this semester. Patti Stone, SA Social Activities, announced the SA banquet in November at the Lookout Mountain Fairland Club. Franklin revealed plans requesting Amy Grant to perform at the college, and a Ski Day at Beech Mountain in North Carolina to be held sometime during second semester, if all goes well.

Other topics were brought up concerning weekend leaves to the surrounding community and the Security Department opening academic buildings at night and on weekends for studies.

An impromptu quartet ended the discussion with a musical selection, and Rhonda Halo, Senior Office Administration major, moved that the meeting be adjourned. The motion was seconded and all agreed.

One student observed, "Alvin did a good job handling all the different issues and arguments."

Nursing students dedicated to service

by Leanne Pacaudas

Eighty-one first semester nursing students, the largest number in the history of SC, were dedicated before an assembly of families and friends in the Collegedale church on Saturday, October 24, 1982.

David Smith, of the SC English Department, was chosen by the class to be the guest speaker. He began his talk with the statement: "So you want to spend the rest of your life working with sick people. Now that calls for dedication." He went on to say, "Working with sick people isn't necessarily the ideal, at least the way most people look at it—including my wife. When I get sick, she gets mad at me." With entertaining statements such as this dispersed throughout, Mr. Smith went on to seriously discuss why the students were being dedicated. "I'd have you think this evening that you are being dedicated because you are aspiring not just to be a nurse, but a Christian nurse. I hope you aren't becoming a nurse just because it is a good job. I hope you aspire to be a nurse because you want to heal souls as well as bodies, because you want to let your Christianity shine through your vocation..." Your task as Christian nurses is to share the hope that the God in heaven forgives and loves and never stops. You can always share hope. Tonight we dedicate you to that."

During the program a few musical selections were performed by members of the class, and a representative from Gideon International presented the class with small white New Testaments. Mrs. Elvie Swinom then called roll and each student rose to light his candle. Encircling the darkened church with their lit candles, the class recited the Nightingale Pledge to pass their lives in purity and to practice the profession faithfully. The program closed with the nurses singing their class song, "One Little Candle..."

Mrs. Jean Springett, a Nursing I instructor, explains that "We are a religious school, and we believe there is a special significance in the work our students are doing, so we have a dedication instead of a capping ceremony." Mrs. Colleen Barrow suggested that the capping ceremony was done away with because of the increasing number of male nursing students. However, this semester's class has only eight men, which is five or six less than most previous classes.
Religious freedom?

Individuality is a trait that is valued by everyone. We all want to be known for being “me”; we like our own style and don’t like to be conformistic. We object when we are regimented and deprived of our individuality by the substitution of computer numbers for our names; we grumble mutinously about rules and regulations that cramp our style. In general, we resent any infringement on our own personal freedom. Freedom to be ourselves is one of the things most dear to us, and we will do anything to protect it. But we must remember that there are other individuals besides us—those people are just as entitled to their individual freedom as we are. In order to preserve peace, we must be accepting of others’ personal opinions—just as we expect others to be accepting of ours.

It is relatively easy for us to accept other people’s political views, taste in fashion, style in self-expression, etc. But there is one area about which we tend to be very closed-minded. In the area of Christianity, we allow almost no room for individuality. The majority of us have comfortable middle-of-the-road views, and frankly, we don’t like it when people deviate from our set norm—especially when they move toward the right side of the road and dare to express an opinion more conservative than our own. We label these people “fanatics;” we poke fun at their “overly conservative” views; we scorn them for being themselves. Now I’m not saying that we should necessarily agree with every conservative idea that comes along, but that every such opinion merits the instigation of a moral reformation. But Christianity, like every other aspect of life, is an individual matter and Christian society should allow for varying opinions. And not only should these opinions be allowed, they should be respected as well.

Individuality is so important. We allow it in every other aspect of life. Why can’t we be consistent and allow it in Christianity too?

Letters

Dear Editor:

Have we been brainwashed? Mistaken? Or did we just learn from different teachers?

Tell us, is there anything wrong with a “C”? For years, students have heard, “A “C” is an average grade.” “Don’t worry, there is nothing wrong with getting a “C” in this class.” And, “You’re in the middle, with everyone else, so a “C” isn’t bad.”

We’ve also heard people expect too much from our first semester in college. “There are a lot of new teachers, new rules, and new classes to get used to, so don’t worry too much about your first semester grades. If they’re not up to the usual high school level, it will get better as you adjust.”

So tell us, why do the freshmen have to get a 3.0 GPA to get out of study hall? What are you trying to say to those kids who get “C’s” and “B’s” in their classes? There is NOTHING wrong with that! Or have we been misled? If you’re not comfortable, you simply ask for a “B” and “C’s” will get you nowhere near a 3.0 GPA. Often, even an A in a 3-hr. class will not give you a 3.0. When, faculty members, you have last looked to see how many “A’s” are given out by our teachers? Precious few.

Will we get a response up there? Can anyone give us a few reasons why the astronomical 3.0 is used, rather than 2.25, 2.50, or even 2.75? A “C” grade is 2.0, isn’t it? Wouldn’t it be all right to have a 2.30 (that’s a C plus “Above” average) grade? So, tell us faculty! Why?

Sincerely,

To the Editors:
Your editorial "A House Divided" (Oct. 14), while apparently sincere, was highly disturbing.

One wonders how much more evidence is needed to convince some people that "minor doctrinal discrepancies" are not the issue in the current discussions. Small differences of opinion have always existed among Christians, but these do not tend to divide. Ministers don't lose their credentials and form independent congregations over the length of women's dresses. By contrast, a long, protracted debate causing division and estrangement is good evidence that a major issue is at stake. Moreover, when Ellen White states concerning such issues as the judgment-hour message and the Spirit of Prophecy that "the destiny of souls hangs upon the manner in which they are received" (EW 259), that "those Seventh-day Adventists who take their stand under Satan's banner will first give up their faith" in the Testimonies (JSM 84), shouldn't this give pause to those who disdain current issues as trivia?

Perhaps the editor of Christianity Today said it best in an editorial dated Feb. 16, 1979: "To use love as an umbrella to cover doctrinal differences does not solve the basic problem. Doctrine does divide. It always has. It always will. It must do so, as the Bible does, in order to separate truth from error...if it is not grounded in sound doctrine, love is not true love even though called by that name."

While concern over harshness and a lack of love is in order, your editorial seems more fearful of conflict than of error. When I read the Bible, I find this is reversed.

Dear Editor,
Tick ME off!

After reading the most recent Accent and noticing a certain "Letter to the Editor," I feel a little edgy. I'm speaking specifically of the article by Miss Dickerhoff pertaining to the annual "Cookie Breaks." It hurts me deeply to think that she didn't get to indulge in the "munchies." I mean, I've done all this work in planning and setting up the "Cookie Break." I just can't believe everyone didn't receive a munchkin!

Bev, I do know how you feel. It's too bad that some people are so inconsiderate of others' hunger pains. The "Cookie Break" is not intended as a treat, but merely an in-between-class snack. Of course we could treat mature college students as kindergarten children and begin dishing out to them a small equal amount. (Hey, that doesn't sound too bad; we could make everyone get in a line, hand them a napkin, drink, and munchkins, then send them on their merry way!) But, I do just want to say that committees are formed, meetings are held and everything is being done to see that we accommodate as many people as possible. Thank you for your concern!

Most sincerely,
Cary Gregory
SA Student Services Director

P.S. The "Cookie Breaks" are now being called "Take-a-Break," merely because cookies aren't in anymore.

Senteille's picture. I had nothing to do with the article.

Sincerely,
Kip Thomas

THE DOW JONES industrial average fell 36.33 points Monday in the biggest single-day drop since the beginning of the Great Depression. The drop, brought on by the Federal Reserve Board's decision to maintain the current 9.5 percent prime interest rate, came just two trading days after reaching a ten-year high. While the October 28, 1929 decline was only two points higher, it was three times greater on a percentage basis because of the much lower level it fell from.

SOLIDARITY LEADER Lech Walesa's wife, Danuta, was forced to undress by Polish police attempting to find evidence for formal charges against the interned labor union leader. Mrs. Walesa, who was visiting her husband at the southeastern Polish resort where he has been interned since last December, claimed that the police tried to undress her four- and two-year-old daughters as well. BRITISH INTELLIGENCE revealed that Geoffrey Prime, one of their Russian language experts, has been giving the Soviets top secret information from a joint US-British electronic intelligence operation.

Beard profiled in Accent interview

Robin Beard is running for the US Senate because of his children. "My philosophy of belief," says the 43-year-old Republican candidate, "is that we should not mortgage the future of our children and grandchildren for the political expediency of today." Beard is opposing Senator Jim Sasser in the November 2 election in what is shaping up to be a tight race.

In a phone interview with the Accent, Beard's press secretary, Bill Childress outlined Beard's positions, read a statement from the candidate, and gave a brief background of Robin Beard.

Beard was born in Knoxville and attended Vanderbilt university. He served as State Personnel Commissioner in Governor Winfield Dunn's administration. Beard was first elected to the US House of Representatives in 1972 and has served five terms. In the ten years in the House he has "voted consistently against government regulation and against government intrusion into our daily lives."

Beard is the ranking minority member of the House Armed Services Committee and is on the House Select Committee for Narcotics Abuse. He was the House observer in the SALT talks and the United Nations' Disarmament talks. He is considered by many to be an authority on NATO issues.

Beard also supports many conservative issues. In 1982, the Christian Voice, a national Christian lobbying representing 300,000 people, presented Beard with the Christian Statesmen Award. The award goes to members of Congress who score 80 percent or above on the Christian Voice voting index. Beard voted 'correctly' 91 percent of the time on such issues as school prayer, abortions, IRS regulations affecting Christian schools, enforced busing, gay rights, a balanced budget and other issues.

Beard's statement to the Accent said that he has "voted for, on a consistent basis, the restoration of values which have made our country strong. I support voluntary prayer in schools, tax credits for private education and the right of people to choose the secondary or higher educational institution they wish to attend. I believe deeply about my principle and I will remain true to those principles for the whole six years I'm in the Senate."

Beard's chance for election hinges on getting the public out to vote. "If we can get enough interest in the election," said Childress, "we can win." Voting will be held November 2, from 8 am to 8 pm in the Collegedale City Hall.

It is not often that one gets to talk with a famous theologian and when granted a rare opportunity to gain some insight into the world of theology I couldn’t pass up the chance. Dr. Nagstrovokskey, world renowned authority on issues of theology had only a short time between flights in Atlanta and so I had to make my questions count. The following is a transcript:

Nagstrovokskey: Mr. Nagstrovokskey, what is your name isn't it?
Bietz: Yes, it is. Nagstrovokskey: No! How is it pronounced?
Bietz: Mr. Bietz.
Nagstrovokskey: Dr. Nagstrovokskey. I see. Could I call you “Nag” for short?
Bietz: Good. Well, Nag, as you survey the religious scene today what issues do you feel are those that should most concern the Christian church?
Nag: It seems to me that the ecumenists are confusing the epistemological implications of eschatology with its existential parameters.
Bietz: Yes. Nag: Are you with me?
Bietz: It depends on where you are... Now, where are we?
Nag: I had just said that it seems to me that the ecumenists are confounding the epistemological implications of eschatology with its existential parameters.
Bietz: I was afraid that that was where you were. Ah... perhaps you could go into a bit more detail.
Nag: Well it is palpably apparent to me that these whilom ecumenists who seek to disaffirm the purity of the body, see the eschaton as the solution rather than the immanence.
Bietz: I was afraid you could go into more detail. Moving right along... How is your family?
Nag: You mean the family of the church?
Bietz: Yes. Where are you from, Nagstrovokskey?
Nag: Well the family of the church has gravitated into the fixed mode of being unable or incapable of differentiating between a catastrophic eschaton and immanence. You can readily see what difficulty that leaves in me.
Bietz: I certainly can see the difficulty it leaves me in.
Nag: You find yourself in this difficult situation?
Bietz: Well it is not exactly the same difficulty.
Nag: Ah, I see.
Bietz: Maybe we should talk about your family.
Nag: Why would you want to do that?
Bietz: Well I like to get a little background on the people I interview. It helps me put their comments in a more human perspective.

Raccoons are positively charming animals to observe, being clever, industrious, clean and fun-loving. Around a camp, however, they are also quite mischievous—too noisy and far too prone to lurk about to endure themselves to everyone. For example, an unguarded or carelessly left park or garbage box is almost certain to be investigated by one or more of these cheeky bandits. Buckets, pans and cans are most likely to be overturned in the middle of the night, which is hardly conducive to a good night’s rest.

But for all his anies, the raccoon enjoys a place of honor among the nation’s outdoormen, who admire him for his general intelligence, his adaptability to a changing environment, his sporting qualities and simply because of his familiarity to young and old alike. He is an integral part of the American outdoors scene, a symbol of the vanishing wilderness.

Raccoons vary in color and size depending on habitat. The two most commonly recognized features are its black mask across the eyes and its ringed tail. The raccoon is up to 36 inches long, stands 9 to 12 inches high at the shoulder, and has a 10-inch tail. The average adult has a chunky body and usually weighs between 15 and 18 pounds, although large males may exceed 25 pounds. Raccoons are plantigrade and walk on the entire foot. The soles of their feet are jet black.

Raccoons move no farther than necessary in order to meet the demands of their appetites. During the breeding season, however, males may wander as far as 4 or 5 miles. Females seldom travel more than a half mile from their den sites.

The breeding season takes place during January, February or March, depending on the section of the country. Most raccoons are bred in February. The males are polygamous, seeking several mates, while the females usually accept only the advances of a single, preferred male. Most females will breed when they are nine to twelve months old. Males usually reach sexual maturity, or, perhaps more so as they approach their second year.

Raccoons have a gestation period of 63-64 days. The young weigh about two and a half ounces and, although fully furred, their eyes are sealed shut. A litter contains from two to seven young, four being the most common.

The normal life span of a raccoon is between seven and ten years. Besides man, the raccoon’s worst enemy is the dog. Fights between the two are ferocious and bloody. A dog that follows a raccoon into the water is committing suicide. The raccoon will climb on top of the dog’s head and grasping the head tightly in its paws, hold it beneath the water, while the raccoon will be able to breathe from its elevated perch.

The raccoon has shared his wilderness with the red man; he was undoubtedly watching when the first white man’s campfire was lit on these shores; he helped feed and doze the early settlers and explorers; he has moved over to make room for sprawling cities; he is surviving a nightly sacrifice of his kind on the endless concrete altars built across the land, even through his beloved swamps and marshes; and from the salt water marshes of Merritt Island, Fl., he watches every rocket being launched at Cape Kennedy, having somehow held on to a ringside seat to the space age.
Time Out

Kelly Petrijohn

Greve's team continued its dominance of A league with victories over Manzella and Petrijohn. Greve led throughout the game in defeating Manzella 41-31. Against Petrijohn, Greve found himself trailing 20 to 0 after about 10 minutes of play. But a key interception by John Guy turned the game around as Greve held Petrijohn scoreless the rest of the game.

In other A league action, Durby and Manzella both survived sluggish starts to defeat Culpepper. Culpepper managed to put up a good fight early in the game, but turnovers proved to be a factor in both losses.

In B league, Richardson and Bryant both managed one point victories over King and Dickerhoff respectively. Duff bombed Edwards 60-27, Mixon defeated Lonto 22-18, and Giebell beat Edwards 6-0, in two close contests.

In women's action, Arias improved her record to 5-0 with victories over Mullins and Thompson. McKee held on to second place with a 12-6 win over Thompson. Mullins also defeated Reed 27-6 to notch her first victory and leaving Reed without a win.

Thou shalt not quit.
Thou shalt not talk.
Thou shalt not make excuses.
Thou shalt not boast.
Thou shalt not despise the empire.
Thou shalt not steal thy friend's glory.
Thou shalt not ask others thou're unwilling to give.
Thou shalt play for the game's sake.
Thou shalt cooperate for others' sake.

So you think you're a jock?

by Greg Culpepper

If you think you qualify as a jock, think again. Very few people attain jockdom. Listed below are ten prerequisites to being a jock:

1. Must be a P.E. major
2. Must be personal friends with Dean Evans
3. Must have I.Q. (smarts) below 85
4. Must wear sweat pants to class
5. Must excel at every sport except polo
6. Must say "huh" a lot
7. Must flunk one (1) freshman level class
8. Must hate preps
9. Must not shave or wear cologne
10. Must have big mouth

When you have attained these ten characteristics, you know you're a certified Jock.

If you're feeling the same way I am, the answer must be "bored." Vacation's still a ways off, and mid-terms are over. So what's left? Being a caring individual, concerned over the health and welfare of my fellow SCSDA-ites, maybe the following suggestions will help brighten your otherwise bleak existence.

Call up the deans and ask them if they're aware that there's a tech problem.

Take your Joker to the post office. See how many faces you can match up with the "wasted" pictures. Stand in the Sabbath lunch line. Count how many people cut in front of you. See if it adds up to the nation's GNP. Sing "If you're happy and you know it stomp your feet" with 40 other guys on the third floor Friday night. Look very innocent when the second and first floors pay a visit. Send yourself mail. Walk up to someone on Need Day and say "Wow! What a wild get-up!" Make sure they don't look any different than other days...

Call up the CK and order two large pizzas. Go to sleep.

Count how many times "E.O. Grundset" appears in every "Charter." Make a five-volume collection. Hold a stereo contest. See whose speakers are the loudest, but make sure it is study hall. Call 4014 or 4677. Try to hold a conversation.

Conduct a poll on your hall to see who is the favorite dean. Call the dean at 3 a.m. with the good news.

Start sending out Valentines. Hang around the CK. Order nothing. Yell "Here!" for every number called out. Visit a married couple. Tell them you're there for a Marriage and the Family project. Inspect their fridge and TV for a few hours. Forget project.

Announce a contest to see which theology major's brief case is the largest. Get the prettiest girl to school to play racquetball with you. Try to knock out the lights in the court. Get married. It's awakened lots of people.

Call the Mercantile. Ask if they have Prince Albert in a can. If they say "Yes," you'd better turn on your tape recorder.

Go trick-or-treating in Collegedale. Insist on chocolate, not candy. Be daring. Go to a movie. Try not to be surprised at all the other daring people from SC.

Of course, this list is only a supplement to the bigger one that most of you have. But as a last resort to help boredom, try studying...

Second semester the class Christian Salesmanship will be taught. This is a two hour lower division credit class. It will meet each Tuesday evening in Lynn Wood Hall. The instructor will be Henry Fish who is the Georgia-Cumberland Conference Publishing Director. This is an excellent training class for those interested in canvassing next summer. You not only learn the rules of selling, but also learn a canvass and put it to practical use in a group canvass.

More JOKERS have been printed. They are available at the Student Center desk.

Dear Snapper,
I had fun this weekend! Thanks for everything. You are a great roommate.

Southern College received $49,500 from BECA, the Business Executive’s Challenge to Alumni. The money was presented to Dr. Frank Kaitz at the Sixth Annual Dinner for Philanthropy in Washington, D.C., on October 28. The award is part of a two million dollar fund designed to promote alumni giving to their alma mater.

The BECA program has been very successful at Southern College. During the 1979-80 school year, only six percent of SC’s alumni contributed funds to the college. The BECA program began the following year. Participation jumped to fifteen percent of alumni and contributions increased to $84,844.

The goal for this school year is $100,000 according to Dr. Wayne Thurber, director of Public Relations. "BECA gets us moving," Dr. Thurber says. "We will meet the challenge but it’s not going to be easy.

Hyde to head religion department

By Lee Anne Facendus

The SC Religion Department will undergo a change in its chairmanship this coming January. Elder Gordon Hyde, former Field Secretary of the General Conference and Director of the Biblical Research Institute, will succeed Elder Douglas Bennett, the department’s current chairman.

According to Elder A.C. McClure, Southern Union President and chairman of the SC board, Elder Hyde, who taught at SC from 1956-1969 and was the head of the Religion and Communications Departments, "was a main greatly loved. He is a scholar as well as a teacher. Because of his background and move back to Georgia to work on the adult Sabbath School Teacher quarterly, his proximity and availability was attractive to the college." Elder McClure went on to explain that the addition of Elder Hyde was simply an intention to strengthen the department.

“I want to make clear that as far as Elder Bennett goes, I and the board have the utmost confidence in him and have had no questions about him.”

Elder Bennett, who has been the chairmain for the past ten years, explained that he “had offered a resignation during the 1981-1982 school year and had been trying to get out of the chairmanship. So, I am not unhappy about it, and I will still be teaching, which is what I enjoy most.”

Elder Hyde will be returning to a position that is not unfamiliar to him. It is one that he held during part of the 13 years that he taught at SC. Born in England and the youngest of 13 children to parents who were among the early Adventists in Great Britain, Elder Hyde explains himself as having “been characterized as a conservative of the conservatives.” Expressing that he doesn’t really worry about it, he went on to say, “I feel that we have a constituency to serve. We have parents that are looking to us with great expectations. We may not be able to resolve problems that have accumulated over a period of years in a student’s life, but we’re certainly like to do our best.”

Expecting to have an open door to his office at all times, Elder Hyde stated, “I want to do my best to find a unified position of what I believe to be the sound and traditional Adventist positions, and I have a feeling, though I haven’t asked them individually, that that is the goal of the rest of the people in this department.”

When asked to comment on the current criticism that the department has been receiving Elder Hyde said, “I’m not sympathetic with some of the methods that have been used to attack the department, although I realize that the teacher is very much ‘killing his own’...and it’s not easy to learn what is going on in a classroom in any objective way because no two students hear the same thing hear it exactly the same way...We have some very able teachers in our department, some of the best qualified in the country. From that standpoint we don’t have to take a backseat to anyone. Our greatest need is to continue the good year that we are having.”

Elder Hyde graduated from Newbold College with a ministerial diploma and then from Andrews University in 1942 with a BA in Theology. Ordained in 1946, he was a pastor-evangelist in the Wisconsin Conference for five years before returning to his homeland and working in the South England Conference for another five years. After teaching at Wisconsin Academy for four years, he came to SC in 1956, and it was through him that the radiostation cost.
And justice for all?

In the four and one half years I have lived in Collegedale, I have heard some bad reports about the Collegedale Police Department. But I assumed the people complaining were in the wrong and deserved what they got. An incident that happened on October 27, however, made me reconsider my stand on the police department and question their motives and abilities to enforce the laws properly.

On October 11, Officer Shanks saw a moped rider without a helmet driving down Camp Road. He didn’t bother to ticket the offender but wrote out the ticket, asked Dean Evans who owned a moped with Texas tags, and told the dean to give the ticket to the moped owner, Greg Wheeler.

Three days later, Wheeler found the ticket on his dresser. The time for the alleged offense was 4:00 p.m. when, according to witnesses, Wheeler was playing football.

On October 26, Wheeler went down to the police department to discuss the citation and the court appearance the next day. He never signed the ticket or agreed to come to court the next day.

At 11:00 p.m. on Wednesday, October 27, Wheeler was sleeping in his room when the police awakened him and placed him under arrest for failure to appear in court. The police failed to read Wheeler his rights, which is required by the Miranda ruling of the United States Supreme Court. They then took him to the squad car and handcuffed him. Wheeler was not drunk, nor was he high on drugs. Although Wheeler did not feel the arrest was justified, he did not put up a fight. Justice has not been served when a student is treated like a common criminal for allegedly not wearing a helmet on a moped.

Next the police took Wheeler to the police station and held him there for two hours until a bail bondswoman came from Chattanooga and arranged Wheeler’s release.

This incident really makes one wonder about the level of competence of the Collegedale Police. When an officer has nothing better to do than ticket moped riders than not even bother to give the ticket to him, he had better check out his priorities.

Without some drastic policy and/or personnel changes are made in Collegedale Police Department, the level of confidence in their work will continue to plummet.

Letters

Dear Editor,

In response to the letter concerning 3.00 GPA, I feel compelled to reply. To fairly answer the question of why a 3.00 is required, the purpose of the study hall program must be considered, along with a little history of SC.

Two years ago, the administration of SC took a close look at the performance of the freshman class in terms of academic success. With an alarmingly high ratio of students below a 2.00 GPA, along with an equally high ratio of dropouts at the semester, they felt it necessary to implement some program which would hopefully encourage the incoming freshmen to greater heights of academic achievement and increase the possibility of these students staying in school. Let me add this was not a one-year problem but rather had been growing in the past years. With this aim, the freshman support program was begun “to provide, to the greatest extent feasible, the kind of academic, personal, financial and social support which will maximize the probability of a student successfully completing his/her freshman year of college.”

The intention was to run a program for one semester. But if the student could attain a 2.25 GPA, he would be allowed off. Well, the first half of the semester was considered a success in terms of attendance and attitude of the freshmen, but the second half hardly short of chaos. The morale of many left or dropped out due to the “dummy” image they obtained, for after all, “you must be an idiot if you can’t get a 2.25.” So at the end of the year the program was reevaluated. It was felt by the administration that the required grade level should be raised sufficiently so that rather than being an “indicator of stupidity” for those left on (with the requisite GPA of under 2.25), it would instead be a reward for those who excelled.

Thus 3.00 was arrived at by the administration. This fit better into the original plan which was to run the program for first semester of each year. If the program was intended to run for half a semester, then it would be “punishment” for those who didn’t receive the required grade level to get off, but it was right of the fact that it is intended for one semester, the attainment of 3.00 GPA is rewarded by “release” from study hall. The magic number of 3.00 was not arrived at through use of any statistical formulas or theory, but rather through an evaluation of last year’s program by the administration, which revealed the above-mentioned flaw.

As was done after last year, this year’s program will be evaluated and possibly the required grade level will be changed.

In closing, despite the flaws in the program last year, overall it was considered a success. It is interesting to note, in support of that statement, that last year the school recorded the fewest freshmen dropout rate at the semester.

The average GPA of freshmen was also up.

Sincerely,
David Butler

Dear Editor,

I am perturbed, to say the least, at the recent actions of the Collegedale Police Department. It seems that our men in blue have decided to go to extreme measures to catch desperate criminals by using our dean’s card to hand out tickets. They also have come into Talijic Hall on a recent occasion to wake up and arrest my roommate for skipping his court date. During the arrest, Officer Shanks failed to read Mr. Wheeler his rights prior to handcuffing; they failed to read him his rights at any time.

Mr. Wheeler decided not to go to court because he was never caught by local authorities. He was playing football during the time the ticket states (with three witnesses to prove it). He never signed the paper which is the ticket that says, “I promise to appear in said court or bureau at said time and place.” The ticket itself is for riding a moped without a helmet. Mr. Wheeler’s next court date is November 10 at 9:00 A.M. Let’s all show our support for Greg and show up at the courthouse. Let’s let the Collegedale police force know that we won’t stand for this kind of inexcusable gizm.

Sincerely,
Royce J. Eber

Dear Editor:

Recently I have experimented a situation here at SC which I believe is entirely inconclusive to the practice of our student faith. I have been trying without success to acquire employment on campus. I have visited the offices of our new “Student Employment”
Prison ministries--a growing need

Prison. What comes to your mind at the mention of the word? Dark and gloomy, cells lined with barbed wire, trash strewn between towering guard stations...warehouses for the scum of society, the rejects of the human race, the deviates, the incorrigibles. And on the inside-cold cement floors, peeling walls painted institutional green and battleship gray, dirty sunlight filtering through high white windows with horizontal bars, casting everywhere the shadows of metal bars, making up rows and rows of cells, each cell containing a person who was convicted of a crime—robbery, murder—a person who has by choice or by circumstance become a hardened criminal, a person who was sentenced to spend up to their residuum of life isolated from the world, but nonetheless, a person with a soul. Did the final note of the prison bars as that person was locked up signal the end of his chance for salvation? Not at all; in God's sight, but before a prison a person can accept God and His forgiveness, he must first be given the opportunity to hear about Him—and that is the reason for Prison Ministries.

Dr. Lorenzo Grant, who for several years has been involved in Prison Ministries, tells the following story: "I was working with the Hamilton County Jail when I found out about a prisoner there who had been at CUC the same time I was. In fact, we had both been in the same class, Old Testament Studies, but since he had stayed on the back row and I on the first, I didn't remember who he was." Anyway, now he was in the Hamilton County Jail being held for murder.

"For three months this guy attended our meetings, sitting silent as a tomb on the back row. He never said a word and he seemed to have an attitude of hostility, but still he was there, and that intrigued me. It became a challenge to me to reach him.

"I kept an eye on him when I preached— he's the kind of guy you don't look at—but I preached my sermons with him in mind and directed my comments at him."

There is no doubt that many who are employed in this manner sincerely believe this to be true. However, one has only to research and read the many references found in the Index to the Writings under the heading SABBATH, Subheading 422, Use of, and find that this is not the case.

While Sister White did say that life's necessities must be attended to on the Sabbath and that sanitarium patients, doctors, and nurses must be fed, she called for the closing of SDA restaurants (which were operated primarily for missionary purposes) and spoke against doing any unnecessary work on the Sabbath.

As Seventh-Day Adventists, we believe that the medical missionary work is one which God approves on the Sabbath. Yet even in this work she wanted "Ordinary treatment, and operations that can wait should be deferred till the next day." (MM 241) Feeding SF students and faculty, I believe, is hardly called an act of mercy by any stretch of the imagination.

It would be wrong of me to write this letter without suggesting a few possible solutions to this problem. After all, students should not be expected to fast every Sabbath, although fasting would provide better health for many.

First, students should make necessary arrangements to prepare for the Sabbath by having food on hand for the Sabbath. This is made easier by the fact that refrigerators are allowed in the dorms and there are cooking facilities also.

Second, area church members should provide an occasional meal for a student or group of students. Most people in Collegedale are dependent on the college in some respect and enjoy its benefits. What more appropriate way of expressing a grateful heart for God's many blessings than to invite a student (many of whom would go home every weekend if they could because of homesickness) to your home for a Sabbath afternoon dinner.

A third alternative (certainly not ideal, but perhaps better than the present situation) would be to follow the practice of Southwestern Adventist College at Keene, Texas. Sabbath breakfast consists of cereal or pastries which requires a bare minimum of workers. Likewise, Sabbath dinner and supper consists of cold cut sandwiches, chips, fruit, a drink, and other goodies prepared on Friday, placed in paper bags, and refrigerated. These meals, while not providing a fast as a hot meal, would undoubtedly be appreciated as an alternative to fasting.

I'm sure that most SC students do not enjoy seeing cafeteria workers having to work so hard on God's holy day to provide them with a nourishing meal. I think that most SC students would rather "suffer" by eating a cold lunch or make previous arrangements for Sabbath meals than to cause others to have to work on the Sabbath. I would encourage those in responsible positions to consider this problem and work toward a solution that is more consistent with the principles of our faith.

For any students who are convicted about this matter and are usable for one reason or another to make other arrangements, see me a few days in advance so that my wife can be prepared and have Sabbath dinner with us.

Sincerely,
Stephen R. Morris

Should Adventists be involved in politics?

by Lance Martin

YES

"The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptation, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished: But chiefly them that walk uprightly in the footsteps of the flesh in the last of ungodliness, and despise government. Presumptuous are they, self-willed, they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities." (2 Peter 2:9-10) Even though the government referred to here is one represented as Christ's Lordship, we can apply this to some thoughts that Christ has on Christians participating in politics. As soon as you go to politics is mentioned, some Christian "substitute" feelings of guilt, fear, and animosity seem to rise up in the minds of many dedicated Christians. However, it should not be this way.

In the biblical days, government played an important part in everyone's life, both Christian and non-Christian. As documented in Luke 2, we see the leaders of the land had to go to their own cities to pay their taxes, not exactly like we do today, but then, they did pay taxes. There were tax collectors assigned in this period to take care of these very same manner. In Luke 20:25 we find a pointed and important admonition for supporting the government ever found in scripture. That is, "Render unto Caesar the things which be Caesar's and unto God the things which be God's." What more specific way to say to the people "Support your government and your God" than by this?

Alonzo Tievry Jones in his book, Christian Patriotism tells the story of Nadadath, Meshach, and Abednego in the furnace. As king Nebuchadrezzar watched the three boys and their visitor, in the oven, his heart was softened and he praised God. Jones says "God had commanded all nations to serve the King, and whatsoever nation that would not serve him would be punished." From this event we see a definite separation of church and state. "In making Nebuchadnezzar king of nations, the Lord had not made him king of the religion of nations." (Jones, Christian Patriotism) We see in the example of Daniel a man who was in every way a devout Christian but yet saw a need to intervene in government circles. Stephen Haskell in his book, The Story of Daniel the Prophet tells us that "the Lord is pleased to have men of intelligence in His work if they remain true to Him. Through the grace of Christ, man may preserve the integrity of his character when surrounded by adverse circumstances." We do see a need to be involved. We have to use the mind that our Creator gave us and think over issues. Then by casting our ballot, we have actively participated in government.

The main warning given to Christians as voters was exemplified in the writings of Ellen G. White in her book Testimonies for the Church. We cannot be rash in our voting. Christians have to lift the mantle of political parties off and go between party lines. "All who still retain political sentiments which are not in accordance with the spirit of truth are living in violation of the principles of heaven." This gives us even a more important role in voting for we have to exercise more, more thought, and look closer and study harder the issues that are involved. Then we ask, "Should a Christian vote?" Though this article will be printed after November 2, there will probably be more elections on which we will have the Christian's praiseworthy right to vote. "True patriotism is that spirit which, originating in love of country, prompts to obedience to its laws: to the support and defense of its existence, rights, and institutions; and to the promotion of its welfare. The spirit that originates in the love of the Christian's country is none other than the Holy Spirit. For without being born again, there can be no Christian; and there being no Christian, there can be no love of the Christian's country—Christian Patriotism." (Jones Christian Patriotism)

So only the dictates of your mind can help you to exercise your Christian patriotism, and if you love your country, then you must participate.

NO

by Stephen Morris

For the Seventh-day Adventist to answer a question such as this should be based first and foremost on what the Bible has to say about it. Many times if the Bible does not clearly relate to a specific question, Spirit of Prophecy writings may help to shed light on the subject.

The Bible gives us a general rule to live by in all our associations with non-Christians in 2 Cor. 6:14,15. "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel?"

In the book Gospel Workers, Ellen White devotes several pages to this question. "In regard to politics," she says, "the Lord would have His people busy political questions. On these themes silence is an absolute. Christ calls upon His followers to come into unity on the pure gospel principles which are plainly revealed in the word of God. We cannot with safety vote for political parties; for we do not know whom we are voting for." (White, Gospel Workers, p. 387, 388). "The advocates of temperance fail to do their whole duty unless they exert their influence by voice and example—by pen and vote—in favor of prohibition and total abstinence." So it seems that if the phrase "participate in politics" is used to mean exercising one's right to vote by casting a ballot in an election, then the answer is a qualified YES.

Even more direct is this statement from Gospel Workers, p. 387: "If the phrase "participate in politics" is meant to mean strongly support or endorse a particular political party or candidate by actively campaigning for a part or candidate, then the answer is undoubtedly NO.

In fact, we are counseled to keep even our opinions to ourselves. "Whatever the opinions you may entertain in regard to casting your vote in political questions, you are not to proclaim it by pen or voice. Our people need to be silent upon questions which have no relation to the third angel's message." (White, Gospel Workers, p. 285, 329).

However, in regards to questions which touch upon the fundamental beliefs of our faith, we should take a different stand. "While we are in no wise to become involved in political questions, yet it is our privilege to take our stand decidedly on all questions relating to the temperance reform." (White, Testimonies for the Church, p. 253).

If this is the case, the answer to the question "Should Adventists participate in partisan politics?" is NO.

Psalm 118:8,9 tells us where our priorities should be: "It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in man. It is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in princes."
Directions

I can remember the moment when time and its passage came to the forefront of my thinking, at least for a moment, as it was in the sixth grade. It was not the end of the school year and for some reason, a number of us were discussing the fact that we would be going into academy in a couple of years. My mind began to do some mathematical calculations and I said, "Do you realize that six years we will be graduating from academy and in a mere ten years we will be finished with college and probably be married?"

That thought did not impress my sixth grade friends, but for a brief moment the rapid progress of time was etched on my mind. I guess it is good that the passage of time, or the thought that occupies our constant attention, for us, is usually of time is to lose it by watching it. Occasionally, just occasionally, we should look at the passage of time (or some would say the march of events) so as to see our lives in perspective.

My cousin's husband had his 40th birthday. She had a party for him. It was the kind of party where "Happy Birthday" was sung to the tune of the Volga Boat song. She advertised this rite of passage as a funeral for her husband's youth. One friend read an obituary to his youth and another gave the funeral sermon. I wasn't able to attend, but I can imagine the funeral now.

"Dear friends, we are gathered here to mourn the loss of our dear friend's youth. No longer will he be able to enjoy his youthful vigor, no longer will the fresh flush of youth grace his face, or the trim figure of youth strengthen his body. All of this has been replaced with age spots, hair dye, and sore muscles."

It sounds a bit like Solomon's plea not to forget your Creator in the days of youth, before all the weaknesses of old age debilitate the vim, vigor, and vitality of life.

As a culture which idealizes youth, beauty, and physical prowess; and which relegates those of old age to a rather low place on the totem pole of esteem, such a funeral has more than humorous overtones.

If we could test Einstein's theory and travel at near the speed of light, we might slow the aging process, but not having such technology we must seek other ways to slow Father Time. People use many things from diet and exercise to cream for dissolving age spots and Oil of Olay. The body in this life will always be subject to decay, but in John 6:47 it says, "He who believes has everlasting life."

That life begins the day you believe. It is not a biological invulnerability to the onset of old age, but it is a quality of existence that will never end. In reality, it is the quality of life that is of significance anyway, for those with no grasp on life's quality are anxious for their lives to end, and some people even take their own live. But where life has quality it never ends, for the brief hiatus of death is no more an interruption to eternal life than a good night's sleep is to our earthly lives.

Why should I be writing about time and getting older to those who are in the bloom of youth? Well, I guess it relates to the saying, "Knowing where you are going helps you to prepare for the trip."

Believe it or not, all of you are going to this place called old age. The trip there is as inevitable as the earth's circuit around the sun. It is a journey with much pleasure when properly prepared for. And it is a journey of much pain and suffering when not properly prepared for.

The proper preparation is to believe John 6:47 and learn to experience the quality of eternal life that Christ died to provide us. Living with that eternal life as today's generation gives today a quality that is never-ending.

Peeke directs student employment

by Page Woolen

Robert Peeke is the new Student Employee Administrator at SC. This Employment Office has been formed to assist students in finding a job and performing it satisfactorily. To do this, Peeke is exploiting possibilities of on- and off-campus jobs. A job bank is being formed to aid area employers and students.

Workshops are being held at academies to help students with writing resumes and organizing class schedules for college. Also, on-campus workshops are held once a semester for SC students on how to write resumes, work for promotions, and interviewing.

The Employment Office will have a career planning library containing information of companies, businesses, hospitals, conferences, and how to meet these job qualifications.

Another goal which Peeke hopes to reach is an internship program. This program would not be available after the sophomore year, or after prerequisites are completed. Every other semester, a student would work as an intern in his field of study. Completing a four-year degree would take five years, but the graduate would have direct exposure to his chosen career. Also, Peeke would like to obtain the placement book for jobs from the Dean of Students.

Enrollment stabilizes

Enrollment at Southern College dropped to 26 students in the first 10 weeks of classes. "This is the lowest attrition rate in five years," said Dr. Frank Knittel, president of SC. "We are very pleased with this figure."

Knittel cited the free summer tuition as a factor in the small drop. Other factors include the new learning center and SC's Testing and Counseling Center.

Southern College's beginning enrollment dropped $50 from last year but the figure is still compared to other drops in other Adventist institutions such as Andrews University and Pacific Union College. Overall the Adventist college and university system had a net drop of 750 students.

Knittel felt that enrollment drops throughout the system are due to a lack of commitment to the proposition of better education on the church level. "The Seventh day Adventist church has become much more urban," Knittel says. "The church is not a social drawing power. There is an increasing tendency for the church to have less influence in our daily lives."

Student tour Europe

by Patty Gentry

Cultural shock began for most in our first week's stay in London where mini-skirts have been revived; punk, or the "new wave" has arrived, with its burlap and orange-dyed, closely-cropped and chopped haircuts, mullets, second-skinned, second-skin jeans, hose sack-like tops and gypsy makeup; fruit stands, bakery shops, and cheese stores replace our supermarkets. "police" are called "bobbies," and Rolls Royces, Jaguars and the like are as plentiful as pine trees in a Tennessee forest.

Thus over six weeks of travel throughout eight European countries began May 13 on an overnight Delta flight out of Atlanta to London's Heathrow Airport for some 23 students, teachers and friends from Arizona to New York through the Southern College-sponsored European Study Tour directed by Dr. William Wohlers, professor of history at SC and assisted by Dr. Charles Zwill, professor of art. Up to six hours of credit was offered at no additional charge to interested students.

As we traveled north in England, we as college-age tourists were especially curious to visit the university towns of Oxford and Cambridge. I personally remember keeping an eye out for the inventor of the Oxford shirt, or at least a pair of loafers or khakis, but alas! The propiciest sight observed was a young man dressed in a white long-collared shirt and black pants (polyester?) peddling down the street on a bicycle.

After a ferryboat ride across the North Sea, three pounds of Dutch chocolate, and a visit to the red light capital of the world, Amsterdam, we found ourselves in Bruges, Belgium. Eating Belgium waffles, potato fries, riding on buses and carousing up and down fourteenth century cobblestone streets didn't exactly leave us feeling "cost soap" clean. Naturally we were disappointed when our hotel manager informed us that under no uncertain terms were we to use the only bathtub in the place. "But how are we supposed to fit in the sink?" I queried, towel, soap, shampoo and washcloth in hand. Judging by her irate response concerning how sloopy young people are, there was obviously no point in continuing further.

While Sandra Schiau and Paul Haerich were busily attending every concert, ballet and performance, while Dr. Wohlers and Dr. Zwill were surveying local pastry shops and some of us were simply trying to take a bath, others like Linda Unrath (who said "I do" the night we returned) and Judi Bole (who got married July 25) considered mail and phone calls from the U.S. to be the highlights of their trip.

In Paris early Sunday morning, American tourist Gerald Owens came to our hotel to show us around town. Before leaving on our sightseeing venture, Gerald gave the girls a thorough rundown on the perils of street life and the dangers of smiling at strange French men (our accommodations were only a few blocks from the red light district). He forgot to mention children.

Pam Kenney and Laura Bianchi were greeted by two little girls in a Parisian subway station who turned out to be gypsy beggar-thieves intending to rid them of their purses or other valuable possessions. Shocked, Pam and Laura clung to their belongings, preventing any loss.

Storm clouds were gathering the afternoon we visited the Versailles Palace, but group members were surprised to find America's own NBC television cameras and economic news reporter Irving R. Levine at the palace gate on special assignment preceding President Reagan's visit to Versailles.

From France we chugged by train through Switzerland's snow-capped Alps. Florence, Italy abounded with cultural antiquities by such names as Leonardo, da Vinci, Dante, and Michelangelo. The warm brick streets welcomed shoppers as did the sidewalk merchants hawking their wares, be it brass wallets, colorful woven baskets, or mouth-watering Italian ice cream.

Progressing to Rome several days later, we enjoyed the sunshine and rugged beauty of the ancient ruins of Rome varying from Nero's old palace to the Imperial Forums. We were sobered by a trek through the Catacombs, hand-dug caverns, the dwelling for many early Christians and burial place for martyrs.

During a "pastry stop" one morning, Judi Bole was standing on a curb under some telephone wires waiting for the others to buy their delicacies when a pigeon resting on the wire above decided to set off. His business in the middle of Judi's clean blonde hair. Fortunately, Dr. Wohlers' cousin, Bobbie Sue Wohlers (a registered nurse), was quick to Judi's rescue.

Highlights of our stay in Rome included the Pope's farewell in a ceremonial parade from the Vatican to the Santa Maggore before leaving that evening for Argentina, and trying to get off hot humid city buses packed with no less than 100 standing, or otherwise positioned Italians. After five days in Rome, we took a train to the watery town of Venice and caught a boat to our hotel. Venice was filled with American celebrities, among them...
Gavin McCloud, the captain of "Loveboat," along with producer, directors, and cast who were there to film part of a special program which was aired this season.

From Venice we traveled by train to Vienna, Austria, where we toured several palaces and art galleries, and attended the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra.

After a stop in the beautiful Austrian village of Salzburg where the "Sound of Music" was filmed and Malinda ate a record number of pastries and Swiss candy bars in one sitting, we arrived in Munich, West Germany, the evening of June 17 with only ten days remaining in the tour. Rising daily to a continental breakfast of hard rolls, jam, and hot chocolate, we spent Sabbath in the southern part of Germany in a quaint little town called Garmisch, hiking up the mountains until we found an ideal spot overlooking the Alpine Mountains for an outdoor church service complete with a sermon by Malinda. After a peaceful walk down the mountain, we returned to Munich. Later we visited Dachau, a former German concentration camp, now a museum whose purpose is to portray as accurately as possible the tragedies that occurred there and the present determination that human torture should never be used again.

Our stay in Germany concluded at the Adventist Marienhöhe Seminary outside Darmstadt, nestled among rolling hills, cow pastures, an American Army base, and streetcar lines. The walk from the streetcar to the college was an unforgettable one mile of uphill struggle. By this time our suitcases were twice as heavy, but our only choice was to keep plugging along if we wanted supper and a place to sleep that night.

From there time flew and seemingly in a flash we once more stood in an airport dressed in our Italian shoes and belts, and London blouses and dresses, this time bound for home. Conclusively we agreed that Europe is a great place to visit, but America is a great place to live.

Ugly men fare better

Campus Digest News Service

Ugly men have better jobs and better educated wives than good-looking men, a new survey says.

The survey found that looks have no effect on income, but in other areas attractiveness to men hinders gain in status. The survey was done by University of North Carolina researchers.

The least-attractive men have the most education and their occupational status is higher on the job classification scale the researchers found. The survey showed that uglier men performed better at school and had sexual relations at a later age than their better-looking counterparts.

However, the survey said that "outstandingly" good-looking men attain jobs of equal prestige as those of the least attractive.

The survey also found that a woman's attractiveness was not related to education, occupation, or personal income.

Nevertheless, there was considerable evidence that feminine attractiveness affects the adult status through marriage to a high-income husband.

The survey said that the more attractive the woman, the better educated her husband. The opposite was true for men.

There was no correlation between a woman's looks and her school performance or adolescent sexual activity, according to the survey.

The study used data from a survey in 1970 of 607 men and 747 women. That survey followed up a study of men and women who were first questioned in 1955, during their sophomore year in high school. Research assistants then rated the respondent's looks, using high school pictures. The survey was made public on September 7 at the 77th Annual meeting of the American Sociological Association.
When can an SC student wear a striped shirt, checkered pants, a paisley tie and white socks, and be in vogue? And when can that same student blow his nose on his tie and be considered cute? On Nerd Day, of course! The second day of Fall Festival Week, Nerd Day was an opportunity for the uninhibited to display the crazy, clashy, wild, weird, and generally "nerdy" sides of their characters without being carried away to the funny farm. Out of style and hopelessly mismatched clothing, oversized or broken glasses, greased hair, a variety of head gear, idiotic expressions, uncoordinated and clumsy gaits, and nasal slurred speech, were all used by the one-day nerds to make their costumes as realistic as possible. Walking across campus at any time during the day, one would be likely to encounter anything from mad scientists to martians to lunatics to "flashers"...well, you name it—if it was crazy, it was there! Nerd Day concluded with an official "Nerd Picture" taken on the steps of Lynn Wood Hall, a picnic supper, and a program consisting of a bluegrass band and a nerd skit put on by Steve Vogel (WiHaW) and Steve Decker (Wilbur).
Student park hosts Great Pumpkin

by Lorraine Facundos

Ghost, witches, nerds, three blind mice, and the likes of Dracula, Robin Hood, and King Tut, along with many other SC students invaded the Student Park Sunday night, October 31, for the SA's annual Great Pumpkin Caper. After refreshments of doughnuts, apples, and hot chocolate were served, Halloweeners were treated with a short musical jambarce by the White Oak Mountainians, a bluegrass band made up of six SC students. The costume contest with total prizes of $520 followed along with many cute and many strange creatures. As E. O. Grandset, the emcee for the evening, put it, "Tazman and Jane (alias Mark Huber and Craig Wilkinson), though we're not exactly sure which is which," won the "historical hysterial section." The novelty section, which the emcees correctly defined as meaning "it could be anything," revealed to the roaring delight of all, the third place winners of $20 in the dears of Thatcher, Mrs. Runyan and Mrs. Scowiers, as Toga partiers dressed in white sheets with wreaths of leaves atop their heads. King Tut rose from his tomb to receive the second prize of $25, and an adorable Evonee Hanson and Terry Shaw as Raggedy Ann and Andy "came out of the closet," according to Mr. Grandset to win the first prize of $30.

The seasonal section was won by a misorder witch on a vacuum cleaner, and six little galactic visitors won the group section. Grand prize of $50 went to Mr. Grandset as a knight in shining armor. Although Mr. Grandset suggested that it had been "fashioned out of many aluminum cans," it was actually made of sheers of metal welded together by a friend of hers.

While waiting for the movie, "The Russians Are Coming," to be set up, marshmallows were roasted and eaten around a huge bonfire, and due to some delay in "The Russians Are Coming," the marshmallows were also used for ammunition in what turned out to be the Great Marshmallow Fight.

IABC organizes student chapter

The Chattanooga Chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators (IABC) launched a student chapter of IABC for area communication students at a special meeting October 26.

The special meeting, held at UTC's student center, was attended by 26 Southern College students and several area college and university students and area organizational communicators.

IABC, with a national membership of over 10,000, is a trade association for industrial and organizational communicators and public and industrial relations specialists. The Chattanooga chapter has a local membership of over 50 area organizational communicators.

The student chapter, initially called ChooChoo/IABC, will be affiliated with IABC and sponsored by the Chattanooga chapter. Its purpose is to help area communication students make the transition from school to a meaningful job in organizational communications. ChooChoo/IABC will be open to communication students from all area colleges and universities.

Debbie Metcalf, IABC District II vice president, Birmingham, Alabama, made a presentation and the featured speaker for the evening was David McFadden, manager of Hospital Relations, Hospital Corporation of America, Nashville.

According to Deanna Yocom, IABC/Chattanooga's president, student chapters affiliated with IABC is a concept receiving more attention to local chapters near educational institutions nationwide. "The idea for forming a student chapter for Chattanooga area communication students came up about eight months ago, and IABC/Chattanooga's Education Committee has been working on the idea ever since," Yocom said.

The IABC/Chattanooga Education Committee, co-chaired by Cynthia DeRiemer, UTC Communication Department and Frances Andrews, Southern College Communication Department, solicited information from other IABC chapters which had formed IABC student chapters. "We received guidelines from the international headquarters in San Francisco and other information from other student chapters which really helped the committee's efforts in establishing this student chapter," DeRiemer said. She also noted the closest student chapter to the Chattanooga area is in Atlanta.

Individuals wanting more information about ChooChoo/IABC should contact Cynthia DeRiemer at the UTC Communication Department or Frances Andrews at Southern College Communication Department in Collegedale.

Windstruck strikes

by Franz Louis

John Biddle, the "world's foremost yachting cinematographer-lecturer" was present on our campus this weekend and gave a live narration of "Windstruck" before a packed audience of students and community residents.

"Windstruck," Biddle's 26th annual sailing film show, was a 90-minute action and humor-filled film-lecture entertainment for all. The film captures the strenuous human challenges in slalom racing, heavy weather racing, catamaran marathons, and hot-air ballooning, and evoked spontaneous applause and cheer in the audience.

The overture gives particular attention to crews in yachts ranging from 30-footers to maxis, drawn up in battle array or actually joined battle with the impetuous, heaving seas. It goes on to cover a broad spectrum of unique oceanic eccentricity and other competitions in sailing races highlighted by a thrilling and exciting race of eleven Hobie 16's from Fort Lauderdale to Virginia Beach.

The race was described by the film maker as a "grueling and demanding six-day, twenty-four hours-a-day 1000 mile bash up the Atlantic coast flanked by rounding the treacherous, and in this case, stormy Cape Hatteras.

The finale presented a adventure of hot-air ballooning over a magnificent French historic site. This segment features fantastic castles, delectable cuisine, and palatable wines and champagne. The imminent competition between men and the wind is shown as the trip comes to an end.

In short, John Biddle's "Windstruck" is a crucial and defiant dispute between some intrepid sailors and gearbusting winds which in the long run, the former win by their determination, tenacity, and love for adventure.

Acne cure?

Campus Digest News Service

Finally, a cure for acne has been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and it really works.

The miracle drug is Accutane, a synthetic chemical related to Vitamin A. One capsule of Accutane once a day for 15 to 20 weeks can clear up even severe cases of acne. Even after intake of the drug is stopped, its curative effect continues for several months.

Accutane is a synthetic derivative, was discovered in cancer research and dermatologists tried it on acne. Glides, beneath the skin. A few patients have experienced hair loss, muscle pain or inflammation around the eyes. Until further studies are conducted, Accutane should not be taken by pregnant women.

On page 1, WSMC was founded. Durf’s years at SC he earned B.A. from the University of Wisconsin and his Ph.D. in homemetrics from Michigan State University in 1983. Elder Hyde stated, “My old reason for coming back is that it was to be of help.”
Southern Cynic

by Laurie Loga

I can't believe it. I really can't believe it.

For the first time in decades, the SA officers of SC actually put everything on the line and stood in front of the entire student body last week and what happened? Some poor kids who obviously can't live without Captain Kangaroo and Sesame Street get into an argument over what to watch on TV.

That's pathetic. It's becoming very apparent to me that the lack of good movies this year is producing culturally deprived students. But what about the real problems that exist? There are several things that I can think of to worry about that were never even mentioned.

Is WSMC going religious? This is a fear which has nagged at the hearts of many. Since this station is known to be KZ106's biggest competitor, I believe this is probably just a rumor which is being circulated by the opposition. With WSMC's wildest decays, Jon Larrabee, sitting on the platform, I don't know how anyone could forget this important.

Was there any special reason why several cases of Tylenol capsules were found in Hickman Hall? Of course not. One of the teachers probably had an extra-strength headache from all the other and formaldehyde floating around.

Is the administration really looking into the possibilities of co-ed dorms? Hey, with the economy the way it is, everything is being explored. This is probably the best way to build up a lagging student body.

Is Taco Bell going to merge with the CK? This was an idea suggested by the SA itself after several freshmen tried to use their 1 D cards downtown. Some of the foods being considered are spicy bean shakes, lomitos supreme and Sam's chicken bellgrande's.

Cary Gregory is definitely the person to ask about this development as he's been to both places so often.

Will E. O. Grundset be featured on "Real People" any time this week? It must have been his Halloween costume; after all, impersonating a biology teacher was very original. This is another good question for those in the SA who are responsible for student entertainment.

Is it true that the Religion Department is putting out a pamphlet entitled "How to Operate a Ford"? Sounds a bit funny. I would think that the Industrial education people would handle something like that, but as some new ideas have been introduced to the religion teachers, I don't know.

Like I said, these are just a few of the many questions which I personally feel too worried about. Of course, if the SA officers can ever be persuaded to go through another grueling interrogation session, I plan on making a checklist with all of the really important issues on it. I'm going to get some of these issues cleared up once and for all. And after all, isn't that what the SA, voice of the student body, is for?

P.S. Yep, I'm the one who sent this in.

Colpoarte Club Meeting—This Tuesday evening (Nov. 9) at 5:30 p.m. in the Banquet Room at the cafeteria will have our next club meeting. Elder Bill Beckworth from the Florida Conference will be our guest speaker. Whoever brings the most people will receive a Desire of Ages. Bring your trax and join us.

Dear Scott D.,
Don't take advantage of the fact that I love you even though you never write or anything.

The Student Employment Office will be conducting a Resume Writing Workshop on Thursday, November 11 at 6:00 p.m. in the cafeteria banquet room. If you would like to learn how to write effective resumes—plan to attend!

The Student Employment Office will also be showing a series of videos on the "Campus Interview" on Tuesday, November 9 at 6:00 p.m. in the cafeteria banquet room. If you will be interviewing for a job soon, this will be of help to you.

The Chattanooga Balilt Guild will be sponsoring the Tennessee Festival Ballet in a matinee performance of "Piquita and Firebird" this Sunday, November 2 at 2 p.m. The performance will be held at the UCT-Roland Hayes Concert Hall. Tickets are available at Miliers and the UCT Fine Arts Center box office. Call 622-4082 for more information.

Attention Nursing Students:
If you have not read the "do-it-yourself excuse board" on Sylvia Spears' office window, be sure to stop by soon. This could save you a great deal of time in the future.

12/SOUTHERN ACCENT/November 4, 1982
Van Halen concert forbidden to SC students

Southern College received publicity on two area radio stations concerning a Van Halen concert held at the UTC Roundhouse in Chattanooga. The coverage concerned Chattanooga area colleges and prep schools which were discouraging their students from attending the heavy metal rock group. A disc jockey at KZ-106, Gary Jeff Walker, told the Southern Accent that several Southern College students called the station and said they were going to the Van Halen concert, regardless of any school policy. Walker said he did not mention Southern College's concert policy on the air, but he said that forbidding students to go to a concert is not right unless it is a basic policy of the school.

The Dean of Students office at Southern College did not take a formal stand on attending the Van Halen concert until November 7, the day of the concert. Signs were posted in both residence halls concerning the concert. "Notice--The Van Halen concert is off limits to all SC students. Disciplinary action will be taken if attended."

In a statement to the Southern Accent, Everett Schlizer said that the administration did not approve of students going to the Van Halen concert. "This is not a place for an Adventist Christian to be," Schlizer said. "We can, with a clear conscience, say 'This is off limits.'" He added that he would be looking for SC students before the concert began. Despite the threat of discipline, some Southern College students apparently went to the concert anyway. It was not known at press time if any Southern College students were caught at the concert. The Dean of Student's office refused to comment.

Development department solicits funds

In an attempt to keep tuition down while at the same time improving the facilities at Southern College, the Office of Development is working to solicit funds from both private and corporate sources.

Dr. Jack McClarty, director of development, listed several reasons for soliciting funds. The first and most important use for solicited funds is scholarships. The scholarship fund is invested, and the college uses the interest for the actual scholarship money. While the principal remains intact and continues to earn interest.

Donations collected by the development office are also used for improvement of campus facilities and the purchasing of equipment. The music building, which was completed in 1980, and the Humanities building currently under construction, have both been funded by corporate and private donations.

This year, private donors and at least 15 corporate foundations have donated a total of $628,630.52. The corporate donations are generally earmarked for specific purposes. "It is hard to find anyone who is interested in helping with operating expenses," explains McClarty. "That usually has to come from the church. Also, it is easier to solicit funds for some departments than it is for others." McClarty went on to say that while it is relatively easy to find donors for departments such as nursing, for example, where students are learning skills that will be directly useful to the donating foundation, it is much more difficult, he says, to solicit funds for departments such as Art or Home Economics.

Both private and corporate donors give in response to some kind of request by the Office of Development. Private donors are mainly alumni and members of the Southern Union, who receive the annual fund appeal. This year about 35,000 letters were sent out in a mass mailing, and according to McClarty, the response has been very good. "The alumni have been very generous," states McClarty. "We wish that students when they leave, would remember the school. It is appreciative alumni that keep this school going."

Corporate funds are solicited by proposals which are submitted to foundations by the development office each year. According to McClarty, about ten percent of those foundations who receive proposals respond to them. This is quite high on the national average.

While the immediate goal for the scholarship fund is to help the very needy, McClarty and the development office do have an ultimate goal in mind: first to stabilize the tuition and then, finally, to start lowering it. This, however, will not happen in the very near future and as McClarty says, "It will take a lot of concerns and commitment on the part of students, parents, alumni, and the church to put it together."
The Collegedale Syndrome

This past week, the Southern Accent printed a letter from a disgruntled Southern College student concerning the cafeteria. Stephen Morris told how he declined a job at the cafeteria because he did not want to work one Sabbath a month. Morris went on to tell how Southern Adventist College had a superior food service system by serving cold food on Sabbath thus keeping the cafeteria staff to a minimum. The Southern Accent printed this letter because the students need a forum to air their feelings and opinions regardless of the validity of their arguments.

But our story doesn't end here. Within three days of the Accent's publication the word was out that people were talking about the letter or article I had written concerning the food service here at Southern College.

As I reflect on this, I can see that this episode is just one more case of a disease which has infected almost all of Colledgade. This disease—The Colledgade Syndrome—has several distinct symptoms which I will try to describe.

First of all, some interesting 'news' must take place. This piece of information usually is of little consequence but serves as the culture for the disease to grow.

Secondly, community and college people must hear of the story. The story then grows and grows in size. The actors in this mini-drama may change names. The deeds or alleged crimes certainly must become more exciting so the tale can continue to grow bigger and bigger.

Finally, the virulent disease spreads to many people, affecting lives everywhere. And when the tale gets back to the originator of the deed, the story bears little resemblance of the truth.

Fortunately in my case, the disease was very mild. I could laugh off the incident as a case of mistaken identity and point to the fact that in the six years I lived at SAC, I had enjoyed many hot Sabbath meals at the SAC cafeteria.

But in many cases, the Colledgade Syndrome—gossip—is no laughing matter. Many innocent people have been damaged by thoughtless lies and innuendo's. In fact, many of the problems at Southern College can be traced to community people who were sure the theology department was corrupt and teaching heresy. They told half-truths and outright lies and the reputation of an outstanding institution was damaged.

Unless the Colledgade community and the Adventist church in general can come to grips with this real problem, the whole future of Christian education is in jeopardy.

Letters

Dear Editor,

In response to the letter concerning employment on Sabbath in the cafeteria, I would like to speak up. First of all, Sabbath is a special day when friends and family can get together to share and eat. It is a special time and with our busy schedules we deserve that time.

Secondly, working in the cafeteria once a month is not going to kill anyone or cause anyone to be lost. Is our management of the cafeteria going to change? It is the only way to stop the spread of lies and innuendos.

Edward Jones

Dear Editor,

As a former full time staff employee of the SMC Cafeteria I was not shocked, but somewhat surprised to read the article written by Mr. Morris (Cafeteria Vs The Sabbath Keeper). As a former member of the cafeteria staff, I can tell you that each staff member is a dedicated member of our church. Each member that works there on Sabbath is there because it is necessary for them to be there. The issue of keeping the Sabbath Holy, a rather touchy subject, I feel was blown out of proportion.

Nowhere in any of Mrs. White's writings is there a quote that tells us we should close our school cafeterias on Sabbath. Mrs. White is often quoted as saying things that are simply not in any of her writings, but are taken out of context to add credibility to a personal opinion. There is no practical way for over half of the students to find a way to eat other than in the cafeteria. Although I am sure the general public would appreciate Mr. Morris' suggestions of dining out at his home, I do not think that over half of the student body would accept this.

The Bible does not say that Christ was not to work on Friday, and unnecessary work on the Sabbath is eliminated. Each member on campus is doing a missionary service, teaching students to obey the Sabbath and the commandment of the Sabbath day.

Sincerely,

Cindy Torjesen

The Southern Accent is the official student newspaper of Southern College. The Accent is released each Thursday with the exception of vacation and exam weeks. Opinions expressed in letters reflect the opinions of the writers and do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the editors, Southern College, the Seventh-day Adventist church or the advertisers.
One that applauds them for making it possible for so many students to enjoy a lovely meal on Sabbath? I am sure you will not hear complaints from them. And by all means please investigate any future stories before writing them so I do not find it necessary to spend the day writing this or any other article, especially on my day off.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Jones

Former staff member of the cafeteria and proud of it.

Dear Editor:

As the wife of a Southern College faculty member, I feel compelled to respond to Stephen Morris' letter in your November 4 issue.

We invite a number of students to our home for Sabbath dinner nearly every week, not because they would be forced to fast if we did not, but because we enjoy sharing our home and dinner with them. However, though the bulk of the food preparation is done on Friday, I do find it is work to feed my family and guests. I enjoy it, but it is work nevertheless. I am not sure why it is acceptable for the ' Laird'. Mr. Morris' wife to serve college students on Sabbath but unacceptable for him to do so.

The cafeteria should be commended on their practice of using a minimum number of workers on Sabbath and scheduling in such a way that each server can be free all but one Sabbath a month.

Sincerely,

J. Jean Robertson

Student senate meets

Joseph Robertson (center) presides over the SA Senate. Terry Shaw is parliamentarian, and Cynthia Patterson is SA secretary.

Joseph Robertson, Student Association Vice President and chairman of the Student Senate, called the fourth Senate meeting of the semester to order Monday evening. Senator Reg Rice began the meeting with a devotional selection from Living God's Love. Parliamentary Terry Shaw passed out results from a constitution examination which was given to the senators at the previous meeting. All senators were required to get at least 60 percent on the examination. Michael Palsgrove was the only senator that obtained a perfect paper.

A Senate project that consisted of the possibility of placing a drinking fountain by the tennis courts was proposed by Senator J. T. Shim. Decisions concerning this project and others will be made by the Senate's Project Committee.

Senator Kenneth Bradley presented a "Dead-week" resolution to the Senate, which involved restrictions of teachers giving tests the week before final examinations.

Concerning the upcoming banquet, Chairman Joseph Robertson pleaded for volunteers to help the Decorations Committee. Prior to adjournment, Senator Glen McElroy also asked for the help of volunteers to cut down a large Christmas tree at 8 a.m. Sunday.

MEN'S OPEN HOUSE WAS A KNOCKOUT! Sheri Kelly, Vivian Visser, Arlene Brown, Wendy Cantrell, Susan Smith, and Jeanette Heyde admire the punching bag and Accent photographer, Doug Malin. Many of the men's rooms were not open for inspection, but those that were opened were "fixed really neat," commented one female visitor.

Is the late leave system discriminatory?

We hear the comment frequently that late leaves are hard to get in Thatcher Hall. If you are to see the late leave bulletin board in the main dorm and not sign out sheet in the Annex, I think you would question this comment as much as the deans do.

The policy in the Thatcher Annex is a bit more liberal than the main dorm because of the maturity of the residents there. Door lock is at 11 p.m. every night, and one automatic late leave until midnight per week is granted. Any additional late leaves must be obtained by permission from the dean on duty.

Weber Field-Stop, the popular "Stars and Stripes Forever" and "Russian Christmas Music," an extremely difficult combination of the ancient American carol "Carol of the Little Russian Children" with some original material and some ancient liturgical themes. The Southern College College, directed by Dr. Don Runyan, took a tour the last weekend of October to Augusta and Savannah, Georgia; Jacksonville, Florida; and Columbia, South Carolina. This tour was unique in its wide range of repertoire and the quality of performances. In addition to the main concert at Little Rock College, there were also performances at Florida State University, University of Georgia, and University of South Carolina. The tour was a huge success, and the students were able to experience different styles of music and gain valuable experience.

WSMC sponsors contest

WSMC-FM (90.5) in College, College is sponsoring a Christmas in Poetry Contest for people of all ages. Twelve winners will receive various cash prizes and be allowed to read their poems on the air. The poems, which must be 4 to 14 lines long, will be judged in three age categories. The categories are those written by persons: 12 years of age and under, 13 to 18 years of age and over 18 years of age. A winner and three runners up will be chosen from each category. Each top winner will receive a prize of fifty dollars. Each runner up will receive a ten dollar cash prize. The poems will be read on the air and the winners may read their own. Those interested in the contest should send ONE poem about any aspect of Christmas (typed or printed) to CHRISTMAS IN POETRY, P.O. Box 870, College, TN, zip code 37315. All poems must be original and must be postmarked no later than Dec. 5, 1982, as the judging will take place on Dec. 9, 1982. Each entry must include name, age and phone number of the author.

For more information call WSMC at 396-2320.

Music groups tour Southern Union

Recently weekend tours were taken by several of Southern College's music groups. On the weekend of November 5 and 6 the Southern College Concert Band, under the direction of Patricia Silver, took a tour which included sacred and secular performances at Madison Academy, Highland Academy, and College Deans Church. Among the numbers in the sacred repertoire were "Goin' to Be Happy," a dramatic work featuring the percussion section; "A Sacred Suite," composed of special arrangements of well-known tunes such as "Sweet Hour of Prayer," "O'Nord Christian Soldiers" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and two numbers by the brass ensemble: "Pax and Galliard" and "Like a River Glorious."

The secular concert included "The Broadway Show-Stoppers Overture," the popular "Stars and Stripes Forever," "Russian Christmas Music," an extremely difficult combination of the ancient Christmas carol "Carol of the Little Russian Children" with some original material and some ancient liturgical themes. The Southern College College, directed by Dr. Don Runyan, took a tour the last weekend of October to Augusta and Savannah, Georgia; Jacksonville, Florida; and Columbia, South Carolina. This tour was unique in that it was entirely student-directed. Student directors were Evan Chesney, Sydney Whiting, and the group's pianist, and Scott Aycock, all senior music majors. Dr. Runyan commented on the concert, saying "It was a typical first tour of the year; first tours always draw the group closer together and make them work more as a unit." Dr. and Mrs. McCarty also accompanied the group on tour. Mrs. McCarty narrated both sacred and secular concerts. The concerts provided entertainment for Little Rock College's Fall Banquet on November 7. Selections included "Scarborough Fair," "Banjo Medley," and "Toot-Toot-Tootle."

Also performing at the banquet were Cynthia Patterson playing a harp solo and Jennie Frying with a violin solo.

A Symphony tour is scheduled for this weekend, November 12 and 13, to include concerts at Avon Park Church and Forest Lake Academy. The group will leave at 10 p.m. Thursday and travel all night so that Friday can be spent either at the beach or Cypress Gardens. Soloists on the tour will be Jennie Frying and Brenda Smidt, Linda Im, a former violinist, who is currently in Orlando, will be joining the symphony for the concert at Forest Lake.

The Symphony was invited to perform at Disney World, but had to decline the offer because the concert was to be on Friday night.

I also hate people who try to discriminate against themselves.

Student: “Why do they make us go to church? I mean even God doesn’t make us go to church, does he?”
Bietz: “Are you talking about the fact that they make you sign up to go to church?”
Student: “Yes, I mean we are mature adults and don’t need that kind of supervision. Of course I would no doubt attend church even if the rule was not there.”
Bietz: “You mean you would go to church even if the rule was not there?”
Student: “Exactly, most of the time I would go anyway. What bugs me about it is that it is required, God’s kingdom is not a kingdom of force.”

Of course, I would probably go anyway but the fact that it is required makes me want to show them that I can ditch out without them knowing.”
Bietz: “Well, if that is the case with you, why don’t you just go ahead and ignore the rule that you are supposed to go to church.”
Student: “What do you mean ignore it?”
Bietz: “Just what I said, that rule is not for you.”
Student: “You mean it does not apply to me?”
Bietz: “That is right.”
Student: “Would you be willing to tell me that?”
Bietz: “If you are going to go to church anyway I see no reason for me to tell the teachers.”
Student: “Well that is not the point, the rule does apply to me and it bugs me to think that I have to go.”
Bietz: “But you would go even if you weren’t required to.”
Student: “Yes!”
Bietz: “Well then ignore the rule—it wasn’t written for you.”
Student: “I don’t like the extra restrictions.”
Bietz: “It is not a restriction for you—you went anyway.”

Student: “But it is dumb.”
Bietz: “Dumb for maybe. Let me illustrate this way: Did you know that there is a law in this state that I can’t beat my children or my wife?”
Student: “I would assume that there was such a law.”
Bietz: “Well that law really bugs me. I mean not that I would want to do it, you understand, but every morning I wake up and there is that restriction hanging over me. I don’t like extra restrictions.”
Student: “But that is not the same.”
Bietz: “True. The only thing that is the same is something of the same, but it is the same idea.”

Why should a rule that I should go to church bother me if I plan to go to church anyway?”

Student: “Well, I have this friend who really don’t want to go to church. He says the Sabbath is a day of rest for him and he needs to get all the rules out of the way for the new week. Church just breaks into his rest, he doesn’t believe religion should be forced.”
Bietz: “Well, let’s make a distinction here—religion is not being forced—only church services.”

Student: “Same difference!”
Bietz: “Not at all—there is a vast difference. What is being done is providing an opportunity, the Lord can’t bless a sermon that you don’t hear.”
Student: “God is a God of free choice—my friend should have free choice about church attendance.”

Bietz: “Would your friend put a fence around a cliff?”
Student: “What do you mean?”
Bietz: “If your friend had property with a cliff behind his home and let’s say he also had a small child. Would he put a fence around the cliff to protect his child?”
Student: “That is different—we are not small children!”
Bietz: “True, but in the context of a Christian school established for Christian education freedom is earned and I don’t think your friend has earned it.”
Student: “Well I think it is treating us like babies.”
Bietz: “Who?”
Student: “My friend is being treated like a baby. Like I said I would not go out to church even if they didn’t have the rule.”
Bietz: “Ok, now this friend of yours—why did he come to this school?”
Student: “Come on, I know that argument! You chose to come here and know the rules so if you don’t like it go somewhere else.”

How to accept others

by David Mele

To accept someone in reality is genuinely, totally, and humbly to receive that person as he is; to resist the urge to control or manipulate him; and to give him respect as a person, even when he may do something we don’t agree with. Acceptance implies the willingness to listen to others when we would rather change them, and to respect their freedom of choice when we would rather convince them to do "our way.""}

Think back to the last time a person challenged your opinion. Recall the most recent disagreement you had with a relative or friend. Examine your attitude the last time there was a real disagreement in your Sabbath school class. How well did you accept the other person? One of Jesus’ most commanding qualities was His ability to accept people—and He changed lives. The woman at the well, a Samaritan five times divorced and at the time that she gave Him respect as the "living water" because Jesus accepted her as a person and talked to her (see John 4:5-12). Are you aware of your feelings so you can share them and resolve them quickly rather than have your emotions control you? Can you recognize when you are angry, anxious, happy, confused, or hurt? Can you accept and deal with that feeling constructively? Defining the emotional part of yourself ends with your emotional responsiveness to others. The second step to accepting a person is to empathize with him—to participate in his feelings or ideas, to stand in his shoes. This will require genuine openness toward his feelings and concerns in a way the other person will understand. If your teen-age son comes home later than he should, it would not be effective to begin a health-education talk on the need for adequate rest or sleep. It might be more useful to say that you were afraid that something had gone wrong and that you needed to talk about it, either immediately or when you both cooled off. If another member of your church becomes threatened by a new idea for evangelism or a different theological understanding, it would not be helpful to bombard him with elaborate explanations or proof texts. It might be more useful to explore your concerns together and let him know that you share his love of the church, as well as concern for truth.

Communication involves more than simply declaring your feelings and opinions. It means willingness to discover and know the other person and to take time to exchange feelings and respect his opinions. Acceptance does not mean automatically agreeing with everything the other person says. As Christians claim the self-respect God offers through His acceptance and forgiveness of us, we can know we are His son or daughter, a part of the body of Christ. Christians want to discover their talents and assert themselves for who they are, not for who they think they should be someday. Imagine your church filled with members practicing genuine empathy and communication with one another, their family members, and companions at work. What would be the impact, both inside and outside the church, for bridging generation gaps, removing barriers, eliminating differences, and the ultimate gap—separation from God.

New classes added

This new literature emphasizes the great trend in our society today to return to the simple life. Students are demanding that we get back to basics. (SMC became 'SC' so 'SDA' became 'SA'—it's called equal opportunity). SC of SA will be offering many courses for the first time to persons who need them—freshpersons.

A sample of courses to be offered:

FRSH 099 ORIENTATION
0.01 hour
Required of all freshpersons and transfer students. Course will enable new students to find Wright Hall.

FRSH 100 LIFE PLANNING & ADJUSTMENT
34.14 hours
Designed for those who need technical assistance in adjusting their TV & FM antennas, electronic watches, etc. to adequately cope with college life in these environments. Also for anybody with difficulty adjusting to four hours of sleep per night.

PEAC 000.001 INTRODUCTION TO BEGINNING SWIMMING
3 hours
This course cannot be crammed. Prepares the uninitiated individual who has never seen water to take Beginning Swimming. Prerequisite: Commences with walking through a humid room and concludes with successfully navigating a kiddie pool filled at least two inches deep. Great self-confidence builder.

PEAC 100.9 ELEMENTARY BREATHING aka AEROBICS
Since without air there is no life we teach you how to get an adequate supply of oxygen to all parts of the body. A major part of the course will be devoted to gazing to modern music. Due to the very real possibility of failure, life insurance is required—payable to SC.

SECR 0.25 FUNDAMENTALS OF INTRODUCTION TO BEGINNING BASIC TYPING—I
For students with absolutely no previous training. To pass, students will be required to type "A" in "Z." Fifteen minute limit.

BIOI 001 INTRODUCTION TO COEXISTENCE WITH ROACHES
1 second
Required of students with composite ACT scores of 4 or lower. Course objective: to bring all individuals to the grim realization that ABSOLUTELY NOTHING works.

BIOI 999 MATE SELECTION
4 years
Though the name of the college has been changed, our function, aims, and objectives have not. Realizing the significance of mating on the individual's career we wish to make the right choice. Everybody will be coupled by the end of the course, or be taught how to effectively pretend that he/she/it is exercising his/her/its option not to choose. NO PDA.

Discrimination in any way, shape or form has been outlawed. (Title IX.) (The generic term "freshperson" has been substituted for the sex-slanted "freshman"). Since the antiquated practice of differentiating sexes by shape and form has been banned we have been forced into a CDS, aka Coeducational Dormitory Situation. Coed means that we learn together. This is not a new concept in learning and its inception here is by no means a reflection of our growing liberalism.

Come to Southern College of Seventh Adventist where we welcome you with open arms.

Word processing--what is it?

by Leanne Parandus

Ask most people what word processing is, and, more than likely, answers will be given such as "Doesn't it have something to do with secretarial work?" "Is it some type of computer?" or "I don't have the faintest idea." A relatively new field of business that only began in the early 1960's, word processing is the use of computer technology to enter, edit, and prepare draft and final output documents for an organization in the most efficient and economical way. Southern College's own Word Processing Center is doing just that!

According to Mrs. Evonne Richards, Word Processing Director, "The Word Processing Center is now equipped to give very efficient and versatile service." This year's addition of a second computer terminal and last year's acquisition of quality printer has enabled the department to more easily enter and store into the computer and retrieve 3000 documents such as letters, book manuscripts, and resumes and then quickly reproduce them in excellent quality.

Located in Wright Hall and in its fourth year of operation, the department has been busy in the office of the academic dean when an IBM Mag Card typewriter was leased for use by the administration and in the training of secretarial students. It offered the feature of being able to correct mistakes by backing up, which made errors and the material being typed was automatically recorded on magnetic cards. The material could then be almost error-free at speeds of 180 words per minute. Although the Mag Card typewriter had unlimited external storage, the use of magnetic cards became rather expensive as usage increased, and the search began for new equipment.

According to Mrs. Richards, who was then secretary to the academic dean, Dr. Fitcher, "The administration gave the word processing department a go-ahead in 1979 to start a word processing center." The following year an Olivetti 401 was rented to the department for the IBM Mag Card typewriter, and a computer terminal was obtained. The Olivetti recorded on small discs, which made editing and revising much easier, could reproduce stored data at a rate of 350 words per minute, which was almost twice the speed of the IBM Mag Card, and could merge a list of information, such as addresses, with a particular document, such as a letter.

After the evaluation of many different types of word processing equipment and software packages, Mrs. Richards and Mr. John Beckett, director of Computer Services, a Diablo quality printer was purchased last year, and because of continued interest in evaluating word processing equipment, Mrs. Richards has chosen this area of research for her doctoral dissertation.

The Word Processing Center's recent project was the 400-page Self-Study Report for Southern College that was done last year. Another project geared more for the faculty and students includes the printing of letters using different names and addresses. Tests are also printed for teachers who have a test back on questions on the computer. After the initial data entry, tests are run by quality documents personnel, and a master file, and an answer key is also printed automatically. The department has computer address files for all conference presidents, ministerial secretaries, and educational secretaries, in addition to a complete list of SC faculty, which can be used for letters, resumes, envelopes, and labels. Articles and book manuscripts are also done by the center using the printing of letters using different names and addresses. ### NOVEMBER IS . . . .

The landscape gradually turning into mellow browns and briges with rain showers quickly defoliating trees and leaving their stark branches silhouetted against the autumn sky;

Crisp frosty mornings and cold nights giving everyone a chance to wear those bulky sweaters and quilted jackets that were purchased at those back-to-school sales in the last sweltering days of August;

Teachers suddenly realizing that there are only about four weeks of classes left in this semester and wondering just how to revise their schedules so as to include the "essentials" and equally distraught students trying vainly to beat those "before vacation" deadlines (suddenly "everything" is due);

Thanksgiving and pleasant thoughts of home (pumpkin pie, cranberries, mashed potatoes, and other mouth-watering goodies, watching parades, shopping, sleeping late, and just relaxing);

Elections, conventions, seminars, a plethora of committee meetings, and workshops;

Milkweed pods, acorns, sweet gum balls, hickory nuts, Indian corn, and sumac berries, stacks of cord wood, with Christmas right around the corner!

Orlando update

by Donna Dorico

Halloween has come and gone in Orlando, Florida. October 31 saw several hundred Adventists meet at Buster's Barn for the annual barn party. There was a sacred program to close the Sabbath and then a secular program followed with hot chocolate, apple cider, and doughnuts. Everyone was encouraged to bring an old blanket and come and have fun. It was a lively evening of singing, accompanied by guitars, banjos, and a fiddle. A few of the main entertainers were Steve Martin, David Rose, Rick Maco, and the Cress Trio.

This week was Week of Prayer. Jim Herman spoke on the call of Abraham stressing that we, like Abraham, can do God's will and "know beyond a shadow of a doubt." He said that Abraham held to God's will and there is "no happier place to be than where God wants you to be." Many of the students enjoyed talking with Elder Herman after the meetings and during the day.

November 7 held excitement for several nursing students. Mike Wykoff, the SA president for the Orlando campus, obtained tickets for the dinner theater "Once Upon A Stage." This was a formal evening with live entertainment presented by Rogers and Hammerstein's "The King and I," a play based on Anna and the King of Siam by Margaret Landis. A buffet dinner was also served.

Christmas tree to be imported

by E. O. Grundset

As everyone has noticed, a beautiful tree was transplanted in the center of the mall in front of Wright Hall. This was done about a year ago with the intent that it would serve as the yearly campus Christmas tree. This it shall be; however, Mr. Lacey, grounds superintendent, and others feel that it is just a little too short to use this year, and that it needs some more time to become "established". So . . . . this Friday a taller cedar tree will be brought in (from north of Okeechobee) and set up by the SC Engineering Dept. in the space adjacent to this smaller permanent tree. The fights will be strung and a star placed atop this temporary tree during the following week so that all will be in readiness for the Tree Lighting Ceremonies on Tuesday, Nov. 30.

This situation of having two trees will present a strange (possibly weird) sight when viewed from Wright Hall and will elicit various and sundry critical remarks no doubt—but so be it! Actually when viewed from Camp Road, the shopping center, the dorms and other vantage points the lighter tree will appear quite "normal". Let's just call this the two-tree Christmas . . . until next year we'll begin using the permanent tree.

Change One worked. They came natural special the flow mentally imperiled restoring the natural water flow to the heavily diked Everglades, which has been impaired by a change in water flow that has led to the death of 90 percent of the area birds. "We have lost or are losing Everglades National Park," adds environmentalist Art Marshall, who believes that the key to saving the environmentally sensitive region is by returning it to a semblance of its original state.

A plan favored by Jack Morehead, Everglades National Park Superintendent, hinges on a program to restrict development in the eastern Everglades and calls for doubling the park's guaranteed annual water supply, which is 102 billion gallons a year.

Before the advent of drainage, the Everglades, or "water season," flowed into the 5668-square-mile park across a 20-mile-wide depression called Shark River Slough and the smaller Taylor Slough. Most of the water now enters through a gate opening an eight-mile stretch of canal along the Tamiami Trail (US 41).

"The park must have water based more on natural events," said Morehead. "Any time of wet or flood or rain or drought, we can take that. That's the natural cycle. But the animals aren't adapted to a man-made cycle."

The Everglades problem stems from a decision years ago to alter the water flow to enable people to grow crops during droughts and keep dry during floods.

But while the plan helped man, it hurt birds living in the area.

Morehead said more than 90 percent of the birds died, and fishermen in northeastern Florida Bay say the man-controlled flow change also upset marine life because the balance of fresh and salt water shifted.

Also agreeing with the idea of restoring the Everglades to its natural water sheet flow is Johnny Jones, executive director of the Florida Wildlife Federation. "There isn't but one way to fix it. Put it back the way the good Lord made it."

The drawing included in this article is the Everglades (snail) Kite, Rostrahamus sociabilis, which is only one of many species affected by the Water Management Act. It is so threatened as to be added to the endangered species list. The change of water flow affects the growth and reproduction of the bird's only food supply, the Apple Snail. The last census shows the number of Snail Kites is very low compared to previous counts of its population. The 1993 count revealed about 100 or so birds remaining.

Student missionaries speak out

Never have I felt such purpose and meaning in life as when I came out to the mission field. Being here in Indonesia has brought me closer to Jesus in a very real and special way. Also I have felt a special closeness with my two Christian brothers with me here in Bandung. Oh sure, I have experienced homesickness and culture shock, but through it all God has used these trials to bring me closer to Him.

And yes, interesting things do happen to us. One day I almost fell through the ceiling trying to repair a leaky roof.

My angel must have been on red alert because I didn't fall all the way through! Also, how would you like to live 100 km. away from a volcano that erupts every week? One day Paul and I were covered with volcanic ash as we rode through downtown Bandung. The sky reminded me of the Dark Day! The reason I like being here the best is because of my friends students. I get excited seeing them respond in Bible class. This week we started studying "My Teacher" of some gelastic meetings. I am excited about sharing the precious love of my Saviour.

The Victors released

Origins matter little to God. What is of consequence is the new birth and what one does with the God given life. In The Victors, a new release from Pacific Press Publishing Association, Dr. Leslie Hardinge traces the lives of 13 Bible characters—both men and women—and shows how God helped them triumph through suffering. They were mostly common folk and comparatively unimportant in their country, yet each became a victor through his consecration to God. Hardinge, president and dean of the Seventh-day Adventist seminary in the Philippines, demonstrates through the characters in this 128-page book that position, fame or noble birth matter little to God. Possessing emotions, ambitions, sins and weaknesses—the same as is found today—each was able to triumph through God and become a victor.

"What God did in Bible times, He can still do today," says Hardinge, a well-known teacher and pastor in Adventist circles.

This is the sixth published work for Hardinge, who has been an employee of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination for nearly 50 years. Prior to his current assignment at Philippine Union College, Hardinge was director of Spirit of Prophecy Seminars for the Southern California Conference. He has taught religion at five Seventh-day Adventist colleges and has lectured extensively on Biblical topics in Europe and throughout North America.

The Victors is part of Pacific Press's Anchor series and is now available at all Adventist Book Centers.
Requirements for M.Div. changed at Andrews

Several changes have taken place in the last few months at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary (Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan). The Seminary is attended by students who have already completed a baccalaureate degree. It offers programs leading to the Master of Divinity, the Master of Theology, the Doctor of Ministry and the Doctor of Philosophy in Religion (or Doctor of Theology) degrees. Out of 388 students registered this year, more than 300 are in the Master of Divinity (M.Div.) program. This is the basic Seminary program intended to prepare ministers for the SDA Church in North America. The recent changes in admission and tuition apply exclusively to the Master of Divinity program.

Students who want to enter the M.Div. program must apply before February 26.

Acceptances will be sent out not later than April 15. Application materials can be obtained by writing to the Office of Admissions, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan 49104 (or calling, toll free, 800-253-2874 or 800-632-2248 in Michigan). Classes for first-year students will begin in September, with the Fall quarter. However, students who have a bachelor's degree but who have not taken all the required pre-Seminary courses, must attend the Summer quarter in order to clear their deficiencies before they can register for the M.Div. program in September. (Students can not begin their M.Div. program in the Winter or Spring quarters.) Information on pre-Seminary requirements can also be obtained from the Office of Admissions. The general GPA required for Seminary admission is 2.50. A recent decision of the General Conference changes the cost of tuition for M.Div. students. Instead of paying $1,545 per quarter in tuition for a full load of 15 credits, the student pays only a quarterly registration fee of $275. Each M.Div. student pays the same, whether the course load per quarter is 1 or 15 credits. The only limitation is that all credits have to be taken in the Seminary in the Master of Divinity program.

Spouses of regular Seminary students (including doctoral students), who qualify academically, will have the opportunity, beginning with the Winter quarter of 1983, of taking up to nine hours of Seminary credit per quarter paying the nominal fee of only $15 per credit. Besides, all spouses of seminarians are encouraged to audit one class per quarter, at no cost. The only limitation in both cases is the availability of space in the classroom.

Italian Prime Minister (Giovanni) Spadolini announced that Italy will purchase more than $1 billion worth of U.S. aircraft if the U.S. lifts trade sanctions against Italian firms helping to construct the Soviet natural gas pipeline. Spadolini told President Reagan that the government-owned airline, Alitalia, will purchase 30 McDonnell-Douglas DC-9's worth over $1 billion "once the commercial situation is normalized between the two countries." The Italian leader claimed that "A solution is very near."

Iran Launched a second invasion into Iraq Sunday, pushing the Iraq's back six miles in a drive aimed at the capital of Baghdad, 170 miles to the northwest. The invasion, announced by Iranian leader Hashemi Rafsanjani, was the first one in four months.

NOW IS THE TIME FOR HEROES.
The 1982 Flag football season came to an end last week with Greve, Arias, Mixon, and Giebell all clinching division crowns. In A League Rick Greve's team suffered its only defeat of the season, to Durby in a game marked by interceptions and great defensive plays. Durby managed to contain flashy Hank Greenwood for most of the game—possibly being the key to his success. However, Greve clinched first place Thursday night with a 31-6 victory over Manzella.

Both B League divisions came down to the wire with Mixon clinching first place in the East with a 33-13 win over King. Montiperto managed second and a 5-3 record by defeating Lonto 39-34. In the West division Giebell and Bryant met for the championship, with Giebell emerging a one point 26-25 victor, giving himself first place and a half game lead over Dickerhoff. Beth Arias won the Women's League for the second year in a row completing the season with only one tie blemishing her record. She defeated McKee to insure first place by a 25-6 margin, leaving McKee alone in second place with a 5-3 record.

I received a rather long-distance call the other day. It was Mrs. Class. "Nick has some pretty bad pre-Christmas blues this year," she said. "Can you come over and see what you can do?"

In a little bit I was sauntering into the toy-strewn living room of the Class' house. "Hey," I said, "I haven't seen you since you got sunburned in Florida.

"He gained. "I heard you weren't in the spirit of things."

"Hamburger!" he groused. "At least Nick, what's on your mind?"

"Tell me what's on my mind!" he roared. "We're 3 months behind in production! Those idiot elves spend every minute at the arcade playing 'Pac-Man,' and when I try to discipline them, they throw a fit with union action. I should clip their ears."

"Calm down, Santa. Is that all?"

"That's just the start!" he spat-red. "Reignomes forced me to cut out two deer, and a reinholen on my sled is killing me. You know how much brake fluid that thing eats?"

"Look, Nick," I soothed. "You shouldn't be such a cynic."

"Look who's talking," he snipped.

"Watch it," I said. "That was below the belt."

Oh brother, I thought. It's almost Christmas season and Santa Claus is a wreck. Maybe I should cheer him up. "Hey, I've got a joke for you," I said. "What's fat and red, and ho-ho's in the garden?"

"You want a punch in the nose?"

"Sorry, just trying to cheer you up."

"It's kinda hard to feel cheery," he said, "when you get stilled twenty bucks for insurance by your school. I only come once a year."

"Maybe they feel you might fall off the fire truck," I suggested.

"What could happen?" he sputtered. "Now that I'm wearing this dastardly helmet so I won't get pulled over, I should be well prepared to visit Collegedale."

Poor Santa, I thought. He was really getting a raw deal this year. I looked my old friend over, sitting in his old armchair with that silly helmet. The beard was there, and so were the red cheeks, but he seemed—thinna?"

"Hello! You lost weight!"

"That's right," said Nick. "Forty pounds. I started watching the little weird guy, Richard Simmons."

"But Nick!" I gasped. "Santa can't be skinny!"

"He's had an operation."

"How would you like to be called a 'bawful of jelly' all of your life? Besides, they don't build chimneys as big as they used to," he sighed. "Christmas. It's the same old drudgery for me. I dodge the '74's while everyone watches Frosty the Snowoak, or that dumb Grinch. I'm just not up to it. Even my mailbag's letting me down." He thrust a letter at me.

"Here, read this:"—Dear Santa, you promised me that book 'How to Win Friends and Influence People' would work. Well, it didn't. I hope the North Pole mole. Sincerely, Dean Schlemmer."

"Yes, I see," I remarked. "But you gotta know this guy."

"Here's another," said Santa, busy poring through piles of letters—Dear Comrade in Bed, I have invaded no countries this year. You've been with US Defense Plans. Your future friend and neighbor, Leonard B."

"How about you, Vic? Anything you'd like?"

"Well, my school bill's kinda high..."

He cut me off short. "Do I look like a millionaire?"

By now, I thought Nick had mellowed somewhat. He always had the November fillers.

"Listen Santa. I have to be getting back to Collegedale. I just want you to know everything's go to go like clockwork."

"No way," I said. "Don't you want another what he did on the living room carpet?"

"Oh, I forgot," blushed Santa. "Well, Merry Christmas, Vic."

"Merry Christmas, Nick. Fly safe."

Talge Hall basement evacuated

by Leonie Farciadus

An eviction notice was given to the basement residents of Talge Hall on Thursday, November 11, 1982, due to a "nit-picky" inspection made by the state fire marshall on Wednesday, according to Ted Evans, Dean of Men. All 20 residents involved were to be moved out of their rooms completely by midnight or immediate action would be taken by the officials.

The inspection, the first made by the state in nine years and by the Collegedale Fire Department in five years, was made soon after a complaint was received from someone that the building was not in accordance with fire codes and was hazardous. The complaint was prompted by the lack of proper exit lights over the doors of the dorm one night six weeks ago when the electricity on campus was off for a few hours.

Deficiencies found in the basement by the officials were no fire exits since the hallway was supposedly over 300 feet long, no exit lights, no sprinkler system since it is under ground, and inadequate stoppage for avenues of smoke such as the trash and laundry shoots. However, some of this is disclaimed by the deans and college administration as being false. The hallway was measured by one of the deans and was said to be 260 feet long. The bulbs in the exit signs had merely burnt out and were in the process of being changed. "We are constantly changing the bulbs," stated Dean Evans.

"Last year we put brand new ones in, left them on 24 hours a day, and they lasted two days."

Another discrepancy cited was the fire marshall's contentions that the basement rooms were added after Talge Hall was built and occupied in 1961. Although there is no proof as of yet, the administration believes this deniable just from the fact that all the bathroom tile, cabinetry, mirrors, door panels, drawer knobs, etc. in the rooms are exactly the same as that found in the rooms of the rest of the dorm. This would be most unlikely as the halls been

Fairyland Club hosts Holiday banquet

The Student Association held its annual Holiday Banquet on November 14 at the Fairyland Club atop Lookout Mountain. About 160 couples attended the festivities. While waiting for the dinner and program to start, couples wandered through the elegant club, enjoying cold drinks and a breath-taking view of Chattanooga at night. When the program began, Patti Stone welcomed the guests and thanked various people and the social committee for all its hard work. Glen McElroy, a major person involved with the decorations, offered the blessing. The dinner began with salad and rolls, then continued with baked potato, mushroom and spinach quiche, and ended with coconut pie.

Denny Nooner and Terry Shaw entertained the guests with jokes, songs, and stories, in between introducing each number on the program. Sandra Schluhan sang "What Child Is This?" accompanied by a string quartet. Mark Hamenik and Joanna Powell sang a duet of the popular song "Up Where We Belong". Dana Reed put everything into his version of "Just Once". Mike McClung and David Butler played an instrumental selection, "Time In A Bottle" and Cary Gregory rounded off the evening's musical entertainment with "Somewhere Down The Road".

A film, based on the classic novel "Wuthering Heights", and starring Lawrence Oliver, was shown and ended the evening. Overall response to the banquet was excellent. "I really enjoyed the food and the program," one student commented. Another added, "It was one of the best banquets I've ever been to."

Many of the participants agreed with one SC student who stated, "I wish they had discovered the Fairyland Club before!"

Search committee formed

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees voted on November 4 to set up a Search Committee to select a new President for Southern College. SC's current President, Dr. Frank Knittel, will be taking a 14 month sabatical, starting June 1, 1983. The first meeting of the Search Committee will be held on December 1, 1982. The committee's responsibility will be to submit 3 to 5 names to the Board of Trustees for consideration.

Dr. Knittel felt that the Search Committee will broaden the spectrum of potential candidates. "Under the circumstances, it is necessary," Knittel said, "otherwise the Board would not have formed the committee."

Besides the committee, Southern College's Board Chairman, Al McClure, was on campus on November 10 to
All things work together for good -- even love

My dearest,

Everyone longs to give themselves completely to someone, to have a deep soul relationship with another, to be loved thoroughly and exclusively. But God, to a Christian, says no, not until you are satisfied and fulfilled and content with being loved by me alone, with giving yourself totally and unreservedly to me to have a soul relationship with another, to be loved thoroughly and exclusively. I love you my child, and until you discover that only in me is your satisfaction to be found, you will not be capable of the perfect human relationship that I have planned for you. You will never be united with another until you are united with me, exclusive of any other desires or longings. I want you to stop planning, stop wishing, and allow me to give you the most thrilling plan existing--one that you cannot imagine. I want you to have the best. Please allow me to bring it to you. You keep watching me, expecting the greatest things. Keep that satisfaction knowing that I AM. Keep learning and listening to the things I tell you and you must wait. Don't be anxious and don't worry. Don't look around at the things others have gotten or that I have given them. Don't look at the things you think you want. Just keep looking off and away up to me and you'll miss what I have to show you. And then, when you're ready, I'll surprise you with a love far more wonderful than you ever dreamed. You see, until you are ready and until the one I have for you is ready, (I'm working right this minute to have both of you ready at the same time) and until you are both satisfied exclusively with me and the life I have prepared for you, you won't be able to experience the love that exemplifies your relationship with me, and this is the greatest and most perfect LOVE.

And my dearest one, I want you to have this most wonderful love. I want you to see in the flesh a picture of your relationship with me and enjoy materially and concretely the everlasting union of beauty and perfection and love that I offer you with myself. I love you most tenderly. I AM God Almighty. LOVE AND BE SATISFIED.

Your Heavenly Father

The Southern Accent is the official student newspaper of Southern College. It is released each Thursday with the exception of vacations and holidays. Opinions expressed in letters and by-lined articles are those of the writers, Southern College, the Seventh-day Adventist church or the advertisers.

Dear Editor:
In response to your editorial of last week, "The College-Syndrome," I feel compelled to reply. Several statements made were erroneous and you have labeled me as "disgruntled," which is not good journalism.

I mentioned no one by name in my letter (an example which you chose to ignore) and only suggested some possible alternatives to a paradoxical situation existing on campus. I did not pass judgment on anyone and did not condemn anyone in my letter. Rather I pointed out a problem and some possible solutions.

Your editorial, however, was written on a somewhat lower level. Even though the basic thrust of your editorial seemed to be speaking out against the exaggeration of reports and spreading of gossip in college, you chose to mention me by name twice (instead of merely referring to my letter and even chose to call me "disgruntled," not a complimentary term in any language).

This type of labeling might be expected someplace else, but it is not the best policy to follow here at SC. May I suggest The Christian As A Journalist by Richard T. Baker as a primer to developing sound journalism ethics?

Secondly, I did not say that SAC's food service system was superior to that of SC. I only mentioned their method of handling the Sabbath meal situation as one possible solution to the problem. This is the way that it was done at SAC only two years ago when I was there. Also, I have talked to students from other colleges, and I understand that it is also done this way at Walla Walla.

The fact that you "enjoyed many hot Sabbath meals" while at SAC (when?) only adds to my argument that if so many community folks did not eat at the cafeteria on Sabbath, and in fact invited a student to their home for Sabbath dinner, it would help the situation greatly.

I expected the type of letters that responded to mine, which exhibited a lack of thorough reading and understanding of my letter and for that reason deserve no response. I did not however, expect the unethical and unprofessional labeling, innuendo, and exaggeration (the College-Syndrome) of my letter which were included in your editorial.

Certainly a student and/or student group may expect other students and possibly even former employees and wives of faculty members to disagree with a stand he has taken or opinion on just about any subject. However, when a student must consider whether or not the editor of the paper will exercise his editorial authority in the next issue and call the student "disgruntled" it is another equally offensive and libelous adjective. When voicing his opinion on a particular subject, it tends to discourage the free exchange of opinions.

You're right. The College-Syndrome is no laughing matter. Even as Christians we sometimes find it difficult to control our tongues (see James Chapter 3). However, when writing news or even editorial opinions, it is doubly important to present the truth, even if it means that some may get upset over articles that are off the beaten page but (cont. on page 3)

Anderson presents Gospel of John

by Dick Bird

"I think the King James Version of the Bible is the greatest Book in the world," said British actor John Stuart Anderson, following his performance in the Collegedale Church last Friday evening. A solo actor, Anderson has performed his interpretation of the Gospel of John for the past 15 years, having appeared in churches and theaters in the United States and England.

In a time when modern translations are becoming popular, Anderson finds the King James Version superior. "I view the Bible much like I do music," said Anderson. "The King James is an original. Every other one is an arrangement."

When asked if he was familiar with the New King James translation, Anderson reiterated "I'm aware of it, and like Ernest Angley in the Reader's Digest Bible, I wouldn't willingly burn it." Anderson has, upon request, performed from the Living Bible, which he likes, but made no bones about his preference.

Anderson's performances have, at times, been criticized for a lack of spirituality. In defense, he replied, "You look at the Gospel of John and show me where the spiritual parts are. Jesus is being very down to earth and telling people where to get off." He went on to say that he is not a theologian and never claimed to be. Anderson is more concerned with the performance than with theological accuracy.

Though he has performed from the Bible for many years, Anderson still enjoys reading it for his personal pleasure. "You cannot read from the Bible as long as I have not having it touch you in some way," said the well-known actor. He also expressed a sound satisfaction in the style of the scriptures.

When asked if he offered any advice to aspiring actors, Anderson offered the following remarks: "Plan your career very carefully. Don't think you necessarily need to go to New York or L.A. If you're really serious, start a program here in Chattanooga, and just do it."

Anderson spoke highly of Southern College and its students and hopes to visit again. He was particularly fond of radio station WSMC, because of its selections in classical music. When asked about the cafeteria food, Anderson recalled its confusing a fish patty for a slice of burned toast. He was, however, pleasantly surprised on one occasion. "I had a glass of some type of muddy water," recalled Anderson, "it tasted of apples and was very nice."

I think that first, contemporary Christian music must be defined before I do any writing about the subject. Contemporary Christian music is nothing more than new Christian music. That includes not only Jesus Rock, but the new little songs you hear in Cradle Roll. I don't know any of us who have any trouble accepting the little songs you hear in Cradle Roll but when you start adding a guitar and drums it gets a little harder for us to accept the music as appropriate for Christians to listen to. Let's look at "Jesus Rock". Most of the songs are testimonials and the rest are straight-out praise to God. Now I don't expect someone's grandmother to play "Jesus Rock", but a Christian who is used to hearing Rock 'n' Roll will understand the message in the song. Furthermore, I have never been to a contemporary Christian concert where somebody didn't give his or her heart to the Lord. In closing, I just want to say, a match can burn your finger or light your fire. A style of music can be used to burn your soul or light a fire in you for God.

First of all, let me explain precisely to what I will be addressing this article. I am writing with Christian rock in mind. My definition of Christian rock is any Christian music which were secular words to be substituted for the original religious ones, would not be out of place on any radio station such as KZ-106. Two things which characterize the music to which I am referring are a heavy beat and unintelligible words. I am not speaking of the contemporary Christian music performed by groups such as Harvest Celebration and Heritage Singers.

Christian Rock, to me is no more than secular music with Christian words to it—words that can hardly be understood anyway. All rock music seem to rely more on beat and volume than lyrics to convey emotion, since the words are either stripped into distortions, covered up by the beat, or repeated so many times that they lose their significance. They become just another rhythm instrument to add to the mood. Since the words take second place in this type of music, it is obvious that the "Christian" in Christian rock is taking second place to the "rock"—that is, the music is going to have more effect on the listener than the words.

I am a fairly well accepted fact that most if not all rock

Once upon a time in Fenton Forest, there came up the discussion of forest behavior relatives to...well it is rather embarrassing subject to write about, but it seems that many of the animals were ignoring the fact of their actions in public. They were, well, mostly getting too friendly in public to the embarrassment of other members of the forest community.

There was a general meeting held of all the animals and they discussed this problem. Wise Old Owl called the meeting to order and sought, "Have all the members of the Fenton Forest community come to some kind of agreement as to what was appropriate or inappropriate behavior between boys and girls and what was not appropriate.

Eventually there was general agreement among most of the animals that some restraint needed to be used for what went on in public. It was agreed that some behavior between two friends should only be between them and should be kept private. Everyone agreed, that is, everyone except Freddy Fox and Sammy Skunk. They thought it was not anyone else's business what they did or did not do in public and they left the meeting a huff. And of course, anytime that Sammy Skunk left a meeting in a huff everyone knew it. (It might be more appropriately put that he left the meeting in a puff.) The animals who remained all indicated that they would seek to live by these new concepts and they all left the meeting in good spirits. All went well for a time and everyone seemed to be happy.

But one thing that bothered many of the animals was that they couldn't get Freddy the Fox or Sammy the Skunk to participate. Freddy, who had been one of the worst offenders, did try at first to be more careful. He and his girlfriend tried to be normal and no one was embarrassed by his behavior for a number of months.

But Sammy was so upset at the community intrusion into what he considered was his private behavior that he made a big stink about it. And when Sammy and Petunia (that was his girlfriend's name) decided to make a big stink they could really do it. They paid no attention to the sensibilities of other members in the Fenton Forest family and in fact there were some who thought that Sammy and Petunia of their way to offend others.

It became so repulsive to the forest family, and especially to the visitors who did not live in the forest, that no longer did the issue concern general behavior between animals in the forest. The issue was now Sammy and Petunia themselves.

Wise Old Owl found it necessary to call another meeting of all of the Fenton Forest inhabitants to discuss Sammy and Petunia's behavior. They didn't boycott the meeting, Most of the other animals were just as glad that they did for they didn't think that they could have stood to around two of them when they were in one of those moods.

In the meeting they discussed at length what to do about Sammy's behavior. Many ideas were suggested. Gruff, the bear, said, "Just give me the short end and I will take care of it." But he said it in such a way that the other animals thought he might do harm to Sammy and most of them thought that what was a bit drastic.

Lightfoot, the deer, had the idea to shame Sammy and Petunia into stopping their inappropriate behavior. He suggested to them that they would they get into this life of theirs.

Finally Wise Old Owl summed up their meeting and discussion. He said, "You simply have to remember, the members of our community are just a bunch of animals.''

Heifetz to perform

The Southern College Symphony Orchestra will present its first on-campus concert of the season on Saturday evening, November 20, at 8 p.m. in the Southern College Physical Education Center.

The featured soloist for the concert will be world-famous violin virtuoso and winner of the Tchaikovsky Violin Competition, Daniel Heifetz.

Born in Missouri, Daniel Heifetz grew up in southern California and at the age of sixteen began to study the violin. He completed a public school education at the age of sixteen when he was accepted as a student of the legendary Efrem Zimbalist at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, where he also was coached by Jascha Brodsky. Upon Mr. Zimbalist's retirement, Mr. Heifetz continued his studies with the renowned pedagogue, Ivan Galamian.

The work which he will perform with the Southern College Orchestra is a Violin Concerto in G Minor by Max Bruch. This concerto was performed with the orchestra by senior music major Jenine Frying and was an excellent concert tour in Florida.

The Southern College Symphony is in the midst of planning a world tour to Russia and Romania in May 1983. Members of the orchestra will learn and perfect music for this tour during the second semester as well as raise funds for the trip.

Other works to be performed at Saturday evening's concert will be of a light, classical nature, such as Hungarian March by Berlin, Slavonic Dance No. 8 by Dvorak, Emperor Waltz by Strauss, and a group of numbers by Copland.

Admission is $2.50. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Brezhnev remembered

by Bill Both

Accomplished leaders do not fall from the skies, they are raised up only in the course of the struggle.

—Joseph Stalin

In 1964, Leonid ilich Brezhnev rose up seemingly from nowhere to eventually become the unchallenged ruler of one of the most powerful nations on earth. As the Stalin quote indicates, however, leaders of Brezhnev's caliber don't just "fall from the skies." Where then, did Brezhnev acquire the requisite skills and the power of the situation to take those "abstruse steps to power?" According to Brezhnev: "My own perception of life was shaped by my upbringing and aspirations of the workingman." And by "an historical event of immense significance," the Russian Revolution.

That Brezhnev's life was shaped largely by the thoughts and aspirations of the workingman is beyond question. There had been steel workers in his father's family going back through four generations.

The importance of the Revolution and the bloody civil war which followed are equally undeniable. When the Revolution came in November, 1917, Brezhnev was a mediocre student at the elite Czarist gymnasium in the Ukrainian town of Kamen- skoye. As 1917 drew to a close, Soviet forces occupied Kamen skoye and executed approximately 1.7 million intellectual, religious, and middle-class citizens.

The executions ended temporarily in February when Austrian troops occupied Kamen skoye, but the civil war began to in earnest when they left after Austria surrendered to the Allies in November. From November, 1918 until January 1920, Kamen skoye became a battleground only for Royalist White and Soviet Red armies, but for the peasants (sullen peasants) as well, who would regularly enter the town, looting and killing until the Red Army was finally able to defeat them.

Although many neighbors perished, the Brezhnev survived this ordeal. The problems weren't over, though.

The war and a severe drought gave them famine and disease to contend with. Three million Ukrainians died from various diseases, including 30 of Brezhnev's 44 classmates. Brezhnev became seriously ill but survived.

As one biographer noted, these experiences helped Brezhnev develop the "profound instinct for self-preservation" that served him so well in later years.

Brezhnev joined a Communist youth group in 1923, and picked up a gun to go to an agricultural school.

After graduation in 1927, he began working in Stalin's infamous "collectivization" program which resulted in the deaths of over 20 million Soviet peasants. His loyalty to Stalin paid off in a promotion to head the local Land Department. He joined the Communist party in 1929.

Thus Brezhnev began the long, arduous climb to the top of the Soviet political machine. His role as a political officer in World War II brought him to Stalin's attention and, in 1942, he was elevated to the ruling politburo. By 1946 he was in position, as one of Nikita Khrushchev's relatively unknown and "trusted" aides, to overthrow Khrushchev and assume joint leadership.

Warm-ups considered invaluable to good health by Bud Moon

When you begin aging (we'll call that approximately two or three years after you reach puberty), you need to start listening a little more carefully to what the body is telling the mind. Some messages that begin coming through with more frequency relate to fatigue and stiffness. This leads us to our discussion of the basic question: Do warm-ups really do any good?

When you were five or six years old, all systems were go. You could quick-start and stop in your activities with little or no side effects. During the middle-age years (we'll call that approximately 15 to 55 years of age), the body rebelled a little at the idea of jackrabbit living. As time passes, an increasingly longer warm-up time is needed to lubricate the joints and warm muscles and blood.

This does not have to be a laborious ritual, but it should be a ritual. If you are a jogger, or worse, you should walk a much longer one-fourth mile to warm up. While doing this, your velocity should increase until those blades of grass are just flying by. At this point, the joints and blood temperature will be ready for you to act like a young hot-blooded jogger.

Also important to consider in warm-ups is the length of the muscles used. Muscles will be slower to fatigue if they can relax, and they relax better if they are longer. The best lengthening (or stretching) technique is to hold the position two different times for at least six seconds.

This stretching routine should include the muscle group on the front of the lower leg which causes shin splints if not warmed up properly. This is done by pointing the toes back and down and pressing. You should also stretch by taking a leap down a pole leading down to the pole from several feet away while keeping your feet flat on the ground. Do this to avoid sore calves and Achilles tendons. Lastly, stretch the hamstrings by beginning at the waist with the knees straight. This will help you maintain a normal stride and bipedal gait. Warming down slowly is important for a healthy exercise period. The quick stop from 60 to 0 after heavy exercise means the other two pumps, which are the muscle pump and the vessel pump, just stop. Moving the blood here and there is all left up to the ole ticker.

In addition, the muscles doing repetitive contracting will shorten as a result of the work they have done. So the same stretching bour done prior to starting the exercise is needed after the exercise.

With rigorous planning, most of us should have a lifetime (we'll call that approximately expiration minus six weeks) of enjoyable moving.

The torture chamber a satire

It is beyond me why anyone would purposely enter a small room, fully aware that it is equipped with six hard sides that evidence violence, bright lights on starkly painted walls, one or more people wildly and sometimes desperately swinging lethal metal extensions of their arms in an attempt to keep a stinging projectile ricocheting off the walls—and with no quick escape. It reminds me of a torture chamber.

Haven’t we seen people flinch when a ball is served? That’s also the typical reaction before a firing squad. Haven’t we seen noses with stitches? That’s typically what’s required after being hit by a racket—self-inflicted or otherwise. Haven’t we seen nasty bruises in various and sundry parts of the anatomy caused by the impact of projectiles? And that’s only what we see. Can you justify these activities on the grounds that they are enjoyable? Some people enjoy flagellation too. Why this madness? Please tell me why.

Someone may charge that my analysis is invalid on the grounds that my experience is vicarious. Let me assure you that the charge won’t stick. Against my better judgment but in order to criticize with authority—I played.

I learned, I soon realized that in order to hit the ball and to stay out of its trajectory it is advantageous to know from whence the ball cometh. Therefore I attempted to track the ball from the time it left my opponent’s racket. This I soon realized was dangerous as you can get hit full in the face. But is the alternative really that attractive—to get hit full in the back of the head? Not a pleasant thought. But I had other concerns for self-preservation to worry about.

If you don’t watch your opponent, how do you know that he/she is not swinging that lethal switch through an arc which happens to include in its trajectory the space your head currently claims as its own? How do you know that when the worthy opponents swing he/she it will not “accidentally” let the metal fly? You don’t know and you dare not look! When you hear “SWISHHH” by your head a few times you know that you are living a dangerous life.

So you whine, “There ain’t no other sport that’s indoors, fun, enjoyable, challenging, stimulating, that’s good exercise, really gets my blood flowing, utilizes a minimum of equipment, and requires only one partner—and that’s leg for a single college kid.” I agree.

As for me, I’ll go skydiving any day.
Southern Cynic

For some time now, I, like all truly important columnists, have been receiving volumes of fan mail. Many times people will ask me for advice in these letters so of course I am delighted to share my knowledge with those who need it. However, I’m getting a bit behind so I thought I’d answer several at a time to lighten the load a bit. The Accent staff cordially and genuinely gave me all the space I needed; they said after all, if I didn’t use it, some idiot would just put a silly column in there anyway.

Dear Ms. Loga,
Could you tell us what “movies” are? Daddy always just says “I don’t want to talk about it.”

Thank you,

Dear Kids:
Absolutely not. I don’t want to talk about it.

Dear Columnist:
If possible, could you manage to keep E. O. Grandstaff indoors during Thanksgiving vacation? Several of us will be wearing disguises and we’d rather he didn’t try to discover our true identity. Those binoculars of his can be lethal.

Dear TOSC, etc.:
Give me a break! I’ve already gone through an identity change, a whole week of playing dress-up and several parties to keep the man entertained. You guys aren’t the only ones who get fidgety during Thanksgiving.

Dear Ms. Loga,
We are pleased to announce that after several weeks of totally secretive testing, we have come up with the chemical and mathematical formulas for stink spray. We plan to sell the patent to Jovan. Interested in becoming a business partner? We could use your brains.

Signed,
The Math Teachers

Dear Prof:
I’ll say! Sorry, but I think your formula leaked out already. If only you’d been as secretive as the skunk, you might’ve gotten somewhere.

Besides, I’m already making good money; I’m on work-study.

Hey, man,
Like we could really get into coming into that music building of yours and getting down on solar lights on 7 out. Like hey, we can give ya some real music you uh, don’t think anyone would mind, huh?

Farewell
Van Helen

Dear VHM:
Fine with me. I’m not sure what type of music you folks prefer; are you anything like Harvest Celebration?

YURI ANDROPOV, ex-Soviet KGB chief, won unanimous approval from the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee to replace Leonid Brezhnev as General Secretary of the Party. Andropov's election was clinched when his chief rival, Konstantin Chernenko, nominated him for the post. Andropov, in a speech given to the Central Committee, promised to continue "carrying out all the Leninist domestic and foreign policies that had been pursued under Leonid Brezhnev." Brezhnev died of heart failure last Wednesday.

Vice-President George Bush met with the newly elected Soviet leader Andropov following Leonid Brezhnev's funeral on Monday. Although the two probably didn't discuss anything new, the fact that Andropov held such a meeting right after his election is considered significant. Andropov gave observers an additional surprise by warmly welcoming Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua.

The NFL Strike ended yesterday. The season, shortened to 10 games, will resume this Sunday with the top four teams from the two conferences going to the playoffs.

answer faculty questions and to get more suggestions for the new president. Some faculty members felt threatened by the visit, feeling that McClure was on campus to question faculty members as he did before the start of the 1982-83 school year. But Des Rice, Faculty Affairs Committee Chairman, assured SC faculty that McClure was on campus largely in response to a Faculty Affairs Committee request.

McClure will be on the Search Committee as will three Southern Union officials, three Board members, three faculty members, three staff members, the Alumni Association President, the Student Association President and the Committee of 100 President.

with Valery Kasygin and Nikolay Podgorny. This leadership was "joint" in name only, however, and by 1971 Brezhnev was clearly top dog.

Brezhnev considered the greatest achievement of his 18-year rule to be the detente policy which he engineered with President Nixon and other western leaders in the early 1970's. This policy, defined by Brezhnev as the settling of "disputes and conflicts" by means other than war, has lost much of its importance in the last few years.

The future of US-Soviet relations remains uncertain and much will depend on which of his potential successors in the Kremlin has the best instincts for survival.
Great moments

One semester at Southern College has slipped by in record time. The hustle and bustle of our everyday lives seems to make time fly. Yet, for some people, time became an enemy. Each moment seemed to be filled with heartache and pain. Each day seemed to bring fresh wounds from dagger-like tongues. Even though attacks against people connected with the college and the church have decreased, vicious rumors still fly—a pastor is a heretic, a conference president will be forced to resign, two couples have swapped wives during vacation.

People seem to forget the pain they can inflict. They forget that the stories they hear at the beauty parlor or the barber shop or over the phone lines can be totally false or, at best, greatly exaggerated.

Or they forget that some things are better left unsaid—that no juicy news may just be good news.

At this point, I can hear some of the Accent's readers asking why the editor is recycling a topic discussed in a previous editorial, "The Collegedale Syndrome." It is because the time has come for a change. It is the time for "great moments"—a time when people reflect on the good instead of the bad. It is the time to offer a helping hand instead of the knockout punch.

During this holiday season and throughout the coming new year, reflect on the "great moments" instead of the bad. A person once said that "life is not measured in days but in memories." Let's make those memories worth recalling.

Letters

Dear Editor,

Lately it seems that this column has been used as a means to wage personal war. Frustration with our principles, opinions, ideas and ethics.

As it is standard policy for the Southern Accent to print all signed letters to the Editor, I am directing this to those who have written demeaning letters in the past.

The column is for the expression of opinions and responsive opinions as well, but lately the letters have carried overtones of hostility and accusation.

A person may indeed have a legitimate gripe against someone else, but to publicly attack and denounce him in the school paper for the entire college to read is not to keep with Christian character.

The gift of language, given to us by God, was intended as a beautiful instrument of communication. God created us in a state of healthy criticism and acceptance. Hasty words, spoken or written can do more than one realizes. A fine reputation can be damaged, or a sensitive spot deep down inside can be touched which may never heal.

The Bible says in Ephesians 4:29, 31 and 32:

"Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto one another in the church.

Let all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamour and evil speaking be put away from you with all malice. And be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another even as Christ also hath forgiven you.

As Christians shouldn't we heed the counsel of our God and take care of personal differences with individuals in a less malicious manner.

There are so many worthwhile opinions that it is sad to read such demurring, degrading letters reflecting a Christian attitude in time with Christ.

Perhaps it gives the writer a sort of form of satisfaction to see his poisoned words in print. But as a reader, it gives no satisfaction to me.

Sincerely,

Moni Gemmick

Dear Editor,

This letter is concerning something of great importance which may be controversial. No, it's not the Religion Department. No, it's not a recent chapel. No, it's not a prayer meeting—this has to do with sanity. Not just legality. It also includes finances. Yes, money—money lost that was invested in food, toothbrushes, and other items of daily necessity.

If we stopped at finances, that wouldn't be so bad. The money lost per student could not even begin to compete with the most valuable possession that a college student possesses—that of his time. We are not talking about seconds or minutes. We are talking hours. Precious hours we could have spent on necessary activities such as sleeping, doing one's laundry, eating, outdoor recreation and yes, even studying.

A good example of what I am talking about happens every night at approximately the same time—6:30 a.m. I wake up in a cold sweat only to discover that my roommate has been awakened by the same grinding noise coming from all over our room. My hands land on his in a mad rush for the flashlight.

We are not complainers. We are just a couple of innocent students searching for our identity in a seemingly overcrowded environment. Sure, the administrators have made one noble attempt at controlling the problem of overpopulated dormitory rooms. But if you will notice, there are only two beds, two desks and two sets of drawers. I have one desk per room. We are hospitable guys but we have a limit. And that limit has been met and trepassed.

Inconsiderate "guests" have eaten our food, slept in our beds, inspected our clothes, used our sinks, enjoyed our music and even went so far as sharing our toothbrushes, without any consent whatsoever on our part.

I am afraid that as a student, I must put my foot down. And if this involves killing our guests in the process, then that's just the way it goes. In fact, that might not be a bad idea at all. We are open to any

The Southern Accent is the official student newspaper of Southern College and is released each Thursday with the exception of vacation and holiday periods. reasoned suggestion. We are not alone in this seemingly endless battle to bid our "guests" farewell. The case has been a major concern to others who have been needlessly abused in a similar manner.

But things are looking up. Why just yesterday a signup sheet appeared on a Talie Hall bulletin board and is already filled to capacity, revealing a widespread desire to exterminate these "guests" once and for all.

The brilliant desire idea behind this signup sheet belongs to our next door neighbor. He feels a heavy burden to a pot of chemical to reverse the effects of this recent "reproductive agent"

Dear Editor,

It was just this last spring as I remember, on a visit to the Oral Roberts University campus I was blessed to attend a gospel concert given by Jamie Owens-Collins and the group Glad. The opening number by Glad intrigued me.

The lead singer started by commenting that some conservative Christians of the day condemned Glad's type of music. While he was talking he started to play a song "We Gather Together." He said, "Back in the 1800's people wrote songs to the tunes they were familiar with (as his sample song was). It just so happened that the tunes were old tavern tunes to drink by. In the few minutes that followed, Glad played variations of the song from the roarin' twenties, from the early rock era and the Beach Boys. They finally ended the medley in the theme of today's popular music (Not that I enjoyed that)."

Glad's philosophy was to meet God's children on their level and bring them to know Christ in the things they love. But check it out for yourself. Isn't it the Devil who is going to "tear even the very elect" by mixing truth with error as he started long ago? Contemporary music in any form may or may not be your thing. And check again - is Jesus your music (as a contemporary song says), or is Jesus Christ your God and Saviour?

Sincerely,
Doug Walter

The Stingiest Man in Town

by Tony Newsome

Last week a musical was presented in Southern College's Ackerman Auditorium. The play was entitled "The Stingiest Man in Town" and showed on Tuesday at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. and Wednesday at 7:00 and 9:00 p.m.

The play was based on Charles Dickens's "A Christmas Carol" and was a presentation of the Southern College Division of Music. Don C. Ruyan directed the play. Among the twenty-seven characters who made up the cast were "Old Scrooge" (played by Scot Aycock), Tiny Tim (played by Tre Thompson). The musical play also featured the Southern College Chorale and the College's orchestra.

The play, which required over three weeks of rehearsal before opening, made use of special effects including the graveyard scene. Dry ice was used to cover the floor with a misty fog which rolled off the stage and onto the feet of the audience. This scene in which Scrooge saw his own tombstone was greeted with rounds of enthusiastic applause.

Santa visits Christmas concert

by Page Weesner

The Concert Band of Southern College, with director Pat Silver, presented its annual Christmas concert last Saturday evening. With Master of Ceremonies Clyde Garey announcing the program, the band began the concert by playing a medley of "Do You Hear What I Hear?" and "Snow Bells."

The audience seemed to enjoy the Russian Christmas Music, which was ancient Russian carols derived from the liturgical music of the Eastern Orthodox Church. The basis for this musical impression was of Old Russia during the past century Christmas season. Die Meistersinger highlighted the evening by singing "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas." One student remarked that it really reminded her of home when they sang "Home for the Holidays."

The traditional Christmas poem "Twas the Night Before Christmas" was told in a not-so-traditional way by Clyde Garey, along with Dick Dower's multi-media presentation. The slides to illustrate the story were crayon drawings by four graders at Rust Murdock Elementary School near Andrews University.

The audience was given a chance to perform as they joined the band in a sing-along led by Dr. Dan Ransay. Some all-time favorites such as "Hark the Herald Angels Sing." "Joy to the World," and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" were sung.

The spirit of Christmas was truly felt as Santa and his elves made their appearance during "Jingle Bell Rock." Santa gave Mr. Gilbert a pair of red gloves for the orchestra's trip to Russia and also a red bucket for the cats they would have to wash to get there. Pat Silver's gift from Santa was a bag of girls, acclimating him in true Southern hospitality. As Santa left, his elves threw candy to all, wishing all a very Merry Christmas.

The band concluded with a medley of Christmas songs performed with the Southern College Chorale.

Students tour Big Apple

by Maureen Mayden

A Thanksgiving vacation annual event for Art, Behavioral Science, and Education students is the trip to New York City. A total of 65 students, and three faculty members with their families, took the 870-mile trip to the Big Apple, heading to the largest group ever from the college to visit the city.

Beginning with rain on a Saturday night, the two buses traveled through the night to reach Washington, D.C., around 6:00 a.m. The entire group went to Arlington National Cemetery to view the changing of the guard at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and to see Kennedy's grave with its eternal flame.

The Art class then went to the Hirshhorn Museum of Art for a tour and lecture on part of the permanent collection housed there. This museum has many sculptures and paintings in its collection. Some of these include pop-art by Andy Warhol and George Segal.

After lunch the students were allowed to visit the Smithsonian and the Natural History Museums along the National Mall. The sight-seeing was cut short due to an appointment in Philadelphia to visit the Liberty Bell and Freedom Hall.

Then, it was New York City!! The group arrived at the Vanderbilt YMCA in plenty of time to walk around the neighborhood and eat supper. Some of the students, including Steve Schmidt, Gary Mancey, and Danny DuBose toured 42nd Street and then, returning to the Y, met one of New York's finest who gave them some free advice about the wisdom of 42nd Street after dark.

A few of the requirements for the Behavioral Science students included the Immigration Museum, China Town and Ten Challenge. They were also required to visit the Covenant House, Hale House, and Harlem and the Bronx. Some of these students included Dinna Johnson, Scott Kinsey, J.T. Shin, and Bev Dickerhoff.

The Art class visited several museums, including the Museum of Modern Art, which was undergoing remodeling at the time and did not have much of its permanent collection out. Featured was a show by Louise Bourgeois, which included several sculptures, as well as paintings.

The Cloisters, part of the Metropolitan Museum, was an interesting museum. It houses the Unicorn Tapestries and many other medieval sculptures, tapestries, and paintings of tapestries and manuscripts.

Bridge Knox and David Dick enjoyed this museum quite a bit.

On display at the Whitney Museum was an exhibit by Milton Avery, who is a contemporary artist. He deals mostly in shapes without specific details, such as facial features.

The Metropolitan Museum was a favorite of many students including Jeff Kuhlman. Their permanent collection was endless and included many paintings of the Impressionist and Post-Impressionist artists, including Monet, Cezanne, and Gauguin.

They were also featuring an exhibit about Alexander the Great and the search for his treasures.

Another favorite of some of the students was the Frick Collection. housed in a mansion, it is a personal collection of Henry Clay Frick, who left the entire mansion and art objects as a museum after his death.

Featured at the Solomon R. Guggenheim was an exhibit by Yves Klein, who invented new colors and used innovative techniques, such as blow torches and female odors as paint brushes.

The Education students visited the Academy for the Performing Arts and the Horace Mann School, where kindergarten costs $4,000 a year. They also went to the Chinese mainland Language School. Pat Stone enjoyed learning about the subways with Lori Koester, and eating pizza with "Melvin" (Dr. Campbell). They also visited the Statue of Liberty where they got stuck on the ferry for two hours because of fog.

The World Trade Center and the Empire State Building were favorite night spots when the visibility was good. Frank Roman, Deborah Bagger, and Myra Brown visited a couple of Broadway plays, while Cynthia Wagner, Eric Mock, Beth Ristenbatt, and Barbara Merritt visited several of the many department stores on Fifth Avenue.

State Island, the Statue of Liberty, the Chrysler Building, NBC Studios, the Waldorf Astoria, Grand Central Station, and the Pan Am Building were daily sights as the students made their way by bus, subway, or taxi to the various museums and places of interest.

Thanksgiving Day found several SC students in attendance at the Macy's Parade. Sherry Toyon and Pam Dickman stood on the corner of Broadway and 44th Street and watched the parade pass right in front of them. Then, they rushed off to help serve Thanksgiving dinner at the Salvation Army in Harlem, another requirement for the Behavioral Science group.

Despite delays in leaving the Big Apple, the group finally found its way back to College dale on Sunday night around 6 p.m., November 28.

Even though the group was glad to be back, several of the students were sad to leave the city behind. A week of walking through New York left many impressions on the students. The skyscrapers, the Top of the Stix on Fifth Avenue, the Brooklyn Bridge, Harlem, the parade, the shops, 42nd Street, the UN Building, and Manhattan itself will always be the "city that never sleeps."

I was the night before Christmas at SC

by Gordon Biskat

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the dorm Not a student was stirring, they were all trying to keep warm. Those students were nestled all snug in their beds, While Meyers was watching from the roof over their heads. A rumor had he heard of a little red man, Who was going to attempt an unusual plan. He quietly waited on the roof with care, For fear someone unwanted would soon be there.

As Evans and Christmas had just relaxed, And Runyan and Somers were near collapse, There rose on the campus an incredible clatter, Schlinder sprang from his bed to see what was the matter. Immediately he saw something small and red, And in a flash the alarm sounded overhead.

Away to the windows faculty flew like a flash Tore open their shutters and threw up the sash. The rumor spread with incredible speed, That the school was on fire - some dastardly deed. With puppet and tank the Fire Department came With every intention of dousing the flame. Fire hoses in order were laid over the ground Hither and yon the laves they crowned. Firing carefully moved with nooses in hand Steadily proceeding over the land.

Then with a burst of water the hose went off like a shot And the hoses were flooded where there was that red spot. And out of the hause a big wet red man paused, Grandtset dressed as Santa Claus.

"I just wanted to surprise the students tonight, I never knew security was so tight."
As one of the religion reporters for the Accent I have access to press credentials. Now press credentials can get you into places that you would not normally get to. By showing your card you can get in some of the most interesting places. In the light of the beat that I cover, I thought that it would be good to do some investigative reporting. I decided it would be good if I contacted the opposition of what plans they had in mind. That explains my trip to Hell (apologies to Czincz Stables Lewis). My trip was warm but unaccomplished and my press credentials gave me cut ties into a meeting that was being held concerning the project of their evangelistic work on SC campus.

As I slipped into the back of the meeting Screwtape was talking to Wormwood:

Screwtape: "I don't care what you discovered about the administrative policies of SC in regard to attendance at religious services, the simple fact is that attendance at a religious service does not mean that there will be any increase in religiousness. In fact it is my contention and I think that I can back this up, that if we can capture their minds during intensive religious instruction we have got them for good."

Wormwood: "Well I didn't mean to make you angry; I just was reporting on what the policies of the school are so we could better able to counteract them. I agree with you. If you can get a dog to bite its master how he is in a home good, just think what you will be able to get it to do when he is not in a good home."

Screwtape: "Good illusion, so what are we doing to get these dogs to bite?"

Wormwood: "Snekaskio and myself have been working on a strategy which we would like to share with you.

Screwtape: "Ok, let's hear it?"

Snekaskio: "You will recognize that it is in preliminary form and we have out as yet tried it, but the broad general outline certainly has worked in times past with other similar situations.

Screwtape: "Get on with it?"

Wormwood: "Okay, we have the following main points we have prepared on this chart for your approval:

1. Required religious services.
   a. Get the students to miss as many of these as possible by:
      1) getting them to think of them as boring
      2) getting them interested on other things
   b. When attending religious services have them sit in the back so there will be as much distraction as possible.

Screwtape: "That is fine! Nothing wrong with that."

Wormwood: "Yes."

Screwtape: "Well, just getting them not to attend is too obvious. Do nothing? They never attended they would not be able to continue school there. What you need to do is get them not to pay attention to the ones they go to. Get them to become accustomed to religious services, so accustomed to them that they don't hear what is being said. Their minds should be elsewhere while "The Word" (I hate to say that, it's being pronounced. Havent you studied to the Bible where he says that "His word will not return unto him void"? We must make the word appear so common that no attention is paid to it. No one is a better long term candidate for living with us than the one who is so accustomed to hearing religious things that they cre like water off of a duck's back."

Wormwood: "Are you taking notes, Snekaskio?"

Snekaskio: "Yes."

Screwtape: "Do I have to do all the thinking for Hell? What else do you have planned?"

Wormwood: "Well, under 'b' here -
   a. When attending religious services have them sit in the back so there will be as much distraction as possible.
   b. The combined choir of 240 voices will perform under the direction of Orlo Gilbert, Southern College Symphony Orchestra.

Advance ticket arrangements may be made by calling the Student Center at 396-4277 or 396-4403 or Lee College at 472-2111. Tickets may also be purchased at the Tivoli Theater box office or at the Village Market and the Campus Shop in Collegeale. The remaining tickets will be sold at the door. Tickets will cost $2.50.

Messiah to be performed

by Dan Buhl

Handel's "Messiah," co-produced by many of the highlights of the Christmas season, will be performed in Chattanooga and Cleveland on Thursday and Friday. The combined choirs of Lee College and the Symphonic Choir of Southern College, accompanied by the Southern College Symphonic Orchestra, will present the traditional work at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Tivoli Theater, and at 8 p.m. Friday in Lee College's Conn Center.

The two colleges are establishing a tradition of jointly presenting the oratorio to the Chattanooga area community. Some 310 vocalists and orchestra musicians will take part, highlighted by soloists Dean Wilder, tenor; Anthony Deaton, baritone; Phyllis Sanders, soprano; and Camille Simmon, contralto.

Dr. Jim Burns, chairman of the Department of Music and Fine Arts at Lee, and Dr. Marvin Robertson, chairman of the Division of Music at Southern are preparing the choirs for the "Messiah" performance.

Basketball

With first semester coming to a close, all SC sports fans are eagerly looking forward to the basketball season which begins second semester. Basketball has traditionally been the most popular sport here at SC as far as fan participation is concerned. This is probably due to the fact that the schedule is kept despite the inclement weather and also due to the excellent talent displayed on the court.

The season looks as though it will be even more competitive than in past years. Coach Steve Jaecks expressed much optimism concerning the upcoming season. He intends to add a few dimensions to the leagues such as a three-man tournament and possibly an all-star game in A and B leagues.

This year's format will basically be the same as in past years with women's A league sporting six to ten teams, and the men's play divided into AA, A, and B leagues. Those involved in basketball intramurals should be prepared to purchase their jersey through the P. E. Department at a cost of $7.8.

Sign-up for basketball will be on registration day, Tuesday, January 3, at the intramural table.

Volleyball

On Sunday, December 5, a special volleyball tournament was held in the P. E. Center. The tourney consisted of 11 three-man teams involved in a double elimination format. The team of Rod Hartle, Fred Roscher, and Rhobeen Dubson was the eventual champion. They defeated the team of Alex Lamourt, Carlos Colon, and Angel Amoros to gain the first place berth. The day-long tournament which started at 9 a.m. and ended at 7 p.m. was termed by Coach Steve Jaecks as a "definite success." Possibly this could become an annual affair as the turnout and participation was excellent.

Tennis

The SC Tennis Tournament has concluded with Earl Johnson as the reigning champion. He ends his tennis dynasty in May with expectations of graduation. This is his second year to take the tournament, and he admits that he does not play to stomp over other tennis players, but just for fun.

David Messinger and Steven Fitzgerald are said to have given Earl his most enjoyable matches, and he thanks them for their presence on the other side of the net (good effort fellows!). Good luck to David Messinger and Scott Vallieres in their efforts to win SC's future events.

The campus tree is backlit by candles in the windows of Wright Hall.
Like the rest of you, I just received my final semester school bill. From it, I could deduce one thing: the $48 salary I received from the Accent was not going to pay. But I thought we could work out-way through school. Maybe I should strike. No, maybe not. Then we'd have to read Loga every week.

I picked up my statement and took another look. Hmm, $25 for Finance Memories? $55 for Preventive Infestation? $1.50 for an Easy Exam Pass Fund? These are the charges all about? I can't get my exam pass for this? Since it was early morning, I thought I'd go pay the Finance Office a visit. I pay them everything else, so why not a visit.

The line to Randy White's office twisted and turned clear out of Wright Hall and ended by the Christmas tree. I took my place behind a guy who was covered with cobwebs. "Quite a line," I said, trying to make conversation. He stood frozen, holding a statement dated 1904. I shivered.

Toward evening, I was near his door. "Now serving 973" dinned a voice above. I croaked. Stepping inside the executive office, I asked where White was. "Oh," said a smartly dressed girl (aren't all the girls who work there smartly dressed?), "He just took off for vacation. He always leaves the week before exams. Could I help you?" Gratified that I didn't have to make a hard-luck story sell ("I was robbed at the C.K. My Mother has the wrong check." "Someone told me this semester was free.") I decided to come straight to the point. "Okay," I said, "Just explain to me these charges." She looked over them and said, "It all appears in order to me. Don't you know what these charges are all about? They're in the '83 catalog." "It's '82." "Oh well, we thought it best to get into practice." I wondered how she'd look with a missing arm, well, that's $20 for Finance Memories? I asked. "No, I don't know what this is." "This in for a handsome Olun Mills framed picture of all us office staff. Also, there's a little booklet that goes along with it, recounting all the special times you've spent with us this year." Shocked, I yelled, "I can get the same effect if I draw a bull-eye in hollerin' and starting!" "Now, now, Mr. Czerski, there will be a time when you'll thank us. What else is there?"

Glaring, I continued, "$55 for Preventive Infestation." "That should be obvious," she said, stifling a yawn. "It's to prevent armadillos or wildbeests from infecting the dorm." I asked. "Oh." She squealed, "This is for a handsome Olun Mills framed picture of all us office staff. Also, there's a little booklet that goes along with it, recounting all the special times you've spent with us this year." Shocked, I yelled, "I can get the same effect if I draw a bull-eye in hollerin' and starting!" "Now, now, Mr. Czerski, there will be a time when you'll thank us. What else is there?"

Upset, I continued, "$1.50 for an Easy Exam Pass Fund." "That should be obvious," she said, stifling a yawn. "It's to prevent armadillos or wildbeests from infecting the dorm." I asked. "Oh." She squealed, "This is for a handsome Olun Mills framed picture of all us office staff. Also, there's a little booklet that goes along with it, recounting all the special times you've spent with us this year." Shocked, I yelled, "I can get the same effect if I draw a bull-eye in hollerin' and starting!" "Now, now, Mr. Czerski, there will be a time when you'll thank us. What else is there?"

Thinking of all the football pools in the dorm, I guess it had to come. "Well," I said, "What work group gets to go first this year?" she snapped her gum, smiled, and said, "Finance Office!" I lunged for her throat.

Funds are now available thought the Joanna F. Reed Medical Scholarship. Students must be from the Northwest Florida area and Alabama. The funds are available to those students enrolled in pre-med or accepted at a university pursuing a career in premed. The funds are for the 1983-84 school year. Enrollment drops 8%

Dr. Leanne Farnsworth

Southern College registered 1,380 students for its spring semester on Monday, January 3. Thirty-three of these students were enrolled in the program for registered nurses in Chattanooga, and 116 students were registered on the Orlando campus. An additional 61 students are expected to register for the extension courses offered through several Southern Union academies. It is also expected that there will be no more late registrants.

The final enrollment figure for this semester is projected to be 1,650. This is only an eight percent decrease from the fall semester. According to Miss Mary Elam, Director of Records, "This is the average drop from first to second semester, and with the economy the way it is, we are doing very well to come out average."

For the second year, pre-registration was held in November and was once again a time-saver for many students. Most of those registering completed registration and left the gymnasium ten to twenty minutes after entering. Although this meant extra preparation and more time on the part of the Records Department, Miss Elam endorsed the program, saying, "This allows the student more time with his advisor, and that is the main consideration. It also prods him to give more thought to his schedule a little sooner."

Overall, students seemed pleased with how smoothly registration went for them. One student exclaimed, "Oh, yes, I liked it! It was a lot shorter, Ten minutes in comparison to the one hour and ten minutes that it took me last semester is much better."

Blanco returns to teaching

Dr. Jack Blanco has been added to the Religion Department at Southern College. Previously a pastor in Palm Springs, Dr. Blanco is teaching Adventist Heritage and Teachings of Jesus this semester.

Dr. Blanco worked as a minister for ten years before entering educational work for approximately fifteen years. He has held positions at the Review and Herald and has pastored churches in the Columbia Union, the Southern Union, and the Pacific Union.

For the past few years, he has wanted to get back into teaching, but there were no openings until this past year. Besides Southern's offer, Dr. Blanco had also received calls from two other Adventist colleges.

When asked why he chose SC, he stated, "I've been wanting to get back into education so that I could teach ministerial students." Dr. Blanco used to pastor the Johnson City church a few years ago, and he is very comfortable in the South.

Blanco stated that he knew about the religious controversy that SC and PUC have been experiencing, and that it did not bother him in his decision to teach here. "Students in my classroom now are not like the students of the late 60's and early 70's. Those kids sat back and dared you to teach them anything. The kids today are more receptive, at least in my classes. College seems more important to them." Dr. Blanco is also a returned missionary. He served overseas in Africa and the Philippines.

New village policy begins

Southern College has revamped its chapel requirements for village students for the second semester. According to Everett Schlissner, Dean of Students, village students will be required to get four points each week for a total of 60 during the semester. Instead of receiving points only for chapels, village students can now also receive two points for attending Wednesday night prayer meeting and vespers. "We are broadening the availability of chapel options," Schlissner said.

Under the old plan, village students were not required to attend prayer meeting or vespers. And they could be exempt from chapel if they had work conflicts or if they didn't have any Tuesday or Thursday classes. The new plan limits exemptions and requires more participation in the programs. Some village students are upset, "This new system imposes the same restrictions on village students as dorm students without the same privileges," commented Bob MacAfferdy during a discussion meeting Schlissner held with village students. "Since I work during chapels, if I'm gone for the weekend, I would be hopelessly behind."

"There will always be some exceptions," Schlissner said. "We don't want the chapel program to be a burden, but we want to include village students in activities."

Near the end of the discussion, Schlissner stated one reason why the chapel policy was being tightened instead of being loosened or done away with. "Throughout history, religious colleges that have done away with enforced attendance at worship have lost their missions. Southern College doesn't want to go that route."

Lectures start

The 12th annual E.A. Anderson Lecture Series begins tonight at 8:00 p.m. at Summervill Hall. The series of 10 lectures features top speakers discussing such areas of interest as "Common Laws of Success," "Business in the Real World," and "Time Management."

The series is possible due to a generous endowment from Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Anderson of Atlanta, Georgia, to the Division of Business and Office Administration. The lectures are open to the public, free of charge. However, for a fee, college or continuing education is available. The first lecture, scheduled for January 13, is Dr. Gene Stansland, a professional speaker in the field of economics. He has given presentations and lectures for many management groups, companies, organizations and educational institutions.

From 1960 to 1980, Dr. Stansland served as professor of economics and finance at Auburn University and as the head of the Department of Economics from 1972-1980. Presently, he is a member of the board of directors of several companies. Dr. Stansland received his Ph.D. in Economics from the University of Alabama in 1972.
New Year's resolutions

With the New Year almost two weeks old, many of us probably have already forgotten those resolutions we made, if we even bothered at all.

I used to always make New Year's resolutions, but somehow my enthusiasm for turning over a new leaf was gone after a very short time. I just couldn't seem to change. I guess I always expected an overnight type of transformation—a transformation that would make me into the perfect person.

Of course that never happened. And somewhere along the line, I became discouraged enough to quit making those silly resolutions. After all, why go to all that trouble when I'd mess up after a week or two anyway?

Well, unless it's the custom may seem, it was begun for a good reason. The English used to clean their chimneys for good luck in the New Year. This was later applied to faults and bad habits by the saying "cleaning the slate." It meant putting the past behind and starting the New Year fresh and clean.

The idea was good, but maybe it has just gotten out of our hands. Maybe we just expect too much from ourselves. Or maybe we don't expect enough. Changing a habit can be very difficult, and giving up too soon can be very easy.

I think perseverance would be a very nice thing to have in this new year. "But Lord, do you think I could have it now?" — MM

Dear Editor,

Many of us found that while we were in church on January 8, the publication, Pilgrim's Waymarks had been stuck on our cars.

My first reaction was to pull it off of every car I could, but I realized that ignorance is not bliss so I just took mine home and studied it. Now I'm sure that the editors and backers of that paper are concerned for the church, and that I am glad, but I question their methods and arguments.

Methods: (1) It seems to me that their mode of operation tends to divide the church, and although Christ did bring a sword to the earth, He did so to separate good and evil, not the church. For them, He prayed that they would be one, even as He and the Father are one. (2) Should not questions about the doctrine held by the church be studied openly rather than by a covert distribution of pamphlets? (3) Should not the church be putting its principal efforts into telling the fantastic news of the salvation offered to us by Christ's sacrifice rather than spending our money and time bickering about something which not one of us knows the final answer to? (4) Are we treading on holy ground? The paper quotes from the Spirit of Prophecy on their position, and I would also quote from the same source: "Avoid every question in relation to the humanity of Christ which is liable to be misunderstood. Truth lies close to the track of presumption...the Incarnation of Christ has ever been and will ever remain a mystery." SBC 1128 Arguments: First, let me state that I do not know all or even many of the answers and I invite discussion, but I would like to note at least one flaw in the paper. They state: "He took world dominion as well." In SBC 1128, we may read that: "Because of sin his position was born with propensities of disobedience...but not for one moment was there in Him an evil propensit".

I agree that there should be a discussion in the church, especially in a college environment, but shouldn't our aim be to stay and tell others the wonderful life that comes from knowing our Saviour rather than breaking over things which we may have misunderstood? The Lord is coming soon. Let's be ready!

Sincerely, Kevin D. Shaw

Dear Editor,

I think something needs to be said about the highway robbery at the salad bar in the cafeteria. It cost $2.50 for a plate of salad, and you can't even go back for more. IMAGINE THAT! $2.50 for a little lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers, carrots and dressing. Only we don't have to imagine this because that is what we are facing.

Now if we were able to go back for more without any extra cost, this might be a reasonable price. But as long as this school is a non-profit organization, it should keep prices on food at the level the items cost.

Approximate wholesale price for one head of lettuce is $3.50, one pound of tomatoes is 50¢, cucumbers cost 40¢ a pound and salad dressing is relatively inexpensive for the amount put on a salad. As far as I can figure, it would take five pounds of salad to justify the $2.50 price. But to be fair, we must include labor costs. How long can it take the salad workers to cut all the salad ingredients and put everything out? Maybe one hour at $2.50 an hour? That means that one salad pays for almost an hour of one person's wage. This price is very hard to accept. It doesn't seem possible for the cafeteria to justify this outrageous price.

Maybe we should boycott the salad bar to get their attention. That would hit them in the pocket.

Sincerely, Royce Earl
Letters cont'd

Dear Editor:

I must say that I was not surprised to see yet another attack upon our college by a number of the students here at Southern College. Personally, I do not habitually read the Waymarks. After all, it is not an official church paper and there is too much good material to read in one's spare time in our denominationally supported papers, such as Ministry, The Review, Insight, etc. But due to the nature of this issue of the Waymarks, I was eager to see how our heretofore unimpeachable Dr. Gulley would stand in the sarcastic eye of Vince Ferrell. What a read spurred this letter to your desk.

Those who feed on theological debate will be left unsatisfied by this letter, for I am not seeking to contradict the theology of the Waymarks, for any senior theologian who has a mind has been clouded by reading such "reputable" material as the SOA Bible Commentary and Questions on Doctrine would not stand a chance of arriving at truth, as defined by Waymarks. But I do think two issues must be raised for the well-being of this God-ordained institution of higher education.

The first issue stems from the remark in the Waymarks that "truth is more important than friendship." This attitude has permeated certain papers, tapes, and lectures, which have given rise to question the integrity of the Bible teachers here at Southern College. That attitude has defiled the spirituality of this campus in the recent years and must be put away if we are going to fulfill our Lord's command to love one another. "Truth" is very important but it is important only as long as it brings souls to The Truth (i.e. Jesus Christ). Even if Dr. Gulley would enter a theological position (not a doctrinal position but a theological position) does that mean he shall no longer be considered a friend? Is that how Christ treated the woman at the well or Nicodemus? Dare I say that Christ even treated Judas with utmost kindness. Without friendships, the evangelistic power of the gospel is lost.

The second issue arises out of the way Waymarks so nicely points out error from truth. If we truly believe that God called out this church in 1844, then should we not submit ourselves to the actions of the General Conference Committee when it is in session? While we are to search the Scriptures and the Spirit of Prophecy for ourselves, should we not submit our personal opinions to those of the church body? I maintain that the fact that Dr. Gulley's manuscript was submitted to the editorial scrutiny of both the Review and the Sabbath School Department of the G.C., and was printed by the church press, would at least suggest that Dr. Gulley's theological position was upheld by the highest levels of our church leadership. As far as I know, the Waymarks does not submit itself to anybody! Now, personally, I don't believe that we should look to the church to replace personal Bible study, nor am I saying that we need to have an agency which decides truth for us. I do suggest that before we make dogmatic statements about somebody else's theology, perhaps we should submit our ideas to the total body of Christ.

Now is a time for unity. Unity in Christ at not in denominational theology. Let us, as a college, resolve to look to Jesus in '83 and not to personalities. Perhaps we can take somebody to heaven with us, regardless of the type of human nature Christ had.

Sincerely,
Les Mathewson

Guitar program expanded

Mr. Greg Bean is a part-time guitar instructor here at Southern College. Although guitar instruction is not new, before Mr. Bean joined the SC staff a year ago, it was taught by Mr. Raphael Neri. Neri was a vocalist and guitarist. As a result, guitar instruction did not receive equal attention. Bean would like to see the program developed to where a degree in classical guitar can eventually be offered.

A degree like this would take four years of full-time study in guitar along with the basic core requirements of music majors and general study. A one-hour recital would also be required during the student's senior year.

Bean believes that society needs musicians and guitarists in a cultural sense. "For people to move and grow into a civilization of society they need a cultural bond. Music, dance, and literature serve this capacity," Bean stated. Aside from this, a guitar is a popular and portable instrument. "A major advantage is that it is its own accompanist," said Bean, "and does not depend on a piano as other instruments do."

Currently for Bean to teach full-time at this college, there would have to be sufficient interest by the students to keep him working 40 hours a week. "I have the time," said Bean, "to teach anyone who wishes to sign up. I am essentially hired by the student." Bean presently teaches on Tuesdays.

Bean's personal goal is to teach full-time at a university, while performing professionally and at other colleges and universities. He will obtain his Master's degree one year from now in December of this year.

It is interesting to note that Bean started out as a Biology major in Washington, D.C. The influence of rock-n-roll took him into music and he studied at UTC. "I have been in a country/rock band," Bean said, "and also worked in a record store for six months. It didn't fit in with my lifestyle, there is too much alcohol and drugs in the rock-n-roll scene. My tastes have also changed since I now prefer classical to rock."

Senate meets

by Page Weemans

The S.A. Senate held its first meeting of the semester on January 10. Joe Robertson, chairman of the Senate called the meeting to order. Senator Candy Natt gave a three minute devotional and began the meeting with prayer.

As parliamentarian, Terry Shaw read over the above excuses of the senators. Robertson warned them that he was no longer going to be "Mr. Nice Guy." The senators took the warning with due seriousness.

Senator Glenn McLeroy presented the Senate Project proposal. The proposed projects are four new IBM Selectric typewriters for student use in the library and more bookshelves in the cafeteria for student use.

Two guest speakers at the Senate were Olsen Perry and Michael Mervinweather of WSU. Their presentation was entitled "WSU: a classical experience." The purpose of their presentation was to get the students more involved and to know what the radio station was all about.

Norma Versen, S.A. Treasurer, presented the budget report to the Senate. Closing the meeting was S.A. President, Alvin Franklin. He addressed the subject of the Ski Day and the upcoming Sweetheart Banquet "the theme," Franklin exclaimed, "will be the ultimate in luxury."
Feedback

Studying can be easier

The Southern Accent begins a new column this week, “Feedback” will be a way that students can get good answers to questions they may have about a school policy, social or personal problem. So if you have a problem or question, send it to “Feedback,” we will get an answer.

"Vacation was great except for one thing—my grades. How can I improve my G.P.A. this semester?"

The way you feel about yourself greatly determines how you will achieve in school or in life. Look at yourself, is important to you? What do you want to achieve? What are your values?

As you think about these questions and the possible answers, remember that when you make any meaningful decisions about your life, it will contain a large amount of faith, commitment, and possibly a lot of hard study.

Next, develop a positive plan of action and set specific goals. When trying to set goals that will lead to success in your academic life, you must take into consideration all your needs and goals. Success in your academic life is not just dependent on how many hours a day you study, but also why do you study? What purpose does learning have for you?

Most students have goals. However, often they are more like wishes than specific plans for accomplishment. If you plan your goals and list them according to priorities, decision-making will become easier. Goals can save time and build self-confidence.

Have you ever noticed that some people seem to have more time for fun things or more time for studying than others? Wrong! Everyone has the same amount of time, so it is just how you schedule your time and whether you stick to the schedule. Try an experiment. For seven days keep track of what you do. Be honest. If you do nothing, show it on the schedule.

When you set up a schedule and stick to it, these are many advantages: it prevents the avoidance of disliked subjects; it gets you started studying; it eliminates the last minute examining because you have already studied the material; it actually makes studying enjoyable; it promotes cumulative review, that is, you can review the material as you go along; you have time for recreation; it helps you stay efficient; and you will find that you have more "free" time.

When you make a schedule, try to make each hour block a productive unit. If you have a recitation or discussion type class, study the new material just before class. That way the material will be fresh in your mind. For a lecture type class, review your lecture notes as soon after the class as possible. This will put the material in a logical sequence in your mind.

Put first things first. List items by priorities. This way you will be sure to get the most important things done first. Discover how long you need to study. The rule of thumb has been two hours of study time for every class hour you take. Find out how long it takes before you can master the material and know your assignments. For every 50 minutes you spend in actual study, allow yourself about 5-10 minutes of break. Most people underestimate how long it should take them to finish a project or long assignment, and they panic. They either do not finish on time, or do a sloppy job.

Any plan to schedule time and activities needs to have a master schedule of fixed activities. This needs to be drawn up just once a semester unless a change occurs in your program. On the left-hand side of a sheet of paper, list the hours of the day, across the top, show the days of the week. Fill in all required school activities first, such as classes, labs, chapel, etc. Second, add other regular activities such as work, sports, or regular meetings. Third, fill in the housekeeping chores such as sleeping, eating, etc. The remaining blank spaces are free for weekly or daily basis. This schedule made on a 3x5 card could be taped over your desk or carried in your notebook. This way it enables you to visualize the blank boxes as actual blocks of time where you may fit in necessary activities or study time.

Some students prefer a detailed weekly schedule using the master schedule. In the blank spaces they can write how they need to study for certain classes, arrange for research time, or even allow extra time for a difficult subject.

Another type of weekly schedule is based on specific assignments rather than the time available. In this schedule the subject, assignment, estimated time needed to complete the assignment, and date due are the headings for the top half of the page. Using the due dates and estimated time as control factors, check the master schedule for available hours. Be sure and allow enough hours to complete the job and write them on the appropriate line on the bottom portion of the weekly schedule sheet. Stick to the schedule. Give study hours top priority. Then, your free hours will be really free.

Keep up with the course work. At the beginning of the semester it seems that things are pretty slow and you have a lot of extra time. Don’t be fooled by this “free” time. If you get behind in your reading or studying, it often seems that you can never get caught up.

Turn in required assignments on the day they are due. Be sure that you have allowed yourself enough time to complete your project or paper. If you cannot be in class to deliver the paper, ask a friend to deliver it for you.

Take good notes both while you are studying and during lectures. This way the material will still be fresh in your mind and you can study those same notes before a test.

The ability to concentrate is one key to success. You really need a place of your own where you do your studying. This could be a particular chair, desk, or even a corner in the library. This place of study should not be used for taking naps or daydreaming. Otherwise you will wake up and daydream instead of studying. You need to have the proper tools for study: textbooks, paper or notebook, pens or pencils, and a good light. There has been much controversy regarding background music. The latest report shows that girls study better with things quiet but boys seem to thrive on a little noise in the background. If the area is too noisy, you should find a quiet place.

The external distractions can be changed, but the internal distractions are more difficult. While this confusion about when to study and which subject to study first can create a negative attitude toward studying, daydreaming is one of the worst time wasters. Periods of problems come in for a close end.

Once upon a time in Fenton Forest there was a colony of bees. This was a rather large colony and a number of young bees had grown up in this one huge hive. One day it was decided to begin a new colony and so a rather large number of young bees decided to follow their queen to a new location and begin the task of constructing a new hive. Now they had a chance to prove that their own queen was better than what the ideas of their parents. Some of the bees had taken geometry at the old hive and even at that time they figured that they knew more than their teachers. They decided that the old way of building and the new way not to build six sides was old-fashioned and they decided that square cells would work just as well and they would use less wax. So they started to work.

It wasn't too long before they learned that the square cells would not hold the weight of the honey and as cells collapsed they began to fight and argue with each other about which design idea it was to build the square cells.

Then one bee who was very smart in geometry said he knew how they could build a very strong hive and in fact it would be stronger than their parents' hive. He suggested that they build the cells in a triangular shape. They all agreed quickly and began the task of building the hive with honey cells in a triangular shape. All went well for a time and the hive was truly strong but it wasn't too long before the queen bee found that she couldn't lay eggs in the cells because they were too small and if they did get any eggs into the cells it was found that the new larvae died in the cells because the cells were too small to allow for the larva to grow.

They decided that the answer was simply to build them larger but when they built them large enough to hold the newly developing bees they found that the sides collapsed. Things were getting desperate at the new hive. They were raising no new worker bees and they were storing no honey for the winter. Months passed and they could come to no satisfactory solution to their problem. A few timid bees suggested that they didn't have such building problems when they were living in their parents' hive. So they suggested that they build the cells like their parents did. Well none of the bees could really remember how that was. They had studied just to pass bee school and with no experience they soon forgot what they had been taught.

Soon the cold of the winter came and with no honey and no place to store honey, the hive quickly ran out of food. They tried to keep the queen alive but with her large appetite and the short supply of honey she soon died and the new beehive died also.

THE MORAL OF THE STORY IS: To survive the winter's life better take a good look at the old hive.

“Ripe for the rumor mill”

Fredrick Koenig is a social psychologist at Tulane University. He has written on a wide range of topics for professional journals and has served as a consultant for major corporations, including McDonald’s and Coca-Cola. The following is from a conversation with an editor of U.S. News & World Report.

Periods of anxiety, tension and sagging economic conditions often lead to a proliferation of rumors. Although the level of rumors now is no as high as in wartime, many people today are distressed because of business failures, unemployment and fear of unemployment. Others are alarmed at what they see as a decline in morals and traditional values. Such an environment is ripe for the rumor mill.

Some people see rumors as a way of structuring or understanding reality. A man who is unemployed and just barely scraping by might well be inclined to believe a rumor—even a false one—about a big company’s product being contaminated. It somehow makes him feel better to see the corporate giant in trouble. He reasons that his best efforts get him nowhere, so the firm must be cutting corners to be successful. By striking out at a big company and denigrating its reputation, he works off some of his anger.

Many unfounded rumors involve alleged contamination. McDonald’s had to fight rumors in 1978, for example, that it put earthworms in hamburgers. The company found that a contributing factor could have been a January, 1977, Reader’s Digest article on worm farms. The story noted that such farms attract animals that love to eat worms and that for such animals it was “a veritable McDonald’s.”

Still other companies have been wrongfully attacked by individuals and some religious groups who allege that the firm has ties with the Church of Satan. Just this year, Process & Industrial Management ran an article that countered a rumor that its symbol, showing a man in the moon and stars, was a sign of devil worship. There has been a report that a company executive had appeared on a TV talk show and admitted that he had contributed money to the Church of Satan. No such appearance ever took place, yet the company this year has had to answer thousands of phone calls and letters on the matter, from consumers.

As for the question of who starts rumors, it’s a mistake to think that there’s a particular person or even a group of persons who compose rumors and spread them systematically. I know of examples of rumors that actually try to trace down the source, hoping somehow to get back to some little guy in a basement with a typewriter. But it is not that simple. Rumors tend to evolve and take on new details as people talk to each other. Still, rumors tend to be circulated by a particular type of person. From our research, we find that the rumor participant—this is, the one who is eager to listen to or pass on a rumor—is usually someone who wants to attract attention. It is usually a person who is on the edge of the group or relatively low in status. For a brief instant—when he circulates a sensational story—he becomes somebody.

Some people argue that rumors proliferate during periods when the media are no longer trusted, such as in times of catastrophe or in wartime when censorship is used extensively. But in ordinary times we have seen instances when the media are used by rumormongers to legitimize ridiculous stories. We have examples of religious groups noting that they heard company executives making comments about devil worship or “1920’s.” “Merv Griffin” or “Phil Donahue”—even though such incidents never took place.

Radio talk shows often are used to spread rumors, particularly when the talk-show host doesn’t have the facts to refute a rumor and simply leaves the question open. There also are all sorts of private newsletters that can be used to pass on rumors. In the Proctor & Gamble case, for example, a newsletter serving distributors of products competing with the PGK line printed the devil-worship rumor but later retracted it.

Still, rumors are a bigger problem in police states and totalitarian societies, where the government controls the media. In such countries, unverified information becomes much more of a part of interpersonal communications because people don’t trust the official source.

The SC Basketball season is now underway and it seems fitting that a prediction be made. Be it known, however, that the individual making the forecast claims no expertise in the sport of basketball, but merely presents his opinion.

Only predictions in "AA" and "A" leagues will be given in this issue, due to lack of familiarity with the women and the "B" leagues. However, coverage will be given those leagues, so ladies and B-leaguers, don't be too upset.

The talk around the gym since "AA" teams were picked is that Vogel has the best team. I feel that this is possibly true, but I disagree with the crowd by saying first place will be a tossup between Vogel and Botimer.

Ron Bunch is the only member of Vogel's team that is an experienced "AA" player. This may prove to be a factor. Then again, maybe not. But whatever the case, Vogel and Bunch will have to produce more than their fair share to win. Botimer, on the other hand, has a little more experience along with two very good and very big men, Bob Mountain and Greg Carlson.

With Vogel and Botimer vying for the top spot, the remaining three places will be filled by Bovell, O'Brien and Koliadko. I have to give third place to Bovell over O'Brien simply because Bovell might have an edge in leadership. The talent level on each team is about the same along with the same level of experience.

Koliadko's team is loaded with jumping jacks but these jumers may have some trouble putting the ball in the hoop, hence, quite a few losses.

In "A" league, the competition will be just as good as in "AA." Possibly one or two teams will be the leaders but the rest will be fairly even.

Glenn Greenlee's team and Al Cain's team look very good. Both have inside strength and outside shooting, so look for them to be at the top of the league. Main players for Greenlee are Lowell, David Ferguson and Jim Dobson. For Cain, Pat Williams and Steve Flynn will be the ones to watch.

The rest of the teams look fairly even, but look for Manzelka, Fitzgerald and Tunnell to lead the pack.

In closing, I would like to urge all students to be participants in the SC Intramurals by coming out and giving support to your favorite team. You might be surprised at how much fun you'll have.

Besides, there's a lot of guys and girls out there who like to show their talents.

College Update

The Pacific Union College Board of Trustees has formed a Presidential Search Committee to find a replacement for PUC President John Cassell Jr. Cassell's resignation takes effect on July 1, 1983. The search committee will review candidates and recommend three to five names to the board to consider at its next meeting on February 23.

A report to the La Sierra campus faculty stated that they have salaries and benefits far below that of their counterparts in other similar universities. The large gap in pay scales among the various college divisions of LLU was cited as a major morale problem. As things stand now, a professor on the Loma Linda campus could draw a salary 40-50% greater than his counterpart at La Sierra.

When CUC students held a peace demonstration at the White House on October 2, Norman Mayer, the man who threatened to blow up the Washington Monument, was there. Mayer said he was so devoted to the anti-nuclear freeze movement because it was right. "That's why I'm doing it." Mayer was shot and killed by police after a 15 hour standoff.
Southern Cynic

It was a glorious Sunday morning, the kind where I didn't have to get up. I stretched, yawned, peeked out at my clock, and rolled over. I had at least another hour before I needed to get up. Perhaps then I'd wander down to the CK for songs opened in hasheowns, and eggs. With these thoughts on my mind, I drifted back into a neverland and was surprised to see myself stressing through the CK door.

“I'd like a strawberry smoothie, an order of hashbrowns and a cheese omelet,” I said, placing my order. No sooner had the words escaped my lips than my eyes fell upon the little sign. It read OUT OF

Strawberries
Cheese
Prosciutto
Hashbrowns
Wheat
Corndogs
Snickers
Chocolate ice cream

I think I went to the VM and bought some breakfast bars. My dream hazed over and suddenly I was at the CK again, hot and tired after watching my boyfriend lose the football game for his team. But before I had a chance to place my order of a Masterburger, Reeses shake, and french fries, I saw the “OUT OF” sign. It read:

Strawberries
Cheese
Prosciutto
Hashbrowns
Wheat
Corndogs
Snickers
Chocolate ice cream

Ski film shown

by Leanne Fusco

“Ski in the Sun,” a Warren Miller film production, was presented in the Southern College gymnasium Saturday night, January 8, as a part of the college’s Entertainment Series.

Splendid photography, excellent music, and humorous narration combined to effectively captivate the audience as it whisked them away to ski resorts all over the world. Austria, France, Switzerland, British Columbia, and New Zealand were some of the many countries portrayed as places where “one is free, free to ‘Ski in the Sun’.”

All aspects of skiing were shown—from the old to the new, the funny to the sad, the fearful to the exciting. The audience skied along with a 95-year-old man and his 57-year-old son, as well as a few of the 1940-50 Olympic champions.

The Junior Winter Olympics were filmed where young skiers, age 15-18, displayed their abilities in hopes of “one day being a part of the U.S. Olympic team.”

Another type of winter champion, according to Mr. Miller, was the ski lift attendant, who must be responsible for keeping “steel from hitting flesh” as skiers bound for the slopes fall off the lift.

The hurt and disappointment of losing in a race or not breaking a record was captured. One short section of the film emphasized the importance and danger of the avalanche patrols, while another showed skiers racing down slopes at 120 miles per hour.

The overall feel of the film, however, was the excitement and beauty of skiing. Everyone can do it and enjoy it.

January is . . .

* Starting all over again;
* Winter in all its manifestations: rain, drizzle, fog, snow, frost, sleet, ice, flooding, and storms;
* Teachers presenting “big plans” for the semester—complete with detailed syllabi, outlines, and handouts (didn't any of them take a vacation at Christmas?);
* Everyone proudly wearing their new jackets, sweaters, skirts, caps, and all the other “practical” Christmas gifts;
* The bare-branched trees silhouetted against the darkening skies waiting patiently for the vitality of life to flow through their systems come Spring;
* Thousands of ducks and geese wading on our lakes, ponds, and estuaries—virtually inviting bird watchers to observe and identify;
* Bird feeders, ski trips, lots of enthusiastic meetings, wood burning ovens blowing away merrily, new calendars, and sweepstakes contests galore;
* And, finally, after a chaotic series of playoff games, the Super Bowl.

Expanding nursing program to begin

Southern College will be expanding its nursing program starting in August. Plans have been announced to offer a two year RN program at the Orlando campus in conjunction with Florida Hospital.

Southern College received approval from Tennessee Board of Nursing on January 14 to go ahead with the program. Response from the Florida Board of Nursing has also been favorable. Ellen Gilbert, chairman of the Division of Nursing, expects the Florida Board to grant full approval by the early part of February.

The new program will start accepting applications in March for the 40 openings in the fall class of 1983. Students will spend both years at Orlando and receive general education instruction in addition to nursing classes.

The expansion program was planned at the request of Florida Hospital. "The percentage of our nurses at Florida Hospital is very low," stated Dr. Frank Knittel, president of SC. "This program will help increase the percentage of Adventist nurses at Florida Hospital and the number of nurses with a Christian philosophy." Presently, only 10-15 percent of Florida Hospital's nurses are Seventh-day Adventist.

Mrs. Gilbert sees some positive aspects to the program.

"Things have fallen into place beautifully. The change will make the Orlando campus more like a college campus. We have an excellent nursing program. We can take what we have developed here and put it to use there."

Peachtree hosts banquet

by Page Weemes

The Student Association announces its upcoming Sweetheart Banquet on February 13 & 14. The location for this event is the Westin Peachtree Plaza in Atlanta.

Standing 73 stories tall, the Peachtree holds the record for being the world's tallest hotel, and is the ultimate in contemporary luxury. The hotel features a lobby with an eight-story atrium, a half-acre lake, and the world's largest tapestry. From the lobby, a short ride in the glass elevator will take visitors to the rotating Sundial Restaurant, where dinner will be served.

This dinner will consist of four full courses, with each table receiving individual service. There will be four different seatings at half hour intervals, starting at 5:30, with the 6:00 seating offering a sunset view.

One unique factor is that flowers will be unacceptable at this banquet. This will be to offset the total expense of the program.

Tickets will go on sale Sunday, Jan. 23, at the Student Center desk and will cost $28.00 per couple. Gentleman will be responsible for invitations and will be able to charge this on their statements.

Transportation will be provided at an additional $8.75, which must be paid in cash. For those using their own transportation, it would be advisable to park across the street from the Peachtree.

Arrangements for pictures have been made with a photographer in Atlanta, who will provide two 5x7s and eight wallet size pictures for $7.25.

To the Student Association Senate, it was voted unanimously that the ladies be responsible for the purchase of any pictures. The pictures may be paid for in advance at the Student Center desk, or at the banquet itself. Faculty and staff, as well as students are all invited.

Student wage increased

by Dick Bira

The Office of Student Employment has announced a wage increase for those students employed by the college.

According to Robert Peake, director of student employment, the college has adopted a job classification system which is similar to that of Princeton University.

Under the new program each department will determine the starting wage of the employee, in reference to the classification of the job. The wage increase is in proportion to the skill and difficulty of the job, the worker's seniority, and the total number of hours worked.

For instance, a secretary will earn a beginning wage of $3.20, compared to $2.85 from the former program. A secretary with two to three years experience could earn as much as $4.10 under the new program.

With the employer's approval, workers, under most classifications, may receive pay raises for every 300 hours worked. The exceptions will be for those who have jobs which allow them to study while they work. Workers under this classification will earn the scale wage of $3.00.

The college believes that the new program will provide added benefits to both the employer and the employee. It will encourage workers to stay with the same job to gain seniority, and will reward them for a job well done.
Election insights

It is hard to believe that another election is almost upon us. Prospective candidates are testing the political waters and considering campaign promises and slogans. And, within ten days, the campus will be covered with flashy posters and smiling people, each urging the students to vote for that person as candidate for the office. For those of you who are considering throwing your hat in the political ring or if you just want to know what your Student Association officers do, read on.

President—The whole weight of student government falls on your shoulders. First of all, the Student Association President needs to co-operate with the faculty. But at the same time, he needs to stand up for student rights. This is a job for which few people qualify.

Vice-President—Persons aspiring for this job need to be able to work closely with the president. This year, the vice-president had the added responsibility of the Senate. Making this organization viable is a job in itself.

Social Activities—A creative mind is a must for this job. The Social Activities director needs to plan all social functions that make sure they go smoothly.

Student Service—For starters, the person elected to this office needs to know how to get to Dunkin’ Donuts to pick up munchkins. But this is only the beginning. A good Student Services officer will make this office much more than cookie breaks.

Southern Memories—The editor of the annual needs a knowledge of layout and design. The ability to organize is vital.

Southern Accent—The editor of the school paper faces long hours, weekly deadlines and the task of keeping the students attentive beyond Southern Cynics and the Classifieds. But the job definitely is interesting. As one former editor put it, “The editor has the privilege of having praise whispered into one ear while obscenities are being whispered in the other.”

Dear Editor,

It has been said that the Student Association isn’t doing the job they should be doing. What exactly should they be doing? Do you know? Let’s have a look into the SA Constitution. In Article I of the constitution we find four statements which establish the purpose of the SA:

1) To promote Christian fellowship and unity between the students, faculty and staff of Southern College within the framework of the principles of God’s Word thus producing a community that graphically demonstrates the character of the infinite personal God through people.

We can see this being done in the respect that much time goes into planning popular activities which are aimed at keeping the young people together. Such activities include skating, movies, skating, and many more that keep us within our own environment.

2) To bring together, under central leadership and direction, various curricular and extra-curricular student activities that contribute to a healthy, growing Christian college community.

College Within a College is a major program designed and promoted by the SA. This program gives the college and its community a chance to reach out and take that which isn’t available in the normal daily school or work schedule.

3) To use the physical, financial, and social potential of such a community to develop an individual and collective Christ-like ministry to others.

The SA has a budget which must be maintained therefore limiting the extravagance of certain activities. Working within the budget requires initiative and originality so that there is not a photocopied plan of activities from the past year or years. The SA is continually thinking up new activities, fund raisers and many various programs which aid in our Christian development.

Joker—The Joker editor’s job consists of working like crazy for several weeks, then taking it easy. The ability to go without sleep for several weeks is a definite plus if you want this job.

If any of these exciting job descriptions turn you on, give it some thought, then go for it. Even if you lose, you will get your picture in the Southern Accent. That makes it worth all the pain.

Frampton to perform

Mac Frampton, well-known classical/pop pianist and arranger, will perform this evening, January 22, at Southern College in Collegedale. Accompanied by Tom Cahill on bass, Frampton’s performances come to a climax with the song, “The Dragon.”

Saturday evening’s concert should appeal to a variety of musical tastes, as Frampton’s repertoire ranges from classical to jazz. He presents music which he describes as “rock alternated with something more for that style.”

When asked to describe and define this style, Mac said, “It’s easier to say what it is not. It’s not rock, it’s not jazz, and it’s not classical, yet it has influences of all three. It has classical discipline, with the freedom of jazz.”

"Look! He’s not a soldier; he’s just a man!"

"You KILLED MY SON."

"Mister—I didn’t mean to."

I mean, I thought he was a bluejay and—"

A gunshot. The startled soldier is thrown backwards as the bullet tears through his flesh. He manages only to gasp once—a hoarse, agonized cry—before he falls in a lifeless heap on the ground.

With an incredibly powerful blend of emotionally gripping scenes like this, extensive choreography, light music and a contempletive SC humor, "Shenandoah" promises to be truly outstanding production.

Judge speaks on bankruptcy

by Leanne Facaribas

The Honorable Ralph Kelley, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge for the Eastern District of Tennessee, addressed a group of students and faculty in Summerour Hall Monday evening, January 17.

At the invitation of Business Law Professor Steve Spears, Judge Kelley, former major of Chattanooga, spoke on current bankruptcy law.

Over 2000 bankruptcy cases were filed in Chattanooga and its surrounding 19 counties in 1982, with more than 2147 of those being filed under Chapter 11 or Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Act of 1978.

When filing under Chapter 11 or 13, a debtor is promising to pay a portion of his debts to all creditors. But Chapter 13 bankruptcy does more than let people go bankrupt and not pay their bills, stated Judge Kelley. As evidence to his statement, over $6.5 million was paid in 1982 to creditors by debtors filed under Chapter 13.

In addition to clarifying the different types of bankruptcy, Judge Kelley explained the importance of a bill under Article 3 of the U.S. Constitution that is currently pending passage by Congress. "Article 3 deals with those judges who exercise the judicial power of the U.S. and will determine the office during good behaviour and shall not have their salaries diminished.

Presently, bankruptcy judges do not come under Article 3, and therefore do not have the authority necessary to make independent decisions. Unless Congress says, ‘You’re under Article 3,’ everyone will question our decisions and appeal... It makes it useless to go down to the courthouse day after day to work on cases until the Congress acts.

Judge Kelley, who was Chattanooga’s mayor from 1963-1969 and who recently declined running for the office again in the upcoming city election, is one of two out of 220 bankruptcy judges who has been invited to Washington, D.C., on February 2, to testify before the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives on the constitution of the law concerning bankruptcy and co Article 3.

When asked why he had decided not to run for mayor of Chattanooga, Judge Kelley explained his concern for those in bankruptcy and how they need someone permanent preceding who is familiar with their situations. His answer was, “I’d feel guilty to walk away now.”

Cafe shows "Hobo" film

by Moni Guestick

The comedy, "The Billion Dollar Hobo," was shown in the College Auditorium Saturday night, January 15. There were two showings at 7:30 and 10:00 to accommodate the crowd.

The basic plot of the movie was that a man who was going nowhere, owned by the heir of a millionaire in the railroad business. But to acquire his fortune he had to become a hobo because that was how the millionaire had begun.

Refreshments of pizza, chips, ice cream and soda pop were available to those who wanted them. The movie proved to be funny and entertaining, providing the audience with an enjoyable evening.

This was the third film this school year.

Campus Capsules

Frances Andrews has been elected to the position of Director of Educational Relations in the Chattanooga Chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators. Miss Andrews helped form a student chapter of the IABC which is composed of 36 paid-up members last year.

Steve Jacobs graduated with a Master of Education with an emphasis in physical education on December 1978 from the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga.

The Orchestra Guild is sponsoring "The Passion Play." The play will be held in the Tivoli Theater on January 24, 25 and 26. Ticket information can be obtained by calling 396-3791.

Ron Carter has presented several Creation Seminars in the Southern Union. Three invitations were extended to Dr. Carter after his December presentation in the Asheville, North Carolina, church.

Mr. Mitchell Tiedel reports that plans are currently in progress for evaluation of SC's two Title II programs—the Teaching Learning Center and Administrative Development. An evaluator has been chosen and will be on campus sometime in March to conduct external evaluation.

Elder Keith Knoche and his wife were guests of Southern College this last weekend, when the couple presented the Friday night program for the students.

Elder Knoch played the guitar and sang original music to some familiar parables, which included "The Ultimate Show." Mrs. Knoche read a few parables, which included some that she had written. One of these was "The Hot Dog Vendor," which was printed in "Night," and another selection was taken from "The Velveteen Rabbit" by Margarite Williams.

Dallas Holm performs in concert

by Dick Bird

"The best thing this world can offer you is a lie, lying well," warned Christian music artist Dallas Holm between songs of his concert held last Friday night in Lee College's Gona Center.

Moments before, a sell-out crowd, comprised mainly of high school and college students cheered as Holm performed many of his hits. Now they listened intently as he told of his conversion experience.

"There is a difference between knowing and believing," Holm said referring to those individuals who claim to be Christians, yet do not have a personal relationship with the Lord. "I was from a Christian home, yet, Christians made me nervous," said Holm. "They were always trying to get me saved." Little did he know that God would soon call him to service. Then it happened—on October 17, 1965, Dallas Holm became a disciple of Jesus Christ. No more riding the fence. No more of that nervous feeling when around Christians, for now he was a child of the King. "It was the best thing I ever did," said the talented musician.

In the months following his conversion, Dallas Holm organized a musical group that sang in jails, rest homes, and small churches. According to Holm "It was something I could do, and it is what I did best. I needed to do it for the Lord.

Holm feels that there is a great deal of truth to the Bible principle that if God can trust man with little things, He can trust him with big things. The success he has experienced didn’t happen overnight. It took a great deal of Bible study, prayer, and waiting upon the Lord.

Holm believes that the Christian cannot continue to grow spiritually without daily prayer and Bible study. "We communicate with God in prayer," stated Holm, "but it through the Bible that we can hear God speaking to us."

During an interview with the Southern Accent later that evening, Holm was asked if his group was criticized for the style of music they perform. Surprisingly, they have encountered little opposition because they are concerned with ministering, rather than entertaining. "We’re kind of an awkward position," stated Holm. "I’d say we’re on the Contemporary side of middle-of-the-road. Compared to some of the contemporary hard groups, we’re pretty watered down. To some of the people who are more interested in traditional styles, they think we’re rock-and-roll."

Having received national recognition for the release of his powerful song "Rise Again", Holm has received no fewer than five Dove Awards. His credits include Dove Awards for "Best Male Vocalist," "Album of the Year," "Best Mixed Group of the Year," "Song of the Year," and "Songwriter of the Year."

HOLM and his group "Praise" are presently working on their newest record, which they plan to release this spring.

An accomplished composer, Holm spoke of his experience writing the title song of the album "I Saw the Lord." "It has devoted many weeks to eternal things, the words came to mind as he and his wife Linda drove to Dallas. "Though it wasn’t a vision as such," said Holm, "I had a mental image just in the thought processes of what the moment (Christ’s coming) would be like."

It was very similar to the experience he had while writing "Rise Again." On few occasions he had been encountered such a revelation.

Holm has recently completed a song which tells of some of the drawbacks of being a travelling music-minister.

Road life is, at times, difficult for Dallas Holm and Praise, yet their feelings could be best be expressed in his new song "Hitchin’ the Road;" But you (Christ) left heavens for me. Hit the roads and shores of Galilee. Give yourself at Calvary. So I got a go and tell ‘em what you’ve done for me.

Woods Talk Dave Mathewson

Compared to populations in other southeastern states, Flori- da’s Bald Eagle (Haliaeetus leucocephalus), is doing well. While fewer than 20 active nests occur throughout the rest of the southeast, well over 200 breeding pairs successfully nest in Florida each year. In 1981, 359 pairs established nesting territories, with 236 of those nesting and producing 369 young. Considering the known number of breeders and the probable number of subadults (eagles do not mature until 4 years of age), Florida’s total eagle population probably exceeds 1,500 birds.

The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission has been conducting annual aerial surveys of the state’s eagle breeding population since 1973, and results of those surveys to date, although still inconclusive, at least indicate the population is either fairly stable or declining slowly in number. Threats to bald eagles in Florida include land development projects which encroach on nesting territories, illegal shooting and human disturbance around active nests.

Bald eagles use the same nest year after year, or they may have two nests for use in alternate years. Each year they add on to the existing one. A new nest will measure about five feet outside diameter by two feet in height. One nest observed in Charlotte County, Florida, was about eight feet wide at the widest point and almost 11 feet high, the product of many nesting seasons.

In Florida eagle laying begins in December and January, while up north in Tennessee a little later in March and April. The eggs number on the average two, rarely are three produced. These are laid at intervals from three to four days. The eggs are usually small for such a large bird. The egg is rough or coarsely granulated. They are dull white and unmarked. Incubation is by both adults, taking about 35 days.

Anderson to speak

Lee Anderson will be the second speaker in the E.A. Anderson Lecture Series.

Lee Anderson is editor of the Chattanooga News-Free Press. He joined the newspaper as a cub reporter at the age of 16, while a junior at Chattanooga High School. He worked at the newspaper while completing high school and graduating from the University of Chattanooga, with time off for World War II military service as an Air Force aviation cadet.

He is active in civic affairs, has won 16 Freedoms Foundation awards (including the 1979 award for top editorial in the nation) and other recognition for his editorials, along with the Chattanooga Bar Association’s Liberty Bell Award and the Sertoma lab’s Freedom Award.

He is a retired major in the Army Reserve. He is an older and Sunday school teacher at the First Presbyterian Church. He is married and has two daughters.
The noise of the bus was all I heard as the engine roared and the driver went through the gears accelerating down the road toward Port of Spain, Trinidad. I was visiting my wife's parents in Trinidad and we were going on an excursion into Port of Spain on the bus. Given the heavy traffic and the fact that the bus traveled on a special road, the trip to the capital city would take only about 15-20 minutes. I looked around at the passengers, seeking to take in all the different sights and sounds that confront one in a country one has never visited before.

Everyone was quiet—only the sound of the engine could be heard. As everyone looked straight ahead—lost in their own world of thoughts. No doubt many were thinking about what errands they had to do in the city. It was rather like the experience of riding an elevator. Everyone is quiet, looking at the closed elevator door or the floor numbers as they flash by, and you feel a bit embarrassed talking to anyone.

I gave my seat to a woman who entered the bus and from my standing position I could see other clearly the sights out of the window as we sped through the countryside. Suddenly the silence of my reverie was broken. "Greetings, friends!" a woman seated directly behind my wife spoke in clear ringing tones. "I am glad to be able to talk to all of you today." What is going on? Doesn't this woman feel any embarrassment at invading the private sound space of everyone on the bus? "Today I want to tell you about how Jesus Christ died for you. Hello, hello!" she continued with measured voice.

I looked around to observe the reaction of other passengers. Most portrayed no reaction whatsoever and appeared totally oblivious to this impromptu sermon. There was one young man just one step from me who did seem to squirm a bit as she continued. "The Bible is the book all need to read. It tells us to repent from evil ways and to turn from sinful lives." She rarely paused for a moment. It was as if she were reading a script though there was none.

Without hesitation she continued to quote scripture and appeal for changed hearts as the bus rolled into Port of Spain. I found nothing in what she said I could disagree with.

Is this some custom in this country? I thought as I continued to observe the lack of audience response to her reminiscences. The bus rolled to a stop to pick up more passengers as the voice of this woman continued to roll through the bus. A woman got on the bus who was not prepared to listen to a sermon and so as the call for repentance from drunkenness was heard, she made a humorous remark to the stranger that she had just taken a seat by. Laughter rippled from the front of the bus. Other disapproving remarks followed and more laughter came from the front of the bus as other passengers joined in. It was as if some of the tension was broken and other passengers now felt free to speak up. The young man close to me who had seemed a bit tense and nervous as the words of the sermon reached his ears began to relax and laugh at the jests and jokes that were being made about the lady and her sermon.

Not oblivious to the remarks being made about her the content of the sermon shifted to focus on "sins that would make fun of the Gospel and who are world of others." The level of laughter and ridicule increased as we pulled into the destination bus stop in Port of Spain. The lady who had entered the bus to be greeted by the impromptu sermon and the sermonizer got into a bit of argument as they exited the bus. The one feeling that she was being unjustly accused of being full of sin by the other.

And so we made our way through the streets of Port of Spain and I wondered about communicating the Gospel about witness.

Today I think of Jesus' last words to his disciples, "You will be my witnesses" (Acts 1:8), and I hear the voice of the angel speaking to Peter, "Go, stand in the temple courts, and tell the people the full message of this new life." (Acts 5:20) And I hear the Lord tell Paul (Acts 18:9), "Do not be afraid; keep on speaking, do not be silent. For I am with you."

And I wonder.

CWC starts

College Within A College has been established to provide students, faculty, staff, and the community with educational opportunities in various subject areas. It is a two-year educational experience, where 20 CWC units equal one (1) hour of college credit. Only four semesters, or eighty units, can be applied toward graduation. Attendance and participation are required for CWC credit.

There is no basic charge for each course. Depending on the subject, there may be a charge for the materials used. This must be paid in cash before credit can be given. There will also be a $5.00 charge for putting the CWC credit on your transcript.

The instructors can be from the faculty, the student body, staff, or surrounding community, as long as they have the specific knowledge for that particular subject. CWC is financed and operated by the Student Association, but since it is not enough to cover the costs of running the college, the governing board in the Academic Affairs Committee.

Basketball heats up

With basketball season just over a week old SC has already seen some excellent competition in all leagues. In AA every team has at least one loss which is very unusual for so early in the season. Top rated Vogel fell last Wednesday to Obrian’s team, Obrian leading the way with a near flawless 43 point performance. After the relatively easy victory over Vogel it appeared that Obrian had the team to beat. But he lost to Botimer on Saturday night leaving Botimer’s team at 2-0. Dreams of an undefeated season for Botimer ended with a 10 point loss to Vogel on Sunday. Vogel contributed 31 points to lead his team to victory, while Botimer scored 21 points for the losers. In other AA league action, Bovell was involved in two close decisions, losing by two points to Vogel, and edging out Koliadko, making his record 1-1.

In A league only Cain and Manzella were undefeated through Sunday, the 16th. Cain beat Johnson quite handily and then edged a 1 point victory over Greenlee. Manzella defeated Dubois and Fitzgerald with Manzella himself scoring 19 and 23 points respectively to lead his team. Only Dubois and Greenlee are winless, Dubois’ team being racked with injuries, and Greenlee missing key guard Jim Dobsoo due to work schedule.

In B league Gregory, Moore, and Duff are leading the league, all undefeated. The women’s league is led by Abbott and McQuistan both with 24-0 records. Keys to both teams’ victories have been their balanced scoring, with Tamara Nafie and Loretta Moser the leaders for McQuistan.

Southern Cynic
by Victor Czerkasj

Making my monthly pilgrimage up to the Accent office for the staff meeting, I found only Ken, the editor, there. "Where is everybody?" I asked. "Oh, he shrugged, "They knocked off for the weekend. The reporters just handed their stories in. Want to read a few?" He handed over a sheaf of papers. The headlines sounded dubious. "Food Found in C.K." "Dean Evans Swears Off Golf for One Week." "Mercerian Book Scam Uncovered." Actually, that last one just might be good stuff.

"What else is new? Ken?" "Well," he yawned, "we've just finished tallying up last semester's Accent poll. You remember. We asked the students what their favorite Accent feature was. I picked up. This should be easy—a breeze. "So, what were the results, Rozell old boy?" "Well..." he hedged. Aw, come Ken. How high did the Cynic score?" He cleared his throat. The number one feature (drumroll), with over 1,500 votes (knaved), was Garfield (cymbals?). But don't worry—you got four votes. There look like your handwriting, though." Lindy, I snatched his tally sheet. It was clear: Garfield was No. 1. Why that obnoxious orange ball of fun?" "Say," asked Ken, "I wonder who gave you that one vote not in your hand? I didn't see you using my other hand." I snapped. Ken tried to console me. "Hey, don't take it so hard. Here, take a look at some manuscripts I'm writing. This one should be good: "My Brush With The Law: The Greg Wheeler Story." I give another: "Drama in Real Life: Four Years in Collegedale." Good reading, huh?"

Ignoring him, I tried to figure out a strategy. "Look, Rozell, this paper isn't big enough for the both of us. Either he goes, or I go." "Well Vic, I guess this is goodbye." Amazed, I shrieked, "Why can't he go?" Is a steady voice he told me. "Do you have claws? Look, why don't you invite him over for dinner. Maybe you can discuss this man to cat," "If I weren't a veg, I'd have him over as dinner." "'C'mon Vic, I'll call him now, alright?" "Alright!" His limo parked out front, I greeted him at the door. I shook his paw vigorously. "An honor, Mr Garfield, a real honor." Yep, I could feel those claws. "Please step inside Mr. Garfield. Would you care to use a litter box? You must be tired after your top." With a bored look, he said, "No thank you, I brought some extra copies of your articles." I tried to change the subject. "I didn't know what you'd like, so I got a little of everything. Chef's Blend? Craw? Purina?" He stared. "I WANT LASAGNA! "'But I don't have any!' "Then," he flicked his tail, "I'm leaving." Now I was MAD. "Listen fido, I might as well set you free. Out of the Accent. You've got every paper in the country, but the Accent's mine." He snickered. Maybe I should insult him. "You look pretty stupid with half-closed eyes." "You look pretty stupid with four. Hmm, that didn't work. Maybe I'll intimidate him. "Who's ever seen an orange cat?" "Who's ever seen a Ukrainian?" This cat really belts them low. Maybe I should scare him. "Wanna start losing nine lives?" He stretched and his claws made hissing noises as they clicked out: "O.K." Terrified, I got on my knees. "Please, Mr. Garfield, won't you at least stay off my page?" With a benevolent look, he nodded. "I'll talk to Jon and Odie." Relieved, I showed him to the door. As his limo drove away, I couldn't help but think of 101 uses for a dead cat, Vol. II.

BOOMS TALKED TO HIS ADMINISTRATION TO BUILD A NEW BOMB, IT IS A NEW EXAMPLE OF THE PROBLEMS WE FACE. THE ADMINISTRATION HAS NOT BEEN ACCURATE IN ITS ASSESSMENT OF THE SITUATION.
Senate votes project

The 8th Senate meeting of the school year was characterized by lively discussion on many topics. Brent Van Arsdell opened the meeting with an interesting devotional. Senate excused absence requests from several senators, then Joe Robertson read a veto from SA President Alvin Franklin of Reg Rice’s absence from last week. Senator Rice was excused from the senate for a basketball game. The senate did not override the veto.

Lori Coston gave the second reading of the Senate Project. The original proposal called for the purchase of four IBM Selectric typewriters at $828 each, the installation of a water fountain by the tennis courts for $900, and the installation of more bookshelves for the cafeteria at the cost of $400.

Senator Coston added that the sale of old typewriters would bring in $550 and with the addition of the $400 budgeted for the senate project, this would be within $62 of the budget.

Mike Palagrove moved that the Senate list the priorities in which the projects should be executed. Palagrove suggested that the typewriters be the first priority, shelves second, and water fountain third.

The senator then gave much discussion about the priority system. Vice-President Joe Robertson suggested that the Senate consider adding ceiling fans to the Senate project. J.T. Shim, the sponsor of the water fountain bill, questioned why the report was being challenged. Despite the opposition of Shim and others, an amendment to add the ceiling fan and make it a higher priority than the water fountain passed 11 to 9, with two senators abstaining. The original motion, with the attached amendment, passed 12 to 9, with one abstention.

Terry Shaw read proposed changes in the SA Constitution. The major changes, focused on the percentage of signatures necessary for a recall election from 7 percent to 15 percent of the voters.

The new constitution was accepted unanimously by the Senate.

Mark Bolton next presented the election committee report on suggested changes in the Elections Manual. Bolton briefly discussed some of the changes before a discussion on some aspects of the manual divided the Senate into a few small ad hoc committees. The main changes in the manual concern the qualifications for the SA Senate. The 9/16 week attendance requirement at SC was dropped as was the necessary GPA.

The biggest change came in the way the general elections will be held. In the past, if more than 2 people were running for a job and one person did not receive the required percentage of the vote, runoff elections were held. As it stands now, primary elections will be held to decide the qualifiers for the general election. One interesting twist has been added. The results of the primaries will be known only to the SA President, the Vice-President, and the SA sponsor.

After more discussion on the subject, Ken Bradley made a motion to accept the Elections Manual, while tabling a report on special elections which conflicted with the just passed constitution.

J.T. Shim presented a short report on coming changes in the phone system, and Joe Robertson closed the meeting with a reminder of the Valentine’s Banquet coming up and asked the senators to promote the event as much as possible.

Church officials to be disciplined

“I am with regret that I make this report,” Elder Neal Wilson, President of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists said in response to the release of the President’s Review Commission Report. “It is one of the most heart-breaking things I have been called upon to share with our people.”

The commission investigated and reviewed transactions between the SDA church and Donald Davenport. They found that in most cases, when church entities were owed money by Davenport at the time he went bankrupt, church policy had been broken. In all, 163 names were reviewed in such areas as conflict of interest, dishonesty and incompetence.

The report and the subsequent investigation may have far-reaching consequences for the church. The Southern Accent has learned that at least five Union Conference Presidents have been cited for discipline and will be interviewed concerning their involvement in the Davenport affair.

A number of other church officials will also be interviewed and be subject to discipline ranging from a private letter of administrative disapproval and caution to termination of denominational employment and possible revocation of ministerial credentials.

At this time, no names have been released. Sources estimate that it may be as long as two months before a list of persons receiving various kinds of discipline will be released. General Conference officials, however, refused to be quoted. One man said, ‘You’ll find out all about it in the Review when it comes out.”

Former Miss America to speak

Internationally known motivational expert Marilyn Van Derbur will speak today during chapel and tonight for the E.A. Anderson Lecture Series. Ms. Van Derbur received the 1990 Speakers Hall of Fame Award and has been named “Outstanding Woman Speaker in America.” Her lecture tonight is “You Can Do It...!!!”

Ms. Van Derbur’s public career began when she was selected as Miss America. Since then she has hosted 23 network television specials on CBS and NBC and has spoken to business and educational groups throughout the country. In 1981 she produced eight 30-minute motivational films which have been shown throughout North America at business and civic meetings and conventions.

Head of her own company, the Marilyn Van Derbur Multi-Media Institute, Inc., Ms. Van Derbur presents expert advice on motivation applicable to a variety of endeavors.

The program will be held at 8 p.m. this evening in the Thatcher Hall Chapel. This is the third meeting of the E.A. Anderson Lecture Series.
Letters

Dear Editor,

Last week as silent, white snow covered our campus, the thought of a Thatcher-Talige snowball fight seemed like a great idea. Well it was until it got started. From that moment on, there occurred a strange metamorphosis. The silent snow mixed with the excitement of the night and created within the attending students a wild rage. Yes, our very own Southern College students became like seven-year-old children during recess. In their rage of immaturity, they bombarded the front of Thatcher Hall as if it were the walls of the Kremlin. With careful aim, windows were broken, people injured, and soon the whole scene looked like a riot. An innocent snowball fight is one thing, but an all-out iceball war is another.

When the S.A. tried to serve hot chocolate, the mob carelessly fed ice balls into the crowded area. The cups that were set up for the hot chocolate, intended for the snowballers, became easy targets until they fell to the ground.

The purpose of this letter is to remind my fellow students that we cannot expect to gain or keep the respect of the Administration as mature college students if we are unable to control ourselves in such a small situation as an innocent snowball battle.

Sincerely,
Joe Robertson

Frampton performs

by Moni Geanick

The Mac Frampton Trio performed at Southern College January 22. The concert began at 8:00 p.m. in the P.E. Court. Frampton surrounded his own excellent performance on the piano with two very gifted vocalists: Arthur Montgomery, his percussionist, and Tom Cahall, his string bass player who also played the tuba.

The evening started off with a fast-paced vivacious number and continued with such pieces as "I Write the Songs," "Mellow Park," and "Rhapsody in Blue." A favorite composer and performing artist of Frampton is Melissa Manchester. He played several of her pieces including "Come In From the Rain," and "Don't Cry Out Loud."

Frampton, Cahall and Montgomery have been performing together for almost ten years, since they met back in college. Traveling and performing is just what Frampton has always wanted to do. "I'm happy with what I'm doing," Frampton said. "It isn't all fun and games, but it is all worth it, to do exactly what I want. There is a great amount of freedom as well as satisfaction gained from my present lifestyle."

Frampton has put out five albums: Ivory Roads, Mac, Classic Dimensions, The Best of Both Worlds, and one cut in 1973 that is no longer in circulation. Presently he is working on a gospel album and hopes to produce a new wave album in the future.

Frampton's concert was received with a very positive attitude. He put everything into his performance and demonstrated a skill and versatility that was described as absolutely phenomenal. Student, Gerald Kwolski, summed it up very well when he said, "It was excellent."

Elections are scheduled

All prospective candidates for the 1983 Student Association elections must have their candidacy applications in by noon on Friday, January 28. Applications are available at the Student Association office.

Candidacy meetings will be held on February 3. Tentatively, the primary elections are planned for February 8. This election will narrow the field of candidate to two for each office. The general election is planned for February 10.

The PUC will soon be running KPRN, the college radio station, and may be giving it a new name. The station will have an evangelistic and educational format for the first time in its 21-year history. The station will probably be run by student taskforce workers with only two full-time employees.

The Student Movement, Andrews University student newspaper was criticized for allegedly bias reporting of an incident where an Andrews University security guard was charged with the rape and battery of an Andrews student. The officer said the girl became drunk at the squad car.

Union College opening of an ice skating rink has been a success. The opening day attendance was 300 while chocolate, intended for the snowballers, became easy targets until they fell to the ground.

The purpose of this letter is to remind my fellow students that we cannot expect to gain or keep the respect of the Administration as mature college students if we are unable to control ourselves in such a small situation as an innocent snowball battle.
The Fools

Tick me off! Dallas Cowboy fans are some of the most furniture obnoxious people in the world. They go around chanting "We want Washington, We want Washington." Then, after they got Washington, the Redskins beat Dallas so bad that it made their heads spin. After the humiliating defeat the Redskins handed the Cowboys, Dallas fans publicly recalled past games in which Dallas beat the Redskins. They also claimed that if their quarterback hadn't been hurt, they would have won the game. Where did this Cowboy fan phenomenon get its start? Well, one day an obnoxious fool started a football team called the Cowboys. This team was not brand new and didn't have any fans so that same obnoxious fool called on his only friend (who also was an obnoxious fool) to spread the word about the Dallas Cowboys to all of his friends. Needless to say, all of this man's friends were obnoxious fools. These new fans (fools) spread the word to their friends who (you guessed it) were also obnoxious fools. By this time there were many obnoxious fools in the country. So many, in fact, that people began calling the Cowboys "America's Team." The little children of all those obnoxious fools wore t-shirts that said "WHEN I GROW UP I WANT TO BE LIKE DAD, A FOOL-I MEAN A COWBOY FAN."

How have Cowboy fans changed the course of history? If you remember your history, you'll recall that it was a Cowboy fan from Texas who shot President John F. Kennedy. And two days later it was another Cowboy fan from Texas who shot the man that shot President Kennedy.

Have you ever wondered whether or not it was just coincidence that Kennedy was shot in Dallas? Well, it seems that the President was in Dallas for a very big game between the Washington Redskins and the Dallas Cowboys. It was November and nearing playoff time and this was a very critical game for both teams. Now, as everyone knows, the White House is located in Washington D.C. so the President was a big Redskins fan. After the game, which the Redskins won quite handily, an enraged Cowboy fan, who felt that a man of President Kennedy's stature should himself be a Cowboy fan, and was seeking revenge on the President, shot him. Later on that day, yet another Cowboy fan made history by taking that oath of office to replace Kennedy. And what did this Cowboy fan do? He got us into the Vietnam war, of course. It took a hot-tempered crook from San Clemente to get us out of that one.

Recently, you may have seen signs advertising a fad coin for those people who would like to be fans of the fools (the Cowboys). No, thank you. I will not be a fan of an obnoxious fool.

Circus comes to town

The circus is coming! That's right. For three days and only six performances, the world-famous Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus will entertain children and adults alike in the UTC arena on February 18-20.

For the first time in 25 years, the circus will attempt to prove its "Greatest Show on Earth" claim to Chattanooga residents. The show will open with the world's greatest animal trainer, Gunther Gebel-Williams, and his 19 Bengal tigers.

The Pink Panther has joined the circus and will be appearing on stilts and anything else he can manage to bungle. The Carrillo Brothers will walk the highwire, the Flying Espans will somersault through the air, and Dolly Jacobs, America's Sweetheart of the Circus, will perform on the Roman rings. Dozens of clowns and beautiful dancing showgirls will cap off this gala edition of the circus. Those who have never experienced The Greatest Show on Earth and those who want to see it every year will be pleased with the show that Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey have brought to town.

Tickets are available at all UTC ticket outlets, and range from $6 to $8. For SC students, show times are Saturday night, Feb. 19, at 7:30, and Sunday, Feb. 20, at 1 p.m. and 6 p.m.

Loneliness: It can be cured

Dear Feedback,

No matter what I do, I always seem to be lonely and depressed. I try to be friendly but nothing seems to work. What can I do?

Loneliness is an attitude of mind more than it is a situational malady. The attitude is: no one cares for me. Everyone has his life, and I'm left out. It is quite possible for people to feel lonely and emotionally isolated even in a crowd. Loneliness can happen to anyone who feels left out, rejected, or not wanted.

Loneliness can be evidence of hidden anger. The lonely person usually explains his feelings as, "No one cares for me. I try to make friends, but I fail. People ignore me. Everyone has his own friends."

The underlying problem is that the person is not aware that he is angry. This anger blinds him from reaching out and making friends.

Loneliness can be acute or chronic. Acute loneliness happens with an immediate emotional need for love which is not met. When it is met, the loneliness goes away. Chronic loneliness is a state of mind. It underlies most relationships.

“A man that hath friends must show himself friendly” (Proverbs 18:24). The lonely person finds it very difficult to show himself friendly because he is hostile, but many times not aware of his anger. If he can become aware of this anger and try to overcome it, he will no longer be lonely. If he can admit to his anger, either by talking with someone he can trust or writing out his feelings, he is on his way to recovery.

Some guidelines for friendliness are:

1. Expect to have enemies—don't be discouraged and quit being friendly simply because there are those who stand against you.
2. Be real in your relationships—no role playing, get your heart right and real with God and man.
3. Don't look for perfect people—remember that just as God is not through with you, He is not through with others.
4. Share the positive—gloom and misery only intensifies your own loneliness.
5. Do something that will give a feeling of achievement—master a craft, etc.
6. Make more social contact—find a hobby or join a club to further an interest. Team sports might be what you need.
7. Spend time with someone who will appreciate your caring. Help a disabled child or adult.
8. Assess your loneliness honestly. You will very likely discover that it exists only in your head.
9. Begin an attitude development plan in which you practice enjoying everything you do.
10. Take time for beauty. Forget your schedule and stop for a moment to contemplate a great painting or watch young children at play.
11. Refuse to use up a present moment in a hostile argument. When you decline to argue with someone, you teach him that you have too much respect for yourself to engage in petty bickering.
12. Treat yourself and everyone you encounter as whole people. Accept and enjoy people just as they are.

True friends are priceless treasures. They are deterrents to loneliness. The greatest friendship we can have is that between a person and the Lord. God can add to any life the treasure of friendship. If you are tired of your loneliness, first become better acquainted with God and let Him enrich your life and benefit from knowing Him.

Larrabee interns

Jon Larrabee, a senior communication student at Southern College of Seventh-day Adventists (TN), has been named to an internship in "Philanthropy and Communication" with the Tennessee/Kentucky region of Adventist Health System/Sunbelt Health Care Corporation (AHS SHCC).

Larrabee previously worked as administrative assistant and on-air host for WSME-FM, the college-owned radio station. Other experience includes a broadcast internship with WTVCTV in Chattanooga, and the editing of the 1982 college student directory, Joker.

Working under Donald Self, Regional Director of Development for AHS/SHCC, Larrabee will conduct development research, produce a series of development oriented pamphlets, and assist in other areas as needed.

"My two main goals," says Larrabee, "are to help Mr. Self with his development and public relations work in the region, and to expand my experience in these areas."

According to Self, Larrabee's appointment establishes the first internship of this kind within the Adventist Health System. Through this program, Self hopes to contribute to the practical education of future P.R. Development employees, while accomplishing specific projects of benefit to the system at large.
TONY PASILLAS: We were teaching our 6 p.m. classes when all of a sudden the lights went out (a frequent occurrence in Bandung). Gary and I decided to teach some songs and finally joined our two classes Sunday. And Mary had a Little Lamb and You Can Smile. The Lord gave me a flash of insight, so I explained how the convinced rhyme Mary Had a Little Lamb pointed to Jesus. (I'd never thought of it before!) Later after class, a student came to me and wanted to talk about a problem he had been off drugs for two weeks and he couldn't sleep at night. So I told him like Jesus could help him and shared some Bible promises. We then prayed. These Indonesian people are wonderful. I wish you all could be here, Praise God, He has a place for me here!

CHERIE BROWN: Two of my Bible students really need your prayers. One is Maria, an older lady who really knows her Bible, yet goes to church only at Christmas. Just recently she has been totally convinced that Saturday is the Sabbath, and yet she just can't seem to make the switch. The second one is Christopher, a Catholic who is beginning to have questions about some of the teachings of the Catholic Church. He never reads his Bible, and yet now he has started to become interested in doing so. I'd really appreciate your prayers for them—and me.

GRETCHEN MADDOCK: Life in the city is great. I love this place. This second term things seem a lot more organized and we seem to know what we're doing and what and how to expect. We have one fantastic retreat at Ayer Beach. The Lord spoke through Elder Don Williams (Far Eastern Academy pastor and Bible teacher). My English classes are great, and after only three weeks, I love them all. We have started our first series of meetings which take a lot out of the weekends, but the Lord really blesses. Some SM's left for home and it was hard saying goodbye. I can't imagine what it is going to be like to leave this place. But I can't think in those lines for I have 8 more months! Everyone take care. Keep writing—love your letters!

DE ANN BARNETT: School began with the closing of a door and 21 small faces watching me. At times I wish they could understand me better, but I kindergarteners they are catching on fast. I'm also catching on to the fact that I need an open line to God at all times. It was raining outside one day, so all the flies had taken refuge in my classroom and the children were very distracted. We had a special prayer that the flies not bother the kids. From then on the only ones pestering my interpreter and myself, the children were finally able to concentrate. Praise the Lord for small miracles. The Lord has given me the patience I needed. These kids squirm a lot, but I love them.

KEVIN COSTELLO: Since this is the first report that we SM's from Majuro have had to fill out, I figure a brief report on this island might be in order, Majuro, the capital of the Marshall Islands, is located about 2,000 miles southwest of Hawaii, about 78° north of the equator. Our island is part of an atoll, built up by coral and sand. The climate, of course, is tropical. The island itself is about 30 miles long and in some places only a few feet wide. Upon first arrival, thoughts of aloofness are ever present. However, since then, I've been too busy about it and thus am cured! The economic situation is relative cool to an American, quite rare. In comparison to a refugee camp in Thailand or somewhere, this would seem nicely normal. I have to hear, Tony, Gretchen, Cherie and the rest from SMC)

ORLINDA DEGRAW: Being a graduate of SMC hasn't exempted me from typical SM problems! Having to repeat things over and over is just one problem the Lord solved for me—with a good case of laryngitis. I learned more patience, and I learned to listen—to my 29 fifth graders and to my Lord. One day I had a real bummer. It began when I left out an entire line in my daily text as I wrote it on the board. Add 20 extra energetic fifth graders, clean laundry bunched in a mangled pile atop the dryer, a fight between a brother and sister ending with a sock and blood all over from her forehead. Then, when I'd just had enough all I could handle and the bell was to ring soon, a boy suddenly got sick all over the classroom floor! Difflent earnest prayer and a most understanding friend were my answers. Never give up, Jesus is coming.

CAROLYN SCHOONOEVER: Three hours after arriving in Majuro, I headed for the beach with DeAnn and Orinda. My visions of a Pacific Paradise were a bit startled by the scattered trash, but I still thought it pretty nice. My excitement grew as we satcked among the tropical fish and coral. Then I happened to glance back at the beach... and shrieked! Two huge pigs were wading at the water's edge. "Orindal!" I gasped. "There are pigs here!" Orinda, a Malin in her twentys of one week merely shrugged and said, "Don't worry, they're friendly." (Hardly my priority too!) Yet in my first case of culture shock. Since then I've grown to love Majuro and even take the pigs for granted. I've also discovered that instead of me doing something for God, it's God who is doing great things for me. Teaching here is definitely a unique experience. Probably my most memorable day occurred two days after the elementary kids received deworming medication. I was complimentarily teaching math when suddenly someone shrieked, "Miss Schoonoever! A snake!" Turning, I saw Joe sitting upright in his chair, both hands clamped tightly over his mouth, eyes wide with shock. There on his desk, still writhing, lay an eight-inch white worm... Well, on those days when the kids drive you crazy, remember that they who wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary...

These SM's would love to hear from you. Check the SM board in the Student Center for addresses.

Attention!!

The Southern Accent is once again sponsoring a Super Bowl contest. If you would like to enter, put what you guess to be the final score on a slip of paper and place it in one of the Accent’s mailboxes by 3 pm on Super Bowl Sunday, January 30. Be sure to print legibly both team names, their scores, and your name and room number.

The answer closest to the final score will win a five dollar gift certificate at the Campus Shop, and second place will win two CK milkshakes.

Well! My favorite time of year, or one of them, is upon us. This is that wonderful season where almost a dozen students suddenly raise their grades to the point where they feel like they are doing well, only to falter once the semester ends. Besides, who really needs that much back in the fall, anyway.

The Latin term, I believe, to express this condition is excessively elective; however, the less educated among us simply refer to the season as "selective weeks." Now, a whole week devoted to study political activities can raise all kinds of possibilities. As fellow students of the aspiring candidates, it is our job and responsibility to test the sincerity of these people. Sort of find out what a couple of votes are worth to them.

The situation offers some fantastic business opportunities; if you don't believe me, write to Victor Chenault. He's not really as dumb as he sounds in his column.

Of course I must acknowledge those who wish to be in the public eye for a year. Before you people start your campaign, though, you might wish to consider some of the other offices, the ones you don't hear about too often. For instance: O.P.C. The Official Preppie Checker. This person must attend anything the president and vice-president do to make sure they are dressed appropriately. If he spots a fox anywhere on his campus, he must shoot it.

C.I.A. The Cookie Insurance Army. Four people occupy this position and their sole duty is to insure the delivery of munchies for cookie breaks. They also have to devise ways to keep their closest competitor down the road out of their territory. The C.I.A.'s main complaint last year was that this competition used false advertising, they put pictures of girls on their products but on the inside all that was found was a cookie. This job is quite interesting. A.B. Alarm Repeater. Though the job definitely has advantages, it also has its drawbacks. One of them is that the A.B. must attend all meetings and every fifteen minutes, he should make rounds and wake everyone up. If he doesn't the S.S. will be out of work.

S.S. The Senate Scriptwriter. This job has a few prerequisites: the S.S. needs to have a basic knowledge of English and all of its dialects. Moreover, he should be a fairly dull personality without much to say. His Senate scripts will then have all the ingredients necessary to flavor a Senate meeting; hopefully, everyone will be more interested in checking the big guys for foibles.

R.D.A. Religion Department Antagonist. This job offers the highest pay and also is the only one to furnish travel opportunities. Places such as Berries Springs, Glacier View, Angwin, and Australia are all important stops for the R.D.A. He will do as effectively as possible misquote, slander and tear down the department he represents. Every good R.D.A. should try to move at least one prominent person out of his present position and into one more precarious. This job, too, has endless opportunities.

Well, of course these are just a few of the easier positions, but at least you hopefully won't have to limit yourselves. After all, someone will have to do it. There are some things we just can't do without.

Wagner accepts presidency

Dr. John Wagner, currently Academic Dean at Union College, has accepted a call to become Southern College’s new president. Wagner and his wife, Libby, have worked for the SDA denomination for approximately seventeen years, beginning in 1962 at Platte Valley Academy.

Wagner has also worked at Pioneer Valley Academy, Madison Academy, and Forest Lake Academy, in various positions. Some of these include Dean of Boys, P.E. teacher, Guidance Director, Registrar, Vice Principal, and Principal.

Dr. Wagner became an Adventist as a result of a literature evangelism effort in his hometown of Pottstown, Pennsylvania. “My parents were baptized as a result of the book Bible Readings for the Home, which was purchased soon after I was born.”

Wagner went to church school, then completed two years of public high school before continuing his Christian education and graduating at Shenandoah Valley Academy. His college years were spent at Washington Missionary College, now Columbia Union College, and Atlantic Union College.

Mrs. Wagner was born in Estonia and immigrated with her family to America during the end of World War II, an experience which she wrote about in “To linger is to Die,” a book for young people. She met her husband at Atlantic Union College, where they both graduated with B.A. degrees.

Mrs. Wagner has written for several publications and is the author of at least two books. She has worked in Public Relations, as a music teacher, as Assistant Director of the Teaching Learning Center, and is currently teaching English at Union.

Mrs. Wagner will be working as an Associate Public Relations Director for the Adventist Health Systems/Sunbelt in the Collegetdale office. Both of the Wagners have doctorates from the University of Florida (Gainesville) and have been at Union College for the past two years.

As to his views on education, Dr. Wagner foresees “no drastic change in the direction of SC,” and considers it “a strong educational center.”

According to Elder McCurrie, President of the Southern Union, and Chairman of the Board of Trustees for SC, he is “very happy” with the decision. He stated, “I think Dr. Wagner is a strong scholar and church leader. He will lead the way as he sees best.”

Patterson, Center speak at forum

Elder Gary Patterson, Georgia-Cumberland Conference President and Elder Richard Center, Conference Treasurer, were the featured speakers at the Collegedale Adventist Forum meeting held on January 29. The two church officials gave short presentations, and answered questions from the audience.

The biggest issue of the afternoon was the Davenport affair. Patterson said “there will be changes in policies and procedures” concerning conference investments. “We will not at all wish in the future but this was expensive tuition.” He added that there was a good change of “solid recovery of funds from Davenport in significant amounts.”

Despite the anticipated recovery, “some people in George-Cumberland Conference will be disappointed,” Patterson said. He refused, however, to get specific on names. The General Conference has asked us to hold the release of our report (on the Davenport affair) until they release theirs, which I think is reasonable.”

The controversy at Ooltewah church was also brought up, “the situation at Ooltewah is not easy to deal with,” Patterson said. “The church has become very polarized. One group of people said they would withhold their tithe until the pastor at Ooltewah was removed. “When the other faction at Ooltewah heard of this, they threatened to withhold their tithe if the pastor was removed. What I was supposed to do,” Patterson asked, “ask each side how much tithe they paid then base my decision on those totals?”

“It has gotten to the point,” Patterson said, “where we have dealt with gifts and made them purchases. When people manipulate the tithe, they have ceased tithing. “The more church members pressure the administration (of the conference) the longer it takes to deal with the problem. The church is not able to achieve in a single bond all the needs... Sometimes things take a little bit of time.”

“T he church members need to operate within the proper bounds of church government. Economic pressure is not one of them.”

Black History Week begins

Southern College and the Afro-American Club are sponsoring Black History Week from February 7-12. The nation-wide celebration was set aside by the U.S. Congress in 1929 to emphasize black historicity. According to Everett Schliesser, Dean of Students.

The first program of this week will be on Tuesday by Dr. Frank Knecht. Wednesday prayer meeting will be presided by Vernand Mendinghaul, youth director of the South Atlantic Conference. Elder Ralph Peay, youth director of the Southern Union will present a program at chapel on Thursday. Melvyn Hayden will speak for both Friday vespers and the Sabbath Services.

Black History Week is a relatively new event at Southern College. No blacks were allowed until 1964 when the Civil Rights Act guaranteed equal rights for everyone. The first black to attend SMC was a village student in 1965, accordingly to Schliesser. Today, black enrollment is about 100.
SA on the rocks

This is the season for SA elections. Campaign posters have started appearing everywhere, each asking the voters to vote in a particular way. This year, however, things are different. The posters are being put up, but the quantity is smaller. Why? The reason is simple. This year 10 people are running for the 7 SA offices.

It appears that the old enemy of a good Student Association is rearing its ugly head again. Apathy seems to have taken over the student body, draining any energy to participate in the very SA that will help shape the future of next year at Southern College. And the trend seems to be getting worse. A few years ago, four and five candidates ran for many offices. Last year, the average was two, with three people running unsupported. Now this year, the average is below 1.5 with five people running unsupported.

Where will it all end? Will the administration finally do away with the Student Association as some colleges have? Or will the SA just be a figurehead government, with little power and even less support?

The choice is ours. We can sit around and watch our student organizations go down the tubes, or we can stand up on our feet and take some action. Get out and make logical decisions on the candidates for all 7 offices and let the SA know you support them by participating in SA functions and SA government. United we stand. Apart, we fall.

Letters

Dear Editor,

Superbowl XVII has come and gone and the Deadskin fans have proven that they not only have the most loyal, but one team, but they are the most obstreous fans around. But they have a good reason to be. It's not often they have much to cheer about. Let's see, when was the last time this bunch was in the playoffs? Could it be 1976 was the last time this group of folks, I mean fans, had anything to cheer about. Seven long years stirs up an awful lot of bokeousness, and boy has it been running rampant. All I've heard since Jan. 23 is "how bout them skins", and "what happened to them Cowboys." What kind of question is that (what kind of English is that)? I guess the Deadskin fans didn't realize that even though the Cowboys didn't make it to the Superbowl, they have made it to the playoffs 16 out of the last 17 years and have been in the Superbowl 5 times. How many years have the Deadskins been in the playoffs that last 17 years, for that matter, how many teams have been in the playoffs 16 out of the last 17 years. Also, how many teams have been in the Superbowl. No wonder the Deadskin fans hate the Cowboy fans. They are jealous. I think I would hate a team that has dominated my team for years too.

Sincerely,
Royce E. Earp
Native Dallas Cowboy Fan

Dear Editor,

I just returned from the final performance of the Southern Players' "Shenanodah." I would like to pass on my thanks to everyone involved in producing what I think was the best production of its kind presented on this campus. As I sat in the audience, my mind ran through all the different jobs that someone had to make the show a success. As a Communication major, I'm probably biased towards the PR staff's excellent media and advertising coverage. The set on stage was expertly constructed and moved during the performance. Thanks to the sound crew, and a new microphone system, I heard every word that was spoken. The costumes, makeup, and lighting were realistic and tastefully managed.

Providing the needed continuity, the talented group of musicians, both instrumental and vocal, performed in perfect style. Obviously, the outcome of any show depends largely on the quality of the actors. All the actors and actresses in this show did a superb, professional job. The choreography was amazing and the emotions were genuine.

Finally, the show could not have happened without the guidance of the director, Miss Laurie Loga. She deserves every bit of the standing ovation she got.

If there is someone I missed, it's only because you did your job so well, that I didn't notice you were there.

Hats off to each of you who helped make my evening a fantastic experience!

Sincerely,
Jon Larrabee

PM Magazine visits SC

The two hosts of PM Magazine, John Davis and Debbie Beer McCurdy, were shooting footage on the campus of Southern College last Tuesday, February 1. The show had chosen the College because of its nice layout and grounds, and the only rain did not permit outside shooting. However, they did get shots of the inside of some of the buildings on campus, including the mountains in the background. The mural in the nursing building, Maxie Herin Hall, and Wright Hall. Footage was also taken at WSMC in Lynn Wood Hall. Debbie and John are donating some time to help the station with "I Love WSMC Week," and were up there for awhile during the afternoon.

Ms. McCurdy and Mr. Davis were unable to talk with two nursing students who were interested in an interview, but they did talk with several students, including ACCENT photographer, Doug Malm.

Ms. McCurdy ran into a little difficulty when she discovered that she had forgotten her slip, but borrowed one from another student on campus and went right on with the show. This particular segment of PM Magazine will be aired on February 23 at 7:30 pm.
"Success in failure"

by Dick Bird

"It is possible to succeed in failure," said former Miss America Marilyn Van Derbur as she addressed the Southern College student body last Thursday morning in the Physical Education Center. An audience of over 1,000 listened intently as Miss Van Derbur, the recipient of the 1980 Speakers Hall of Fame Award spoke on the topic, "Success and Failure."

Miss Van Derbur began her presentation by reviewing the lives of three political figures who had suffered numerous defeats and failures. According to Van Derbur, it was the desire and the persistence of those men that turned their failures into success.

Miss Van Derbur's career was catapulted by her victory in the 1988 Miss America Pageant. After spending one year traveling throughout the United States and abroad, she returned to the University of Colorado, where she earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Literature.

Over the years, Miss Van Derbur has served as hostess on a number of television specials, and has appeared as guest commentator in past Miss America Pageants. The wife of a prominent attorney, and the mother of an 11-year-old daughter, Miss Van Derbur currently resides in Denver, Colorado.

Unlike many of her contemporaries, Van Derbur has been successful at maintaining that trim figure which helped her win the title some 25 years ago. How does she do it? "It takes a lot of self-discipline," said the lovely Miss Van Derbur. "It means turning down a sweet roll or ice cream—I watch what I eat, and try to get plenty of exercise."

During an interview with the Southern Accent, Van Derbur announced the completion of 30 one-minute television spots that will be shown in Atlanta, Fort Wayne, Indiana and Denver, Colorado.

The spots will be aired as part of the featured program, and will be a cut-down version of the talks Miss Van Derbur gives on the topic of motivation. They will be a "thought for the day," as she puts it.

Van Derbur had presented a sample of the television spots to ABC's "Good Morning America," but was turned down. Yet, she believes that through hard work, sweat and some tears, her dream will come true.

Marilyn Van Derbur's life is a testimony of what the American dream and the Christian life are all about. It is working and sharing, loving and caring and giving the best you can give.

Summer work opportunities

Many opportunities for summer employment can be found among the individual conferences in which your child may be interested. One of these jobs concerns the summer camp program. Another is the literature evangelist program.

Every summer institutes run a summer camp for the young people of the area. This ministry provides summer jobs for many college-age students and is a good way to witness for Christ. Students do not have to love children to work at camp. Other jobs include workman-ship instructors, canoeing and swimming teachers, backpacking enthusiasts, recreational and program planners, archery experts, and division directors, besides the counselors, cooks, and laundry tenders.

Of course, loving children is a good advantage, since contact with children is inevitable. But, if you do not like children, it is perhaps camp is not for you.

Maybe you should try literature evangelism. This ministry has been spreading the gospel throughout a conference for a summer. Selling books, handing out literature, and sharing your personal experiences with people are important parts of this program. If you enjoy talking with people and would like to give others a chance to know the Lord, then you may be interested in this important aspect of summer work.

If you were not able to talk with any of the Youth Secretaries from the various conferences, and are interested in summer camp work, get in touch with Elder Herman's office. If you are interested to literature evangelism and would like more information concerning this ministry, Evangelism Secretaries will be visiting the campus in the next few days and be glad to talk to students about the coming summer.

Shenandoah is successful

by Page Weemse

The musical, Shenandoah, was considered by many a great success. Laurie Loge, director of the play, stated, "It was a really challenging experience for me, since it was my first play as the director. Now I know what they go through.

In the musical was a Virginian family experiencing triumphs and losses during the Civil War era. Strong emotions permeated throughout the several scenes of the play. Anger and sadness were felt as two of the sons and a daughter-in-law were killed. But happiness and relief at the birth of a granddaughter and the return of a son who was thought to be killed during the war were also shown.

Dunne Davis, junior Business major, portrayed her characters great! The hands of time just seemed to turn back!"

The main characters in the cast were: the father, Charlie Anderson—Randy Aldridge; Jacob—Bob Vandervest; James—James Hadley; Nathan—Frank Roman; Jeany—Kathy Potts; Anne—Euan Lees; and Henry and Marc Bush. Several other students played major roles also, and the women's chorus, Southern Bel Canto, was involved with a few important scenes. A few members of the Symphony Orchestra, twenty-three to be exact, helped out tremendously with the music portion of the play.

Many members of the audience commented that "it was a very moving play," Mrs. Gastin, Dean of Women, remarked, "it was the best musical I've seen performed here at the college."

Student film to be shown

Stand-by! Quiet on the set! Scene 6, take 3—Roll Tape—Action!! These well known phrases may seem like something a Hollywood Director might say, but they were put into practice recently by a small group of students from Southern College.

The film entitled "Beyond the Horizon" is a World War II story about a young soldier and his first day on the front. Directed by Michael Hadley, a junior History and Communications major, it was 15 minutes in length, yet it cost over $1,300 and over 1,000 hours was spent planning, writing, shooting and editing during a span of four months. The major of the crew and all of the cost was provided for by SC students.

The main character of the film, Marco Luzine, was portrayed by Frank Roman, a senior Communications major. "Frank did a terrific job, despite the complications we ran into on the set," stated Hadley.

"We're still in the final stages of editing, but the majority of the work is done," I'm just pleased with everybody connected with the film, especially Mr. Larry Otto. He composed and recorded an original soundtrack just for the film, and that in itself took a lot of effort. The film, shot entirely in Columbia, South Carolina, took four days and over 17 people to complete." The Communications Department paid for the use of the school van. The film was entered in the National Student Academy Awards, the Jewish B'hai B'rith Foundation Awards, and the Birmingham International Film Awards.

It will be shown on campus in the Talge Hall Recreation Room at 8:30 pm on February 6.

Writing a resume

College graduates are faced today with a shrinking job market and keen competition for what jobs are available. They soon discover that it is of extreme importance to be able to sell themselves in a positive way to prospective employers in order to have access to what jobs there are. One of the ways an applicant sells himself to a prospective employer is through the resume. The resume is simply a vehicle that provides the employer with many types of information about the applicant. Its function is to provide the employer with a concise summary of personal attributes, educational background, and qualifications a person has for a particular job. The resume should contain brief but sufficient information which will help a prospective employer to know: Who you are. What you can do. What you have done. What your present status is. What kind of job you would like. What your goals and objectives are. What your special assets and attributes are. There is no single prescribed resume format. If there were, everyone would appear stereotyped. And this is what you want to avoid. You want to come across as an individual with unique qualities. Remember, each resume has only 30 seconds to make its impression on the reader. Be creative but be yourself. There are basically two types of resumes: Chronological (the style most applicable for new graduates) listing the most recent work experience first followed by all other experience first followed by all other experience listed in strict reverse chronological order; and Functional- focusing on the kind of work wanted and identifying strengths, skills and accomplishments which qualify a person for that work. Whereas the format chosen is personal preference, there are general rules that should be followed. The resume should be neat, easy to read, and free of spelling and grammatical errors. Use margins and titles, logically arranged, to guide the reader. Develop separate sections on education, work experience, personal data, and goals in such a way as to enable the reader--who is probably skimming your resume along with many others--to get the highlights quickly. Your resume should be:

Typical and spaced properly on 8 1/2 x 11 inch size white paper. Limited to one or two pages in length. Brief and to the point, incorporating phrases, rather than prose and complete sentences. Complete, containing all information relevant to your education, work experience and career objectives. Written in a way to reflect your perceptions and abilities. Your personality may be as important in getting the job as anything else. Honest. You may be asked to document what you say. Filled with action verbs to describe experience, i.e.: initiated, created, developed, supervised, managed, instructed, counseled....etc.

Other things to remember are:
Don't include a photo. You risk failing the reader's personal standards of beauty.
Don't include reasons for leaving previous jobs.
Don't include references.
Save references as a backup sales force.
If you would like more information on how to write resumes, why not plan to attend the next "Resume Writing Workshop" conducted by the Student Employment Office.

Elder Robert Peeke is Student Employment Director at Southern College.

VOTE Ken Rozell for Vice President
Directions by Pastor Gordon Bietz.

What is the difference?

SCENE I (In the kitchen of a middle-class suburban home)

JILL: (opening the door to the house.) Hi, Mom, I'm home.

MOM: (concentrating on her preparation of food for dinner) I am glad you are home, honey—did you have a good day at school?

JILL: Yes, it was a great day. I met a new friend. She is from New Guinea—she just came to the states today and is a very nice girl—I think we will be best friends.

MOM: New Guinea: What brings her here to the United States?

JILL: I think she said her Dad was a missionary or something.

MOM: Missionary?

JILL: Yes, their village witch doctor encouraged their village to send a missionary to the United States to tell others about the jobs of heathenism.

MOM: What?

JILL: What is so strange about that?

MOM: Well, I just never thought of it, I guess.

JILL: Anyway, Mom, she speaks pretty good English and I think we will be good friends. She has taught me a lot already.

MOM: (treading for the first time from her work to look at Jill.) Jill, what is that in your nose?

JILL: What? Oh, you mean the ring?

MOM: What? Yes, I mean the ring! What on earth?

JILL: Well, that is something I learned from my new friend.

doesn't it look neat? We are going to start a fad at school.

MOM: Over my dead body! Take that thing out this instant!

JILL: But, Mom-m-m-

MOM: But Mom, nothing, you take it out now.

JILL: Are you going to take the rings out of your ears?

MOM: My ear rings? Why?

JILL: You have two rings. I only have one.

MOM: JILL—I am getting very impatient.

JILL: Ear rings—rose rings—what is the difference?

MOM: Go to your room. Just wait until your father gets home.

SCENE II

DAD: (opening the door to the kitchen.) Hi, I'm home.

MOM: You are not going to believe this.

DAD: What?

MOM: You are not going to believe this.

DAD: What am I not going to believe.

MOM: Your daughter has been converted by a witch doctor.

DAD: What?

MOM: I told you you would not believe it.

DAD: Slow down and tell me the whole story.

MOM: Your daughter met a friend in school today who is a missionary's kid from Africa or somewhere who is trying to convert the world to voodoo and she got our daughter to wear a ring in her nose!

DAD: Now come on.

MOM: It is true. I sent her to her room until you came home.

DAD: JILL! Come down here. (a rather long delay and some shuffling down the stairs)

DAD: (upon seeing JILL) JILL! I can't believe it! What is going on?

JILL: It is no big deal. It is the thing at school. All the kids are doing it. What is the big fuss? Mom wears rings to her ears, you both wear rings on your fingers and I have one in my nose. I mean: why the big fuss?

DAD: (passed out on the floor)

MOM: JILL, go back to your room.

SCENE III

MOM: (on the phone to pastor) You are not going to believe this.

PASTOR: Yes, I think I would, because I have received a half a dozen calls already. Don't tell me—I'll have a ring in my nose.

MOM: Right.

PASTOR: I'll come over and talk to her.

SCENE IV

MOM: (pastor colors the home and mother calls to JILL) Someone is here to see you, JILL.

PASTOR: You didn't tell her I was coming?

MOM: No, we thought it would be better to surprise her.

PASTOR: Thanks a lot.

JILL: (Jill entering room) The pastor? What is this—a federal offense?

PASTOR: No, not a federal offense, just a high level of concern. Jill, do you mind if I talk to you for a moment?

JILL: Do I have a choice?

PASTOR: Yes.

JILL: O.K.—for a minute, but I have a lot of homework.

PASTOR: (Mother leaves room) Mind if I sit down?

JILL: No, go ahead.

PASTOR: Couldn't help but notice your ring.

JILL: Oh, you like it?

PASTOR: It is pretty.

JILL: You really think so? Tell my folks.

PASTOR: Well, the ring is pretty, but I guess I would not consider it pretty where you have placed it.

JILL: What is the difference between having it here or in my car?

PASTOR: Do you want to be attractive?

JILL: Yes.

PASTOR: Trying to enhance the natural beauty God gave us through external decorations, whether nose or ear rings, whether wild hair styles or excessive makeup, attracts people's attention to us because of the externals, rather than really making us attractive.

JILL: Oh.

PASTOR: I guess I just gave you your own sermon, huh.

JILL: Yeah.

PASTOR: Well, I don't want to hassle you. Each person must come to their own conclusions.

JILL: I guess. I really didn't think that my folks would get so bent out of shape. I mean Dad just flipped.

PASTOR: Everything that we wear is a statement about ourselves. It tells those around us how we feel about ourselves and a nose ring tells me that you are not too happy with yourself, and that maybe you want some attention.

JILL: I suppose, but what about Mom's ear rings?

PASTOR: Though she has chosen something that is more culturally acceptable, I think that the same principle would apply.

JILL: What principle is that?

PASTOR: I guess the principle is best stated by Peter when he says that your beauty should not come from external adornment of wearing gold jewelry or fancy clothes, but that your beauty should be the unfading beauty of a gentle and quiet spirit. The principle is humility, not seeking to draw attention to ourselves through external decorations but drawing attention to what God is doing in us through character development—a humble, loving character. I guess I am preaching again, huh.

JILL: I guess.

PASTOR: Jill, just remember that everything we do is a statement about how we feel about ourselves and how we want others to think about us. I better go, I have a lot of visits to make tonight.

JT IN '83
Glen McClary, sophomore Business/Pre-Law major, is the only candidate for Student Association President and is "looking forward to next year, to a new beginning." Thoroughly aware of the problems and changes he will be facing as SA president, Gleno fielded a question and answer session for student leaders in the cafeteria on Sunday, January 30. At the meeting he announced many of his objectives for the 1983-84 school year. "My number one goal is to see a more positive relationship between students and faculty." Other plans he cited were: 1) to check into the possibility of extending the front porch of Thatcher Hall; 2) to try to raise the additional necessary funds to renovate the Campus Kitchen; 3) to work to get a co-ed TV room in the Student Center; 4) to try to get co-ed telephones in the Student Center; 5) to plan more inter-collegiate activities.

Having been SA President at Bass Memorial Academy his junior year, class president his senior year, member of Senate, PR Director for several campus organizations, in addition to a string of other offices and accomplishments, Gleno is not a beginner, although his theme is "a new beginning." He comments, "Attitudes are changing on campus and there is an air of working together now to get rid of some of this criticism. We, as students, are tired of it—the Southern College put down. I know next year will be one of the best year's we've seen."

As a candidate for the office of Student Association Vice President, Cary Gregory likes to get involved. "I think the main job of the Vice President is to relate to the students and get more student involvement. Yet, it is hard to get student involvement. So, I believe the only way to get that involvement is to be involved yourself."

Since Cary, who is a Physical Education major from Indiana, is Student Service Director this year, he feels that this office, along with being on the Senate, has helped him to know better the organization of the SA and Senate, how they function, and where improvements can be made. With reference to Ski Day and the upcoming banquet at Peachtree, Cary stated, "I would like to continue seeing such things that involve getting off campus. As Vice President, I'd like to assure that some of the programs that were started this year will keep going and see that new programs are brought about."

Describing himself as innovative, Cary maintains that the main reason he is running for vice president is "to promote student involvement and see that the whole program runs smoothly and efficiently."

Student Service

Running for Student Services Director is John Seaman, a sophomore Theology major that feels that he has "some good ideas that can strengthen Student Services. I don't want to delineate or do away with current programs that Student Services has. I'm in favor of revising and updating what we already have."

John believes that he can do this in various ways. Improving the quality of cartoons that are shown in the cafeteria on Fridays is one way. "I plan to be more selective in the choice of cartoons," he explains. Better communication to the village students is a goal of John's, when there is nothing happening at SC on Saturday nights, he would like to provide students with a van to different places in Chattanooga. He would also like to have transportation to the many "approved" functions at Memorial Auditorium and UTC. Another idea that John has is to "see several trips made into Atlanta on the weekends. It could be an all-day thing, until evening and could coincide with a baseball game or something. It doesn't have to be one specific purpose. If some want to shop all day, they can."

John, who has been the Advertising Manager for the Southern Accent the last two years, believes in a "one-to-one" communication. "I think that if just one person comes in with a suggestion, we should look into it."
Vice President

Vice Presidential Candidate Ken Rozell's goal is "to put the students in the SA. Something that the SA touches your life every day, whether it's the Joker, the Numerique, the Accent or a party or banquet. A good SA will keep all these inputs balanced.

Ken, who is editor of the Southern Accent this year, "wants to keep aware." Another one of Ken's goals is to make the Senate more responsive to the students and their needs. As Chairman of the Senate, he would have the senators send out newsletters, take polls, and hold meetings for their constituents. He feels that the Senate could be a better source of student input, and Ken states that he'd "like to work closely with the Student Services and Social Activities Directors to make and keep the banquets interesting." Since Vice President is also Chairman of the Publications Committee, Ken believes his experience as editor will help him in working with the incoming editors.

Ken stresses, "If I'm going to be the Vice President, I really want to serve. I want to keep the program running smoothly so the students can get the maximum from this year."

"I'm running for the office where I can do the most good for the most people," states JT Shim, candidate for vice president.

Although this is his third attempt at the vice presidency, the junior Computer Science major is not discouraged. "Failure didn't deter Abraham Lincoln, and it won't deter me," he remarks. "I've studied the office closely and know what goes into it, what is expected of it."

With a numerous list of accomplishments and qualifications that include Associate Editor of the Joker, Editor of the Numerique, member of the Senate Committee on Senate Projects, JT believes that planning is an essential part of good leadership. "I plan to have more SA forums to hear about what students think and let them know what the SA is doing. I'd like to obtain more color cartoons that you can enjoy."

"I believe that every chief executive officer needs a good man he can delegate jobs too," JT declares. JT wants to be that man.

Southern Accent Editor

Running unopposed for Southern Accent Editor is Maureen Maydon, a Speech Communications major. "Being editor is something that I have always wanted to do, and now that I have been assistant editor for awhile, I think that it's something I would really enjoy," explains the candidate.

A native Floridian displaced to Virginia three years ago, Maureen was a reporter on the newspaper her sophomore year, was layout editor for first semester of this year, and is assistant editor now. Besides her work on the paper, Maureen has been busy this year as president of Sigma Theta Chi (the Girl's Club) and as a liaison for the student chapter of IABC (International Association of Business Communicators).

"There are not a whole lot of changes that I want to make, unless I feel that they need to be made." However, she would like to add more features. "I think that the paper needs to be informative and tell the students what is happening on campus, but it also needs to be humorous and entertaining. The paper should be something that they want to save, not just read and then throw away."
Southern Memories Editor

"I want to do as good of a job as possible," declares Stafford Barcley, candidate for Memories Editor. Although he considers himself a shy, quiet fellow, Stafford wants to use his knowledge of photography and graphics to create a "memorable" annual.

A freshman Computer Science major from New York City, Stafford was a photographer on the Memories staff this year, and, according to Editor Bridget Knox, was her "right hand man—never failing to come up with some fresh, bright ideas for pictures or layout."

"I enjoy photography, and as editor of Memories, I will simply do my best," promises Stafford.

Memories Editor candidate, Malinda McKee, wishes "to incorporate new ideas" into the annual for next year.

With two years of experience on her academic yearbook, and as SA Public Relations Director this year, in addition to numerous other offices held, Malinda wants to do all she can "to ensure that every individual is included, to organize a dedicated staff based on their ability and interest, and keep an open line of communication."

McKee, a junior Biology major from Collegedale, has always enjoyed the Southern Memories, and is anxious to become involved with the yearbook for next year. She considers herself to have much organizational experience and hopes to put that to work on the Southern Memories of 1983-84.

Social Activities

"I'm going to try to come up with original ideas for social activities, as well as do a lot of the same things," states Peggy Brandenberg, the candidate for Social Activities Director. A junior Behavioral Science major, Peggy attended the University of Kentucky her freshman and sophomore years and is anxious to try some of the activities she saw and participated in there.

While at the university, Peggy held the office of president for two honorary clubs in addition to a few other official positions on campus. This year, her first at SC, Peggy has been a Senator, a member of the Social Committee, has worked closely with Patty Stone, the current Social activities Director, and has been involved in every social activity that has taken place.

"Since I have gone to public schools and University, I have seen lots of things and have lots of ideas," explains Peggy.

"I'm excited about the possibilities for next year."

Joker Editor

Don Welch, a sophomore Accounting major from Orlando, Florida, is the sole candidate for Joker Editor.

Having worked night and day the first couple of weeks of school alongside Jon Larrabee, this year's editor, Don is fully aware of the time, effort, and techniques necessary to quickly produce a quality Joker. "Jon did an excellent job with it this year," states Don, "and I simply plan to do the same—get the Joker out in a short time, as complete as possible, and with few or no errors."
Beech hosts Ski Day
by Brent Van Arsdale
The Student Association sponsored an all day ski trip on Tuesday to Ski Beech resort on Beech Mountain in North Carolina. The ski day officially started for the skiers with a check-in from 3:30-4:00 am in front of Wight Hall. Check-in was necessary for students to get their classes excused and to make sure that everyone had paid. Approximately two hundred students went on the trip. The skiers started as soon as possible after getting lift, and if necessary, rental passes from Alvin Franklin and Cynthia Patterson. Those who used rental equipment really liked it. The boots were comfortable, the bindings were step-in type, and all the equipment was in excellent condition.
Unfortunately the skiing conditions were not as good as the equipment. The weather and the slopes started out less than perfect and got worse later in the day. The snow base was about fifteen inches of dirt with 1-3 inches of packed icy snow covering most of the runs. There were moguls in some areas and in others there was grass and mud showing. By afternoon the temperature had risen to well above freezing and the remaining snow was more icy and harder to ski on. By 4pm the low hanging clouds had lowered further to become a thick fog that restricted visibility in places to 30 feet. In spite of the conditions most students were glad they went. Scott Learned, Junior Biology major, summed up most students feelings when he said, "These are the worst conditions I have ever skied in, but I'm glad I came anyway." Mike Palsgrove, Sophomore Nursing major, gave it his blessing by saying, "I had a great time. I hope they do it again next year!"

CAMPUS KITCHEN

YOU KNOW WHAT'S ON A 12oz. COFFEE CAN COMMERCIALS LOOK GOOD.
Southern Cynic

By Victor Czerkasi

"What To Do When You're Bored, Part I" worked well last semester. It really helped a lot of people make it to Thanksgiving. Some even survived till Christmas! But second semester has laid a heavy hand upon us all. The detriments of February, the cold weather, and your roommate are gnawing at you. So just when you moan "Grody to the max!" quick! Here's "What To Do When You're Bored, Part II."

Turn your radio on to FM 90.5 Friday nights. See how long you can take it. Time yourself, and compare with friends.

Go to more chapels than are required. Keep the deans worrying as to what you're up to.

Try to find all the couples in the library cubicles. Act surprised when you find one studying.

Learn more about astronomy. Visit all the guys in Tallge whose rooms face Thatcher. Take a beautiful Tharcheri on a date in the Student Park cave. Make sure your flashlight breaks down while in the deepest recess.

Decide that you will go to class today.

Do some gambling. Try the dorm vending machines. State that you are quitting rock'n'roll. See if more people come to congratulate you, or to ask where you're going to chuck your albums.

Go eat out for a month. Use the money you've saved by not eating at the cafe to buy an RX-7.

Send a classified to yourself saying that there is no one piece.

Call up Pastor Beitz. Tell him that you are the mayor of Fenton Forest, and you're suing for libel.

Try to read the rest of this paper. Run for an office. Start swearing if you win.

Challenge a newly emphasized jewelry clause. Wear a watch from each ear.

Blow your life's savings. Take two girls to the banquet in Atlanta.

See how long a tube of toothpaste will squirt down your hall. Challenge friends.

Go to the P.E. Center announcement board outside. See what kind of phrases you can make out of the words already there. Be kosher.

Try to catch the person who covers your windshield with trash while you're in church.

Suggest other places for them to put it instead.

Make some headlines. It has to be better than last weeks front page headlines of the Scenic minutes.

See if the speaker can hear your digital watch with tunes during chapel.

Go down to the weight-lifting room and laugh out loud. See how many pieces of you return to your room.

See you all again in two weeks.

PRESIDENT REAGAN is willing to meet with Soviet leader Yuri Andropov to sign an agreement “based on US and Soviet intermediate range, land-based nuclear missile weapons from the face of the earth.” In the past, the Soviets have repeatedly rejected this proposal known as the “zero-option” plan, in favor of their own schemes. Their plan calls for a 72% reduction in Soviet intermediate missiles to match British and French arsenals in return for a US decision to scrap deployment plans for 572 intermediate missiles in Europe this fall.

PRESIDENT REAGAN’s 1984 budget proposal, calling for a 10 percent increase in defense spending and cuts in domestic programs, has put him at logger heads with House Majority Leader “Tip” O’Neill. At a White House briefing, O’Neill talked very forcefully to the president about getting people back to work, while Reagan cited “drastic improvements” he has made in the economy which he believes will eventually help end the unemployment problem.

AN INDEPENDENT TRUCKERS’ strike erupted in violence Monday, leaving at least one dead and many others injured. George Capps, 33, was killed by a rifle shot near Newton Grove, N.C. while driving his rig along US 701. The strike, which began Monday, is a protest against high fuel taxes and user fees.

PAUL “Bear” Bryant, the winningest coach in all of football, died of a heart attack last week. The 69 year old Bryant had just retired as Alabama’s head coach after winning 323 games and five national championships during his 38 year career. Ray Perkins, who has assumed Bryant’s job at Alabama, said he was “shocked” at the death of Bryant who was always a fatherly image to the ex-New York Giant head coach.

VALENTINE
A valley valentine

Happy Valentine's Day! Like, I'm shurr you're really into this love business. Like, totally! I just love Valentine's Day. Like, I can get you those big heart-shaped boxes of candy anytime, ferr shurr!

Like the other day, I was with all my val friends down at JC, and I saw this big hairy dude and he was like all over this really wet val, and she didn't even mind! Like, gross to the max! I mean, like, totally! I was ready to gag, but my spew wasn't in my val bag, so like I just turned and looked the other way.

But, like, I'm shurr she really loves him, and she'll probably get one of those boxes for Valentine. I mean like, with chocolate-covered cherries, caramels, nougat, and cream candies or something, you know? I'm sooo shurr! I think I would just die if I got one. I mean, can you imagine one of those boxes of candy all for yourself? Like gag me with a spoon! I would have to if I ate all that by myself. But, like, I'm shurr my val friends would be willing to go off their diets and help me. Ferr shurr!

Like, you know, I was buying this really val card for my fave dude the other day, and like one of my fave val friends came over and was telling me all about her plans for Valentine's Day, but like, she doesn't want anyone to know, 'cause she wants it to be special for her boyfriend, you know, and she was like all excited about this special day for the two of them, and you know, like, I was really glad for her.

But, like, this other val friend was going to spend Valentine's Day with her sister and they were going to have a really val party at her sister's, like you know, a real val time. I mean like totally! And, like, I was all excited for her, you know? 'Cause, like, you know, real val girls can have fun anywhere, 'cause like they can adapt, you know.

I mean, like, Valentine is for everyone, you know, like, you don't have to send a special val card to just a special dude you know. I mean, like, just a good friend deserves a val card on Valentine's Day. Like, ferr shurr! —MM

Dear Editor,

What is the world coming to? The Dallas Cowboys go into the last two games of the season playing for home-field advantage and get their tails whipped first by a bunch of has-beens (the Eagles) on the Cowboys' home-field and then in Minnesota by a team (the Vikings) whose entire point total was equaled by a single Jets defensive back the week before and whose three best players were out with injuries. Once in the playoffs, they pull out wins over the Rams, Bucs and the Packers in the waning moments only to get stomped on by the Hogs in the NFC Championship game. How can this be? It seems like only yesterday when the Cowboys were winning their division (the NFC East) easy. Of course, it usually didn't do them a lot of good because out of their 16 times in the playoffs they only made it to the Super Bowl five times and only managed to win there twice.

The reason for this, and for the Cowboys' present troubles, is quite simple. Since the demise of the old NY Giants in the mid-sixties, the Cowboys have rarely had another team to compete with in the NFC East. The Giants and Cardinals as well as the Red Skins are playoff contenders and are setting their sights on the Cowboys. That means at least six games a year against top-ranked NFL teams. Looks like Dallas is finally going to have to work for a living!!

Actually though, I really don't dislike the Cowboys at all. In fact, I've a healthy respect for a team that can win so consistently with a minimum amount of effort. It's the attitude of some of their fans that irks me. I'm speaking of those who see their team as America's team and the rest of the NFL doesn't exist. Well those people are eating crow now and they'd better get used to it because they may have a steady diet of it during the next few years.

Sincerely,

Bill Both

Dear Editor,

In response to Royce J. Eady's letter in the February 3 Southern Accent, Royce, you say that the Redskins fans are obnoxious, but what could possibly be more obnoxious than a Cowboy fan whose team has lost!

Sincerely,

Katie Lamb
Native Texan, but NEVER a Cowboy fan!
Speeches kick off election season

by Paige Weemes

Alvin Franklin, Student Association President, called the elections chapel to order February 3, 1983. The first of the candidates to make a speech was Don Welch, who is running for Joker editor. Welch began his speech by reminding the students what a good Joker editor Jon Larrabee had been, but that he, himself, would even be better. Some of Welch’s goals are: an error-free Joker, to put it out in record time, and to have every student’s and faculty’s picture in the Joker.

Running for the office of Student Services is John Seaman. Seaman claimed that he would maintain the cookie breaks, Friday cartoons, and town trips. Also, he wants to establish some new programs.

Candidate for Accent editor is Maureen Mayden. Mayden stated that she wanted a paper that students would be more interested in. More features and humor are goals that Mayden hopes to accomplish.

Peggy Brandenberg is the candidate running for Social Activities. To involve students more by polls and to possibly add a “Spring Fling” (similar to the Fall Festival) to the calendar of events, are some of Brandenberg’s goals. She also said that Social Activities would try to involve the faculty more in the activities.

The fifth candidate to speak was Stafford Barey. He declared that he would do his best in the Memories editor, and make next year’s “Memories” memorable.

Also running for the position of Memories editor is Malinda McKee. In her speech, she listed her goals in a poem she had written. To ensure satisfaction is a main concern of Malinda’s.

Cary Gregory is one of the three candidates running for Vice-President. He told the students that some of the new programs he would like to establish were; a television in the Student Center, shopping trips to Atlanta and Knoxville, and more privileges for residents of Thatcher Hall.

Ken Rozell, also candidate for Vice-President, stated, “My goal is to put YOU into the Student Association.” Rozell is concerned that the Senate be more responsive to the student’s needs. To do this, Rozell suggested half meetings, newsletters, opinion polls, and surveys be started.

“Every President needs a hard-working, dependable man who knows people and systems behind him, and that man is me,” said J.T. Shim, candidate for Vice President. He also claimed he was the man for 1983.

Speaking last was Glenn McElroy, candidate for President. A “new beginning” and a positive outlook for the year is McElroy’s goal. McElroy told students that the school can’t have a beginning unless the enthusiasm come from them.

After the speeches, Alvin Franklin opened the floor for discussion and got no response.

GARFIELD®

by Jim Davis

In Fenton Forest was a little seed
That to the rain gave little head.
Down in the ground he gave grumble and groan.
Complaining of the dark and of the big stone.
The stone, you see, was over his head.
And he thought, “What a dumb flower bed
To have a stone where I could be Where I could rise up and be free.”
He just wasn’t going to do his thing,
Too much against him for this Spring.
And so in the dark he lay so quiet.
He wouldn’t respond even to the riot
Of water that about him fell.
Tickling his shell and washing him well.
When the sun shone so high and so warm
He just pulled in tighter within his dorm.
“Too many troubles,” was his reply,
“Look at that rock on top of my life
Way too heavy for me to lift
Why I couldn’t even make a lift
In the soil above my depressing lie
I’d just rather turn over and die.”
And so the seed with all its potential
Just complained while the rains were torrential.
Somehow a message to the seed must be taken
Of the joys of the sun, if he would just awaken.
The message was carried by one special seed.
He was an outstanding one, unique to his breed.
He came to the seed still in the ground.
He told him of the new life he’d found.
The message was sent loud and clear,
“Bloom where you’re planted, there’s nothing to fear.”
“Bloom where I’m planted,” the seed contemplated.
Is it really true that for this I have waited.
A little water of life he timidly accepted,
On what it did inside him, be reflected,
Was hard to explain in any natural way.
It seemed like only attitudes were passing away.
“Not so bad,” to himself he did muse,
“I’ll take some more, got nothing to lose.”
As soon as he did his shell began breaking,
His whole seed body was now really shaking.
Suddenly with an explosion of power,
He felt himself shoot up like a tower.
The boulder he once had on his head,
Rolled to the side of the flower bed.
The sun broke fall in his opening face.
He fell he belonged to the flower race.
He breathlessly viewed other beautiful flowers
Ones that like him had risen like towers.
I with a cry of delight his voice echoed loud,
“Bloom where you’re planted—don’t be so proud.”
So by our story you can easily tell,
The point of the rhyme is to stay out of hell.
Appreciate the light and warmth you find.
Don’t allow the rocks to occupy your mind.
Love like Paul who recalled content,
Whether in prison, or under his tent.
Remember Joseph who in bad times and good
Trusted in God who understood.
Don’t let your vision of others be stunted,
Be content in God, and BLOOM WHERE YOU’RE PLANTED!
Dear 2437,

Being your wife and sharing your life is my idea of happiness. Happy Valentine's Day! Love you.

Time Out

by Kelly Pettijohn

As basketball season enters the final stretch at SC, preseason predictions have long since been abandoned as many surprises have developed.

In AA action, after a very slow start, Kollasko has put it together to fashion a four-game winning streak. This has pulled him up to a respectable 4-4 standing. O'Brien has also been somewhat of a surprise as he holds a tie for first with a 5-3 mark. Vogel, the only team not to surpise has a 5-3 record to share the lead with O'Brien. Bovell and Botimer have not lived up to their prediction as both share the cellar with a 3-5 record.

Saturday night, Jan. 29 Kollasko edged out Bovell by a 68-65 margin. Kollasko led all scorers with 23 and Eric Mock threw in 17 in the losing effort. After a 2-0 start, Botimer's team has met hard luck. Sunday morning the 30th, Vogel narrowly escaped defeat at the hands of Botimer as they came from behind in the closing seconds to wrap up a 1 point victory, 69-68. Vogel and Ron Bunch continued their dominance of the offensive end by tossing in 18 apiece, while Botimer scored 23 for the losers. Monday night Bovell and O'Brien squared off with Bovell edging out the victor. Eric Mock shot an electrifying 13-18 from the floor to lead the winners with 26 while O'Brien tossed in 28 in the losing effort.

On Wednesday night Vogel and Kollasko met for what appeared an easy win for Vogel as they held sole possession of first place. But this was not to be as Kollasko came away with a convincing 72-59 decision. While Vogel couldn't get any help from his team offensively, Kollasko didn't need any as he scored an awesome 36 points including two 3-pointers. Thursday night Bovell and Botimer met with Botimer's team finally getting on track to post a 75-68 victory. Greg Carlisle came alive to score 20 for Botimer with Bob Mountain adding 16.

Sunday night, Feb. 6, the battle for first place between Kollasko and O'Brien took place with O'Brien emerging the victor. Kollasko couldn't seem to get things going on offense with the services of top pick Ivan Easley missed. Daryl Heuver led the losers with 16 while Colt Peyton scored 19 for the winners.

With just one week to go in AA, only two games separate first place from last place. The outcome of the league is still up for grabs as Vogel, O'Brien and Kollasko will have a shot at the championship.

In a league action, Marzella, Hobbs, Tumull and Cain each have done their part to keep them in the race for the league championship. The big surprise in AA league would have to be Greenlee's performance, or should I say lack of performance.

The B league race never materialized as Duff has taken control retaining the only undefeated states in the intra-league leagues. Their last performance was a sixty point trouncing of Hadley aided by the 40 point effort of Duff. In the Women's league, McQuistan and Laurencell share the lead with one defeat apiece. Both teams have fairly good depth.

Balloting for the annual Rees Series has started as the guys from all three leagues are selecting the top six stars in their respective classes. The Rees Series is SC's annual class tournament held at the end of basketball season. This year's, to be held the nights of February 17 and 19, promises to be as good as ever. No class appears to have a real edge although the Seniors would have to be considered the favorite as they vie for their fourth consecutive title. This would make them the first class to ever win four years in a row. The Seniors are lead by David Botimer and John O'Brien, while the Sophomores, certainly another contender will be lead by the trio of Robert Bovell, Danny Kollasko and Steve Vogel. The Rees Series is the highlight of Basketball season so everyone come on out and cheer their class on to victory!

Also, it’s here again. That famous day of half-baked little men (no, I don’t mean one of Talge’s notorious toga parties), broken hearts and spiked sentences has arrived once more.

Now, this is one day I’ve never fully understood. To begin with, what is there to celebrate? Two poor guys get beheaded and people start using their last name as a synonym for love.

This really doesn’t make a whole lot of sense. I mean, if the president or vice-president were also tomorrow, would you ask a future spouse to be your Reagan? Or your Bush? I’d venture to say if anyone did, chances are that person would be the next one to have his name immortalized.

And look at the symbols associated with Valentine’s Day. Back to our martyrs. Since they were decapitated, and people seem so bent on remembering them it only seems natural that lace-trimmed little hearts should be the proper tokens of exchange. But no—instead everything is heart-shaped. Now here is a real irony in it all. It’s not only stupid, it’s impractical. I know of only one basic way to draw a heart. But think how much more personal a head-shaped valentine would be. You could make it as large or as small as was necessary to characterize the recipient, and as round, oblong or egg-shaped as you liked. Even a block design wouldn’t be out of place. I can think of several people I’d like to send one of the latter to.

One of our customs with every holiday is to associate a famous personage, usually a saint, with that day. St. Nick, St. Patrick, St. Turkey—all have their rightful place on the calendar. And on February 14, St. Valentine should technically be the one adorning the cards and candy boxes. But again, someone goofed. All we need is the poor guy’s name. For a serviceable alternative of holiday we display a rosy-cheeked toddler who, dressed only in a droopy Pamper, teers around on a gossamer wings and plays William Tell. Instead of being horrified, people compliment the little monster on his marksmanship and actually think he’s cute. In fact, he’s become almost a permanent fixture in Thatcher Hall.

Obviously the day has some real problems. I personally think it should be eliminated. Possible, people are beginning to get tired of the historically significant day like one where everybody goes out to see the most romantic movies for the entire day. St. Schlieman would be honored, and we could still use a little guy with the bow and arrow. Actually, that would be quite fitting. I think the Pamper would probably have to go, though.

In the meantime, please don’t feel like a total idiot for celebrating something you don’t understand. At least you’ll keep the month for a little while.

PRESIDENT REAGAN WILL not seek re-election if the economy fails to recover from the current recession by 1984. When asked whether he would use the condition of the economy in 1984 as a guide, President Reagan replied, “Obviously, that would be a sign.” The President, however, continued to be optimistic about chances for a recovery and pointed to a Congressional Budget Office study that was even more optimistic than similar Administration reports.

A CAR-BOMB BLAST TURNED two West Beirut buildings into infernos, killing 20 people and injuring 70 more. A Christian radio station later received a call claiming that the right-wing Front for the Liberation of Lebanon from Foreigners was responsible for the bombing. Although police doubt the call was legitimate, the bombed buildings are owned by Libya and the PLO and authorities suspect the bombing is in retaliation for Libyan leaders, Moammar Khadafy’s call for the conversion of Lebanese Christians last month.

CHINESE PREMIER ZHAO Ziyang will meet with President Reagan in the US later this year. An official White House press release announce the forthcoming summit, which was arranged during a recent visit to China by Secretary of State Schultz last week. No date has been given for the meeting as of yet.

US MARINE CAPTAIN Charles B. Johnson single-handedly stopped a column of Israeli tanks from entering the US zone in Beirut last week. According to the Defense Department, when three Israeli tanks tried to cross the US zone, Johnson loaded his pistol, climbed aboard the lead tank, and told the Israeli lieutenant-colonel that if he continued it would be over Johnson’s “dead body.” The incident is part of an increasingly tough US attitude towards the Israelis reflected in the President’s comment on Monday that Israel is “technically in the position of an occupying force.”

KAREN CARPENTER, the Grammy award-winning singer who popularized easy-listening music, died of a heart attack at age 32 last Friday. Ms Carpenter, who was famous for smash-hits such as “Rainy Days and Mondays,” “Close to You,” “We’ve Only Just Begun,” and “For All We Know,” had been suffering from anorexia nervosa but was thought by friends to have recovered. An inquest was held to reveal a cause for the heart attack that killed a woman who “was both an extraordinary performer and an extraordinary lady,” in the words of American Bandstand host Dick Clark.

Study recommends name change

A study commissioned by the administration of the college has recommended that the present name of Southern College of Seventh-day Adventist of Southern College of Seventh-day Adventist in Tennessee has been changed to Richards College or a similar name meaningful to Seventh-day Adventists. Tony Romero Advertising of NYC was hired to find out the public's response to the present name. We wanted to get an alternate point of view from some type of professional organization other than a church entity, stated Dr. Frank Kallal, S.C.'s president.

Romero's agency came to their conclusions by sending surveys to 600 current students, recent graduates and other graduates. All 600 survey letters, a questionnaire and stamped return envelopes. From the 600 surveys 109 people responded. Romero found that both students and graduates were overall, very much in favor of a change from the current Southern College of Seventh-day Adventist. Most also felt that a name change would have a positive or, at the worst, no effect on the College's reputation. Graduates tended to be less concerned about the issues and were thus more likely to believe a change would have no effect on the College's reputation. Graduates had experienced fewer negatives and more positives with the College's name when seeking employment. Despite these differences, most students were very much in favor of a name change.

The reasons for wanting a change fell into two distinct groups. One group comprising about one-fourth of the respondents wanted a return to the former Southern Missionary College. This group felt proud of the original name and believed the Southern would bring back the religious connotations so often omitted with the current name. The other group, comprising about one-half of the sample wanted a change because they found the name either too long, unimaginative, common and confusing or a potential deterrent to employment because of the religious connotations. Many of this group's problems with the current or previous name stemmed from the low reputation many employers place on church-related schools. They did not want to face this additional problem in the tight job market.

There was no clear-cut winner among the alternative names. The top choices among students were Southern College and Southern College. The latter showed preference to a more religious hospital with one-fourth writing to Southern Missionary College and about one fourth writing names with the word "Adventist." One-fourth or graduates did choose the non-religious "Richards College.

Romero recommended the name Richards College because "Richards College (was) the only type of name that provides a suitable solution to the major problems" of being non-religious or too common. Richards College represents an unfamiliar group compromise that will require some education in order to gain acceptance. However, if either a religious name or a totally non-religious alternative is used, a very large group of people is guaranteed disappointment and will rightfully call the decision unfair. "The use of a person's name," Romero concluded, "is the only alternative which is distinctive, meaningful to Seventh-day Adventists and without negative or radical connotations to non-Adventists."

Banquet held in Atlanta

The Student Association Valentine Banquet was held at the Peachtree Plaza in Atlanta for two consecutive nights, Feb. 13 and 14. Each night offered a choice of four settings for dinner and a program planned especially for the occasion. The "sweetheart" spirit was in the air as couples wandered through the 70-story hotel, on and taki, fasting for their dinner seating or the program to begin. Dinner, served in the revolving Sundial Restaurant, consisted of a four-course meal, beginning with a fruit cocktail, then continuing with a pea nut soup. The main course was deep-fried cheese crepes with carrots and green beans, served with a lemonade. Dessert was Bavarian chocolate cake topped with whipped cream.

Sunday evening's entertainment consisted of several songs, skits, and humorous readings, including Lisa Olman and Monte Jenkins singing, "Another Valentine With You", and Arlene Brown and Darrell Nooner with "What Are You Doing the Rest of My Life.

Monday evening's program included Pat Williams, Al Cal and Mike McClung performing "Caroline on My Mind," a magic show from Steve Fitzgerald, and Tom Mohler singing, "Still." Another special feature was a skit from Denise Reid and George McBride, "Just You and I.

New hospital proposed

Adventist Health System/Sunbelt is planning construction of a 127 million-dollar acute-care hospital on Apison Pike in Collegedale. According to Dr. Welch, president of AHS-Sunbelt, an application for construction of the proposed 76-bed facility has been filed with the Tennessee Health Facilities Commission in Nashville.

"We have always wanted a hospital near Southern College," Welch told the Southern Accent. "In the past, this wasn't feasible but the area is growing."

The application to the Health Facilities Commission cited significant growth in target population within the next ten years as justification for a Collegedale-based facility. The application stated that most people within the target area of Ooltewah, Collegedale, McDonald, Apison, Ringgold, Rydal, Spring, and surrounding areas, cannot reach a hospital in less than twenty or thirty minutes.

Assuming that the state commission approved the hospital application, construction is expected to begin immediately. Welch, however, emphasized that the opening of the hospital is a ways off. The hospital will be divided into 20 private and 48 semi-private rooms and will be affiliated with Southern College's Division of Nursing and other paramedical programs.

Features of the hospital will include a complete emergency room, a surgical suite with two fully equipped operating rooms and a cytoscopic operating room and a six-bed intensive care/ coronary unit. Also proposed are complete physical and respiratory therapy facilities, laboratories and pharmacy, electrodiagnostics and a provision for community health education and social services.
Just ordinary people

For most of my life, I have held the church and its officials in awe. I heard stories throughout grade school and academy of the wonderful ways God leads church officials. I almost got the feeling that if someone was a church official, they had been appointed by God—through a committee, of course—to lead the church and its members down the straight and narrow right through the pearly gates.

It seemed that church publications drove that point home in a very vivid manner. The Review and Herald gave all those exciting reports from the field about this pastor doing this great thing and that administrator accomplishing some exciting feat. The "official church organ" never seemed to report anything bad so therefore, I assumed, everything was fantastic. My opinions of church officials soared higher and higher.

But there is an old law of natural science that what goes up must come down. Several years ago, the first whisper of the Davenport scandal started to surface. When I started reading some of the scandal sheets, I laughed. They made interesting reading, but I assumed some poor soul had an axe to grind so I put those thoughts out of my mind. Then more reputable publications uncovered evidence concerning the Davenport Investment. The faint smell became stronger. The house of cards fell when Davenport went bankrupt about a year ago.

This incident had a profound effect on many church members, including myself. We began to realize that the church officials were not infallible. They could be rude, corrupt, incompetent and inefficient, among other things. Finally, with the change of style at the Adventist Review, the church started coming down to earth. Church officials began to admit that problems existed in the church. They started facing the issues and letting church members know what was happening.

Today, church members realize that church administrators are not perfect—they are ordinary people who can make mistakes. But they are doing their best to lead the church in these troubled times.

Dear Editor,

Thank you for sending me a copy of the February 3 issue of the Southern Accent. I would appreciate receiving subsequent issues between now and the end of the school year.

Your editorial "SA" On The Books was well done. I hope it will spur some students to action relative to the upcoming elections. It will be interesting to see, in the next issue or two, how the elections turn out.

I look forward to becoming a part of the Southern College family in a few months. I wish for you God's blessings in your work and witness there.

Sincerely,

Dear Editor,

Our Black History Week is over and it was a success! I would like each student to know that I appreciated your support during the week and without you we could not have had an excellent week.

I would like to give special thanks to Dr. Lorenzo Grant who worked very close with me. I would also like to thank the executive committee of BKT, faculty, welcoming committee, speakers, ushers, musicians, my roommate, the administration, public relations, deans, cafeteria, instructional media, and any other people who participated on the programs and anyone I forgot to mention.

I appreciate the hard work and input of every individual. All of you have done a good job. God bless you as you continue to work in His service.

Thank you,

Rees Series starts tonight

by Dick Bird

The 13th annual Rees Series basketball tournament begins tonight at 7:00 in the Physical Education Center.

The series is a tradition at Southern College that began in 1971 to mark the efforts of Men’s Club President Don Tate and Dean Lyle Botimer. According to Botimer, “We wanted to make it (the tournament) a spiritual emphasis, not just a sporting event.” The Rees Series has since become one of the most popular events of the school year.

It was named after Dr. C. N. Rees, who served as college president from 1955 through 1967. An avid sports enthusiast, it was fitting that Rees be honored in that way, for he had done so much for the development of the sports program at SC.

The original tournament format consisted of a best-of-three-games series between the dorm and the village. This was made possible due to a large enrollment of village students, and proved to be quite a rivalry, as each team won three times. Then in 1977, the series format was changed to a contest between clans.

Until Rees’ death in 1976, he attended many of the games, though he was paralyzed from a stroke. He was always accompanied by his wife Fae, who served as Associate Dean of Women, and was greatly loved by those associated with the college.

Tonight the Freshmen meet the tournament-favorite Seniors who will be trying to win an unprecedented fourth straight title. The Sophomores meet the Juniors in the second game.

The tournament will conclude on Saturday night at 7 pm with a consolation game between tonight’s losers, followed by the championship game of 9.

Following the games, the coaches and officials will select an “All Tournament Team” in addition to the “Most Valuable Player” of the tournament. The champions will be presented with the Rees Series trophy.

The Seniors, coached by Matt Naife, will be led by last year’s MVP David Botimer and jumping John O’Brien, who were first and third in scoring during the regular season. Mickey Abbott, Bruce Coaton, Al Franklin, Daryl

Aeolians sing

by Leann Facundus

The Aeolians, the 62-member singing group of Oakwood College, presented an afternoon concert of Negro spirituals at Southern College on Saturday, February 12. Invited by Beta Kipsi Tau, the Afro-American Student’s Club of SC, the choir sang for SC’s Black History Week.

Singing before a full church and wearing their dashikis (one of the traditional dresses of African countries) “to represent the black spirit,” as Mrs. Julia Phillips, the choir’s business manager, put it, the Aeolians illustrated four types of spirituals throughout the program. Spirituals such as, “Once I Was in His Care,” “Eekialt Saw the Wheel,” and “Way Over in Beulah Land,” were sung in the a cappella program given in order to get the true feeling of the music, according to Mrs. Phillips.

During the program, Mrs. Alma Blackman, the director for the past nine years, told the story of how she had had cancer for the second time in 1972, yet the Lord had made “all things work together for good,” and had healed her so that she might direct at Oakwood. Afterwards, Melvin Hayden, who was on the platform as the guest speaker for the morning church services, said that when the choir appeared, remarked, “Because God has given this woman an exquisitely talented, she shares it with the world.”

In the years that Mrs. Blackman has been at Oakwood, the choir has toured all 50 states, Canada, Bermuda, Romaná, and is planning a three week tour as Friendship Ambassadors to England, Scotland, and Wales this June. The Aeolians were asked to sing several encore s, and affected the audience in such a way that one SC student stated, “I haven’t heard such loud ‘amens’ come out of this crowd in a long time.”

February is . . .

Winter slowly wearing itself out (occasional days of brilliant sunshine and zephyr breezes remind us that Spring is virtually just around the corner).

All the trappings surrounding Valentine’s Day: hearts and flowers, candy (expensive and cheap), rows of Valentines in the card shops—most of them are purchased and delivered, banquets, parties, clever notices and gushy messages in the papers, lots of red everything, and, sometimes, even love!

Numerous birthdays of great and near-great individuals—both past and present—with many racist versions of “Happy Birthday” ringing through the halls enhancing(?) the class periods;

Bright new license plates showing up on cars from Georgia (green numerals and letters on white background) and Tennessee (blue letters and numerals and green state names on white background) replacing, at last, what we’ve had for the last six or seven years;

Basketball approaching its frenzied climax—it takes a sports and mathematical genius to keep track of the standings, play-offs, leagues, schedules, and other intricate details;

Students experiencing rude intellectual awakenings (approaching catatonic shock) as the mid-term exams start bearing down upon them, but, also, uncontrollable joy as they contemplate Spring Vacation with its “free-at-last” feeling;

A short month.

Bird watchers head to Florida

Come Thursday morning, Feb. 24, the Ornithology class will depart from Collegetale and begin a trek of over 2,600 miles through Georgia and Florida. The purpose of the trip is to observe as many species of birds in their natural habitat or wintering range as possible.

Beyond that an attempt will be made to study ecological, geographical and behavioral aspects which affect the distribution of birds. Florida is unique in this respect in that it provides hundreds of miles of shoreline along the Atlantic coast as well as the Gulf coast—not to mention the amazing and intricate network of waterways, sluggish rivers, keys and islands, estuaries and bays that seem to encircle the entire state.

To do so, the class will visit such exoticounding places as the Loxahatchee Wildlife Refuge, where they expect to spot the Snail (Everglade) Kite, Fulvous Whistling-Ducks, Smooth-billed Anis and warblers beginning their northward migration; Corkscrew Swamp Sanctuary, where thousands of Wood Storks generally nest, such birds as the Barred Owl, Snail-welled Kite, Little Blue Heron, White Ibis and numerous birds native to cypress swamps; and Sanibel Island, famous for its Sea Shells, where they will ob serv Osprey, Roseate Spoonbill, Reddish Egret and Many-War-Birds.

Of course, the Everglades National Park will be thoroughly covered—here birds such as Anhingas, wintering ducks, escaped Scarlet ibis, White-crowned Pigeons and numerous hawks seem to be quite tame and easily observed. State Parks and Management Areas also will be visited. These will include Myakka River State Park, Cecil M. Webb Management Area, Pine Island and Longboat Key.

The group will be camping some of the time, staying in private homes and banking in the dorms at Forest Lake Academy. Committees are in charge of food, setting up camp, packing the trailer and taking care of telescopes and camera equipment.

One of the members of the group is Fred Carter, instructor and fearless leader, who will be accompanied by Dave Mathewson, lab assistant and native Floridian naturalist, and Dr. Ron Carter, who is getting an introduction to shore birds in preparation for research he will be doing this summer on the Olympia Peninsula in Washington, state.

All in all, when the class returns on March 6, they hope to have sighted over 170 species of birds, become acquainted with a great deal of seldom-seen natural areas of Florida and surely prove that birds have class...it's Ornithology!

ISRAELI DEFENSE MINISTER Ariel Sharon resigned under pressure from the Begin government Sunday. Sharon, however, remains on the cabinet as an at large member, prompting sharp opposition criticism in the Knesset and a continuation of the confrontations between pro and anti Sharon demonstrators which has already left one dead. The resignation was the result of an investigative commission's findings that Sharon was personally responsible for the massacre of Palestinian civilians by Christian militia in Beirut last September.

THE WORST SNOWSTORM in 40 years hit the Northeast Friday, dropping two to three feet of snow from North Carolina to New England. The death toll includes 33 crew members of a coal ship lost in rough seas off Virginia. The "Blizzard of '83" also closed many business and stranded many motorists in cities like New York, Philadelphia, and Washington, DC.

CONGRESSIONAL DEMOCRATS reluctantly accepted President Reagan's $4.3 billion lion jobs bill proposal but vowed to add $1 billion to the tab. "This is not the best bill we Democrats could write, but it may be the best bill we can enact into law," observed House Speaker Tip O'Neill. Although some funds will aid the destitute, the bulk of the proposed expenditure ($4.07 billion) will be used to create new jobs.

JOHN HINCKLEY, JR., found innocent by reason of insanity of shooting President Reagan, attempted suicide for at least the third time Sunday. Hinckley made the attempt by swallowing an undisclosed substance and is in fair condition at Washington, DC's Greater Southeast Community Hospital after having his stomach pumped. Doctors who at one time feared for his 27-year-old patient's life now describe his condition as stable.

THE SOUTHERN ACCENT is sponsoring a photo contest open to all student presently enrolled at SC. All you need to do is submit your best 8 x 10, B&W photograph and it will be judged on the basis of composition, visual impact, technical quality, and originality. All Photos must be submitted no later than March 13, 1983, at the Accent office. The best Photos will be published in the March 17 issue of the Southern Accent and the top three will receive prizes totaling $100. Be sure your name and address is on or securely attached to the photograph, all Photos will be returned. The judges for this contest are Brad Davis, Bahloral Science and Advanced Photography Instructor, Olson Perry, Manager of WSMC-FM and intro to Photography Instructor and Doug Mall, Photography Director, Southern Accent. “Join our BIG family”
Directions
Pastor Gordon Biehl

I sat at my typewriter to think a spiritual thought for the Directions column, and then I think, "Spiritual thought?" That is ridiculous. What is spiritual? We have divided life into neat categories. "Well, now I am going to do something spiritual, I will pray or go to church." The trap that we have avoided in the area of dividing man into body and soul when it comes to the doctrine of the state of man in death, we have fallen into in our daily lives. If we believe in man as a whole person, then that concept must be true for what happens to man when he dies as it is for how we live.

Separating our lives into neat categories of "spiritual and non-spiritual" or "secular and sacred" results in a kind of schizophrenic existence. The result is that church attendance has little to do with real life and real life has little to do with church attendance. Such a dichotomous separation of life is contrary to scripture and it is contrary to how we experience reality. All I do in life needs to be a reflection of who I am in relation to God, whether sitting in church or playing basketball. That is not to say that all activity is appropriate for a sacred day, but it is to say that if a change takes place in one's life a week, then what happens on the one day is not much affecting your life.

Once upon a time in Forest City some strange behavior developed on the part of Freddy the Fox. Freddy was a popular fellow with many of the forest animals and was generally the one, if you will, he attended. You might say he was foxy. All week long Freddy would be his normal self. He would chase turkeys or chickens, dig for mice and generally be himself.

But a strange transformation took place every Sunday. On Sunday, Freddy would not chase turkeys or chickens, dig for mice or even socialize with his friends. It seemed like he was hardly a fox on Sunday, much to the dismay of his friends. He seemed to initiate a rancor or some other animal in the forest. He did a poor job of imitations.

His friends worried about him. Word went around that Freddy was losing his grip on life. One day some of his friends were talking among themselves and they decided he should go and see a counselor (a psychiatrist) to sort out his rather split personality. The intensity of their discussion was that he was schizophrenic. A few days later, when they got up enough nerve to talk to him about his problem, he gave this explanation.

"It is simple," Freddy said. "Sunday is the day of the fox hunt, and I don't want to be a fox on Sunday."

Moral: If you become someone else one day a week. Then who were you on the other six days?

Literature Evangelism Promoted
by Bob Countryman

Never, never be guilty of disqualifying your prospect. Let him do that himself, and never underestimate your prospect's buying power.

One hot summer day a lead card took me into the foothills of the Shenandoah Valley. After two unsuccessful attempts, I finally found the right dirt road that led me all the way up the side of a mountain. The road came to an end, and I parked the car and started walking. After climbing over and through three fences, at last I was near the house. I made my way over and around trash, broken furniture, old car parts, and rubble till I got to the porch. The steps were rotten, and what was left of the porch was covered with broken furniture and more litter. Cobwebs were in abundance. I decided no one lived there and that I must have taken the wrong road.

At that moment I could hear strains of music but could not tell from where they were coming. The music stopped, and then it started again. It was strange, because I could see that the house was empty. I walked toward the back of the old house. I heard the radio again, and three big hounds got up and barked wildly. The music was coming from a little shack in the back of the house.

I traced myself, stopped up on the stoop and knocked on the door. Suddenly a bearded man stood in the doorway and said, "Yup." I said I was there to reply to his request for information about The Bible Story and asked him his name. He replied with, "Yup." I could see past him, and the inside looked worse than the outside, so I decided to stay right on the porch. I showed him The Bible Story accordian folder and asked him whether he liked them. He said, "Yup." I thought I would try a close and asked whether he would like to have them. He said, "Yup." I don't know why, but I decided to show him the BBL accordian folder and told him the six large books and the Bible came with The Bible Story and that all of it together was only $298.78. He pulled out a wad of money from the bib of his overalls and handed me three dollars. I prayed again, "Lord, what do I do now?" I felt impressed to say, "You don't understand. The price is $298.75, and you do want them, don't you?"

He said, "Yup," and took back the three dollars and handed me three $100 bills and a $20 bill when I told him there was a tax and postage. I gave him his change, and then he spoke his first sentence: "When do I get my books?"

"Right now, if you will follow me to the car." He did, and I gave him the home library. I had prayer with him, and I noticed a tear in his eye as he put the heavy box on his shoulder and made his way through the fences and around the house. As I stood there watching him climb that hill I said, "Lord, bless that simple man, and may his faith be rewarded in heaven."

In four years this was the shortest canvassing I had ever given, but Dale Carnegie says, "Tell your prospect just enough to get the order and no more."

You too can join in the canvassing work. Don't forget, tonight (Thursday 2/17-83) at 5:30 in the banquet room of the cafeteria there will be a free banquet for those interested in canvassing. Come and join us!

STOP HANGING AROUND ME KID. I'M A GOOF AND I'M A VERY HUNGRY CAT

I GUESS I GAVE THE KID THE WRONG WAY FOR "HEYOW!"

February 17, 1983/Southern Accent/S

Collegian to Collegian: I'm a very hungry cat.
Time Out  by Kelly Pettijohn

Except for the Rees Series which is yet to be held, basketball season is now over. In some ways it was a very surprising season and in other ways it was not.

In AA the surprise was Koliadko and O'Brien ending up tied for first place with identical 6-4 records. Koliadko however, beat O'Brien two out of three games, giving his team the right to claim number one. Much is to be said for Koliadko’s efforts as they won six of their last seven games, after a 0-2 start. This particular sports editor, being greatly embarrassed after picking O'Brien and Koliadko to finish fourth and fifth respectively, gladly extends his congratulations to both squads. In other AA action, Bovell finished strong, winning both his post season games. Bovell leading his team in one contest with a 39 point performance. Vogel and Botimer, however, lost both of their post season matches, to conclude somewhat disappointing seasons.

In A league there were no surprises. Cain ended his season at 7-1, and all alone in first place. His only blemish, being a 1-point loss to second place Hobbs. At press time, Hobbs, Manzella, Tunnell, and Fitzgerald all have games to play to determine who finishes second, third, and fourth. The rest of the teams in A league are to be commended for their performances, possibly making this year’s A league the best ever.

B league sports the only undefeated team in the school, Duff. Finishing at 7-0, Duff easily clinched first place with several convincing victories. Also congratulations to Jeff Kuhlan whose 48-point performance against Gentry lead him to a 31-plus-point average per game, which is the highest in the school.

McQuistan won the Women’s league by one game margin over Laurencell. McQuistan’s team undoubtedly had the best personnel in the league, both on a team basis, with Loretta Messer, Tamara Nafie, Nancy Malin and Velvat McQuistan leading the team. Laurencell was the key factor to her team, being the leading scorer in the league. Although low scoring as a team, Laurencell managed to keep opponents at an even lower score, with excellent defense.

As most of you know, the Rees Series will be held this Thursday and Saturday nights in the Gym. For those new students who are not aware of what the Rees Series is, it is a basketball tournament between the freshmen, sophomores, junior, and senior classes. It is probably SC’s most popular event in that provides for some excellent entertainment as well as bringing our student body together. All students are encouraged to come out and cheer on their respective classes, and be a part of a very special occasion.

Southern Cynic

by Victor Czarinskij

Walking by the Student Center between classes, I noticed a little black gadget lying off the sidewalk in the grass. Picking it up, I looked it over. It had a small dial on the front, with an arrow that could turn around. To the left, it had a small "B.C." stamp on it in white letters; to the right, "A.D." I went clickety-click. Pretty cute. I turned the dial way over to the right, and punched a little button, Nothing.

"Hey, look at the weirdo! Where'd you get that Martian earring?" I looked up and found what I thought were students. As they gathered about me, I noticed that they were wearing plastic-coated jump suits. Where'd they come from?

"What some people do for attention," said one guy, fingering his fake Martian appendage.

"Maybe he's on his way to a costume party," added a girl.

"If you don't mind," I said rather bluntly, "I happen to be very preppie."

"Preppie?" They all stared at each other. "He must be a theology student using new words." Bored with me, they walked off, except for one guy. "Hi," he said. "My name is Lomino." Very funny I thought. I'll joke with him, "I'm Strombolli."

"Happy to meet you, strum," he said, shaking my hand. (I think this guy is on the level.) "Say, I asked, "Where am I?" He looked surprised. "Why, this is the campus of S.M.C."

"S.M.C.? You changed the name again?" I noticed this is campus of S.M.C. to have changed the name at least 50 years ago.

"Yes, it was made Schlesser Memorial College in 2015, after the greatest college president we ever had. That was about 50 years ago," I stared bug-eyed. "What made him so great?"

Another guy, said Lomino, "Very funny I thought. He instituted a movie screen in each room. We've been the biggest college since, I sat down weakly. "Hey, are you alright?"

"Oh, we're the cheapest at $3,500 an hour." I groped for an air-sick bag. "Say," he asked, "Do you know much about this school's really history?"

"A little?" "Could you come and answer some questions?"

"I'll try."

"Great! Let's go over to the Al Franklin Archives." I wasn't go to ask.

Seated in front of a video screen, Lomino showed me a large mushroom cloud. "Oh, that's easy," I said. "That's an atomic explosion." Sobbery, Lomino said, "Yes, I know. After the C.K. grill blew up in the spring of 1983 we had to start all over. My grandfather, Lomino Sr., was named in honor of the survivors.

I came to, "Hey, Strombolli, you fainted dead away!"

"I'm-I'm alright. What else?"

A fat, orange cat flashed on the screen. "How is this creature associated with the early growth of the school?"

"Oh, just newspaper filler," another picture appeared. It was an old group scene from Nerd Day. "This has puzzled the scholars for a long time," said Lomino. "Is it a group scene from Moccassin Beed?"

"You could say that."

The next scene showed a group of soldiers with rifles and flames throwing cutters talge. "Did SMC have campus riots?" asked Lomino, concerned. "No, but they did have a race problem. Lomino no had more questions.

"What was the Strawberry Festival? Was it an early rite of spring?"

"Not hardly.

"What were Jokers? "Campus Security."

A beeper went off on his wrist. "Oh-oh, gotta get going to my room-it's time for chapel."

"Chapel to your room?" I asked, confused. "That's right. Over the video screen. Same with classes."

"Well, I guess you don't do much."

"No, we don't, but this beeper is loaded with 200 volts if I'm not tuned in right," I blanched. "Will you be here Saturday night?"

"I'll be having a real old class reunion Don Knots meets E.F." followed by a good fiction film: "J.T. Makes V.P.", "No, no, I'm sorry, it's as if I have to go."

I flipped the switch to 1983 and pressed the button. Back in my time, I headed straight over to the trash bin with my gadget, then stopped. Hmm, what if I went to B.C.? Make a good article..."
If you had your way, what would you name our college?

Dr. Blanco

I don't think "Southern College" says anything. They should name it something else.

Southern Adventist College. I just came from the West Coast and the people out there felt that Southern College had no personality or identity. Personally I realize the full name is SCSDA, so why not just call it Southern Adventist College. I'm not ashamed of being a Seventh-day Adventist. I believe that Southern could eventually become a university. Southern Adventist University doesn't sound bad at all.

Endowment fund planned

The Southern College Board of Trustees voted to accept a proposal for a $10 million endowment fund to be completed by 1992. The program would be run by a campaign director who would coordinate the fund-raising activities.

The idea for the fund was originated by Sanford Ulmer, who was a student here over 60 years ago. He and his wife were driving by College Dale one day when they saw the sign to the college and realized they hadn't been here for many years. They invited several staff members, and got in touch with the Public Relations office about setting up a scholarship fund. The Ulmers received many letters from grateful students, thanking them for the gift.

"What better thing can we do with our money?" Ulmer asked the board in an emotional presentation. "I want to do something for the students of this college."

The board voted their appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Ulmer.

In other action, the Tony Romero report on the name change was officially presented to the Board of Trustees. The trustees voted to establish a committee consisting of board members, faculty, alumni, and students. This committee will make recommendations to the Board of Trustees relative to the college name, logo, diplomas, and marketing. All actions concerning this matter will go through this committee.

The trustees approved a tuition increase of 9% for next school year. This is the increase necessary due to the projected drop in enrollment of 140 FTE (full-time equivalency). Despite the increase, Southern College will still be the second least expensive Adventist college in North America, according to Dr. Knittel. Oakwood College costs less but is subsidized by the General Conference.

The trustees granted Dr. Ray Leiferin a sabbatical leave for the next year so he can go to the Soviet Union. They also granted six teachers a summer leave—Bruce Ashton, Brad Davis, Judy Glass, Desmond Rice, and Steve Zimmerman. The trustees did not cut any tenured faculty.

Elder Robert Spangler, editor of Ministry magazine, is conducting the Spring Week of Spiritual Emphasis at Southern College this week.

"I am praying," Spangler told the students at the opening meeting, "that God will help us get a closer relationship to Him." We need to put first things first. Even if you have to change your whole schedule to find time to spend with Christ, do it.

"A person is lost not because he is 'bad' but because he ignores God. By ignoring God," Spangler emphasized, "we get out of harmony with Him. Then we get a 'who cares' attitude."!

Elder Spangler attended Southern Junior College from 1939-41. "I would have gone here all four years because I just love it here," he says, "but they only had a two year program at that time."

Elder Spangler met his wife at what is now Columbia Union College where he graduated from in 1943. He interned in the Ohio and Florida Conferences then worked as a pastor/evangelist for the next 11 years in the South and Southwest. In 1954, Elder Spangler received a call to the Far Eastern Division where he served as the Ministerial Secretary. Spangler went on to the General Conference six years later as Associate Secretary of the Ministerial Association, a department which he later headed. In 1966, Elder Spangler became editor of Ministry magazine, in addition to his duties at the Ministerial Association. Then in 1980, the Ministerial and Stewardship Departments combined with Spangler as the new director. Today, in addition to his many speaking engagements in the U.S., he travels around the world promoting the Ministerial and Stewardship Department.

Magic Circus will perform

The Chinese Magic Circus of Taiwan will perform at the Physical Education Center on Sunday, March 13 at 7:30 p.m. This production features acrobatics and magic of the East along with comedy, balancing feats, Kung Fu and costumed girls performing traditional dances.

The precision of the acrobats are due to years of training and discipline, but their art was formed by centuries of tradition. The Chinese acrobats are more than a series of stunts. Most of the acts were created and performed in China as far back as 200 B.C. and have been a part of Chinese culture and the arts. Many of the acts demonstrate finding harmony between mind and body—an ancient concept in the Orient.

The cast numbers 17 persons, six of whom are dancers. In the past 6 years, tours have taken them through all of South and Central America, Southeast Asia, South Africa, England, Canada, and the United States.

Ticked prices are $5 for adults and $2.50 for students with ID.

Dear Editor,

I would like to share an experience I had over vacation with you. Some friends and I were in Record Bar in the Eastgate Shopping Center and we were looking at some of the records. One of my friends picked up a record by Black Sabbath and on the cover was a picture of Satan. Even though my friend was holding it, I got really bad vibes from it. It was like an evil influence was permeating the atmosphere. It scared me and I had to leave. This experience has showed me that the devil has a direct influence on rock music. I would like to thank the faculty for making rock concerts off limits. They know what they are doing. Thank you.

Dear Editor,

This letter concerns a classified in last week's Accent addressed to Talge residents by Ms. “Anonymous” claiming that a man-eating lioness had gone into Talge and starved to death. Most guys I talked to dismissed it as a stupid joke, and maybe that's all it is.

I suspect, however, that Ms. “Anonymous” was being at least partly serious in which case she should know that there are plenty of guys over here still waiting for the first “10” to move into Thatcher.

This doesn't mean that there's anything wrong with the girls at Thatcher, or the guys at Talge for that matter. There are, however, some things that are very wrong with the very unChristian concept of a “10” or a “real” (ideal) man or “real” woman. The main problems are: 1) that for all but a handful of people in this given society, becoming a “10” isn't really possible, and 2) the goal itself of becoming a “10” isn't really all that desirable.

The point is that for every person who is a “10”, there are millions of others who are hopelessly frustrated by their inability to become a “10” or who have learned, somewhere, to live happy and well-adjusted lives in spite of that inability.

Now as to how desirable it is to be a “10” (or to date one, for that matter), I suppose the two best examples of a “10” in our society are Tom Selleck and Raquel Welch. I don't know a great deal about Tom Selleck, but I do know that when he's on television he's acting out the role of Magnum not Tom Selleck; and as attractive as he may seem to Thacherites, I doubt that most of them would really enjoy a relationship with him.

In Ms. Welch's case, I do know a little of her personal life and I'm quite sure none in Talge having her as a companion.

The best case-in-point regarding the desirability of being a “10” is probably Marilyn Monroe. If anyone ever was a “10”, it was Marilyn. In fact, Raquel really doesn't hold a candle to her and look at one of Ms. Monroe's movies. The women she was really murdered, there can be no doubt that this woman lived a miserable life. When one girl told Marilyn she wanted to be just like her, she very emphatically told her she never to say that again.

“Have everything,” Monroe told her, “you have people who really love you. Nobody loves me.”

If only she knew how wrong she was! There was Someone who loved Marilyn with an all-consuming love and He has that same kind of love for you and Me. In His opinion (the only one that really counts) we're all “10’s”, through saving knowledge of His love and grace.

If there is a true, all-encompassing set of criteria for a “real” man or woman, it is that set up by Paul in I and II Timothy. Although it is advice given to a young man (Timothy), it applies equally to young women. In I Timothy 6:11-12 Paul exhorts Timothy to "flee" from evil "and pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, endurance and gentleness." A "real" man or woman is one who fights "the good fight of faith," not some vain, earthly goal of being or becoming a Matlcy Monroe or a Marly Monroe. Anyone who settles for anything less than God's version cheats himself, and if you don't believe me, just ask Marilyn.

In Christ's Love,

McElroy celebrates election

Campaigning for the 1983-84 Student Associations offices ended during the latter part of February with voting on February 16 and 17. Glenn McElroy received 89% of the vote in his unopposed bid for SA President. In the vice-presidential race, J.T. Shim pulled 62% of the vote to Cary Gregory's 38%. Ken Rozell was eliminated in the qualifying primary. Malinda McKee gained the right to edit next year's Southern Memories by outdistancing opponent Stafford Barney, 60% to 40%.

In the other elections, Peggy Brandenburg received 87% of the yes/no vote to become Social Activities Director. John Sewart had a 91% approval rating in his quest to be the next Student Services Director. Maureen Welch will move from assistant Editor of the Southern Accent to Editor because of her 84% positive rating. Don Welch received the highest vote percentage of all the candidates in his bid to become Joker editor with 93%.

The winning candidates had many ways to celebrate their victories. Some held quiet parties. Glenn McElroy, however, made a big splash. One day after the results were released, McElroy had a big party at Taco Bell. At 3:30, he arrived at the Mexican restaurant in a black limousine, accompanied by a police escort. A camera crew from TV12 was on hand to take footage of the SA President-elect and his celebrating supporters. McElroy told the Southern Accent he planned the party not only to celebrate but to build school spirit. "I feel like we have to have better school spirit," he said. "We need to let people know we aren't ashamed of being from Southern." "My main priority next year," McElroy added, "is to build school spirit and the understanding between faculty and students. This all ties together-school spirit, positive attitude and as understanding from where faculty and students are coming. "I see next year's SA as an organization working for the students and with the students for the betterment of Southern College."

Third time's a charm for Shim

After making the campaign slogan of "JT is VP" a well-known phrase in 1981 and 1982, it will finally be "JT in '83". Jook-Ting Shim, better known as JT, was elected with 62% of the votes to the office which he has been seeking for the past three years, that of S.A. vice president. This is compared with 12% of the votes his first year of candidacy and 8% the following year.

How does JT feel after his recent victory? "Relieved. I had put sufficient time and effort and thought into the vice presidential race that at the time I would have beenannered defeated," answers the vice president-elect. "The last two attempts were not really campaigns-they just weren't successes. The twenty-four hours before the results were posted were the longest I've experienced for years. It's the first time that I honestly wished time would go faster," JT admits, however, that he wasn't surprised at the results because he had campaigned hard, had the support of many influential people on campus, and was ready. It was this that made the difference in the outcome from previous years. "The campaign had a significant impact on my studies, finances and sleep, unlike the previous two attempts," explains JT. "The investment in time and money by friends and myself far exceed the combined efforts of my 1981 and 1982 vice presidential campaigns. However, JT believes that it was the confidence that he had in himself that truly made the difference this year. "I have this problem. I find it extremely difficult to lie. Therefore, I intend to sell or market something I don't believe in. The last two years I could not say as I can this year. I am the best man for the job of S.A. vice president. I am convinced, and I can convince others. Being the type of individual that likes to "get in the driver's seat and do it right" rather than "sitting in the background criticizing and questioning the actions and decisions of any administration,' JT believes he is in the position with which he can do the most good for the most people. I have great difficulty being a spectator in life. I thrive on involvement and do not intend to complain about any situation without first studying the problem and attempting to solve it. I like action. I like progress. I like improvement. Besides, it will be an official title which will cover most of the extra-curricular activity I'm now engaged in. I can justify doing what I enjoy by saying that it is my job."

Realizing that it's "impossible" to do justice to the vice presidency and be a full time student, he is postponing his graduation a year.

In reference to suggestions that Glenn McElroy, President-elect, and JT will not work well together, JT states, "I've only met one person on this campus with whom I truly couldn't stand, and it isn't Glenn. "I've got the capability for realizing that my way is not the only way or even the best way." Having worked with Glenn McElroy on the Senate Projects Committee, JT knows that the vice president does not work by himself. "The president will be expected to call the shots, and as I've said before, and I'll say again, 'I will support the president.'"

March 10, 1983/SOUTHERN ACCENT/3
Spangler discusses major issues

The Southern Accents talked to Elder Robert Spangler concerning issues facing the church. Here are excerpts from the conversation.

You have travelled to Australia and held meetings with ministers. What is the situation like out there?

The church has recently lost 50 ministers in Australia, mostly to apostasy. The main difference in Ford’s theology is pre-tribulation rapture. It is like Ford chopping down the forest of prophetic interpretation and planting his own.

Another tragedy is that many of Ford’s followers have gone far beyond him in dropping the Sabbath, the law and other basic Adventist doctrines.

Do you see the church accepting these ministers back?

The question is “Can you push back the walls of the church?” Prophecy is so interwoven into the doctrines of the church that to alter them would destroy Adventism.

Is the gap between Ford and the Seventh-day Adventist Church insurmountable?

It is impossible in that Ford and his group won’t change. If the church changes, it will lose its reason for existence. Ford has gone far away from the church and then you think in the last five years.

Many church members felt that Ford did not get a fair deal at Glacier View. What is your reaction?

Many of these feelings are due to misunderstandings concerning the Glacier View gathering. There were actually two sets of meeting. The original Glacier View meeting was to strictly be investigatory.

However, leaders from the Australasia Division wanted to decide what to do with Ford’s credentials. So a separate meeting was called after the regular meeting.

I was on the committee that interviewed Ford. We asked him to take his time in considering his position, but he refused. I wish we had waited on this committee to avoid the confusion.

How do you feel about the extra duties that have been added to your workload?

I enjoy the work but it is very stressful in terms of the crisis that hit rocked the General Conference. Yet I feel that the crisis had to come because of the lethargy among the members of the church.

Some of the crisis is very tragic. I have a friend who gave up everything—church, God. Yet good has come out of it. It has forced us to study, individually. And to make sure our message is Biblical sound and Biblically based.

The more we study, the more firmly we believe in the fundamental beliefs. We have a Biblical foundation. It is expanded and broadened by Ellen G. White. But the basic principles are from the Bible. Will the church de-emphasize Ellen White?

There will be less emphasis in the sense that ministers will not be having whole sermons using only EGW quotes. Her writings will be used as an aid. Ellen G. White’s writing will also be used less as a club. The way we used it in the past tended to be counterproductive. In the past we also put her on a pedestal. We have to remember that she was a human being.
As some may have heard over WSMC, the General Conference Officers have decided not to publish a list of names of people in the Review and Herald of those who were implicated in the Davenport commission study conducted by the General Conference. This is a referral of a previous decision reported in the Review and Herald that the names of some church administra tors would published.

One can hear the hue and cry of some whose initial reaction might be, "Whitewash!" or "The General Conference did not have the courage to act!" Such concerns and doubts arise from fears that the Davenport trauma will be swept under the rug and implicated administrative personnel will simply file away "Davenport," which will arise that will traumatize the church in future years. I agree with the decision of the GC officers and admire Neal Wilson for the courage he had in reversing himself after he published his intentions in the Review. I have two major reasons for agreeing with the decision not to publish the names. (1) The placing of a "scarlet letter" on the names of certain people as a form of punishment hasken back to the Middle Ages and is an inappropriate form of church discipline. Such a public presentation of names of implicated official might satisfy the sadistic nature of the scandal mongers, but it reminds one more of placing people in stocks than a form of redeeming censor. What purpose is served than simply the destruction of some careers. For those who would like to see certain careers destroyed, I might quote from Meg Greenfield, whose J a paper recently in the Review (March 7, 1983) "I do have the impression that we have been seized by a kind of uncontrollable-mob mood, one that could result in a number of people's getting hurt unnecessarily," and though speaking about the events in Washington, what she says applies to us, as she continues, "Somehow, the whole country seems to get dragged together willingly, even joyously.--in these episodes of rule, episodes in which someone of whom most people had practically never heard only a short while before becomes the embodiment of all things defective or evil. The charges may be false; they may be true in some special respect, but, in their presentation, wildly disproportionate to the truth. I to believe we have a good time. The victim stagers away. We go on to something else... Invariably it is the very same neutral observers as well as certain red-hot defenders start insisting that although (a) the poor devil in questions is really nothing like the monster that is emerging as his image, and (b) the more serious charges against him have yet to be proved, he should in the interest of some greater public good, get lost.

The guilty must be removed from office, and the given positions that are within their competence, but to publish names is to go beyond the proper bounds of church discipline.

(2) The other reason, and the prime one, as far as I am concerned, is one that is a concern to the church policy. By moving to punish through the publication of names the General Conference was subverting properly constituted form of discipline in the SDA church, and moving toward a papal usurpation of authority.

The local entity (Union of Local Conference) who hired the people is responsible for their discipline. To take that responsibility from the local organization is to move toward a papal form of church government and it is imperative that local employing organizations act with appropriate dispatch in implementing discipline against administrators who have abused the trust of the membership. But if they don't we will not have a long range solution to the problem by asking the General Conference to assume any authority then its charter grants.
What do you think of the level of school spirit at this college?

Laverne Washington
Freshman
Business Management

It's malnourished. Just about every school has a problem with a lack of school spirit. Here it's a poor attitude about the school.

Terry Hudson
Freshman
Long-term Health Care

It stinks. I think the SA should appoint a committee to work on the problem. How can you have school spirit when you don't even know what it's name is going to be next year?

Effie Hyde
Freshman
Business Management

If there is any school spirit, it is not demonstrated very often.

Terry Dunning
Sophomore
Computer Science

Below average compared to other colleges, perhaps one reason is because we don't have interactive sports with other schools.

Edward Doe
Sophomore Engineering

What school spirit? We don't do that much together as a student body. Not many people want to cram their style by attending school functions regularly.

I perceive school spirit as being low because we are not working together towards common and clearly defined goals through the college. Show your school spirit—buy a painters cap!

Band to give

Spring Concert

A special guest artist will be performing with the Southern College Concert Band, under the direction of Mrs. Pat Silver, in their Spring Concert on March 12. Bass trombonist virtuoso Alan Raph, from New York City, will be featured along with several band selections. Well-known throughout America as an arranger, composer, soloist and clinician, Mr. Raph has played under such conductors as Leopold Stokowski, Sir Thomas Beecham, Thomas Scherman and Hector Villa-Lobos.

Mr. Raph is a former member of the Gerry Mulligan Concert Jazz Band, and has distinguished himself in both jazz and symphonic circles. He has performed with many name bands and popular conductors, including Fred Waring, Quincy Jones, and Kurt Weill.

Raph will be performing several numbers with the band that were written especially for him, and also some that he has arranged for band and bass trombone.

The concert will be at 8:00 p.m. in the PE Center.

Dear Editor,

I am writing in regard to the letter written by Cindy Torgeson in last week's Southern Accent. In her letter, she states that after looking at the cover of an album by the rock group Black Sabbath a "strange feeling" came over her and she had to leave the store. Because she believed a picture on the front of the album to be a likeness of Satan, which claims caused the "strange feeling" she concluded that all rock music is "of the Devil." One of the greatest pitfalls of people (SDA's included) today is that so many of them come to moral conclusions about issues such as rock music because of a gut feeling or emotional impulse which they mistake for reality.

Our feelings or emotions are greatly influenced by conditioned responses and learned attitudes instilled in us by parents, teachers and society. These attitudes vary with the individual and therefore cannot be relied upon to trigger an emotional response based on solid fact. Human body chemistry changes from day to day and so a stimulus which would cause cold chills one day may not even affect the person the next. Perhaps if Miss Torgeson had seen the album cover at a different time or in a different setting it might not have been distressing to her, but because she was negatively affected by the visual stimulus she has made a generalized judgment upon all rock music and has commended the administration for banning rock concerts.

My point is not whether or not rock music is of the devil, but whether or not we are substituting emotions for rational, comprehensive reasoning. Religion and Christianity are not based on sensationalism and emotions, but on our God given ability to use our minds to make moral judgements.

Sincerely,
Mary A. Gilbert

Dear Editor,

After reading the letter in last week's Accent about "Bad Vibes" from a Black Sabbath album I was horrified since I own one. I ran up to my room and dug my old Black Sabbath album out from under my Heritage Singer collection and held it to see if mine possessed (so to speak) a life of its own. Sure enough the moment I picked it up I felt a little tingle in my fingertips. I was just stumped and mystified, I sat down on my bed, wondering what I should do. Should I burn it or smash it up? Then an idea came to me: I had just come from PE class and was tired and very sore, so I laid down on my bed, put the album on my back. It was great. Better than a massage any day. I just lay there and let the record vibrate all over my back. In half an hour I was refreshed and ready to go. Since then my roommate and I have found many more uses for the "vibe-record." Here are a few:

You can make milkshakes on it, play vibrating NFL football, tie it to your stomach and shake away extra pounds, mix it on it, click a dust rag around it, and let it clean your room, and, you can even put a beach on it and walk it around campus like a pet.

(Best of all you don't have to carry along a hooper-scooper either!) So put those Black Sabbath albums to work or play. I was going to throw mine out, but now, no way.

Thanks Cindy.

Sincerely,
Chuck Wisner

P.S. I also found Blue Oyster Cult and AC/DC give edgy groovy vibes but was totally disappointed with heavy metal superstars Van Halen who have a reputation for fast-paced concerts and hard-living. Their albums just laid there--no vibes at all. Why don't you try some of your own records out?

Dear Editor,

After reading a certain letter in last week's Accent, I feel compelled to add my opinion. To say that all rock music is influenced by the devil is a propagandist statement that means no more to me than a skywriting about the sky fulling. The young lady who wrote (can't) on page 3

Sincerely,
Vince Pettijohn
Letters... can't. from p. 2. the letter was no doubt over come by emotion when she wrote it. I can think of dozens of rock bands that will have nothing to do with the devil. A person has the power of choice and can decide for himself, without the help of others, what type of music is best for him. He also can decide what type of literature to read, and what type of painting to look at. Does one condemn Leonardo DaVinci simply because he was homosexual? I am not going to condemn a person for fasci

Hospital proposal examined

Representatives from the state Health Facilities Commission heard arguments on March 8 concerning the proposed East Hamilton Medical Center on Apison Pike in Collegedale.

Jan Rushing told the commission that the new $12.7 million hospital would serve a "growing and underserved" population and solve the problem of the 30-minute drive from the Collegedale area to downtown Chattanooga where most of the area hospitals are located.

Opponents of the hospital cited overcrowding, duplication of services, and rising health care costs as reasons for rejection of the Adventist Health System/Sunbelt project.

Stanton, Smith, former member of the Georgia-Tennessee Regional Health Commission Board lead the opposition to the proposed 76-bed hospital. "There is an excess of 200 beds in the area," Mr. Smith said. "The cost of maintaining just one empty bed ranges from $30,000-$50,000 a year." "Adding another 76 beds will increase the health care costs in this community by 2-3 million dollars per year. I appreciate the good intentions and the concern... but it's not enough reason to overload the health care system. Other opponents cited the impact on occupancy at established, in-town facilities while others cited the excess pressures excited on hospitals by unnecessary beds and exhorbitant costs.

Rushing, Mayor of Collegedale and a AHS/Sunbelt executive, told the commission that "a new hospital, sixed properly, will have no adverse economic impact on surrounding hospitals." "Red Bank, Hixson, and East Ridge have all built hospitals. We find ourselves facing a growing underserved population."

Don Self, a spokesman for Adventist Health Systems told the Southern Accent that they were "quite pleased" with the overall impact of the hearing. "We feel we presented our side effective," Self said.

Self said he expects the Health Facilities Commission to approve the project but it still application is anticipated, "the decision will be appealed. "Sooner or later," Self added, "there will be a hospital in this part of the country. If not this time, next time."

Haggai to speak

Dr. Tom Haggai will talk tonight for the Anderson Lecture Series. Dr. Haggai is in great demand as a speaker, speaking for conventions, business organizations, schools, and churches. In the last decade, he has averaged one speaking engagement a day, logging over 250,000 miles a year.

In addition to his speaking engagements, Dr. Haggai serves as Chairman of the Board of IG (Independent Grocers' Alliance), America's third largest group of retail food stores. He hosts a daily five-minute radio show, "Values For Better Living" and contributes regularly to several business periodicals.

Dr. Haggai has received numerous awards and honors yet the honor that he prizes most is the Silver Buffalo, the Boy Scouts of America's highest national award. The program will be held at 8 p.m. this evening in Summerour Hall. This is the sixth meeting of the E.A. Anderson Lecture Series.

Wilson discusses Davenport

On January 4, the General Conference officers voted to accept the Presidential Review Commission's report concerning the Davenport affair. The commission, which had met last about 18 million dollars in principal and 3 million dollars in interest, was given 30 days to reach its decision. The commission was given 30 days to reach its decision, but they declined to do so. I'm wondering if this is accurate or not.

At this point, we have not asked anyone to resign, though I am not going to say that we may not give that counsel to some as we have further opportunity to discuss it with them.

Could it be possible that the church policy of using the title to be invested is not in harmony with the Bible or the Spirit of Prophecy?

On the surface, the lawsuit affair does have the appearance of a financial firm. We are talking about loans and investments, bankruptcy, conflict of interest and the light. But really it is far more inclusive. The real issue is not money but confidence or lack of it in church organization. When I hear that some of my brothers and sisters in the church are angry with me and the church are angry with me for the reason to the point where they might not wish to worship or go to church, even to the point of withholding financial support, I know people are hurting. If there is anything 1 or anyone else can do to help, to communicate, to heal, to minister, I'd say it is fully compatible with Sabbathkeeping.

What vehicle do we have planned to allow these commissions access to the investigative material so that a judgement can be made?

At least two officers of the North America Division or the General Conference will be at each of these meetings to present the background with the documentation to the full group concerning any kind of discipline that they feel warranted and the reason for that. In that case, there will be a clear indication so the members will have sufficient basis to do this discipline.

We believe this will be helpful and we believe it is a good way at this time. When all the facts are on the table, it brings us very close together.

Will the discipline actually be carried out by the local board? In fact can it be carried out if many of those indicated are exonerated by boards and committees who are their peers and friends?

I would like to believe that individuals that serve on boards and committees are there because they recognize the seriousness of that particular trust. I believe in my heart and soul that in the majority of cases, they will handle it responsibly.

Will there be any availability to the facts of the audit report produced by a national CPA firm?

The information that was gathered for us was not necessary to be used as a vehicle for discipline. It was originally done for two reasons. One was a more thorough and complete picture brought together by a law firm and a CPA firm so that we would know what our legal exposure might be. The other reason was that we had to build a wall of protection for ourselves because individuals seeking to establish the fact that the Seventh-day Adventist church was perhaps being handled by Dr. Davenport, that we were his agents, and that we were in partnership.

"this matter...has brought universal shame..."

While we will be willing to release material concerning a specific situation, we are very reluctant to release the whole document until this matter is put to rest.

It was stated that the current position on releasing the names was taken to be a weakness in the Davenport affair. Had Dr. Davenport, that we were his agents, and that we were in partnership.

What action is contemplated if the recommendations are not followed by the local conferences?

We will be willing to follow this thing through to its ultimate conclusion. If a committee, after hearing what the recommendation is to take action, they will have to be responsible for the consequence.

"we are all paying a price."

It will then be our intention to ask the General Conference Committee to request that the conference or union call a special session of the constituency. We will feel much more satisfied with any decision that they arrive at, than merely an executive committee.

Is it true that much of the investments made by the church were made after he had been dropped from church membership?

Dr. Davenport did have domestic problems and did suffer through the suffering of divorce. He has been and is still a member of the church at this time.

How much for offering?

ACT I

SCENE 1 (Johnny is 3 years old and on his way to Sabbath School with his parents.)

JOHNNY: "Dad, I don't have any offering.

DAD: "Here you are, Johnny" (giving 15 cents). He grasps it in his tiny fist and in his other fist is a handful of Lorna Linda food labels.)

MOTHER: "Don't lose the money this time, Johnny. Do you remember who the money is for?"

JOHNNY: "Jesus and the African natives."

DAD: "That is right. Johnny."

SCENE 2 (Johnny in Sabbath School)

TEACHER: Okay, Boys and Girls, it is time to give money to Jesus so all of you come up and put your offering in the little mission box when the music begins to play.

(Music - "Hear the Pennies Dropping")

ACT II

SCENE 1 (Johnny is 15 years old and on his way to Sabbath School)

DAD: John, do you have any offering?

JOHNNY: (stumbling over a chair and bumping Becky on his way to the mission box, he drops his money into the box from over his head so he can hear the pennies drop and returns to his seat.)

TEACHER: And now, who remembered the labels?

JOHNNY: (raising his hand)

TEACHER: Good for you, Johnny, would you like to come up and put them into the elephant's mouth?

JOHNNY: (nodding his head, he walks up and shoves his fistful of labels into the gaping hole under the elephants trunk.)

TEACHER: Boys and Girls, you should remember to bring your labels, too, so there can be more money for the mission field.

Wilsen cont'd.

If Dr. Davenport presently in Switzerland with millions in Swiss banks.
I do not know where Dr. Davenport is at the present time. There is no way to know if he has huge sums in Swiss banks. This is the reason people put money in Swiss banks. While it has been alleged, at this point I would not be in any position to level a charge along that line.

Some may wonder if the Presidential Review Commission was a domestic document to make the church leadership look objective. Was the work of the commission of any value or could the church officers have cared for the whole matter themselves? The Commission took its work seriously. I have nothing but the highest praise for them. They did a job that the officers could not have done. They filled a much needed role.

When will the Davenport matter, as far as church discipline is concerned, be over?

To follow through properly and adequately, I would hope that the end of May could be the final cut off point.

Campus Capsules

Elder Jerry Morgan of Collegedale, TN, will be the featured speaker at the bi-annual Nursing Dedication to be held this Sabbath at 6:30 p.m. Morgan will be speaking to approximately 70 nursing students in the Collegedale church.

Other guests will include the Wives of the Gideons, who will give white New Testaments to each student dedicated.

Special music and lighted candles help to make this occasion important for nursing students and their families. This program takes the place of a capping ceremony that was formerly held on this campus and is still used by nursing schools.

The Southernaires, under the direction of Ron Qualley, will perform the National Anthem, as arranged by Southern College's Cynthia Patterson, at the start of the Hawk's game with the Philadelphia 76ers.

According to Qualley, it was through a conversation with Mark Sellers, the Director of Group Sales for the NBA team that the engagement was made. "We're ordered tickets through Mark for the last three years," Qualley said. "When I presented the idea (of singing the anthem), Sellers liked it right away."

Sellers in turn expressed his appreciation by inviting the Southern College Band to perform during the halftime intermission, and calling the April 12 date "Southern College Night."

The game will receive broadcast coverage on both radio and television stations, beginning at 7:30 on WTB6 Channel 17 TV and WTBC 750 AM radio in Atlanta.

The Division of Arts and Letters of Southern College has announced a guest appearance by Dr. Jean Kib- bourne on Thursday, March 17, at 10:30 a.m. in the PE Center.

A nationally-known media analyst, lecturer, and writer, Dr. Kibbourn will present a slide presentation entitled: The Naked Truth: Advertising's Image of Women.

Coach Steve Jaecks reminds all players in the tennis tournament to meet play deadlines, so that the Doubles Tournament will run smoothly.

With the emergence of the new United States Football League and the tremendous amount of publicity involved in the Herschel Walker ordeal, the Southern Accent conducted a poll on the SC campus to get a feel as to what the students feel about the new USFL. Three main questions were asked of the students. These are listed below along with the various responses.

1. Do you like the New USFL?
   55% liked the league
   19% Don't like the league
   26% No opinion

2. Do you think the USFL will survive?
   59% Said yes
   21% Said no
   20% Don't know

3. Will the USFL threaten the NFL for competition of talent?
   52% Said yes
   40% Said no
   8% Don't know

In response to the question "Will the USFL survive?"
Several quotes were given. Some of those quotes are as follows:
"It will survive a year or so"
"only if it gets a lot of exposure on television."
"It seems like America is too dedicated to the NFL for the USFL to take over"
"They're nobody"
"People will pay to watch football regardless of the league"
"The USFL will take 1/2 of the NFL's players and 1/2 of their fans."
"I'm sick of player strikes. The NFL will be in trouble if players strike again."
"I don't like the USFL, because taking Herschel Walker was wrong."

My mailbox is not the most exciting place. Every morning it spits out letters pleading for donations. Gerry Farwell, with only $10 more from you, we’ll have those Adventists where we want them!” different bills, and these credit card applications which always get turned down anyway. So I thought I would sit down and write a few letters that I would like to receive—but alas, I never do.

Dear Son,
You are our joy and pride. In two months you will be a college graduate. It seems that we were wrong for sinking you every time you broke something (remember my Ming Dynasty vase?), or the time you burned down the house. We were wrong. Enclosed is a check for $10,000 to make everything right.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Dear Vic:
Over the last vacation we searched your room and found nothing objectionable. Keep up the good work.

The Deans

P.S. Where’d you get that great Cheryl Tiegs poster?

Dear Student #25995:
It appears that we overcharged you for 803 butter pads that you never took. We are giving you the proper $24.09 credit due you. Also, attached to this letter is a Guest Card we would like you and your friends to use for one week. Again, sorry.

Earl Evans,

Dear Vic and Rene:
I’m sorry for having you in this year’s Joker as a Junior and not married. I know all those calls from Thatcher asking you out have been troublesome to your wife. How can I ever make it right?—with sack cloth and ashes?

With gratitude,

The Long Term Health Care Division of the Business Department will sponsor a banquet on March 22, for all those students interested in this area of health care.

Among those in attendance will be Business faculty, I.H.C. majors and the Regional Health Care corporate executives.

The guest speaker will be Fred Armstrong from U.T.C., and will speak on the current economic condition.

All those interested in attending should sign up in the Business Department office before Friday or call 4986 to register.

To Gary Howe

I see you’re making a name for yourself at S.C. I hope you enjoy college life as much as I am. Good luck. Study hard—but have fun!

ATTENTION THATCHER RESIDENTS—Question: What’s the difference between the garbage and the Thatcher residents? Answer: The garbage gets taken out at least once a week!
What student activities do you most often participate in and what do you think would help boost school spirit?

Estelina Galva
Sophomore
Medical Technology

Saturday night movies: there should be more informal parties where we can get to know other students better.

Becky Hummell
Junior
Home Economics

There aren't any activities that most students can participate. If we had a more typical college program with organized sports, cheerleaders, fraternities & sororities, there would be more school spirit.

Marc Buch
Sophomore
Business Administration

Pizza feed and banquets. The Administration need to stop harping on such nit-picky subjects as jewelry, eating out on Sabbath, shorts, supposedly bad student attitudes...the list goes on.

Terry Wilkes
Sophomore
Computer Science/Business

Saturday night movies & pizza feeds in the cafeteria. I think it would be nice if we had a basketball team that could play other colleges.

Carol Murphy
Junior
Behavioral Science/Family Studies

There isn't anything to attend except Saturday night activities. If we weren't all so bogged down with our studies, maybe everybody could lighten up and we could have a little more school spirit.

61 Nurses dedicated

Sixty-one first semester nursing students were dedicated before an assembly of families and friends in the Collegedale church on Saturday, March 14.

Elder Jerry Morgan, youth pastor at the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist church, was chosen by the class to be the speaker. "Somewhere, the nursing profession has been recognized as very special," Morgan said. "Nurses ... are set aside and consecrated to a divine and sacred purpose. Yet if I was going to dedicate myself to something," he added, "I better be able to enjoy it for the next 40 plus years. Too often once we get on the job, we find that reality is a long way from idealism." Morgan then shared some steps on how to avoid job burnout.

1. Learn how to be dissatisfied with your performance so you will continue to grow.
2. Learn to think in principles and not just in facts.
3. Look for and grow with evaluation.
4. Learn to expand your education. Go beyond ... Don't limit yourself to nursing. Become a well-rounded person.

In closing, Morgan challenged the nurses. "Today you are going to be dedicated. My hope is that someone will see you and say, 'there is something special about that nurse.' That is what I call dedication." During the program, several members of the class performed musical selections and a representative from Glodin International presented the class with a small white New Testament. Elvie Swinson then called roll and each student rose to light his candle. Encircling the darkened church with their lighted candles, the class recited the Nightingale Pledge to commit their lives to purity and the faithful performance of nursing.

E AI meet at Andrews

The Adventist Intercollegiate Association will hold its annual convention at Andrews University from April 1-4. Student Association officers from 10 of the Adventist colleges in the United States will meet to discuss problems they have as student leaders, and ways to solve them, and attend training workshops on practical subjects.

AIA has come under fire from some SA officers in recent years because of a lack of direction and practical usefulness. Mike Seaman, AIA President and '82 SMC graduate, vigorously defended his organization. "This year we have been rebuilding AIA," Seaman told the Southern Accent. "We have re-established stronger ties among the SA officers and have proposed to establish communication among officers. We have started to work on a proposal with the North America Division to establish a student loan program for students at Adventist schools, one of our greatest achievements," Seaman emphasized, "developing a convention that meets the original purpose of AIA - a lot of training instead of just discussion on how to improve AIA."

Other SA officers have questioned the usefulness of AIA in relationship to its cost. Seaman, however, contends the cost is minimal. "AIA costs each SA 19 cents per full-time equivalent student during certain times, like vacations and summer. Besides the system, other energy-saving ideas have been suggested, such as installing and burning steam pipes, and controlling lights by a photo cell. "This system could take anywhere from 3 months to 1 year to install and is going to cost," states Rodney Dupree, a representative of the firm. "But we won't know anything for sure until the middle of April."

It is possible that this project could be financed up to 50% by the Department of Energy, if deemed worthwhile. However, nothing can be decided until the research is finished.

Energy system proposed

Campbell and Associates, Inc., a Chattanooga engineering firm, has been on the campus of Southern College conducting a survey concerning energy usage and waste. Because the college spends over a million dollars a year for utilities, this survey was requested to help find ways to lower this cost.

It is possible that a special system will be necessary to automatically control all lights, water heaters, fans, air conditioners, elevators, etc. that needlessly waste energy in various places on campus. The system will operate from a central computer and will automatically shut-down such energy-consuming devices.

Canadian Brass coming to SC

The Canadian Brass, an internationally-known brass ensemble, will perform in concert on Southern Saturday night, March 26, at 8:00 p.m. in Southern College's Physical Education Center.

Throughout the musical world the Canadian Brass have gained a reputation for forming new paths into uncharted areas of music for brass. Since their formation in 1970, The Brass have become transcribers of music from all areas.

Known for their "brilliant virtuosity and ensemble playing of remarkable unanimity," the Canadian Brass have performed in Canada and the U.S., as well as Europe, China, Japan, and the Soviet Union. In 1977, the Brass became the first Western musical ensemble to cross the Chinese border, as part of a cultural exchange program arranged by Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

The Canadian Brass have recently signed a contract with CBS Masterworks, arranged cross-over material, in addition to their classical interpretations. Their first record is to be released in the next few months.

The group is made up of five classically-trained musicians: Frederic Mills and Ronald Romm (trumpets), Graham Page (French horn), Eugene Watts (trombone), and Charles Daellenbach (tuba). Their repertoire ranges from the classical works of Bach, Handel, and Purcell, to ragtime works by Jelly Roll Morton and Scott Joplin, the avant-garde works of Lukas Foss, and the hits of Fats Waller.

"We believe it is our responsibility to bring the audience to the music, rather than the music to the audience," says Charles Daellenbach.
What is a 'Christian' newspaper?

Exactly what constitutes a "Christian" newspaper? Is the Accent a "Christian" newspaper just because Southern College is a Christian college? Or is it a "Christian" paper because the staff and content make it way?

I believe that a newspaper is considered "Christian" because of the views of its staff, and in that way the content is affected. However, this does not mean that everything that is printed in the Accent has to be totally religious and non-controversial.

Letting the students air their views in the Letters section is one way of getting student input into their school paper. This has caused several debates to occur through those letters, but this too is good. It is better than the apathy that is so prevalent on this and other Christian college campuses. As long as the editorial policy is to print every letter we receive, providing we have the space, then we will print it. The editorial staff does not discriminate between letters, and the way an order is decided upon is mostly dependent upon available space and layout rules.

It may be that this section is being taken advantage of. But if it is, then censorship of letters will be the only way to keep the Letters "kosher." If a letter is printed that is offensive to some students, then they should be allowed to write letters in response. If censorship is required to keep the newspaper "Christian", then we might as well do away with the Letters section totally.

I am not sure that this is the answer. Perhaps my view of a Christian newspaper is false. If it is, then maybe we should use censorship in our paper. I don't think it is, though, and I'm willing to bet that most of the students don't think so either.

A "Christian" newspaper should represent high ideals and standards, but an editor's personal views should not stand in the way of presenting the news. I have the Editorial section. You have the Letters.

Dear Editor,

After reading your editorial in last week's Accent, I was very impressed with the clarity and truth of your statement.

Southern College, with its tradition of fine academic performance, attracts students from around the world. Students come for many reasons including advanced educational facilities, guaranteed placement and a wide variety of internships.

Dear Editor,

I would like to reply to the suggestion in the March 17 Accent ("Speak Up") that what Southern College needs to boost school spirit are fraternities, sororities and intercollegiate sports. I do not know whether the one advocating this views has attended a public university, where such activities abound, but I have. The University of Iowa (Iowa City) boasts more than a dozen fraternities and sororities separate from its charming co-ed dorms, where (every) Iowaan indoors of prankster fires and youthful sex are frequent. One fraternity knew the city police quite well, for they had busted the place twice to make arrests for selling beer to minors. Others featured all-night parties, bizarre and even life-threatening inebriation rites, and copies of teachers' exams and former students' research papers at bargain prices. One non-Christian student told me she had released her mother's plea to join a sorority stating that she wished to preserve her virginity. A sorority gal in one class I taught broke her leg in a wild fracternity-sorority lawn party, another fraternity chap turned in a paper which he had finished while "under the influence of" (quite evident on his breath) it was pure balderdash. A third--this one a super-spirited sports jock for the Hawk's wrestling team--handed in a purchased ($3.00 per page) term paper; my exposure of his fraud went all the way to the Dean of the College--but because he was a star on the team, they slapped his hand with an F and kept him on. Sports and school spirit--is that the state of affairs that when the crowd shouts themselves hoarse on Saturday afternoon because of the "spirit" they find in liquid form in those pocket flasks Hawk's fans are famous for? Or is that shown by phone calls from coaches for 30 minutes (in my case) urging teaching assistants to "let this gal pass" because, after all, she's our star runner? (But they can help you in some way. Take for example the high caliber of the professors and support personnel here at Southern. Also consider the comfortable, relaxed atmosphere of the college, exam week not withstanding.

Does it sound too good to be true? Well, that is the Southern College difference.

Sincerely,

Lorie Cotson

Dear Editor:

I feel I should respond to Chuck Wiseman's letter which appeared in last week's Accent. The letter was one of the most immature letters I've seen in the Accent in my four years here. Miss Torgeson stated her opinion and Wiseman tried to make her out to be a total fool. This is not meant to be a defense of Miss Torgeson's opinion, but simply to ask you a question. Isn't there any way to keep trite and idiotic letters out of this "Christian" publication?

Sincerely,
Rick Greve

---

Dear Editor,

I would like to defend myself.
First of all, I was not the only one who felt the same things I mentioned. The friends with me also felt them and we will remain anonymous. If, in fact, the records give bad vibes, that should tell us to stay away from them.

I am not offended by those who like rock music and defend it, because I was once a rock music defender. But now I no longer listen to it. Rock music and I do not get along and I will speak up against it any time I feel it is necessary.

Perhaps I should mention that I was not out to see if I could get bad feelings from the album. It was just something that happened. I was not overcome with emotion when I picked up the album. This is one time rationality overruled my emotions. I am still convinced rock music is inspired by the devil.

Sincerely,
Cindy Torgeson

Dear Editor:

You wouldn't go to a doctor to get your car fixed, would you? So why argue amongst ourselves? Let's ask the experts.

We're talking here with Jerry Garcia of the Grateful Dead.

"Excuse me sir, does Satan have anything to do with rock music? A Friend of the Devil is a Friend of Mine. (All italicized replies are the actual lyrics or names of songs or albums of bands mentioned.) "I see. What kind of lifestyle do you guys maintain? We're living on Reds, Vitamin C. and Cocaine, all a friend can say isn't it a shame. "Ah, well, thank you."

"We're calling Mick Jagger of the Rolling Stones, "Hello, Mick?" "Just call me Lucifer."

"Yeah, sure, whatever you say. Tell me, do you know Jesus Christ?"

"Well sure, just the other day I ran twenty red lights in his name, thank you Jesus, thank you Lord. "OK catch you later."

Here's a good one. John (Ozzy) Osborne, one time leader of the controversial group, Black Sabbath, "Excuse me, Ozzy. To do what you attribute the success of your band?"

"We sold our souls for Rock 'n' Roll!" "Oh, that's nice." "We're on the line with Angus Young, the fellow who replaced Bon Scott in the band AC/DC." "Tell me Angus, what city are you playing next?"

"Oh we're taking the highway to Hell." "Say, what kind of music do you guys plan to realize the value of sharing and taking turns. We are proud of our children..."

Leeper to give lecture

Jim Leeper, president of Versitron Industries, will speak tonight for the Anderson Lecture Series. His talk, "Where in the World Are You Going?" will deal with goal setting and motivation.

Leeper graduated from Southern Missionary College in 1960 with a BA in Business Administration. He went on to work for several church and hospital organizations before starting with Versitron Industries. He became president of the food service corporation in 1981.

Leeper is currently a member of the American Management Association and a board member of the Associated Medical Institutions. He is listed in the Who's Who in the West and was given the Beta Gamma Sigma award from the National Honorary Business Fraternity in 1968.

The lecture will be at 8:00 p.m. in Sennacour Hall. This is the seventh meeting of the E.A. Anderson Lecture Series.

COURTESY Royalty crowned

The Southern College Child Development Center recently crowned new Courtesy Queens and Kings.

Stephanie Sparlock and Aasen Hudson were Courtesy Kind and Queen for the Day Care Division. Cary Zelmer and Lisa Zimmerman wore the crowns for the Kindergarten Division.

For two months the children received check marks for favorable behavior such as kindness or remembering to say thank-you.

Marilyn Sliger, Director of the Child Development Center, expressed her feelings about the event, "It helps the kids and myself to look only for the good the children do. The program helps the children with the value of sharing and taking turns. We are proud of our children..."

To: Red Carnation

You really had me thinking when I read your classified last week. I hope we're enjoying the sunshine down there. Study hard. Summer is almost here.

Gary

P.S. Is your brother still at Andrews?

Dear Dwight,

Are you alive? I've not heard from you! I am about to fade away.

I'll look for your reply.

May God Bless you.

In keeping with the Student Association Constitution, yearbooks will be given to students taking eight or more hours. Students taking less than eight hours will have to pay $5 for a yearbook. If you wish to pay for your yearbook in advance, you may do so in the cafeteria from 12:1 p.m. on March 28 through April 1. We will not be selling yearbooks in the dorms as stated in the Campus Charter on Tuesday.

BUCCS CAMP COUT

The Business Club is sponsoring a weekend at Fall Creek Falls (April 1-3). Everyone is invited. There will be a charge of $12 for members and $15 for non-members. This fee includes meals, transportation, and a chance to get away and have a good time. For the golfers there will be a golf tournament on Sunday if there is enough interest. (Please contact Mr. Rozell or Mr. Spears.) Sign up with Suzy Crabtree or Steve Stearns by Wednesday, March 30.

We're looking forward to having you join us.

Dear KDP,

Have you given up yet figuring out who I am? I promised I'd give you a hint.

I like to play pranks yet I am sweet.

Come on and sweat it out until you find out who I am! Have a terrific weekend, and God bless you.

Pastor Gordon Bietz

Once upon a time in Benton Forest a great controversy arose. It caused such hard feelings and caused such a stir in the forest that for a time there was some anxiety on the part of Wise Old Owl about whether the forest would survive at all.

It happened like this. It had always been a rule in the that no animal could litter. All of their garbage was to be appropriately buried. The law read "Bury Your Garbage" and signs were posted all over the forest.

Well, that law went along fine until one day Randy Racoon and his family brought an objection to the law. They said they were very clean animals generally and found that the requirement that all garbage must be buried did not take into consideration their habits of using some food leftovers for the birds to clean up for them. They thought that the law should be amended to allow for their practice of careful placement of leftovers for other animals in the forest.

That seemed to be reasonable and animals who depended on some of Randy's garbage were especially in favor of the amendment. So the law was changed to read, "Bury your garbage, unless there are other animals in the forest who depend on your garbage for their own food supply." The signs that had been placed in strategic places all around the forest were now enlarged so that they could accommodate the new reading of the law.

All went fine in the forest until one Sunday, Berti, the Bear, and Wendell Wolverine began to leave all kinds of garbage around. When they were questioned about their unhealthy and unkempt ways by wise Old Owl they claimed exemption from the law based on the amendment for, Berti said, "All the animals of the forest profited from his garbage because there was so much of it."

It was pointed out to Bert that when he left too much garbage for the scavengers in the forest to clean up, it rotted and smelled, but Bert said as far as he was concerned, it smelled good.

The forest council did not agree with Bert and so they amended the law to limit the amount of garbage that could be left for the scavengers of the forest. The newly painted signs now read, "Bury your garbage, unless there are other animals in the forest who depend on your garbage for their food supply, but in no case leaving more of said refuse in one location for such a length of time as to result in the emanation of inappropriate odors."

Sammy Skunk, the sign painter, was pleased with all the business and hired more painters.

Madeline Moore was the next animal to be hauled before the city council for breaking the litter law. It seemed that as she grazed in Big Meadow some of the grass fell from her mouth and was not eaten. In the light of the fact that this grass was not appropriate food for other forest animals, it was classified as "non-edible garbage" and needed to be buried. Madeline objected inasmuch as she had always eaten like that and, in fact, would have to hire a groundhog to bury her uneaten grass. That last fact may have been the reason that it was Gordon Groundhog who dragged Madeline to the council for he didn't like her walking around the meadow anyway. He had lost one of his secret tunnels because she had stepped in it.

Well, the council considered carefully the case and determined that it would really be too much to expect Madeline Moore to bury her grass, so they amended the rule to exclude "refuse that would, in the natural course of events, decay without inordinate environmental disruption." The council was becoming unhappy with the apparent lack of understanding over this rule and so they also ordered the engineering department to increase the placement of the signs and their visibility so that the message would be clearly communicated to the forest community.

Sammy applied for a larger b get as he employed more sign painters to enlarge the signs which were now being placed everywhere in the forest. He was very pleased with his business and was able to pay Gordon Groundhog a bit of a bonus for his good work.

"You have heard it was said to the people long ago, 'Do not murder, and anyone who murders will be subject to judgment.' But I tell you that any one who is angry with his brother will be subject to judgment." Matthew 5:21-22.

Expanding laws rarely fixes problems and debating doctrines rarely changes lives.

A fund-raising jump rope contest will be held Sunday, March 27 to further research for the American Heart Association. The contest being held on Sunday is in the gym and starts at one o'clock in the afternoon. There will be music, fun, and a lot of jump rope twisting for one hour. The team of six collecting the most pledges for the American Heart Association will receive a pizza dinner date for free. The AHA is giving individuals prizes also. You could win a warm-up suit or basket bag, jump rope, windbreaker jacket, or a T-shirt from the American Heart Association.

CABL, part of the Campus Ministries program, is in charge of the campaign to help the AHA fight heart disease. Plans are already being laid for a contest next year on a larger scale and involving more students.

Come and see your friends and have a great time Sunday at one o'clock in the gym.

Elder Russell L. Staples, Associate Professor of Missions at Andrews University, will be the featured speaker for the Religion Retreat to be held this weekend. Staples will be speaking on four areas that are the basis for practical Christian living, which will include "Major Concepts of Salvation," and "Difficulties in the Classical Justification Position."

Sponsored by the Religion Department, the retreat will be in Talge Hall Chapel, with the last meeting held in Spalding Elementary School. The Student Ministerial Association is planning to serve a light supper following the Saturday evening meeting. A softball game is also planned for Sunday afternoon. Time and further details will be announced sometime during the weekend.

Brass players, all former students of Pat Silver, joined the current brass ensemble in presenting the Brass" during Sabbath church services and a 4 p.m. program in the church. The guests traveled from Orlando and Nashville to participate in the weekend programs.

David Steen presented a vesper program on creation and evolution in Inverness, Florida, during spring break.

Wiley Austin journeyed to Atlantic City, New Jersey, on March 6-11 for the Pittsburgh Conference on Analytical Chemistry.

Duane Houck spent March 16 and 17 attending a Chataqua-type short course on ecology at the University of Georgia at Athens.
There will be a fastpitch softball tournament on Sunday, April 3. It will consist of competition between the Freshmen through Senior classes. Play will begin at 5:00 p.m. with the winners meeting immediately following for the championship game. Coach Jaecks will appoint captains to head up the respective classes. The captains will then hold tryouts to determine the members of each team. Signs will soon be posted in the Talge lobby stating when tryouts will be held.

A reminder to all tennis and Racquetball players, that tryout deadlines need to be met to insure completion of the tournaments before the semester ends.

Ramblings of a friend mind

By Victor Czerkasj

March 24, 1983/SOUTHERN ACCENT/7

Southern Cynic

Have you ever had a cynical day? I'm having one right now. In fact, it started when I made myself some oatmeal this morning. "Stir oats into briskly boiling water." Briskly? Is that a word for boiling water? I'd suppose we'd all be trick if we were boiled. Who's the guy on the Quaker Oats box? Why is he smiling so much? Probably because he's got a monopoly on oats. Why is it Quaker? Are there Catholic oats too? What's this with the honey jar? "Contains all original minerals and elements." Sounds full of metal to me. Is that like "fortified with iron"? That's in all cereal boxes. I bought a box of "Halfsies" yesterday. Does that mean it's half full? Maybe it's for half-wits. Am I getting insulted? There's that dumb Quaker guy again. (Does he like my kitchen or something?)

Maybe Halfsies are for people who don't want to go all the way, just half-way. Can that mean something else? Did you ever fight for the free inside? Did you ever win? Did you ever buy a cereal just for the prize? Did you know that if you opened the bottom first you could get the prize easier? Did you know that if you forgot the opened bottom, Cap's Crunch would be getting crushed all over the floor? Why do sugar-cereals have prizes and not Product 19? Those are serious questions. Did you ever catch Chiquita bananas stickers on your nose? Here's a can of Shasta soda. It says they want a pop. Should we give it to them? If they want a soda, they'd ask for it. It says it's strawberry soda. That's why the letters are red. You wouldn't find a red root beer can, would you? Why are Sprite cans green? Sprite's not green. It says real-lemon flavor-explanation mark. Am I supposed to be excited too? Here's some Oil of Olay. It says "Become beautiful, the new Oil of Olay." I swear I used it. Am I ugly? No comment. Oil of Olay looks like Pepito-Bismol. Is it? Do you remember Dippity-doo? I used to smear it at a kid. My mother sneered. Here's a bottle of Thousand Island dressing. It says that it is "A simply delightful salad dressing." Delicious? Should I talk to it? What do I do if it answered? Does Ma Bell keep wanting me to reach out and touch someone? You could get your fingers broken. Ever see a new car ad? Why is there always a bikini-clad woman lying on the hood? Does she come with it? If not, they should tell her to go home and buy some clothes. Am I missing something? Remember being in mixed company in academy, at a faculty home watching TV? Remember how quiet it got when Cathy Rigby came on? It was very embarrassing. It must have been more embarrassing to find out you couldn't reply on Rely anymore. What's happening to our country? Who is Jorache? Is that French for "HORSE" I always see a little horse head on Jordache jeans. Maybe it says you have to have a horse-like rear. (I wear Levi's.) What about Gloria Vander- bilt? She's so ugly. Maybe she thinks Pepito-Bismol is Oil of Olay. Why is her name on her jeans? Maybe it makes her feel good to know millions are sitting on her name. She's strange. Strange and ugly. Maybe that's why she has so much more money than I do. Here's the cover for Good Housekeeping. On the cover it says, "As she drew back breathlessly, she longed to hear his words." They write that so women standing in line at Red Food Store will buy it, and read the cheap novel inside. It usually works. My wife fell for it, that's why I'm reading it. What is it I don't say that she longs to hear? Is it, "I took out the garbage?" Who draws back breathlessly? I suppose they do that at the business office a lot.

Humm....he took her creamy white shoulders in his strong hands. She smiled at the scent of masculinity. He stared hard at her lash, red lips..."Not bad. They must be fortified with iron."
What do you think of required chapel attendance for students and not faculty?

Mike Gentry

Adam and Eve went to chapel and they raised Cain. (Why can't I?)

Susie Crabtree

Maybe if we saw the faculty there, a better example would be set for us.

I think it pretty much rots that we're forced to go and they don't have to. They're just as much a part of the school as we are.

If it's not worthwhile enough for them, then we shouldn't have to go either.

Hospital request denied

The Tennessee Health Facilities Commission denied a request by Adventist Health Systems/Sunbelt to construct a $2.7 million dollar hospital in Collegedale.

The twelve member board met on March 22 to review AHS/Sunbelt's application and to study comments made at a March 8 meeting in Chattanooga. The board voted to deny the request by a vote of 5-3 with two abstentions. Two board members were absent.

Despite the setback Jan Rushing, AHS/Sunbelt vice-president also suggested that the situation still holds to build the hospital. Rushing told the Chattanooga Times, "We are very committed as an organization to continue to plan to build a primary health care center in this area. We are disheartened, but we fully intend to carry on with building the health care center."

Don Self, a spokesman for AHS/Sunbelt told the Southern Accent, "We are looking into the appeal process. We are hopeful things will indicate we can win."

"A number of people have been very helpful," Self said. "State Senator Ray Albright has been very supportive. Representative David Copeland may introduce a bill in the Tennessee House to decertify beds in the Chattanooga area so that a hospital in the Collegedale area would be more likely."

Self indicated that there seems to be a general groundswell of support for the new hospital. "We are looking at community leaders to see what they recommend. We will make a final decision within a week. If we appeal, it will be next two months. If we re-submit (the application), the process will take about a year." A new application would cost $12,700.

Senate discusses tuition hike

The SA Senate held its 12th meeting, discussing the tuition increase, the new officers, the Dead Week proposal, a Joker and Numerate combination and the Senator's Banquet.

Richard Reiner, SC Business Manager made a presentation to the Senate concerning the tuition increase. "We have a significant problem ahead," Reiner told the Senate. "We have the problem of increasing costs and decreasing enrollment." The projected FTE enrollment drop is estimated at 150 students. "We are attempting to operate on the thinnest of budgets," Reiner said. "The college is in a belt tightening situation with a freeze on hiring and departmental budgets."

Reiner urged the senators to recruit students to Southern College stating that "you are the best recruiter." Reiner also mentioned the possibility of a tuition rebate if the enrollment drop was not as large as projected.

Glenn McElroy formally presented the elected SA officers for next year to the Senate-J.T. Shim, Vice-President; Peggy Brandenburg, Social Activities; John Seaman, Student Services; Maureen Mayden, Southern Accent editor; Malinda McKee, Southern Memories editor; and Don Welch, Joker editor.

SA president-elect McElroy then presented a slate of appointed SA officers to the Senate for their approval. They included Tammy Schlegel, Secretary; Steve Schmidt, Parliamentarian, Cary Gregory, Public Relations; and Terry Shaw, Business Manager. The senators voted to accept the nominations.

Ken Bradley and Denise Read told the Senate that the Dead Week proposal has been approved and will go into effect next year. Major tests will be prohibited during the three days before test week.

J.T. Shim presented a proposal from Don Welch, Joker editor-elect. The plan called for printing student phone numbers in the Joker, thus making the Numerate unnecessary. Welch estimated that the combination would save $500 a year. However, SA President Alvin Franklin stated that the savings would be, at the most, $250. For the next few minutes, the Senate debated the proposal with the tide seeming to go against the combination. Welch will make a formal proposal to the Senate in several weeks.

Joseph Robertson announced that the Senator's Banquet would be a Sunday Brunch at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville on April 17. The Senators were encouraged to ask fellow Senators to the Brunch to help keep costs down.

Surprises

Life is always full of surprises, both good and bad. Adventist church members have been getting a bunch of surprises lately. Many church members were surprised (bad) when they heard church organizations had lost over $20,000,000 in the Davenport scandal.

Many church members were surprised (good) when the General Conference appointed the Presidental Review Commission to investigate corruption and incompetence in the church and to deal out fair discipline. When Neal Wilson announced he and the GC officers voted to accept Presidental Review Commission's report and print the names of those being disciplined, many church members were surprised (bad) and very upset at the thought of public "humiliation" for the guilty.

But the surprises weren't over. In the March 24 issue of the published in the Adventist Review. Many people breathed may "feel free" to call the General Conference to find out if any person or group were being disciplined. I decided to test what Wilson said and, to my surprise (good), I received the information with a minimum of hassle.

Where does this all take us? How can the average church member relate to these "surprises?" The individual could lose faith in the leadership of the General Conference and everything they stand for. He could say that things will work out in the end. Or he could go on his merry way, waiting for the next "surprise" to break.

Judging by the pace of things, they won't have long to wait.

Dear Editor,

I just wanted to send you a short note of appreciation for the positive editorial you wrote about our college. Many of us in administration were distressed when we saw CUC's ad about working in a cookie factory. I feel that it is a back-handed slam at what we consider here a positive situation. It is very fortunate, that through the years, hundreds of students have been able to work their way through college by working at McKee Baking Company. We hope to continue to provide this as an alternate source of employment as well as other sources of practical jobs that you mentioned in your editorial. Jobs on this campus are available for any students who have an adequate schedule and are willing to work at any job. As evidence of our commitment to the student employment situation, we have established a separate office and increased all the wages on the campus to $3.00 an hour beginning January 1, 1983. We also have instituted an incentive wage plan for students who work a certain number of hours in a department in order for them to increase their earnings and be of more assistance in the departments they work in.

I appreciate the positive attitude and the fact that our students do recognize they have a very positive and good situation here on our campus.

Sincerely,
Richard Reiner

Dear Editor,

I am writing in regards to Brian Strayer's letter to the editor in the March 2 issue of the Southern Accent. I feel I must reiterate my desire to see some improvement in school spirit here at Southern College. The purpose of my statement was not to promote or to advocate the installation of fraternities or sororities on this campus. Since this point was obviously missed, I feel it is necessary to set things straight.

School spirit is not derived from a flask of liquor or yelling one's self hoarse at a football game; but, from a sense of loyalty to one's school and from a belief that the school is the best.

We could have the same sort of program here at S.C.--even better because the other colleges within the denomination could be involved. All we need is a chance to try something new, something all could benefit from. What's wrong with showing school spirit? What could possibly be wrong with intercollegiate sports within our own denomination? Who knows, it might be just the thing to let the students express their loyalty to S.C. and prove to everyone else that we're No. 1!!

Sincerely,
Becky Hammel
Spring fever catches

by Dick King

It happens this time every year. The long, hard winter, with its bone chilling winds and its sub-zero temperatures surrender to the invigorating April air. You can even hear the serenade of the robin as the sun peaks over the horizon.

The air is clean and fresh... the earth, once beaten by the elements and its subterranean existence, a reminder of the creative power found in the very outline of life.

Class attendance is down. Students have saved all of their skins; their absences causing havoc all over the campus. The dormitories are deserted—what to study? The sun is warm, and there isn’t a cloud in the sky. Sitting ting in the classroom would be a crime...that’s right a crime. And you can bet your last nickel you’ll find the Talge Hall dean on the golf course!

The women of Thatcher, equipped with towels, radios, soft drinks, and, of course, suntan oil, flock to the “confines” of the courtyard. For the first time in a long while they are able to soak in the sun’s rays...and in absolute privacy.

Their peace is only short lived, for from out of nowhere, the men of Talge (who have been planning the attack for months) begin a barrage of water in the form of balloons, pistols, and even buckets. The air is filled with shrills of the sunbathers, the laughs of their attackers, and the shouts of the deans as they attempt to ward off the invaders.

Within moments, the in
vaders retreat, leaving the area a disaster. “We’ll have to call Dean Evans,” and ask him to keep better tabs on his men,” says one ladies’ dean. “We have to stop this nonsense,” says another, as she dials the number to Talge Hall.

“May I speak to Dean Evans?” (long pause) “Well, may I speak to Dean Christian, Qualey, or Nafe?” (long pause) “Could you have one of them call me when they return?” “Thank you.” “Well, where are they?” asks the other dean. In unison the two reply, “On the golf course.”

Once upon a time there was a teacher in Fenton Forest. The teacher came from outside the forest and was sure that he had much to tell all of the forest inhabitants. It was very important and he thought about how to best communicate it. This teacher's name was Blake Blackbird. He traveled all over the forest telling to all other animals how to live better. But nobody listened.

Henry the roach reviews programs

From my vantage point of the roachholes, I could view the whole audience. All the campus celebrities had come, including Bert Bear, Scrap Wookey & Stocko, and the little man from the Campus Chatter with the paintbrush. But as I nibbled on an apple core left on the seat, I couldn't help noticing the absence of college students. Tapping one of my friends on the antenna, I asked, "Is there a vacation this weekend or did someone call in a bomb threat?" "No," replied the friend, "word just had it that this wasn't the program to attend." Simultaneously I stamped 4 of my 6 feet. "This is the best program I've seen all semester!" So on Monday I slipped into Wright Hall and up to Dean Schlisner's office without being stopped. Braving the gape of his nose, I communicated my prepared speech on how-to-pr-a-program but he cut me to the quick. Mr. Schlisner stated flatly that many student were pursued to en-prise students to come—-with small turns out. Having taken the wind out of my wings, he further told me more interesting details. To begin, the Canadian Brass group was booked 14 months ago and had come to the campus at an expense of $7,500. This group is booked solid every year with roughly 120 concerts annually. Trying to side-track, I brought up the issue of the Chinese Circus. Five Thousand and five hundred greenbacks and another year of preplan-ning landed these performers. This was news to my auditor listeners. Mr. Schlisner stated that he and many others bend over backwards to get good, quality entertainment for the whole body. Cultural enrich-ment is the second reason for booking a performance, entertain-ment being the first. "Why don't students come to these great shows?" I asked. "I don't know an answer, so I knew it had to be," he replied. "What would happen next year if there were no entertainment series?" Again, he didn't know. So, I will tell you. First, the gym would probably be opened, if you could pay a gym worker enough to open it. Second, the snack shop might be open and maybe even the student center. Third, everyone could go to sleep at 9:30 on Saturday nights, unless you were lucky enough to have access to a car. Then you could play Pac Man downtown until room check time. Sounds pretty fantastic doesn't it? As I turned to crawl away, Mr. Schlisner was pick-ing up the phone to cancel Warren Miller's ski show for next school year. I asked him not to be so hasty and to reconsider the matter. He could be would if he felt the students really wanted action-packed programs for their campus. This gave me food for thought. Now, as a roach, I am not inclined to boring program, but have seen all except one of the series this year. I can say my time was well spent. Now maybe paying for the shows is a problem. The $2.50 asked of students and staff for both the Canadian Brass and Chinese Circus wouldn't let you see either anywhere else. The price to see the Brass in town would be $8-10 and who knows how much a plane ticket to Taiwan would be for the Chinese. Mr. Editor, would you please ask the students to last stop by and tell Dean Schlisner they do appreciate the Entertainment Series. I would hate to spend my Saturday nights sleeping.

Kathy Potts, soprano, will present The Telephone as a part of her Senior Recital on Monday, April 4, at 8 p.m. in Ackerman Auditorium in the music building. The Fastpitch Softball Tournament announced in last week's Accent has been changed to a Double Elimination Slowpitch Tournament. Exact play dates are not known at press time, but should be the week of April 6.

4-8. Captains of each team are as follows: Freshman Jim Dobson; Sophomores John Gross, Loniare, Greg Calpeague; Seniors, Kelly Petijohn. Men interested in playing or trying out should contact the above people as soon as possible.

With the advent of spring weather (hopefully soon) upon us, many 12 students make their way to the various golf courses in the area. With the new golf season many players should review the fundamentals of their respective games to insure a good start.

Golfers, read these tips and maybe it'll take a couple of strokes off your score.

by Ted Evans

The best tip I could ever give anyone about golf without a doubt would be:

DON'T EVEN THINK ABOUT PLAYING THE LOUSY GAME!

Golf is the hardest, most frustrating, humiliating, time consuming, expensive game I've ever tried to play. Why anybody with an IQ over 27 would subject themselves to the bite torture and mental anguish is beyond me. But if you choose to ignore my most important tip, read on.

Most golf instructors encourage their students to concentrate on basic fundamentals as they learn to play golf.

1. The Grip
   The golf club should be held "tension free." If you put a straight hold on the club, the hands become tense and the effect will be a jerky, nonflowing swing.
   Hold the club primarily with the last three fingers of the left hand and the first three fingers of the right.
   When you have taken your grip, your knuckles should show on your left hand and the thumb-fingers "V" on the right hand should be pointing to the inside of your right shoulder.

2. Alignment
   Shoulders, hips and feet should be lined up squarely to the ball. Many beginning golfers align their feet just fine but their hips are slightly left of the target line and their shoulders are further left.
   Correct ball position can be a very influencing aspect of correcting this problem.
   Beginning golfers should have a golf instructor check their alignment.

3. Posture
   Knees and waist should both have the proper amount of flex. If a person has too much flex in one knee, it will usually result in too little flex in the other.
   The knees should be slightly flexed with the waist flexed just enough so that the arms hang naturally to the proper grip position of the club. This position should be straight down from the eyes or even a little back toward the body.
   (Now that you've got your grip, alignment and posture in correct position, you are ready to swing the club.)

4. Rhythm
   The speed of the swing (tempo) is not nearly as important as is the rhythm of the swing.
   The two key ingredients stressed by most experts are having a smooth, unhurried transition at the top from back swing to downswing and have a one-piece take away.
   This means let the shoulders, arms and hands all move the club away from the ball at the same time.
   The upper body leads on the back swing while the lower body leads in the transition to the downswing.

Remember! You take the club away. Do not be tempted to pick the club up at any time on the back swing.

Do not allow the left foot to spin out, and make sure when you finish the swing your weight is on the outside of your left foot and your right toe.

Good luck! My sympathies are with you.

PRESIDENT REAGAN proposed a nuclear defense system of lasers to be completed sometime during the next century which would make "nuclear weapons impotent and obsolete." The President also suggested that the Soviets have overwhelming military superiority.

SOVIET LEADER YURI ANDROPOV attacked the U.S. satellite missile plan, calling it "a bid to disarm the Soviet Union" to give the U.S. "a first nuclear strike capability." Andropov warned the U.S. that the Soviet Union will never allow (the plan) to succeed. Secretary of State Weinberger dismissed Andropov's comments as "standard Soviet disinformation that has been poured out for years.

THE HOUSE APPROVED a Democratic budget proposal calling for sharp defense spending cuts, increases in social programs spending, and a corresponding increase in taxes in comparison to President Reagan's budget proposal. According to House Speaker O'Neill, "The people believe that Reagan's policies are unfair and have gone too far... the House voted to restore fairness and balance to our national policies." Republicans called the Democratic plan "a blueprint for the economic ruin of our nation," and "very questionable fiscal policy."

THE SENATE PASSED a $65 billion Social Security bailout plan last week. The Senate bill carried a rider delaying Federal worker coverage which may make it unaccept- able to the House and the President.

Southern Cynic

by Victor Czerkasi

Tom, Dick and I were hanging around the guys' lobby. There wasn't much to do, except watch this one couple kiss. How long do they think they've been under?" asked Tom. "Five minutes," whis- pered Dick. "Maybe they're pearl divers," I added. "I heard they could go without air for a while." Just then our friend Harry bounded in. "Hey, Check out the new game I just bought at the Mercantile!" he bellowed. Curious, we asked what it was. "It's called Southern Monopoly - $2 for short. We had to agree, it sounded different. "You guys want to play?" Harry asked. We looked over at Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Diver. "Okay, we'll play.

We set up the game in a few seconds, and chose our little playing pieces. Each piece was a miniature student wearing nothing but a barrel around his middle. I thought I might've seen a few people like that coming out of the cashier's office. It wouldn't make a bad graduation gown either. Very appropriate.

Tom threw a five and landed on the Rip-off Railroad. "Okay," he announced. "I'll buy it." "That'll be $500," said Harry. "$500? You own it?" shouted Tom. "That's one of the rules, Tom. Since I own the board, I own the railroads. Sorry but the rent's $200." Tom threw the money. "Well," said Dick, "I landed on 'Chance.' I'll just pick up a card." He read aloud: "You have Southern College. Pay each player $1000, or go to jail for not wearing a helmet." Dick paled. "I'm - I'm going to jail," said he. "See ya at the cafe, Dick!" I threw the dice very carefully. I landed on Camp Road and commented that I wished to buy it. "You sure about that?" asked Harry. "Sure you wouldn't want to wait and see if you'll land on Student Park or something?"

"No Harry, I'm buying." Of Harry was up to some tricks for sure.

Harry landed on Community Chest. His card read: "You have just eaten the C.K. and survived. Collect $100 from each player." I hated Harry and his game. We continued. "Ah," said Tom, "I've landed on Free Parking! Safe at last."

"Sorry," pointed out Harry, "No S.C. sticker on your playing piece." Tom's eyes bulged. Even that hurt. It looked as if he'd have to mortgage his houses on Apollo Pike, McDonald Road, and Ooltewah-Ringgold. I sug- gested to Harry that I should make a loan to Tom. Indig- nantly, he refused. "You already owe me for two long-distance calls when you were on my College-Phone Co." I should have made them a third party when he wasn't looking. I landed on Luxury Tax. To wear jewelry on this spot, you have to pay $75 to the Dean of Students place, which Harry owned too. At least GO was in sight. Harry landed on Thatcher Hall. "Monopoly!" he cried. "Now I own all the buildings on campus! I'm rich-right!" Tom and I pitifully shifted our pawns. I read a 3 and passed GO. "I finally pas- sed GO, I said wearily. "Now to collect $200." "No-no!" smiled Harry. "On this board, when you pass GO, you pay S.C. $200." Sobbing, I handed over the money. Tom was basically out, so Harry rolled the dice. "My, my," he sweetly chirped. "I've landed on Chance! Why not?" He picked up the Chance card, read it, turned three colors of green and fell backward in a faint. We grabbed the card. "No students will return be- cause of your 8 percent in- crease, and you will forfeit all your campus holdings."

"Boy," said Tom. "The way he fainted, I thought maybe the card said worse!" "Bad enough," I agreed. We put the game back together, and laid it on Harry's chest.

"Well," I'll see you Vic."

"Where ya headed?" I asked, as he jogged out the door to Thatcher. "Pearl diving!" Looking at Harry, it was better than Southern Monopoly.

First I would like to explain why you have gotten 2 classified ads in one issue. Well it isn't my fault, I wrote the other one last week and for some time never appeared. Won't it be funny if its not in the paper this week either? I wouldn't have had to explain why you are getting 2 classified ads. Maybe you shouldn't be getting any. I guess I wouldn't send them to someone else I know. Well enough of that. Just wanted to say "Hi, hope you're doing fine and I miss you." And if I've seen you over 3 times since Monday that might not apply either! Take care O.K.?

AFTER 12 YEARS OF SERVICE

FAREWELL DR. KNITTEL
Farewell

I have always hated going to funerals. I get torn up inside as I think about that person who is no longer alive. This is the same kind of emotional upheaval I felt when I first learned that Dr. Knittel was leaving at the end of this school year.

I first met Dr. Knittel when my father was looking over a job at SMC. I remember being ushered into Dr. Knittel’s spacious office and sitting on the plush couch. The surroundings seemed awesome to a 14-year-old academy freshman, but Dr. Knittel put me at ease with his friendly manner and pleasant conversation.

After that initial meeting, Dr. Knittel never forgot my name. He always impressed me with the fact that even though I was, at the time, just an academy student, he knew who I was and would speak to me whenever I saw me. Being good with names was only one of Dr. Knittel’s strong points. I remember looking forward to his talks and sermons. He always got his point across with a minimum of words, yet he managed to pack his speeches with interesting stories, illustrations, and facts.

Another area where Dr. Knittel excelled was one-on-one. He never seemed to mind taking the time to talk with students. I remember visiting with him earlier this school year after I was elected Southern Accent editor. We talked about many different things then, he said, “Ken, I am going to be straight with you. I’m not going to play footsie with the paper but I will let you know what is going on.”

That was Dr. Knittel. He wanted each of us to be informed so we could make logical decisions but at the same time, he cared. This special quality about Dr. Knittel makes the parting sad. Yet, at the same time, I will always have pleasant memories of the college president who knew how to relate with the students of Southern College.

Letters

Dear Editor,

My letter is in reference to some comments on drinking made by Professor Earl in his letter appearing in the March 31 issue of the Southern Accent. It would be better to accept the real answers when we get them or if we’ll doddle them unless they go along with what we think or want.

I would like to do is bring to focus some facts, history, and ideas about drinking, as I see them, that I believe are relevant and should be considered.

Earl’s mention of Ecc 10:19 and the oath of a deacon (I Tim. 3:8), and the water-to-wine miracle by Jesus at the wedding feast in Cana (John 2:11) seems to suggest that the Bible may support the intake of wine, at least to some extent, and at first glance a contradiction does seem to be present. However, we might still be quite enlightened if we took a look at the meanings of the word “wine” in the Greek text. Our word “wine” is very exclusive, seemingly serving for everything from grape juice to grog. The wine that the Jewish people preferred, however, was “new wine” or fresh grape juice.

Alcohol is produced in direct proportion to the sugar content in a liquid. All the “Drink-making” process involves adding sugar to our concoctions. This feeds the bacteria during fermentation, which produces the alcohol. When sugar stops being added, the fermentation process stops.

In ancient days there was only natural sugar, and since the natural sugar content in grape juice is very low, the old (fermented) wine of the ancient people would have been only about 3% alcohol! One may wonder how anyone could possibly get drunk with only a 3% alcohol content. The Romans solved this problem by using a “vomitortum.” In this way they took total advantage of the fact that alcohol is absorbed into the bloodstream almost immediately upon consumption. They’d have their drinks, go throw up the unwanted, leftover portion so they’d have room for more, come back to the banquet room, drink more, and go through the process again and again until they were indeed successful in getting drunk.

In polite society, however, people drank wine as a mixture of their glass or goblet was filled with wine having about a 3% alcohol content and the other 2/3 was filled with either hot or cold water to dilute it. (Does that help explain why there were empty water spots at the wedding in Cana?) Most decent people drank fresh grape juice or 3%, not intoxicating grog. So if a deacon took an oath “not to take too much wine”, it seems to me that he was promising, at most, not to drink much “3%”, as that’s about all there was available. Now that’s a pretty conservative statement that the Bible takes. It seems to me—quite the opposite of giving us permission to drink as we please today!

I agree with Earl that we as Christians need to search the Bible for answers, but I also believe that one undoubtedly misleading the conclusion on the surface reading of a couple of texts is not really enough. What about texts like these:

“Neither borrows, nor lends... nor taketh interest in money” (Deut. 23:18).

“Neither borrows, nor lends... nor taketh interest in money” (Deut. 23:18).

“Neither borrows, nor lends... nor taketh interest in money” (Deut. 23:18).

Woe unto him that giveth to neighbor drink, that putteth thy bottle to him, and maketh him drunken.” (Hab. 2:15).

So much more can be said about drinking. It’s often an expression of rebellion, an escape, a crutch, a serious health hazard for the drinker as well as his offspring. Earl, in my opinion, has a terrible waste of money.

Drink rains and takes lives. Henry Ward Beecher has said “In every community there are things always work together—the grog shop, the jail, and the gallows—an infernal trinity.” Perhaps a little cut-rate, but the principle is just Cont’d on page 6
SPRINGTIME IN NEW YORK

"Springtime in New York" was the theme of the annual S.A. Talent program presented in the P.E. Center at 8:00 on Saturday night.

After a half-hour delay, entre, Steve Decker and Steve Vogel welcomed the audience. The opening number was a solo by Brenda LaBar, followed by a flute solo by Woody Ripley accompanied by Sondra Snider.

Grand Prize winner, chosen by the audience, was Chris Hawkins for his performance of "Truly." Backing him were Reg Rice, Cedric Calwell, Johnathan Wurl, Pierre Belhomme and Marty Mixon.

First place was awarded to Mauri Land, Ronda Facundo, Bonnie Rodgers, Sharri Conner and Conrie Westcott for the medley, "Sentimental Journey thru the 40's." "Forever I Love You," a song written by Kim Dear dolph, and sung by Brent Byers, received second place.

Kim played the piano, Marcy Lee the drums, and Bev and Sandra Wong and Linda In accompanied on violins.

Ken Bradley, Bruce and Terry Harmage, and Lance Martin took third prize with their walk thru musical history featuring Frank Sinatra, Johnny Cash, Willy Nelson and Kate Smith.

Honorable mention went to Steve Grice with his guitar, harmonica and vocal performance of "Lost John."

Other acts included Steve Fitzgerald's magic act, and "For Your Eyes Only," by Julie Zacharias, Lisa Ohman and Monte Jenkins sang a duet, "You Make Me Smile Again." Rita Bata, Malinda McKee, Lisa Mann, and Patty Gentry pretended to sing "Do You Remember These?"

Considering the display of talent and the crazy entrees, the evening proved enjoyable for all who attended.

Goralski to speak

Former NBC news correspondent Robert Goralski will speak tonight for the Anderson Lecture Series. Goralski is Director of Information in Washington, D.C. for the Gulf Oil Corporation, a position he has held since May 1975.

A newsman for 28 years, Mr. Goralski joined NBC news in Washington in 1961. He covered the State Department and the Pentagon and was the NBC News White House correspondent during the administration of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

Mr. Goralski has traveled to more than 40 countries and covered five wars. He had several tours of duty in Vietnam, which he first visited in 1963. He reported on the 1967 Middle-East War and covered the 1960 Dominican Republic revolution and the 1962 Laos conflict. He was a frequent contributor to "NBC Nightly News." "Meet the Press" and to the "Today" programs.

He has also written articles and reviewed books on current affairs for various newspapers and magazines and wrote the Encyclopedia Britannica Yearbook articles on Vietnam. Mr. Goralski is the author of World War II Almanac, a political and military record of the conflict, which was published in 1981. He is listed in "Who's Who in America."

A native of Chicago, Mr. Goralski was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1949 as a political science and journalism major, and began his broadcasting career at radio station WDWS in Champaign, Illinois. From 1951 to 1955 he was in Korea, Japan, and Pakistan, first with Radio Free Asia and the Asia Foundation, then with the Voice of America. He assisted in establishing Pakistan's first school of journalism at the University of Karachi.

In 1960 Mr. Goralski received a Ford Foundation Mass-Media Fellowship and studied Southeast Asian history and politics at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies. William Jewell College awarded him the degree of Doctor of Letters in 1969. He received a study grant in 1972 from the Hoover Institution for War, Peace, and Revolution.

The lecture will be at 8 p.m. in Summerour Hall. This is the ninth meeting of the E.A. Anderson Lecture Series.

Sunday evening April 17 at 6:30 p.m. in the Southern College cafeteria the S.C. Symphony Orchestra will present its annual fund raising dinner concert. Proceeds from this concert will go to help the orchestra with the remaining funds needed to tour Romania and Russia under the auspices of Friendship Ambassadors in May of this year.

The ticket price per person includes a full four course meal catered by the S.C. cafeteria, under the direction of Mr. Earl-Evans, plus a full evening concert. International friendship is the theme of the evening and music will be selected from Russian, American, German, French, and Italian composers.

Featured student artists will be Devin Fryling performing the Saints Saens Cello Concerto and Kevin Cornwell, bassoonist, performing a Viavoli Concerto.

The cost for the dinner is $10.00 per plate. There will be a limit of 350 tickets sold on an advanced sale basis only.

Tickets may be reserved by calling the S.C. Student Center (298-4276) or purchased at the Village Market, Campus Shop and Laxford Music Company (577-3277). NO TICKETS WILL BE SOLD AT THE DOOR!

Come have a relaxing evening of beautiful music with your dinner and help support the Southern College Symphony and have a part in being a "friendship ambassador" from America to the people of Russia and Romania.
I was a bit apprehensive when I first came to college. Then I went to the first chapel and saw Dr. Knittel. As he walked up to the pulpit he had, well, I can't explain it, but he was in control, that was for sure. Then he began in a commanding, yet thoughtful, voice and by the time chapel was over, though I was still a bit worried about college life, I knew with Dr. Knittel at the helm I need not worry about the college running smoothly. Every time Dr. Knittel speaks for chapel, I make it a point to hear him; he inspires me, lifts me up and always impresses me with his level-headed approach to subjects that sometimes seem untouchable or controversial.

Ted' Evers

It has been my privilege to work for and with Dr. Frank Knittel, the president of Southern College of Seventh-day Adventists, for the past five years. He is an extremely intelligent man, an excellent speaker, a world traveler, a strong leader and a good family man. I have loved all the aspects of our working relationship. I smile when I think of how many times I have made an appointment for myself in order to have time alone with him to find out what was going on in his head, to find out what happened at the last convention he attended, to find out what we were going to do next, to let him know what had transpired in his absence, and sometimes just to share feelings about certain things. I am grateful for his wonderfully good disposition as this makes for pleasant working conditions. I have grown professionally in this job and enjoy my work tremendously. I wish for him the best as he continues to serve mankind in the area of his choosing. I am happy he has a sabbatical and hope that he will enjoy being a scholar again. I know that many young people will benefit from his tutelage in the days to come. Success and happiness to you, Dr. Knittel, and may God be with you.

Jeanne Davis,
Your Secretary

In the twelve years as Southern College President, Dr. Frank Knittel has touched the lives of more students than any other president in the history of this college. Over 70 percent of the total number of graduates of SC graduated during Dr. Knittel's administration. Sixty-one percent actually received their diploma from his hand.

Growth and achievement have characterized Dr. Knittel's tenure as president. Enrollment reached the highest levels ever under Dr. Knittel's leadership.

The college plant has increased by 234,000 square feet, with the addition of such buildings as the student center, cafeteria, Summertour Hall, Talge addition, Thatcher annex, nursing building and the music building.

The book value of Southern College's assets have grown from $8 million to 16 million dollars, while the operating budget has increased fourfold since 1971.

Southern College has been re-accredited twice in the past 12 years with no problems.

The academic program has expanded with the addition of new majors. The nursing program has gone from a two-year program to a 2 plus 2 program with affiliation with Florida Hospital.

Dr. Knittel's ability to be a good administrator, however, did not develop overnight. He developed his talent through years of service in many areas. Born on September 30, 1927 in Schafter, California, Frank Alvin Knittel attended Dinuba Elementary School and Southwestern Junior College before becoming an elementary school teacher in Arkansas at the age of 16. Knittel went to Union College where he earned a B.A. in English and Math in 1947. For the next four years, Knittel served as Dean of Men at Enterprise Academy in Enterprise, Kansas. In 1951, Dr. Knittel was drafted into the U.S. Army where he earned the rank of First Lieutenant. After the Korean War, Knittel went back to denominational employment, serving as Dean of Men at Campion Academy for two years. During this time, he worked on his M.A. in English at the University of Colorado at Boulder.

After he earned his M.A. in 1955, he was employed at the University of Colorado as Assistant Dean of Men. He also worked on his Ph.D. in English, a degree he received in 1960.

In 1959, Knittel went to Andrews University as Vice President for Student Affairs, a position he held for eight years. In 1967, Dr. Knittel was asked to become the Academic Dean at Southern Missionary College. He became President in 1971.

Have you ever thought what it might be like to be able to talk to God and have Him talk back to you, to carry on a conversation with God? Let's imagine what it might be like to be approached by God in a rather unexpected way.

Student: Roommate! Would you hurry up we are going to be late for breakfast. Would you look at this room, what a mess--you have dripped water all over the place! I can't believe it! Roommate where are you?

God: My son!

Student: What was that?

God: Just me.

Student: What is going on? Who are you?

God: I am your Father in heaven.

Student: Come on--Roommate! Are you up to your tricks again? Come on, get out of the closet and quit your funny jokes.

God: This is no joke.

Student: Maybe the monitor is foiling around with the intercom.

God: No--this is your Father in heaven. I just thought it would be good if we could talk.

Student: Talk! There is no one to talk to. Where are you? My roommate is playing tricks on me or I am going bananas.

God: No tricks, I just would like to talk to you.

Student: Why today, why now, me?

God: I thought that it would be good if we could have some spiritual talks--talks about where you were heading with your life.

Student: I feel silly--I am talking to myself. If someone came in the room, they would send for the men with the white coats.

God: I really don't want to frighten you. I think that it is time that we had a heart to heart talk about where you were headed with your life.

Student: I appreciate your interest but really, well, I guess I just never thought that You would, well, I mean, talk to me.

God: You are very important and I am concerned about where you are headed. You know that in recent days you have been, well, I might say drifting spiritually.

Student: You might put it that way--if were you kind--if you were a bit more blunt you might say that I have blown it.

God: Yes, well I was not going to be quite so blunt.

Student: Have I lost cat? It is so hard sometimes. You don't always seem very real to me. Except now--you certainly seem real now--a bit too real.

God: I have always been just as real before as I am now.

Student: I guess I just get caught up in other things and don't think about you much. It is rather like on the day to day life I live you just don't seem to matter that much.

God: I am sorry.

Student: Hey, I didn't mean to hurt you. It is just that, well, you have never seemed that real to my day to day activities. I didn't hurt you, did I?

God: Anytime I am rejected by those I love, I am rebuffed and given my life, I will have to say it hurts.

Student: Until talking to you like this I haven't looked about how You could really be hurt but now talking to you makes you so real I guess I can see how you could be hurt. Do you not love me so much anymore when I hurt you like that?

God: Not love you so much?? You have much to learn about my love, don't you?

Student: Do I?

God: You certainly do!

Student: Tell me.

God: Do you understand unconditional love?

Student: I don't know?

God: There is nothing that you could do that would cause me to love you any more than I do, and there is nothing that you could do that would cause me to love you any less than I do. My love for you is not based on the condition of your behavior--my love finds its source in me, not in your wavering.

Student: Wow! I don't live like that.

God: You can, if you learn of me.

Student: Many more conversations like this and I will certainly learn of you.

God: Would you like more conversations like this?

Student: I guess--as long as I am alone.

God: You can have--each day I talk to you in the Bible and through prayer--just remember I am real and I am interested.

Student: I will remember. How could I forget?

The Alps--a discovery in pictures

From Munich's Gockelspiel to Maria Gern's chapel spire, bells ring throughout Kodak's newest multimedia travel show, "The Alps--A Discovery in Pictures."

"Probably one of the prettiest sounds you hear in the Alps is the sound of cowbells," says the directing photographer of the all-new Kodak extravaganza. "These cows are always standing on the steep mountainsides looking like they're going to topple off at any moment. Around their necks, they've got distinctive-sounding bells that help each herdman keep track of his own animals. A lot of people like to hear the sound of the ocean, but, while we were in the Alps, we felt in love with the gentle tinkle of the cowbells."

To record that sound and the charming customs that surround it, the photographers went to Appenzell, Switzerland, and around the cows and their bells.

"To the people of the Alpine countries, an 'alp' is a higher pasture," explains the photographer. "Each spring, they herd their cows up into the Alps. Each fall, they celebrate their safe return. In the show, we follow the story all the way through from the making of the cowbells to the colorful festivities for which even the cows get dressed up."

This typical Alpine tale joins sight-and-sound "discoveries" from throughout the mountainous regions of Austria, Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Yugoslavia in Kodak's latest travel show. But, if any sound lingers in the gym after the presentation, it will most certainly be the sound of Alpine bells.

Cont'd from page 2 as true. Philip L. Griffin, chief probation officer of the Municipal Court of Minneapolis, says, "Practically 90 percent of the cases that come through the court...are as a result of drinking."

When I think about my friend Dan, a young man who, to all outward appearances, would fit perfectly on our campus, but who is incarcerated because he killed a man while intoxicated, or when I think of Pat, who lost a parent because of drink, or who has spent many more years in than out of institutions, partly due to drinking, or of Campbell, who had the ability to be a list maker, and was well on his way, but got mixed up in drink, and (the list could go on and on), I can see plainly that drinking has no good end. It can drag the best of us down. No one gets involved in drinking thinking "I recognize I'm going to move from Main Street to Skid Row and lose most of what's important to me, maybe even my freedom, or my life, and I gladly accept that as a good trade," rather we all believe that we can handle and control ourselves with it. The statistics are very revealing, and convince or otherwise, ills John 2 says, "Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth."

To me it is that the Lord wants us to abstain from intoxicating beverages, and feel inclined to agree that "we ought to obey God rather than men." (Acts 5:29)

Time Out
by Kelly Pettijohn

Having played golf for more than six years I can undoubtedly say that one of the most important factors is not only a good round of golf but also more importantly to thoroughly enjoy your game is to have a good short game.

A short game consists of any club selection from an eight iron thru a sand wedge. Of course if you are hitting any of these clubs you should be to within 120-140 yards of the green, and usually when you are this close you are trying to put the ball close to the pin as possible. First of all, you need to make the proper club selection, without hits you’ve already been beaten. If you are 130 yards away and cannot decide between a hard nine or an easy eight, always go with the easy eight. This way you don’t have to swing as hard and you have more control on the ball. Now, aligning your self up for that shot. First of all, body and shoulders should be squared and lined up directly at the target with the ball in the middle of your stance and your legs a little closer together than normal as if you were hitting a low iron or a wood. Also, close the clubface directly at the target. Secondly, keep your head down on the ball and watch it leave the club. This way you can train yourself to not pick your head up. Thirdly, CONCENTRATE!! This probably determines the success of each golf shot. There is no physical definition for this, this is all discipline. After you have gone through these steps and have hit your golf shot you should have done either one of these three things: left short of the green on the fringe, left is short into a sand trap, or you successfully hit the green. If you did the first, I would suggest the six or seven iron and choke down the club, put the ball in the back of your stance and punch it towards the hole. This takes the place of a lobbed wedge. If you did the second, remember these basic rules: Set up to the ball with your feet at about 45 degrees to the target line, put most of your weight on your left foot, finally, taking the club back normally, hit down and through the sand underneath the ball. Hit about an inch and a half to two inches behind the ball and explode out of the trap while keeping your body weight shifted to the left. If you did the last, your ready to putt and the first thing to do is to read the green to check for any break in your putt. Next bring the putter straight back and straight through never breaking your wrist and always keeping the body and especially your head steady during the entire putting stroke.

The short game is what wins the money for the pros and could help Petryjohn beat me occasionally if he had one. It probably takes the most practice but will eventually pay off in the long run. If you don’t believe me, read any article by or about Tom Watson.

Good luck! BGM

Academy students visit

Approximately 500 students from various academies and high schools in the Southern, Columbia, and Lake Unions came to SC for the annual College Days festivities last weekend.

The activities planned included campus tours, CLEP and ACT tests, a Continental breakfast, departmental meetings, and a special evening reception where the visiting students were introduced to next year's SA officers. At the evening reception, 12 Southern College shirts and 12 SC painter hats were given away to the prospective students.

Senate ends

The last senate meeting of the year was typical of most senate meetings but had a different ending than usual. Besides the regular agenda items and the usual comments, senate was given a special look at the annual AIA convention that was held March 31-April 4.

Joe Robertson, Peggy Brandenburg, Maureen Mayden, J.T. Shim, Glenn McElroy and Alvin Franklin were all given opportunities to speak about the meetings and give the group an update on the value of AIA. Peggy Brandenburg, incoming Social Activities Director, felt that the ideas shared with other schools would be helpful in the coming year. "I really appreciated the film list that each school gave out. I think it will be helpful next year when I work with the film committee deciding what to show next year."

Joseph Robertson, outgoing SA Vice-President and J.T. Shim, incoming SA Vice-President both agreed that the meetings were helpful to them, even though Joe said that he wished he had known it before this year began. Maureen Mayden, incoming Southern Accent editor, stated that she enjoyed the meetings because of the various editors talking about their problems and how they solved them. After senate was dismissed, brownies and potato chips were made available to the senators.

Glenn McElroy, incoming SA President, expressed his appreciation for the leadership that Alvin Franklin showed throughout the convention. Alvin Franklin, outgoing SA President, felt that the delegation from SC was very organized and commended them for their conduct throughout the convention. Mr. Robert Merchant seconded the appreciation for the behavior of the delegations, and Elder K.R. Davis spoke about the upgrading of the meetings that made this year's convention more profitable for the various officers represented.

Maureen Mayden then gave a short presentation concerning the new typesetting machine that the SA is considering buying for the Southern Accent. Questions from the senators included "Where will the money come from?" and "Will it really help the paper?"

Mauren asked the Senators, "The SA does have some funds set aside for this sort of purpose and what is needed above that will be funded through Senate Project monies."

"The new machine will indeed save time and money," Mayden assured the senators. "If we had our typesetting done at the College Press, it will cost about $6,200 a year. This is for the same service that now costs us approximately $2,000/year now. It will also save time and hopefully get the paper off to a decent hour next year."

Church officials disciplined

The Georgia-Cumberland Conference of Seventh-day Adventists has released the names of four former and present employees who will be disciplined concerning the Davenport affair.

In a three-page special report to members of the Georgia-Cumberland Conference dated April 5, the Conference Executive Committee and Association Board outlined the involvement of conference personnel with the Davenport loans, revealed planned discipline and cleared several conference officials who had been under investigation.

Desmond Cummings, Sr., President, and chairman of the Georgia-Cumberland Conference Committee and the Georgia Conference Association Board from June 1966 to May 1981, was cited for possible conflict of interest. Price apparently re-

Gymnasts present homeshow

The Physical Education Center was packed on Saturday night, April 9, as the Southern College Gymnastic Team gave its home show for students, friends and families.

A variety of apparatus was used as members of the team performed their routines including Darla Jarret on the beam and Tammy Wittenge on the uneven parallel bars. Several doubles and group routines were exhibited including a new triples routine by Myra Mixon, Beth Hudley and Charlie Byrd and the chair routine by Richie Moore and Mike Collins.

Highlights of the evening began with a floor routine by Jeff Osborn and continued with a colorful ribbon routine by Diana Johnson and Sandra Bedwell. Other features were a baton routine by Julie McClarty, a doubles routine by Debra Driff and Charlie Byrd and a favorite of last year. The Southern Gents. Dr. Jerry McGill, program emcee, gave personal insights as he introduced team members. McGill then called up Coach Phil Garner and sang an original song dedication for his years of service. The final touch was added when the team threw roses to the audience at the end of the program.
AIA -- worth the cost

Is AIA really worth the cost? Does it really benefit the students? I say yes. I gained a lot of ideas and information through the meetings that will be helpful in running the Southern Accent next year. I am glad I went.

It was interesting to note that several papers had the same problems and to discuss various reasons and suggestions for solving those problems. I enjoyed getting to know the other editors and talking with them concerning the content and views of their papers. I felt like the convention was well worth the money and not just because I could go.

I think that if every student could go it would be beneficial to them to actually find out what other schools are like. Perhaps a lot of the prejudices that exist would be broken down and more interaction would occur between schools.

It is really a shame that so many preconceived ideas are made about other Adventist colleges falsely. Some students at the convention told us that they had heard some rumors about SC that were totally untrue, but nobody bothered to find out for sure before talking. And some things that I had heard about some other colleges proved to be wrong also.

I think that the interaction and the discussion that goes on at each AIA convention is important and well worth the time, effort, and money that the colleges put forth.

If Southern College gets a chance to host the convention anytime in the near future, I think it would be an excellent chance for the students to find out first-hand exactly what the meetings are about. But the best way is to run for an office and go yourself!

P.S. Congratulations, Glenn, on your Regional Vice-Presidency!

Letters

Dear Editor,

I just read your editorial in the March 17, 1983, issue of your newspaper Southern Accent, and I am quite appalled.

In the editorial you made reference to a Columbia Union College ad that ran in Academy newspapers of the Columbia Union. You seemed displeased with the ad in general and especially with certain statements. Also, you stated that those statements are misleading, and you implied that they are erroneous. As a student at CUC I must inform you of the facts. First of all, everything mentioned in the ad is true. Of course, I can back up that statement.

Of all Seventh-day Adventist colleges, CUC does have a monopoly on jobs that provide practical experience due to its proximity to Washington, D.C. Most of the federal agencies are located in Washington, and the Office of Personnel Management runs a very effective "Stay-In-School" program which provides students with part-time jobs in the federal agencies. Also, CUC possesses an excellent Cooperative Education department and Job Referral Office that has been very successful in helping interested students find jobs. Not to mention the many private corporations whose offices are located in our area and provide additional jobs for CUC students.

You claimed that "...there is a whole spectrum of jobs available for students at Southern College" and you went on to give examples of the locations of those jobs (off campus). However, according to your employment office, approximately 12.64% (about 200) of your students work off campus. Of those, 80 work at one place: McKeen's (Ah, the Cookie Factory). In contrast, 53% (875 students) work on campus. Evidently the other 35% are not employed or did not report employment. At CUC only 31% (230 students) work on campus, while about 64% are employed off campus, with about 5% not reporting employment.

Your student finance office reports tuition for a 15 hour or less class load as $167 per credit hour and decreasing to $148 for 16 hours and above. At CUC, tuition runs $159 per credit hour for 15 hours or less and $149 per hour for 16 hours and above. Therefore, CUC is $8 cheaper for a student taking 15 hours and only $7 more per hour than SC for 16 hours and above! How could you say that Southern College costs hundreds of dollars less than CUC?

Apparently you have never visited CUC. If you have, you must have noticed that the campus is not located near the areas of D.C. notorious for their high crime rate. And, Washington does not have an unusually high crime rate for a city of its size and population. Decay city? Again, I find it hard to believe that you have visited the Washington metropolitian area.

You really should give CUC more credit and realize that we would not print incorrect information in our ads. And research before you attack.

Jean C. Arthur
CUC Senior who has worked at 3 different HIGH PAYING Government jobs during the last 13 YEARS

Editor's note: According to Southern College's student finance office and the 1982-83 SC Catalog, tuition for 15 semester hours is $139 per hour. If a student takes 16 hours, the per hour cost drops to $125 per semester hour.

A student taking 15 hours would save $305 by attending Southern College over CUC and $224 if the student took 16 semester hours.

As far as job opportunities go, Southern College students do not have to travel as far to find a job to help pay their school bills and gain job experience. This leaves the Southern College student more time to study, socialize, and enjoy college life.
Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter concerning last Wednesday's "Spring Fling." Like many other students here at S.C., I enjoy letting loose every once in a while for a change of pace, and having a chance to be creative. "Spring Fling" is just the thing for that. So, I enthusiastically got all dressed up Wednesday, only to be stopped at Daniel's Hall by Dean Christian who proceeded to tell me to "go take that off right now! We're not trying to promote that punk stuff!"

If I remember correctly the Campus Chatter advertised "Spring Fling" by saying, "This is a day when almost anything goes." It also went on to include the phrase "punk out!" Also, there were various signs around campus telling everyone to "punk out!"

I might add that both the advertisement in the Chatter and the posted signs had to be approved by the administration before they were printed or posted.

I think maybe in the future, faculty members should make sure that they are aware of events going on around campus before they start singling out certain persons and enforcing their own personal opinions.

Sincerely,
Paul Kennedy

Editor's Note—The following letter refers to the April Fool's issue of the Southern Accent, the Tennessee Twang. The issue, which contained humorous stories, articles, and classifieds, was circulated only to drama students on this campus.

Dear Editor,

Recently in my study of the Bible, I've come to the conviction that we are truly living in earth's last days of history. The scriptures emphatically reveal the character of those people who will say, "Lo, this is our God. We have waited for him." They will be a people who take their Lord and their religion seriously, a people who would give their lives to further the message which they will have fought so long to farther. Their creative energies will have been totally focused on uplifting the name and character of their Lord and Saviour.

The April 1 issue of the Tennessee Twang clearly revealed the creative ability and hard work Invested by the writers and editorial staff. The article about Southern College winning twenty-five million from a law suit with CUC, the classifieds, and the newshreifs were good examples of creative writing. I think that this paper shows a real potential for the future.

However, I think that it would not be fair to pass by the negative and subtly dan-gerous messages manifest in a good share of the articles. Without offense to the au-thors, the section of the paper entitled "the fundamentalist cadre" seemed to be anti-religious. The names of well meaning churches were ridiculed. How often have we felt the pangs of propaganda joking? Naturally, we resent other churches calling us a cult or any other negative name; therefore, it seems only fair that we treat the religious community with the same respect that we have so long asked for.

I know people from a diversity of religions who have come in contact with our school publications. One such person is now enrolled at Tennessee Temple Baptist College. He felt he had found Christianity on that campus. Unfortunately, he did not take the time to identify himself as a Christian. He felt he was not in contact with our campus publications. Many students, both Christian and non-Christian, work at McRees and come to and fro on this campus. These people are constantly watching us, seeing whether or not we are serious about what we preach. Perhaps the most dangerous thing is the effect upon the community is the effect that is subliminally exerted upon ourselves. It is a law of our being that by dwelling upon religious doubts and prejudices, we are in fact lowering our own level against Satan's attacks. If ever there was a time that we should speak highly of our church and especially others, it is now. The church has too long been the subject of criticism and cheap jokes. The stakes involved are high. Eternity is at stake.

In the final assessment, I would like to appeal to the principles at stake. Are we, the future intellectual and spiritual leaders of the church, succumbing to the ways of the cynic and the satirical agnostics? The trends seem too painfully clear. God's name, character and people are jaded and ridiculed in a way that causes heaven to weep. Shall we, the last of God's people of hope to a dying world, lift up the cross, or shall we instead take God's name and lower it in the dust? All heaven was pained was out so that the character of God might be clearly revealed to a perishing world. Satan has too many footholds in the world— are we to grant him another? I appeal to the writers of future issues of our school paper to hold high the standards of Christianity. I hope and pray that future issues will be screened by a thoughtful, conscientious committee. I think that the Tennessee Twang has potential. In the future, I would like to see more of it.

Sincerely,
Michael Davis

Dear Editor,

I would like to express my displeasure with the recent Tennessee Twang. Even though the paper was written as an April Fool's joke, some of the subjects to pick as jokes seemed very low-class to say the least.

The Adventist Arcade is an example, with the games, "Trash Command," "Grace Invaders," "Pasteroids," and "Darwin Kong," all of which low and make a joke of God's work, His Sabbath, and His mission for us to do on this earth is far beyond the true Christian's mind and intelligence. The people who wrote these games have expressed their relationship with Jesus Christ as a nothing relationship. I'm sure Jesus must be crying at the sight of all this, but I'm sure Satan is laughing. After all, aren't they asking for it?

Like, as a Christian school, keep our level of Christianity and not stoop to the level of this world.

Sincerely,
Liz Schmitz

Dear Editor,

As a newcomer to Southern College, I very much appreciated the Tennessee twang, the April Fool's Day paper produced by the Southern Accent staff. I found the satirical views such as the "vegetarian" video game, "the KGB agent," especially enjoyable. It's nice to know that everyone, student and faculty, can laugh together at a joke.

It is good to get away from the dreary everyday controversial news that we read every week in the Southern Accent. This is not to say that the Accent is unnecessarily boring; it does its job of reporting the facts very well. But so many controversial and negative things are happening that it tends to be discouraging reading. I found the Tennessee Twang to be very effective in taking my mind off the regular daily routine.

The Twang provided a bright spot in the week. It was pure entertainment, relaxing, and enjoyable.

Sincerely,
Kevin Cornwall

Dear Editor,

We are writing in reference to the "Valley Bible" ad in the Tennessee Twang (April 1, 1983). We could comment on various parts of the paper which seemed to be very questionable for a Christian school, yet due to space, we will stick to the "Valley Bible" feature.

As we know, the Bible for centuries has been referred to as the "sacred Scriptures," for they are indeed sacred. The Bible is unlike any other book ever written, because in it God speaks to us. Therefore Christians have not made light of this Sacred Book. Nor do we feel it justifiable then, that the Tennessee Twang (even in fun), should be able to do so.

It is not much to upset us, but rather makes us sad to see how Christian writers would stoop so low as to "in fun" take pot shots at God's holy holy Holy.

If this is the type of attitude that these writers have in mind, then perhaps we as Christians ought to re-examine our values and our relationships with Jesus.

Could Jesus Christ in His holiness rejoice over such an article?

Dear Editor,

Concentrating the Tennessee Twang, I have heard a lot of negative flack, and I do realize that it dealt with some pretty topic subjects (obviously).

But I seem to recall the fact that it was the Twang, and it was put out on April 1st which is, I think, how April Fool's Day usually is on this day when anything said, written or done is questionable or at least if one has any sense of humor.

I'll admit parts of the paper kind of caught me off, but I just skimmed over those parts, soon forgetting them, as I thought the good outweighed the bad. I'm just glad the school and it's paper has enough spunk to create and print an entire issue that's crazy. I mean most of the stuff was so obviously far from reality, one almost had to laugh.

If you think its funny great, if not don't spill it for the rest of us.

Sincerely,

4/SOUTHERN ACCENT/April 14, 1983
The Collegegade SDA church that many of you attend from week to week has voted to undertake a Sanctuary Beautification Project that will mean a transformation of the interior of the church with stained glass windows, wood paneling, carpeting, etc. The project cost will be about $310,000. Some might question the advisability of spending that much money on such a project. To those with such concerns I might offer the following:

When we think of language we most often think of the words that we use, in our case English. There are many ways to communicate, in any means of communication. Language is much more than the sounds we make with our vocal chords. There is much language that speaks to us that does not necessarily vibrate the air next to our car drams. When I am riding with a stranger in a car I feel a need to fill the air with words. I feel the need to communicate by using words. When I ride in the car with a close friend the silence created by the lack of words is not an embarrassment for communication. Language is more than words.

 Symbols communicate a physical us. Our lives would be rather barren without them. Of course spoken words are also symbols, symbols in sound, but I am thinking of the silent symbols of a handshake, a hug, a smile, a wave, or a rose given for a memory. Symbols dominate our lives more than we realize. We stop at red lights because they symbolize something that we have agreed on, together, so that we can live together without running into each other. We pass around pieces of green paper that have symbolic value because we have agreed to have them represent a specific value. I often study body language say that they can tell what we are thinking about a situation or a person by the way we hold our arms, and move our bodies.

Fortunately for us our communication with each other is not simply the cold evaluation of words that pass between us on sound waves or paper. Life is colored with many deep and varied meanings because of symbols that communicate more than words are able to communicate. The pictures of our lives are painted with many varied hues. Many, if not most, of these hues we derive from silent communication between us.

Our life with God is dependent on His communication to us through the words written in the Bible, but knowing our nature He left us more than the language of words. He left us the language of symbols as well, the bread, the wine, the sanctuary, the foot washing, the raising of the dead, the bequests of Daniel, the cross, and the Lamb, all symbolizing a reality deeper than what would appear on the surface. These symbols communicate a deeper reality in the same way that the symbol of a rose given for a birthday communicates in a language that is deeper than what appears on the surface.

Our homes speak to us and to those who visit us in symbols. They tell others about who we are and what our priorities are. In the home that we have prepared for worship God also speaks a language to us. The way we maintain our church home, the interest we have in its beauty, the commitment we have to our sanctuary of worship speak of the significance of our relationship to God.

Everything about our church speaks a language. The doers, the colors that greet us, the height of the ceiling, the color of the carpet, the windows, the grounds around the church, the texture of the walls, the placement of the pulpit, the open Bible on the communion table, the flowers, the printing style and color of the bulletin all speak a language to us about our love for and relationship with God.

When a child is learning to speak he has very limited vocabulary. This shortage of symbols limits his understanding of life and his ability to experience all that life has to offer. When a church chooses to limit its vocabulary of worship meanings, it limits its experience of worship. Our church has chosen to expand its vocabulary of worship through a new organ and the Sanctuary Beautification Project. This expanding language of worship is for the purpose of deepening our experience of God and expressing our adoration and praise to Him. As a church family let us always reach to experience our Lord in ever deepening ways.

Let us use and develop our language so as to express even more gloriously our love for our creator.

European study tour planned

Southern College students will again have the opportunity to earn credit while traveling in Europe during the summer of 1984. The study tour "Adventures in Europe 1984" will depart from Atlanta on May 23 and return on July 8. The tour will include twelve days in England, twelve days in Italy, and ten days in West Germany. London, York, Amsterdam, Paris, Florence, Rome, Venice, and Munich are among the most notable of the more than forty cities and towns in which the tour will stop. The tour will also travel through the spectacular Alpine country of Switzerland, The tour is especially designed for college students, but will also welcome any interested non-students.

A total of six semester hours of credit may be earned on the tour. These credits may be in either history or humanities. The charge for tuition is included in the basic price of the tour.

According to Bill Wolfers, Professor of History and tour director, the purpose of the tour is to enable students to receive a more vivid appreciation of western culture than is possible in a classroom. Students will be able to observe firsthand those aspects of European life which in this country are available only in books. In addition students will become acquainted with the people of Europe by traveling with them on the train. Each tour member will have his own Eurail pass which will allow unlimited rail travel throughout the continent during the period of the tour.

This is a unique aspect of the Southern College tour. Most similar tours are confined to a bus with limited opportunities to rub shoulders with the people.

The current estimated cost of the tour is $3,350. This price includes all transportation, lodging, admissions, tuition, and two meals per day.

All inquiries by potential participants should be directed to Bill Wolfers, Department of History, 4259.

Davenport con't.

The Orchestra Banquet is being held this Sunday in the Southern College cafeteria at 6:30 p.m. The orchestra, under the direction of Orlo Gilbert, will bring present music from five different European cities. They will performing.

Guests artists will be performing at the banquet. Downtown stringing on the Cello and Kevin Cornell will be Bassoon. Tickets are $1.00 per person. Ticket sales close Friday at 4:00 p.m.
1983 BASEBALL FORECAST
by Obit Bird
The 1983 Major League Baseball season began last week and promises to be one of the most exciting campaigns in recent years. As the winds blew, only a handful of teams made major acquisitions, and it appears that the big difference between the contenders and the also-rans could be in the bullpen.

The American League teams begin the 1983 campaign with new managers - Joe Altobelli succeeds the retired Earl Weaver in Baltimore. Billy Martin rejigs his "buddy" George Steinbrenner in New York. John McNamara joins Cal Ripken, Jr. in a disastrous season with Cincinnati. The remaining three skippers - Mike Hargrove (Cleveland), Steve Boros (Oakland), and Doug Rader (Texas) have only limited managing experience, and will attempt to turn their respective teams around.

Three National League clubs introduce new managers - Bill Virdon joins the hated Montreal Expos, and is the only brand new skipper in the senior circuit. Roy McRae of Houston and Russ Nixon of Cincinnati begin the first full season with their teams.

This week we will take a look at the American League and its respective clubs.

AMERICAN LEAGUE WEST

Kansas City, Chicago, and California will fight it out this year, but this year the Royals are champs over the Chisos and the Angels. The other four teams (Oakland, Seattle, Minnesota, and Texas) will play the role of the spoiler.

The Kansas City Royals are healthy, (so far) and could well dethrone California as division champs. Hal McRae and George Brett provide the big bats for the team that led the American League in hitting in '82. They have good defense up the middle and a great bullpen led by Dan Quisenberry. If their starting pitchers come around, the Royals will be mighty hard to catch.

Manager Tony LaRussa nearly had to eat his words often. The Minnesota Twins are the biggest bright spots to return. The M's offense is in good hands with Bill Caudill and outfielder DH, Richie Zisk, as long as the M's stay healthy.

When Floyd Bannister went to the free-agent route, the Seattle Mariners' chances of moving up the ladder were suddenly stilled. Gaylord Perry and Jim Beattie are the only proven starters remaining on the team. The M's offense is in good hands with Bill Caudill and outfielder DH, Richie Zisk. This could be a long year for the M's.

The Texas Rangers suffered through the worst season of their history last season, but will improve some. The question is how much? They are led by All-star third baseman Buddy Bell and catcher Jim Sundberg. With the exceptions of Charlie Hough and Buck Rodgers, the Rangers mound staff is thin - they will probably have to endure some lean times for the next few years.

The California Angels "boast!" The oldest team in the American League is led by veterans Tommy John, Fred Lynn and Doug DeCinces, they have plenty of experience. The big question is whether they will endure the long season, and the pennant stretch in September. If the Angels get their bullpen going they could go all the way.

Steve Boros will try to build the Oakland A's into a winner in 1983. They are led by speedster Rickey Henderson (who stole 130 bases in '82) and newly-acquired Carney Lansford who provides a potent bat and a gold glove. They are, however, a bit suspect on the mound, and will need to get their starters in top form for the A's to finish above .500.

Minnesota's Twins have the makings of the pretty good ball club and will raise a few eyebrows before the 1983 campaign is over. Kent Hrbek, this year's 1982 Rookie of the Year, Tim Gaetti and Gary Ward all hit 20 or more home runs last year, and figure to be productive in '83. Pitching will be adequate, with Bobby Castillo heading the starting rotation and Ron Davis in the pen.

(1) Kansas City Royals
(2) Chicago White Sox
(3) California Angels
(4) Oakland Athletics
(5) Minnesota Twins
(6) Seattle Mariners
(7) Texas Rangers

AMERICAN LEAGUE EAST

This division is perhaps the most competitive in baseball. As in previous years, 1983 should mark one of the wildest dogfights ever. Most writers and broadcasters pick the Milwaukee Brewers to repeat as division champs, but this writer gives the nod to the Baltimore Orioles.

Winning is a tradition to the Baltimore Orioles, and this year's Birds have a bit of promise to prove. (They lost to Milwaukee on the last day of the '82 season.) Eddie Murray and Ken Singleton are two of the A.L.'s most talented players, and Baltimore's pitching is among the league's best. The Orioles are one of the most balanced teams in baseball.

The Milwaukee Brewers have the finest hitting team in baseball, but the big question is pitching. (Pete Vuckovich and Rollie Fingers are out.) If only if Don Sutton can pick up the slack, the Brewers should repeat in '83.

The Detroit Tigers have as much talent as anyone, but they need some front-line pitching from their bullpen. If Aurelio Lopez regains his old form, the Tigers could win it all. If not, Tiger-skippers Sparky Anderson may be looking for a job elsewhere.

It's hard to ignore the New York Yankees, particularly when they have the A.L.'s premiere relief pitcher in Goose Gossage. The acquisitions of Steve Kemp and Don Baylor will give the Bronx Bombers an offensive boost, something they've needed since division departure of Reggie Jackson. The Yankees can't be taken lightly.

The Boston Red Sox acquired Tony Armas from Oakland in a deal with Steve Kemp and John Lansford to the A's, Armas is the power hitter they've needed to compliment Jim Rice, but the Sox really need a starting pitcher or two. Boston's bullpen can spell R.E.I.F-E, but their starting rotation spells D.I-S.A.-S.

On Sunday, April 10, the Freshman Rees Series team played a group of seniors from the various academies uniting on College Days. The seniors jumped out to a 12-2 lead early in the game, but the freshman were to eventually prevail 50-25. The scorers for the freshmen were Wesley White and Cecil Poyton with 20 and 18 points respectively. Also participating in the contest were David Butler, Clinton Parrish; 2 pts., Alfred Peterson; 6 points, Jimmy Estrada; 4 points, and Randy Thueside; 5 points.

The freshman also played the academies in fast pitch softball and won there as well.

Racquetball and Tennis players get on the ball. The Southern Accent would like to post winners of each tournament in the last issue.

Slow pitch softball tournament will be held Monday, April 18. Starting time isn't known at press date. Everyone come out and cheer on your class.

Yesterday, I had a very rare opportunity to interview one of the Russian tour guides who will accompany the S.C. Orchestra this summer. He seemed to be a nice guy, and quite open. His name was Count I.M. Veryoff.

Southern Cynic: Glad you could be here with us, Count.

Count Veryoff: I am glad to present the USSR to you. Our former leader, Leonid Brezhnev, sends his warmest regards. In fact, just before he passed away, he had a meeting with that Great Collective Farm in the Sky, he says to me, "I wish I could make it warmer for those pipple."

Cynic: I'm sure. How are things in Russia?

Count: I would say our most depressing problem today is the high cost of living. We are very compressed about it. Am I undressing myself alright?

Cynic: Just fine. Please continue.

Count: Of course. As I was saying, we have our troubles. It is too bad that our countries are so fat together. Maybe we can become closer apart. Care for some vodka? It's caffeine-free.

Cynic: No thanks. How did you fare, Stalin?

Count: Ah, he was a good (cough) man. It was Stalin who freed me from my chain. Not only my chain, but the watch that was on it.

Cynic: Are you recovering from your dictator-ship?

Count: What? Recover? Why, under him and his immoral rule we deviled the ladder of progress. Wrong! He was a great Caesar! He seized it!

Cynic: I'm sorry, I had no idea you had such thanks for him.

Count: No, I have no tanks, but you should see how many tanks our Red Army has!

Cynic: I haven't, but I'm sure they have in Afghanistan.

Count: Ah, comrade, you have allowed the bourgeoisie capitalist fairy-tale makers trick you into believing silly lies about our true reason in Afghanistan.

Cynic: Really? So what are you doing there?

Count: Well, 10 army divisions were invited for a hook-a-pipe smoker's convention in Kabul, and so...

Cynic: Good try, Count. Count: Please do not rudely interpret me.

Cynic: Let's talk about the U.S. What do you like here?

Count: You pipple have good TV shows. I like "WKRP in Cincinnati."

Cynic: You mean "WKRP."

Count: That too. You also have my favorite grocery stores.

Cynic: Really? Which one is that?

Count: Red Food.

Cynic: Shall we end on that joke?

Count: No let's go on a little more. You haven't written six dollars worth. Besides, it might get better.

Cynic: Alright. What do you think of our country's current relations?

Count: You Americans are always telling lies about us. It has been proved that half of them aren't true. We pipple in Russia have more brains per square head than any other pipple in the world.

Cynic: I suppose you think you're good diplomats too.

Count: Of course. In the United Nations Obscurity Council we are a good asset because of our life-ability. We also have a stable policy.

Cynic: Stable.

Count: Sure. We hang, horse around, and stamp our feet. Very stable.

Cynic: How is your wife?

Count: She is having a nice vacation in Siberia. She says to Andropov's good friend Rudolph, "It's snowing." He says, "It's raining." She says, he is a dummy, and that it is snowing. I said to her as she was leaving, "I guess Rudolph, the Red, knows rain, dear."

Cynic: Will you visit SMC again?

Count: I don't think so. As a good communist, I don't like these "Schools of the Profits."

"Fiddler" a success

The famous Broadway musical Fiddler on the Roof was presented by the Southern College Division of Music this past Sunday afternoon and Sunday and Monday evenings in the Collegedale Academy Auditorium, including such well-known songs as "Matchmaker, Matchmaker, Make Me a Match," "If I Were a Rich Man," and "Sunrise, Sunset," the musical was played before a full house each performance and received a standing ovation each time.

Set in the little Jewish village of Anatevka, Russia, on the eve of the Russian Revolution, the period, Fiddler on the Roof explores the facets of tradition and the conflict that can arise in trying to adhere to it at all times. The main character, Tzeitel's (played by Dr. Don Runyan, who was also the director), explains in the opening scene, "Here in Anatevka we have a tradition for everything—how to eat, how to sleep, how to wear clothes...because it's a tradition everyone knows who he is and what God expects him to do." The play's conflict arises when Tzeitel's three older daughters (played by Mary Gilbert, Shari Conner, and Wendy Mathiesen) decide not to use the village matchmaker (Denise Read) in finding themselves a husband, but to marry who they want and love. This is a new idea that breaks tradition and brings uproot to the village. As senior physics major Kevin Shaw expressed it, "The play is a great way to bring to our minds the difference between what's right and what's tradition."

Due to the success and popularity of the play, evident by such remarks as "It was fantastic!", plans are being made for its performance again on the Saturday night of graduation weekend.

Why do Adventist youth leave the church?

When academy age kids leave the church, it's not usually the church. It's usually because it's easier to float along and not make a commitment. In college where there are so many kids, it is more difficult to take a stand and therefore you just let religion slide.

IT'S ALL OVER!
Perspectives

In one week, the 1982-83 school year will be history. Most of the students on this campus will be gone except for the seniors who will eagerly be anticipating their graduation ceremonies. Soon, even graduation will be a memory—brought back to life only by the diploma on the wall or a snapshot in a photo album.

Time has a way of dimming our eyes. Ten years from now, few of us will remember the final struggle during test week. We will forget the unending pressures, the sleeplessness nights, the mounting tensions. Yet right now, these conflicts in our lives seem to consume every ounce of energy we possess and every waking thought of every day. That test which threatens to sink us, the lost girlfriend or boyfriend we "can't live without", the dean that we can't stand—all become large in our limited vision seem to overwhelm us.

Yet what seems insurmountable today may, on the morrow, be a harmless ant hill. The one skill that may be priceless is the ability to step back from the whirl of activities, pressures, and tensions and get a perspective on our situation. When we learn this, we are able to live a more stable life in the proper perspective.

Letters

Dear Editor:

I was so completely overwhelmed yesterday by the honor bestowed upon me when the Southern Memories staff co-dedicated the 1983 annual to me that I was temporarily lacking adequate words. To be singled out from among all the wonderful and gifted faculty members and staff on this campus is a distinct (but humbling) honor, but to be honored simultaneously with the president of this college is a double highlight. One that I shall probably never experience again.

Sincerely yours,
E.D. Grundset

Dear Editors,

I looks like a battle of words between CUC and SC might be forthcoming if it weren't for the end of this school year with its last-minute frantic cramming looming directly ahead. You must be gratified, at least, that your editorial on CUC made it to Takoma Park and was read and responded to by someone from CUC. I think, as is the case in many instances that this whole issue of schools is one in which opinions are based upon facts colored with the past experiences are resulting perceptions of individuals. For example: to me, it seems that CUC is located near a high crime area—Sligo Creek. I was told by my parents and others, when I attended CUC, not to hike along the creek area for safety reasons—especially at night. To a resident of the Overtown section of Miami during the riots, though, it goes without saying, that life at Southern College in all its aspects (academic, social, cultural, and all) has been greatly molded by Dr. Knittel's leadership during the last 16 years. His enthusiasm, zest for life, organizational abilities, challenging chapel and vespers talks, and much more (including his extreme interest and caring attitude for teachers and students alike) have all played their roles in making Southern College what it is today.

I simply want to go on record as saying that with your leadership, Dr. Knittel, these have been the best years of my life and surely for the lives of everyone who has fallen under your sphere of influence as well. Thank you for sharing your life with us.

It is my hope that your "southern memories" will be as pleasant as our memories will be of you when you leave.

May God bless you in your future ventures and adventures.

Sincerely yours,
E.D. Grundset

Dear Editor,

When I look back on my past, I can't help praising and thanking God. He has enabled me to be a Christian in my infidel family and called me to follow and serve Him and His people. He wonderfully preserved and kept me during my fifteen years in the Chinese prison and hard labor camp for preaching the gospel; God amazingly lifted me from China into this new continent just on my birthday! As I recall that how He has guided me through college here, my heart is pretty warm.

We came here in July, 1980 with only 800 dollars in our pockets. (See next page)

Dear Editor,

Red Neckerson here and just ask ye'self what it is I want now! Now I ain't one to complain or anything but for the last part of the school year, I figured I could just make a few commentaries on a few things. Last Saturday night about every SDA and his brother from here to Califormia a havin' a dyin' duck fat and a writrin' some correspondence.

To start off with, what is it with ye so-called "Snack Bar" anyway? I go there a starvin' on a Saturday night about 11:00 o'clock and just ask ye'self what happened? There was a sign that said, "No sandwiches after 11:00! Gimmie a break! That's like Pizza Hut sayin', "No pizza after 10:00—we don't feel like makin' 'em. Besides, we wanna go home!" Just burns me up! Then I go there another time and there's another sign that says, "Closed due to secrecy.

They don't need to say "Sorry!" I know that! And if ye ask me, I don't think the sign was any of the workers either!

But, I'm an easy goin', easy to get along with kinda guy. I just get things the best of me. I just nabyte down on ye so-called "CK" for some grub. I thought I'd get a small pizza with mushrooms, black olives, and green peppers. Just ask ye'self what happened? I get in there and there's a sign that says, "No mushrooms, black olives, and green peppers.

Just my luck! So I order a super salad. The waitress points at the sign: "No mushrooms, black olives, green peppers, lettuce, and tomatoes." I can't believe it! I asked how come and she said the workers had to clean up. This is so very true! So I just ordered a shake. The waitress points at the sign: "No mushrooms, black olives, green peppers, lettuce, the grill is closed, and no icecream after 7:00!!" By this time my scribbles are in a wod and I yell, "Well what do you have?"

She says, "Sombreo", Mexican food upset my metabolism. Boy I tell you! I just ask ye'self what happened? I got in there and there's a sign that says, "No mushrooms, black olives, and green peppers."

This is Red Neckerson,
Good Day!

Sincerely,

Students recognized at chapel

Awards chapel began Tuesday, with an introduction by Dr. Cyril Fischer, Academic Dean. He explained that each faculty member was restricted to a time length and that chapel should not be too long and boring.

The awards began with Miss Frances Andrews of the Communications Department, who gave four $50.00 scholarships to Jon Larabee, Stephen Morris, Ken Rozell, and Patti Stone. Andrews then gave two Senior of the Year awards to Todd Parrish and Frank Roman.

Clyde Garey presented trophies to Frank Roman, for on-stage excellence, and to J.R. Reed, for back-stage excellence.

Dr. Floyd Greenleaf, from the History Department, awarded Clark Bonilla $250.00. Bonilla was also inducted into the History Honor Society, along with Mark Bolton, Bill Both, Stan Robbs, and Chris Rusnak.

Dr. Robert Morrison, Chairman of the Division of Arts and Letters, announced the names of 10 students who were awarded the Foreign Languages Honor Society. Elder Jerry Gladen then announced the winners of the Research Writing Contest. First place went to Billie Burdick, 2nd place to Clark Bonilla, and 3rd to Chip Cappels.

Claire Weiss was honored by the Chattasoga Association of Home Economists with a silver tray engraved, "Home Economics Student of the Year."

Dr. Desmond Rice presented the Education Department awards. Kathy Compton received $100.00 for the second place. Four scholarships were given on the elementary level out. These went to Glenn Benjsten - $50.00; Michelle Zillmer - $350.00; Valerie Dick - $175.00; and David Libban - $75.00.

Dr. Wayne VandeVere, Chairman of the Business and Office Administration Department awarded pins for excellence in typing and shorthand. Ten students were given for 65 wpm, 15 pins were given for 70 wpm proficiency.

Julie Zacharias was the one 80 wpm recipient. Lisa Roth received a pin for 100 wpm, which according to VandeVere was the best time in recent history.

Shorthand awards were presented to 2 students for 80 wpm; 6 students for 80 wpm; 1 person at 100 wpm; and 4 students at 110 wpm.

Brenda Jones then received $500.00 from the Association of Adventist CPA's. The Kettering Scholarship of $1,000.00 went to Lori Abbott. Abbott also receive a silver tray for the 4-year Senior of the Year. Cynthia Pattison was given a silver tray for the 2-year Senior of the Year. Steven Blake was given the 19th Annual Wall Street Journal award, which includes a $1,000.00 scholarship and a yearbook, as the Senior for the Business Department.

Dr. Marvin Robertson, Chairman of the Music Department, gave the Presser Award and $1,000.00 to Devlin Fryling, a junior music major. Dr. Ray Hefferlin gave the General Physics award, which included a plaque, and a T-shirt, to Gary Burdick. Dr. David Steen then presented biology and chemistry awards.

Kevin Rice was awarded Freshman of the Year for Biology and Heather Bloomer was awarded Freshman of the Year for Chemistry. Bruce Cotton and Mark McKinley were awarded Seniors of the Year in Biology and Chemistry respectively. Tom Goodwin was then given the McCluskey award of $1,000.00.

The Industrial Education Department gave gift certificates to five students, including Mickey Abbott, Mike Burnett, David Dennis, Greg Isaac, and Bruce States.

The Religion Department then honored 6 students with various monetary awards. Seniors Bert Ringer, Richard Esterline, and Tom Goodwin were each given $100.00 and a plaque. Keith Goodwin and Mark Goldstein were each awarded $1,000.00 from the Burdick Scholarship Fund.

Elder Bennett then gave the Dura McMillian Scholarship of $4,470.00 to Bob Mountain. This award, which includes $1,000.00 in scholarship and $3,470.00 in scholarship, will pay, for Mountain's tuition next year.

MRS. MURRITA GRINDEL was named the winner of the Student Service award from the Pailette Pen Tunnel Association.

Mrs. Murrita Grindelley recognized two students for their department, Pam Randolph (Cont. on page 4)
It was the fall of the year in Fenton Forest. Now fall was the beautiful time to visit Fenton Forest. The Scamper Squirrel family had finished gathering their nuts for the long winter and had gone to hide them. Bert the Bear had a large layer of fat to carry him through the cold winter of hibernation. The Bucky Beaver family had cut down enough trees to provide them with a lot to chew on during the winter. Families of birds that raveled away from Fenton Forest during the winter had packed all their belongings and closed up their houses for the winter.

Curtains the cat had stored enough lasagnas to last the winter, remembering the war. The Laundry Chimp had a haunted fall preparing his place for the long winter's nap. "Forest Festival" put out its last issue telling about how to survive the coming winter. The Editor, Tommy Skunk, reflected on the year and the events that made the memories of Fenton Forest.

As closing social event of the year there was the Berry Festival. All the Forest family gathered before their departures. At the festival there was a touch of melancholy in the air as each one reflected on the fact that the memories of the year were not repeatable, the friendships formed would never be exactly the same, and the experiences would never be experienced again. (Of course some of the inhabitants of the forest were happy that some of their memories were not repeatable.) It was Bright Bluebird, the eternal optimist, that tried to break the blues by saying, "Let's not be sad about memories that are passing, rather let's use those memories to look to the future." "That is too philosophical," retorted Sammy Jay. "I can feel melancholy if I like, and I feel melancholy." "Quiet", said Peter Rabbit, "We pass this way but once and that is probably enough.

Another year would come that would bring changes to Fenton Forest. Wise Owl was moving to a warmer climate and would not be a fixture in the forest another year. A rather large group of Fenton Forest students were deciding to leave Fenton Forest. A special ceremony was planned for them. They would be given encouragement to hold high the standard of the forest wherever they traveled and a special garland of flowers was placed on their heads as a symbol of their affiliation with Fenton Forest. Everywhere they went they were to remember the memories of the forest, if not wear the garland of flowers. And, of course, memories are all that life is made of, for there is no memory, life has to continue. The shortest days of Fall and the scattering families left a quiet over the forest. A quiet that was probably needed. The first dusting of snow brought a peace to the forest that was well deserved.

Campus Capsules

The Strawberry Festival will happen this Saturday evening at 8:00 p.m. Sure to be a spectacular program, the production will use 9 projectors and 3 screens, and will be shown in front of the screen, instead of from the middle of the audience. Many hours of long and hard work have been put into this year's sound track and slide selection. Several photographers have contributed slides this year, and the program will center on students and on-campus events.

Ticket sales are another change this year, as well as admission for all non-students.

As strawberries and ice-cream will still be served following the show.

The first annual Spring Play Festival will be held this Friday night, April 22, at 7:00 p.m., on the lawn in front of Summerour Hall. This inspirational concert is sponsored by the Campus Ministries Department.

According to Judd Lake, director of Campus Ministries, this concert is being held, "to provide a Christian musical conclusion to this successful school year."

Judd also added that this would be the only Friday night worship on campus, he hoped all the students and faculty would attend.

Featured artists include Bill Young and Dick Bird, members of the Heritage Singers, Dana Reed, Randy Aldridge from Harvest Celebration, a brass quintet, Lisa Ohman, a string group, and many others.

College People - Looking for Talent

Writers, artists, and photographers at Southern College often lend their talent to the campus newspaper, yearbook, or directory, but seldom had an opportunity to see their work published in national periodicals. College People magazine, a periodical produced by Collegiate Publications in Lincoln, Nebraska is changing that. College People, introduced in the spring of 1981 by the publishers of the Collegiate Quarterly, actively seeks contributors from all Adventist college campuses.

"College People is read by thousands of college-age Adventists throughout North America," says Melody Hubbard, editor, "and opportunities for writers, photographers, and illustrators are numerous." Hubbard, a junior liberal arts major, says students and staff at a number of colleges have contributed to the magazine in the past, but suggests that many fully qualified students are simply not aware of the magazine. "We want the students at SC to know that College People is their magazine, not only because it addresses the issues of college life today, but because they can help insure its literary and visual success in the future."

Doug Morgan, editorial director of Collegiate Publications, says contributors can work with the magazine in a number of ways. "Since each issue concentrates on a particular topic, writers usually work on an assignment basis. According to Morgan, past topics have included love and marriage, the occult, television, depression, money management and faith, morality, and the future of the church. "Though some articles we have printed have been written by professors and professional people, we continue to need illustrations for those articles." Morgan says cartoons are an especially effective way to make a statement on the topic each month, and he invites cartoonists of all levels of skill to notify the magazine of their availability.

"Since College People is printed in full color, four to six pages are especially designated for a photo essay," Morgan said.

Students recognized with certificates for their talent were: Jerri Gladwin, present from the Biblical Research Institute Committee at Andrews University on May 5. The topic will be "The Role of the Prophet in the Old Testament." This will be part of the study the General Conference is doing on the Gift of Prophecy and will be printed in book form after all the papers are in.

The names of the Who's Who winners, including Kathy Allen, Steven Blake, Evan Chestney, Dean Edworthy, Richard Esterline, Jenine Frying, Tom Goodwin, Bonnie Hubley, Jeff Kuhleman, Marty Miller, Heather Northcutt, Todd Parrish, Frank Roman, Jody Vanderveen, Linda Whiting, and Sidney Whiting. Dr. Dufcher then congratulated the winners and dismissed the chapel.

The Talge Hall Spring Golf Tournament was held Sunday, April 17 at the Moccasin Bend Golf Course. The tournament although primarily for the students, included participants from all around Chattanooga area, Georgia, and Central Tennessee.

A total of 16 teams participated in the 4-person select shot event, including 1 ladies team from Collegedale. The winners of this spring’s tournament were the team of Ed Knight and Bird McCloud with former SMC Student Accounts Director Bruce Stephens and his brother Richard. The winners finished with a low score of 14 under par, 1 shot better than the defending champion student team of Mike McClung, Barry Mizelle, Dave Botimer, and Kelly Pettijo.

The students tied for 2nd place with an alumni team, but were awarded 2nd place due to a tie-breaking procedure of a lower score on the hardest holes of the golf course. In 4th place were the Talge deans with a score of 12 under par, which included 2 eagles over the last 6 holes, with Dean Ron Qualey sinking the eagle putts on both holes.

Individuals of the winning team were each awarded a handsome plaque commemorating their victory. A most valuable player trophy was given to Bruce Stephens whose outstanding putting on the day was considered by his team as the key to the victory. The 2nd place team was given a dozen golf balls to be split up between the players. As is the custom in the Talge tournaments, the closest to the pin and longest drive contests were held. Sleeves of 3 golf balls each were given to the winners of these contests, which are listed below. Congratulations and much appreciation are to be given to Dean Reed Crismon for a job well done in the Administration of the tournament.

Baseball forecast
by Dick Stiegel

In 1982, most baseball writers and broadcasters picked the Montreal Expos to reign as champions in the National League East. The St. Louis Cardinals, who were considered a .500 team at best, emerged as National League champions, and went on to win the World Series. This writer picks the Redbirds to repeat as divisional champs in 1983, but not without a battle from the Expos. The remaining teams—Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Chicago, and New York will battle for third place.

Here’s how they look:
1. St. Louis Cardinals
2. Montreal Expos
3. Philadelphia Phillies
4. Pittsburgh Pirates
5. Chicago Cubs
6. New York Mets

This division is similar to that of the American League East, and could best be described in one word—DOOGFIGHT! Atlanta, Los Angeles, San Diego, and possibly San Francisco may be battling for the crown on the last day of the season.

THE U.S. EMBASSY IN Beirut was blown apart by a car bomb blast that killed 28 people, including 6 U.S. Marines and two U.S. Army soldiers. The blast was caused by 310 lbs. of hexogen, a material 4 times as explosive as TNT. The Modern Holy War took responsibility for the blast as “part of the Iranian revolution’s campaign against imperialist targets throughout the world.” The White House called the blast “a despicable terrorist act.”

CHICAGO Elected its first black mayor, Harold Washington, after a long, bitter race dominated by the nation’s Prime Minister, his Republican opponent. Bernard Epton, skipped a scheduled unity luncheon and said he hoped Washington would “learn to pay his bills promptly and his taxes,” reference to Washington’s 1970 conviction on charges of failing to file the income tax returns. Mayor Jane Byrne and Richard M. WEST GERMAN Chancellor Helmut Kohl reassured President Reagan that West Germany would keep its commitment to deploy U.S. medium-range nuclear missiles this year unless the U.S. reaches agreement with the Soviets. Kohl expressed hope that such an agreement would occur but insisted that “If there is no agreement in Geneva, we will do what we promised to do.” In a related development, the Soviets threatened to deploy medium-range missiles within range of the U.S. stationed in Nicaragua, if the U.S. missiles are deployed.
As students look back on the 1982-1983 school year, it probably seems hard to believe that the time rambled by so fast. All the events of the year seem to swell together as a hazy kaleidoscope of memories. The year started off with a bank as Southern College celebrated 90 years of educational quality. The Student Association planned a big birthday celebration party while the cafeteria baked a huge cake.

Elder Jim Coffin presented the Fall Week of Spiritual Emphasis during September. The Student Association Senate began with the election of 27 Senators.

Elder Frank Keitel celebrated his 55th birthday they surprised many people by announcing that he was taking a one-year sabbatical. Students were pleased to learn in October that Ooltewah-Collegedale Phone Company would eliminate the clicking of the phones in February by installing a new phone system. That excitement turned to anger when the students learned during second semester that the new system would be installed in May.

The SC Religion Department held a symposium during Alumni Weekend to address questions that have been raised. Although each teacher reaffirmed his support of the Seventh-day Adventist some continued to be attacked by the pseudopress.

The Southern Players presented the dinner play, “Capo” to a capacity crowd at the Bear House in Chattanooga. The play was one of three Southern Players productions during the school year.

The Student Association held an open-forum chapel. The question and answer period started out calmly but escalated in a heated argument as students discussed Christian ethics, television, and magazines.

Dear Bear and Chair Bear:

I am not one to talk, however, I think you've been the greatest bosses I could ever have, Thanks for the presents from Chicago. They came in hand, so to speak—both of them!!! Next year I fear that I may not have anyone to "take me there, NOW!" I'm gonna miss the office—ya, even the Clutter on Monday afternoons (544) . ha ha). By the way, what do you hold in your hand?? It just makes you wonder!

As Always, C.C.
(Guess what that stands for)

Debbie P.,

I wish I could have you around forever! But I know that that is not possible at this time. God will provide!! Keep your eyes upon Him and you'll never be uncertain. Let's always keep in touch while we are miles apart.

Love,
Dee M. R.

P.S. You made it Deb!

Dear Snake:

Thanks too much for being there when I really needed your strength. Remember what I said at GCA. It's still true. Have a great summer with your wind-surfer. Love ya!

Bozo

Dear Nisey:

This year has been great and so has being with you. Thanks for all the support and love.

Love,

Big Bozo

Dear 20862,

Just wanted to say "Hi" and wish you luck on final exams—especially calculus. I've heard it's a tough class. Study hard.

49564

P.S. I love your accent. It's so cute.

Dear Buddha,

Well the year is over and oddly enough we both made it. We've had a lot of fun and hopefully it'll continue next year! Have a terrific summer and I promise that every day and then I'll think of you!

From 46854

P.S. By the way, you just lost a bet! I'm gonna enjoy dinner at the loft!

I love all of ya.

Bethel

Dear Yo Yo,

I'm so glad I got to know all of you this year. You are all fantastie. Brenda and Dave, I'm going to miss you this year. Wayne, I'm glad you're staying here. Good luck in everything you do—I'll be praying for you!

I'm so glad I got to know all of you this year. You are all fantastie. Brenda and Dave, I'm going to miss you this year. Wayne, I'm glad you're staying here. Good luck in everything you do—I'll be praying for you!

Dearest Estelina,

You have been a wonderful roommate this year. Thanks for all the good moments. See ya next year.

Love,
Lisa

P.S. Have a terrific summer!!!
The Red Baron,

Thank you for such a beautiful time last week! Time sure did go by fast, didn't it? Let's continue to ask for our Pilot's guidance and be prepared to go where He leads and be willing to be whatever He wants us to be. If our roads should go separate ways, remember that you are one very special person.

Lots of love,
Curly

Dear Deanna,

Can you believe we finally got to room together? It has been fun, and such numerous memories like those late night talks, juggling the stairs, and those delicious experimental breakfasts. Thanks for putting up with my early studying and shorthand tapes. Thanks for being a great friend. I can't wait till next year!

Love,
Your roommate,
Shari

Soundrel,

Have you enjoyed our time together as much as I have? I hope so. I wish we had more time together, but there is always next year, right? I hope you have a terrific summer. Look out for scuba divers. One of them might be me.

Love,
Der Komissar

Hey SEP,

I really enjoyed the class this past Sabbath. You really gave me a surprise! I'm looking forward to talking with some more, okay?

Have a terrific weekend.
Suz

Congratulations Trish on your internship. Good luck!

Chris and Leigh,

Congratulations! You're finally making it to the big university. Don't forget your little friends back here. Going to miss ya'll.

Ann and Denise

Congratulations!!

Dina and Gena

Love,
A friend

Dear Thor,

Thanks for putting up with me. I don't think I would have made it through this year without you. I'll miss you this summer.

Love ya!
Freddie

Dear Dennis C.,

Hill's been great writing. I wish you luck on your finals, and I want to thank you for being so understanding. Live it up this summer!

Love,
Your Secret Sin & Subod

Kevin, Styce, Jimmy

I'm going to miss you all.
Don't forget me after I'm gone.
I love you all.

Dear Cubao Gigolo;

You have taught me a valuable lesson in the art of greatness. Yes, you have taught me many things almighty Balo, sir. Your check is in the mail.

May we always carry book pans with pride and dignity and let us never forget what we went through to get there.

Thanks for the memories.

The Kiddo

Dear Somebody's nobody and Roommate,

Wow, the year's over. It's been real, and it's been fun, but it hasn't been real fun!! Ha ha. Well anyway, just thought I'd write and tell you nothing. Take care and have a good summer.

Love,
Nobody

P.S. How's somebody doing? Have you met anybody?

Love,

Dear Little Brother,

Merry, what a year! Hope next year is better for you. Sorry I haven't been able to see the friend that I should have been but I'll try to do better. Just remember, if you kill me, don't tell me. You know I hate anticipation! Ha ha. Take care now!

Love,
Big "Sis"

Dear S283,

I'm really going to miss seeing you here at College-daale... but it will be so much nicer having you as my roommate in Greenbrier!

Much love,
Your future bride

Dear Fresly,

What a wonderful semester! I wouldn't trade it for the world. Don't work too hard in that boiler room, and always beware of people named Jack. Have a great summer, I'll miss you tons. And last but not least, remember to eat a green thing everyday.

Love,
Your back-scratcher.

Chip

Thanks for a great week.
Can't wait till summer break.

Hey, Kiddo!

There's only one week left until school's out so hang in there. Keep your chio up, but don't keep it too high. By the way, in case you get two notes alike-it's because they didn't print the first one last week.

Remember, God loves you. I do, too.

Your "Madre."

Dear "O Wise One,"

My, how the year has flown! Hope it's been a good one for you. It has for me and I just want to say thanks for being a friend right when I needed one. Never forget the good times and good luck always, Oh and thanks for all the "profound Wisdom" you send my way. Ha ha.

Love always,
A Ridiculous Student

Dear Little Brother,

Mercy, what a year! Hope next year is better for you. Sorry I haven't been able to see the friend that I should have been but I'll try to do better. Just remember, if you kill me, don't tell me. You know I hate anticipation! Ha ha. Take care now!

Love,

Dear Teddy Boy & Freddy,

You two make a great pair.
You were truly made for each other. Thanks for being good friends.

Love ya both,
Bld. Bad.

Dr. Frank Krittel:
You will be missed and always remembered.
Thanks for your dedication to our education.

Dear Foxlove,

This has been a great year.
You've made it the best!
I'm looking forward to even better times together in the future.

Love ya,
Corey

Dear Debbie,

Thank you for being my roommate. I really enjoy knowing you. I'll miss you when we'll not be rooming in the fall.
Thanks for being you.
Don't ever change yourself to be somebody else.
I love you.

Suzanne

Cyn me dearest,
You've been a special secretary this year. The S.A. Office and I could have never made it without you. I'm really going to miss you, Good Luck out there!!!

Lots and tons of Love

Dear Baboon II,

Hey, hey, hey! Straw, straw, straw! Here I am to say hello and to thank you for everything.
I can't wait until the fall when we'll be here just a few months together. Let's go ape, bananas, or whatever it is.
Thank you for sharing your "baboonish" friendship with me. I'll never forget you.

Do have a lovely summer, and let's keep in touch.

Love,
Baboon I

To my friends,

I wish I could write to you each personally, but it will make probably two pages in the Accent. So I'm gonna write a note to all my friends.

Thank you so much for your friendship. Some of you who know sign language, I want to thank you for taking time to learn that. My friends, I'll never forget you, because you made my stay here possible. If it hadn't been for you I don't think I'd ever stay.

Have a fantastic summer.

Suzanne

ATTENTION Ms. Elam!

Thanks for your very genuine concern over my Senior year and my eventual graduation. It hasn't gone unnoticed.

Dixie, CPA

Thanks for being a great roommate. I'll never forget all the good times we've had. Good luck in the future.

DJR

School is over and here comes summer; We'll be apart, now that's a buummer.

Four months without you is like a curse, but looking back, Oh no. That's worse. When the summer is over that won't end the fun.
Curse we're going to big "O" to soak up some sun.
The past 16 months has really been great; I hope you're around when I need a 1st mate.
These things I have said are all very true, yet my main point is that I love you!!!

DDD
Dear Cathy, Liz, Wendy, Lynneutt and Erica,

Thank you for my little surprise party and my beautiful birthday gift. It’s pretty great to have fantastic friends like you. Thanks again, and thanks for being friends.

Love ya—Lats.

You’re the best friends anyone could ask for! Thanks so much for this year. Keep in touch, okay?

I love you—
Cindy

Dear Sultermate,

Glad you made it to S.C. this semester. Don’t forget our fun excursions—you really got to have one last fling?

Love ya,
"Immaculate"
P.S. Thanks for your notes of encouragement and ears that can stand some warm news occasionally! Keep your courage up.

SS. & J.I.

Thanks for being you. I am really glad to have gotten to know you, even since the wee hours of that Friday in Jan. When I came. You both made me a lot less homesick.

Read Matt 25:35.

Thanks,
Love,

Dear Patty Cake

Sure have enjoyed all of the times we’ve spent with each other this year. It has been a wild one. Thanks for your love and friendship. I’ll miss you when we part for the summer. But I’ll look forward to being with you again next school year. I love you!!!

Mike

Hi, Kidd! Just wanted to tell ya that I am thinking of you.

There’s only less than two weeks left until we have summer vacation. So, keep your chin up, but don’t keep it too high.

“Madam”

Thanks Ken! MG

Dear $2430,

Thank you for three of the best years of my life. I never dreamed I could find someone as wonderful as you. (14 months then on to Alaska!) I’ll always be yours,

Dear Mr. Ott,

I want to tell you and others that I am glad that you and your family are my friends.

I really enjoy your Spanish classes especially when you tease us. Poor Carol, she really did have a time interpreting Spanish!

Mr. Ott, I want you to know that you are not only a special teacher, but a special friend. You take time to listen to me.

You and your family are like a family to me. I really enjoy talking with Mrs. Ott and writing to Vivian. Even though I don’t see Eddie much I keep him in my thoughts.

I love you all—

Love to Christ

Suzanne

Dear Princess,

Be gentle with Arnold and Duke, they are healing. With proper TLC you can nurse Arnold back to good health. He loves you very much. Don’t worry about Duke, he will heal in good time. It is about time for them to shed their skin and you may be surprised as to what is really on the inside.

Yours always,

The Prince on the Inside

Dear 65841

You’ve made this year the best one ever. I’m going to miss you this summer, but hopefully it will go by fast. Thanks for making this year such a good one. I love you.

Southern Cynic

Victor Cerkasij

Parting is such sweet sorrow. I can't remember when I wrote that, but it's true. This week has been awfully hectic for me, and with the weather, it's been blah. But when I sat down to write this final warmth and joy filled my breast (I used to have trouble saying that). Anyway, just a word of thanks to Shawn Cassidy, who's been directing my fan mail, which has been getting mixed up with hers; and to all you people who tell me my article's not worth six bucks. I, of course, assume you mean it's worth more.

Anyway, here's part of the article I originally meant to print which wasn't.

Have you ever gone to a party, and try to hold a conversation. But nowhere? You just don't have the right lines, but wish you did? Try the following one-liners at your next social engagement, and see if you don't stop the show.

"Randy White owes me twenty bucks!"

"Guess who was at Misty's yesterday?"

"The school's got a new name."

"I heard all the guys on B-wing were in by 10 p.m."

"Ramenalee hates mirrors."

"They had my test permit waiting for me."

"I got some bad vibes at the ABC yesterday."

"The OK stuff is great."

"CUC'sberg is buying a McKee Bakery."

"Schlatter owns "Rings and Things".

"The deans offered to buy my stereo."

"SMC doesn't have any Arabs because they can't afford it."

"Neal Wilson asked me what to do about Davenport."

"If Lamar Alexander calls, tell him I'm not here."

Anyway, it was that sort of thing. Then the year books came out, and I got mine. Naturally. I don't think a column is a place to vent personal anger, so I won't say that after four years why can't they spell a name alike mine right or why didn't they call me when they were taking pictures or where's my name in the three organizations I was in? No, no, that's not the place for it. But there are some strange things I want you all to notice.

Notice that two couples on the bottom of pp. 8 and 9 are not going together any more. Yearbooks always do that. The two people on the top left on p. 7 are not going together any more either.

I heard the poor Thatcher on the bottom of p. 89 to the left is still in that pose. She's been sitting a long time guys. I would hate to see the girl who owns the weight set at p. 130. She must be mean business. Why is the girl on the left so surprised? Maybe because the photographer is a guy. Maybe she just remembered her iron is face down on the floor, on. Is that a double bed they're on? Oh oh.

Did you notice the new flight school on p. 149, upper left? Good luck!

Isn't that a nice picture on p. 139, in the middle? I think second service just let out. Maybe not.

I bet if I were here twelve years I could learn the trick on p. 29, middle right.

Whaddya know? I made the yearbook! p. 27, bottom left. The guy on p. 44 top left is being served his latest statement.

Why is there two pictures of the same guy on p. 132? Did he pay the photographer? Where's his favorite rules on p. 133, top left?

I heard the guy on p. 135, top right was told that SMC was relatively inexpensive. The girl on p. 134, bottom left, was told the same. I agree with the girl.

The girl on the bottom of p. 136 is bringing in two T.V.'s. Don't let her fool you.

Is the guy on p. 145 top right playing keep away? Someone better explain it.

Those two guys on the bottom of p. 159, far right and far left are doing something different. Is the next move to have it like the guy second from the left?

I think the lady on p. 168 bottom right is about to call the police. The girl would have to turn around—then maybe we'd agree.

The top picture on p. 171 looks fine to me.

Ah yes. Schmeling to next raid on the top left of p. 177. I like the sinister effect on the bottom far left of p. 181.

The girl on p. 143 in the middle left has just been served a summons by Security. Her faithful friend, who is wearing her I.Q. T-shirt, cheers her on.

Wow! Isn't that some bust of a man on the bottom far right of p. 251?7? That's right—our girl's wearing long pants!

Hey you've all been great. Stop by and see me in L.A. for the Olympics, and have a warm summer.
