Nursing Building Started

Pre-Sessions Mark Summer School

If variety is the spice of life, then participants in the 1974 SMC summer school should find it a tasty slice of life indeed. Variety is evident in course offerings and locations, student majors and residencies, and even in the times that courses are offered.

Approximately 450 students will participate in classes held in Orlando, Tallahassee, Collegedale, and Germany. A special College Composition class is being offered in Orlando, a class in Christian Witnessing for the Maranatha evangelism team in Tallahassee, and the course, "German Culture and Civilization," in Germany. Over 75 courses are offered on campus.

Most of the courses are given in the regular sessions of June 2 - July 3 and July 5 - August 2, but a number of workshops and special classes will meet at other times. The day after spring graduation some 150 students started pre-summer-session classes, so school has never really been out.

The students this summer range from a sixteen-year-old freshman who just can't wait until fall to get started in her college work, to an elementary education senior who first entered SMC in 1942 and can hardly wait for the sheepskin that will be awarded her August 2. The students come from 36 states and 13 foreign countries. The best represented majors are nursing, elementary education, and theology.

During the past few years enrollment of non-degreed elementary teachers has decreased while enrollment of post graduate elementary teachers has increased. This reflects the fact that teachers in the Southern Union have been diligently working toward and earning their degrees at Southern Missionary College, with a resultant upgrading of the Seventh-day Adventist schools of the South.

Foundation goes in for new building being financed by SMC's Committee of 100.

Excavation for the foundation and basement of the new building for the two departments of nursing at Southern Missionary College is under way, according to Francis Costerisan, plant engineer.

Charles Fleming, Jr., who directs the building activities for the college, said that the building will cost approximately $300,000, including equipment and furnishings, and that hopefully it will be completed in the spring of 1975.

The building will have approximately 16,000 square feet with two floors and a partial basement. There will be conference rooms, a lecture room, 30 teachers' offices and a set-up for educational TV and video tape. The architecture will be red brick, modified Colonial, similar to the McKee Library, and the building will be air-conditioned and carpeted throughout.

Mrs. Betty Fleming will be the interior decorator of the building.

There will be a parking lot for teachers' cars and busses. One person will check the busses each day and see that they are serviced and repaired.

The A.D. Nursing students will go to the Madison Hospital in Nashville for their last year, second semester school work.

Knittel, Spears, Hold Alumni Meet at A.U.

Kenneth E. Spears, '66, dean of student affairs at Southern Missionary College, and Dr. Frank Knittel, SMC president, talk with John Loor, Jr., '72, president of the Andrews University Chapter of the SMC Alumni Association, and his wife, Susan, '71, the chapter secretary.

Sixty persons, mostly graduates and former faculty at SMC, attended a potluck supper held for the SMC alumni in the Andrews University area.

Dean Spears led out in a worship program and Dr. Knittel showed slides of the SMC campus and answered questions from those in attendance. Not pictured is Danny Stevens, '72, chapter vice president.

Communication Dept. Gets Audio-Visual Area

This summer a new audio-video arts production facility is being added in the McKee Library. Located at the north end of the second floor, the two sound-proof rooms will be used to teach communication department television, radio and film courses. Qualified students and staff will also be encouraged to use the equipment for the production of audio-video and film projects, and teaching materials for courses in any discipline.

New state-of-the-art audio recording and mixing equipment is being installed. Television presently housed in the communication department in Lynn Wood Hall is being moved into the new location on a temporary basis in the hope that a way will open for obtaining a new color television production system.

Courses to be taught are: Survey of Radio and Television, Audio Control Techniques, Television Production, Film Production, and Announcing for Radio and Television.

In the past all broadcast courses and laboratories have been taught in the cramped quarters of WSMC. Growth of both the communication department and the radio station have created a "space" crisis which it is hoped will be taken care of for the immediate future.

The audio-video control room is 17' x 25' and the TV and recording studio is 25' x 30' and each room will accommodate classes as large as 20 students. Adjacent to these rooms will be several carrels equipped for headset listening and audio tape editing. An extensive library of production music, sound effects, historical and literary recordings will be housed nearby for student and faculty use.

The new attractive McKee Library presents an advantageous location for housing the new audio-video arts center. The building is open, supervised and accessible to students daily. The atmosphere is conducive to precise, creative work. The space is already air-conditioned, heated, and is being temporarily modified at low cost.

Some of the new audio equipment slated for installation in the new McKee Library Media Arts center.

Over 400 Attend Bible Meet

Johnston Gives $1000 To "Southern Accent"

Those who were students at SMC during the years 1918 to 1922 will readily remember Professor Harlan A. Johnston who was dean of men and history teacher. He visited the campus for three days the early part of April when he presented the Southern Accent staff with a check for $1000 to "step up the tone of the paper in any way necessary."

"I am convinced," he said, "that a college newspaper has a tremendous influence on its readers, often more than is realized. This can be good if it falls into the right hands. However, the kids that are most anxious to write and express their views, too often seem to be on the extreme left."

During the Johnston's years at SMC, the fate of the college hung in the balance as money was a scarce article. Due to the self-sacrificing spirit of the faculty and the help of God, the college was kept going. Mr. Johnston recalled that he and his wife had saved $150 to buy a piano, but gave the money to the school and did without a piano.

When the Johnstons left SMC because of Mrs. Johnston's health, they moved to Mountain View, California, where they established a 12-grade academy.

At that time Mr. Johnston enrolled at Stanford University for graduate work, but being principal, teaching five academy classes and taking classwork himself, proved to be too great a strain, so he left the education field to pursue a business career.

He owned three grocery stores in Mountain View, California, until 1948, when he and a local doctor started a hospital in San Jose, California. Mr. Johnston was chairman of the board of the hospital until his retirement three years ago.

Following his wife's death last summer, Mr. Johnston decided to spend this summer traveling, with SMC one of his first stops.

Grace Thatcher Dead at Age 99

Mrs. Grace Merrill Thatcher, 99, widow of the late James D. Thatcher, died May 12, 1974, in a nursing home in Chattanooga.

Born in Sandusky, Ohio, Mrs. Thatcher came to Chattanooga at the age of 11 with her parents, the late Captain Jason Merrill of Barcelona, Spain, and Eliza Woolson Merrill.

Mrs. Thatcher and her husband, a member of a pioneer family, lived near Ooltewah until the estate was purchased by Southern Missionary College. The women's dormitory at SMC is named in her honor.

Survivors include two sons, Jason D. Thatcher and Paul Thatcher, both of Chattanooga; a daughter, Mrs. Chester (Evadne) Smith of Houghton, Michigan.

Southern Missionary College played host May 13-21 to the delegates attending the first of three North American Bible Conferences sponsored by the General Conference this summer. The other two sessions will convene at Andrews, June 3-11, and at Pacific Union College, June 17-25.

Delegates to the conference at SMC represented a cross section of Adventist pastors, evangelists, departmental secretaries, conference officials, college and academy Bible teachers as well as a selection of teachers from other disciplines and some laymen from the Southern, Southwestern, and Central Unions. Also among the approximately 450 in attendance were delegates from the South Dakota Conference, Central and South America, and President Roy Graham of Newbold College in England.

It has been 22 years since the Church conducted its last general Bible Conference in 1952 in Takoma Park, Maryland. At that time a large number of doctrinal areas were examined in depth, the publication of which in the two volumes, Our Firm Foundation, has greatly blessed the work of the world-wide movement. That conference was held "not to find the new and the sensational, but rather to examine our theological thinking and to test the strength of our spiritual foundations." It was in the same spirit that the delegates of the 1974 Bible Conference assembled to examine in particular the basic issues of the doctrines relating to Revelation-Inspiration, the Authority of the Scriptures, and the use of sound principles of interpretation in the changing theological climate of our times.

Elder Robert H. Pierson, president of the General Conference, addressing the delegates at the opening session used the words of King Zedekiah as a theme for his keynote address: "Is there any word from the Lord?"

The materials for the Conferences (lectures in notebook form and a 273-page printed book, A Symposium on Biblical Hermeneutics), were developed by the Biblical Research Committee of the General Conference whose chairman is Elder Willis Hackett, a vice president of the General Conference, and whose secretary is Dr. Gordon Hyde, who served for a number of years in various capacities at SMC.

One inspiring feature of the Conference was the early morning devotional hour during which Dr. Bernard Seton, an associate secretary of the General Conference, presented an exegetical study of the book of Ephesians. The Sabbath services also presented a change of pace with Elder Charles D. Brooks, a field secretary of the General Conference, addressing the delegates on Friday evening, and Elder Neal C. Wilson, president of the North American Division, speaking at the Sabbath morning service. Elder Arthur White of the Ellen G. White Publications presented interesting insights on the life and work of Ellen White in connection with a two-volume biography on Mrs. White now in preparation. Saturday evening, Dr. Siegfried Horn, dean of the Seminary, presented a slide program of Andrews University's archaeological excavation at the ancient site of Heshbon in the kingdom of Jordan.

Fleming, Mills and Wallack

Charles Fleming, Jr., general manager for finance and development of Southern Missionary College, has requested retirement effective September 25, 1975, after serving SMC for 28 years in various capacities. The Board of Trustees reluctantly approved his request. His plans for after retirement are incomplete at this time.

SMC's president, Dr. Frank Knittel, announced that Fleming will continue as general manager for SMC's industries and enterprises and as chairman of the colleges' building committee until his retirement.

R. C. Mills, present business manager, has assumed some of Fleming's duties, being responsible for the overall budget and finances, including the academic departments and the service auxiliaries.

The college also recently appointed Dwight S. Wallack to be director of development. SMC has been searching for several years for such a person to relieve Fleming of his part-time responsibilities in this area.

Wallack will serve as liaison officer with SMC's Committee of 100, be in charge of all fund raising activities, and be advisor to the president on development matters, according to Dr. Knittel.

Dr. and Mrs. C. N. Rees

Dr. and Mrs. Conard N. Rees will be moving this summer to Orlando, Florida, where Mrs. Rees will be associate dean of women on the SMC nursing campus at Florida Hospital. Mrs. Rees has served as women's residence hall counselor and associate dean of women since 1967. Dr. Rees was president of SMC from 1958-67, when he retired after a serious illness. The Rees' son, David, is a lawyer in Tallahassee, Florida.

Dr. Rudolf Aussner

Rudolf Aussner completed his work for a Ph.D. degree in German Language and Literature in December at Vanderbilt University in Nashville.

Dr. Barbara Ruf

Barbara Ruf completed her work in American Literature for a Ph.D. from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville in March.

Dr. T. C. Swinyar

Dr. T. C. Swinyar, college physician, after recovering from a serious illness, drove to California with Mrs. Swinyar and son, Danny, to attend the graduation of his daughter, Audrey, from LLU, and from there drove on to Gaston, Oregon, to visit son, Gary, '73, who teaches at Laurelwood Academy.

Mr. Ronald Grange

Mr. Ronald Grange, director of food service at

SMC, will present the subject of vegetarian foods at a seminar on "Foods for the Future," at the convention of the Tennessee Chapter of the National Association of College and University Food Service Directors. This convention will be held in the Vanderbilt University cafeteria in Nashville, June 21. All chapters of the Association on the Eastern seaboard are invited to attend, and 100-150 are expected to be present.

Discussion of vegetarianism dietetically will be presented by Dr. Kenneth Burke of SMC, and Mr. Grange will speak on its economical angles. Miss Lynn Kinkead from the American Soy Bean Association will present that aspect.

From 12:00-1:00 there will be a buffet lunch prepared by Mr. Grange during which he will have six different vegetarian entrees for all to sample.

This meeting was advertised at the national restaurant convention in Chicago recently.

Collegedale Distributors and other manufacturers of meat substitutes will have food booths to advertise their products.

Mr. Don Self

Don Self, program manager of WSMC-FM, was promoted to general manager of the station on June 1. He is replacing James Hannum who will be giving full time to the communication department.

Self has held the program manager post since graduating from SMC in May, 1971, when he joined the station as a full-time employee. Prior to that, his experience included the job of production director in his junior year and student manager in his senior year.

Dr. Ray Hefferlin

Dr. Ray Hefferlin, chairman of the physics department at SMC, will be working this summer with the United States Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) in the thermonuclear division at Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

The division, also known as the Sherwood project, is doing research in developing the practical fusion of hydrogen to create power to help solve the energy crisis.

With the steady disappearance of the fossil fuels, new sources of power need to be developed and that is what the project is attempting.

The problem with thermonuclear fusion is that it happens too fast. This is what makes the hydrogen bomb so powerful. The AEC is attempting to harness the fusion's energy by slowing it down, enabling the power to be used practically, rather than destructively.

Dr. Hefferlin will be working on calibrating an ultraviolet spectrometer, an instrument used to measure the spectrum lines of, in this case, ultraviolet. He has worked in the division off and on, in various capacities, since 1952.
