CALENDAR INSIDE

YOUR NEW CALENDAR

Much goes on behind the scenes to prepare a campus calendar. Turn to the center of this magazine, pull out the 1995-96 Calendar, and you will see the creative product of dozens of people.

With the 1996 Centennial Olympics coming to our neighborhood—Atlanta is only two hours south and the river events on the Ocoee a half hour east of us—our international theme was a natural. Just as the five Olympic rings symbolizing Europe, Asia, America, Africa, and Australia are linked to represent the sporting friendship of all peoples, we believe Southern College symbolizes the friendship of all peoples—with a spiritual emphasis.

The visual impact of the Calendar comes from getting 42 busy students in front of cameraman Rick Perry. Somehow Daryl Cole got them there. Admissions adviser Victor Czerkasij researched Olympic facts. With the cooperation of many data providers, especially Campus Ministries, the Music Department, the Colledgeale Church, and the Student Association, Bill Wohlers and Mary Lou Rowe in Student Services drew information together to appear on the calendar itself. Along with doing layout and design, Ingrid Skantz put the data in place.

Because our 1650 students are citizens of 50 countries, these pages represent only a portion of the international teams gathered at Southern to train for winning the spiritual gold in the most important game of all.

SCIENCE CENTER UPDATE

Good news. Bad news. The good news is that $4.5 million dollars in cash and pledges is in hand for the new science center on Southern's horizon. (The original campaign goal was $3.9 million based on 1991 estimates.)

The bad news? When bids from three contractors were opened on June 12, the lowest acceptable bid was $5.9 million. This did not include site preparation, architectural fees, furnishings, and other costs that will bring the total to $6 million.

You don't need to be a math major to see this leaves a gap of $1.5 million. So the campaign is still on. We send SOUTHERN COLUMNS to over 50,000 homes of alumni and constituents—church members in the Southern Union. Fifty thousand times $30 equals $1.5 million. (Please specify Science Center on the memo line of your check.)

Thank you for helping us have some really good news soon!

GRADUATION 95

One more chance

to give parental advice was given to the fathers of three graduating seniors.

John Appel, Sherri Vasquez, Laura Folkenberg, and over 300 of their peers heard John Appel, a pastor from Florida; Manuel Vasquez, vice president of the North American Division; and Don Folkenberg, church building facilitator for the General Conference, at their May commencement services.

The 326 graduates included 19 B.S. nursing students on the Orlando campus. Another sub-group was the 11 Southern Scholars who had completed a special honors curriculum—the largest number in the 12 years since the program began.

In terms of size, the Department of Nursing produced 63 baccalaureate and 76 associate nursing graduates. A total of 50 graduates completed business curricula.

Others with large graduate numbers were biology (24), English (12), psychology (12), and religion (18).

This does not minimize achievements in other areas. For example, three students worked diligently to complete requirements for the brand new art degree in computer graphic design. Five students got diplomas marking completion of their auto body or auto technician certificate programs. Diplomas are also offered in graphic arts and technical plant services. In all, Southern offers 39 baccalaureate majors, 18 associate degree majors, and 31 minors.

Significance of the weekend was enhanced for some by a Sabbath afternoon dedication service for 30 graduating elementary and secondary teachers and psychology majors and a pinning service for nursing graduates Sabbath evening. •

GETTING THE GOLD

SOUTHERN • GAINS • TOP • RECOGNITION • AS • WELL • WORKPLACE

by Doris Burdick

Six years of making employee wellness a priority at Southern College have been their own reward. Recognition as one of Tennessee's healthiest workplaces is, well, fat-free dressing on the salad . . . Or going the second mile.

President Donald R. Sahly accepted the gold-level Well Workplace award at a luncheon on May 1 in a national program in which only one Tennessee employer had previously reached the top level. "I am really pleased to be seen as a leadership organization in the wellness area, because it is so much a part of our philosophy," commented Dr. Sahly.

The award was presented by the Wellness Council of Tennessee in cooperation with the Wellness Councils of America. Keynote speaker was Phillip H. Goodwin of Camcare, Inc., Charleston, W. Va., whose organization in 1991 was awarded the nation's first Well Workplace Gold Award.

Among the 24 criteria Southern College met, this honor required strategic planning, incentives, assessment, feedback, and programs for awareness, education, and behavior change. The on-going process is documented in a four-inch notebook, reviewed thoroughly by a visiting team of five professionals.

"Wellness is about empowerment," says Dr. Phil Garver, director of the wellness program and chair of the Health, Physical Education, and Recreation Department at Southern. "It emphasizes the value of the individual." He can list endless benefits, not the least of which have been lives saved, lives extended, and quality of lives improved. The program has put money in the pocket, not only for individuals receiving cash incentives and lower medical bills but also for the college.

"Last year health care costs for Southern College employees were less than half the national average. Even better, costs for active participants in our wellness program physical education and health science. Nine seniors graduated this spring with a bachelor of science degree in corporate/community wellness management.)

Adds President Sahly, "As the students have watched us, they are also catching the vision." They have initiated a student wellness program. Its student director and student newsletter editor work with others to promote student health and well-being through health awareness, education, and intervention.

"Students are taking more interest in healthful eating in the cafeteria," Dr. Sahly observes.

Representing all segments of Southern's campus, the employee wellness committee oversees monthly seminars, produces biweekly newsletters, and coordinates wellness events and programs with incentives. Another facet of the overall program is wellness counseling and consulting with Dr. Charles Knapp, of North Carolina, who helped design the program for Southern.

"Seventh-day Adventists have the only faith system in North America in which health is a component of our theology," points out Dr. Knapp. He describes wellness in a Christian setting as "an attitude and process which empowers us to be all God knows we can become." His sentiments are echoed by Dr. Sahly: "To be anything less than the best is really not giving diligence to what we believe."

Phil Garver and President Don Sahly accepted the Gold Well Workplace award from Kathleen Etherton, executive director of the Wellness Council of Tennessee.

—about half of Southern's workforce—were only half as much as costs for those who didn't really get into it," Dr. Garver explains.

The program has a positive carry-over to students. "Department majors find prospective employers interested in what we are doing here," he says. (Southern is the only SDA college offering a comprehensive wellness degree, in addition to degrees in

Australia

Australia is the world's smallest continent but the sixth largest country.

The nation harbors many animal species not found in natural habitats elsewhere, including the kangaroo, koala, platypus, Tasmanian devil, dingo, wombat, and barking lizard.

Australians at Southern are: Greg Rice, Meagan Brody, and Terry Rice.

Fifteen-year-old Shane Gould won three gold medals for Australia in swimming (all world records) at the 1972 games in Munich. She also won a silver and a bronze medal.

The Bahamas

Columbus landed in the New World on San Salvador, one of the 700 islands in The Bahamas. Said spaceman Russell Schweikart, "Of all the beautiful sights I saw from the spacecraft, the waters of The Bahamas stick in my mind as the most spectacular of all."

Bahamians at Southern are: Leann Turnquest (2nd cousin to the nation's governor-general), Nerissa Snow, Kimberly Pratt, and Edmund Rahming.

Yachtsman Durward Knowles of The Bahamas has competed in the Olympics eight times, most recently in 1988 at the age of 70.

Brazil

Bordering every country in South America but Chile and Ecuador, Brazil occupies almost half the landmass of the continent. The Amazon rain forest is considered a global resource because of its impact on world weather patterns. Brazil is the largest producer of coffee and orange juice. Brazilians at Southern are: Adriana Lima, Moselle Pereira, and Donni da Cunha.

Whether as four-time World Cup victors or Olympic contenders, few countries are as respected as Brazil for achievement in soccer or "futbol."

Canada

The second largest nation in the world is Canada. Forests cover 35 percent of its total land area. Canada maintains the world's smallest airport and the world's tallest self-supporting structure, the CN Tower. Canadians at Southern include: (front) Vernon Chin, Grant Corbett, Niels Rossen, (back) Melu Tabingo, Peggy Christenson, Sharlene Chin, and Karen Bailey.

An ice hockey silver medal winner in 1994 and a consistent contender in winter events, Canada has hosted the Olympics twice.

China

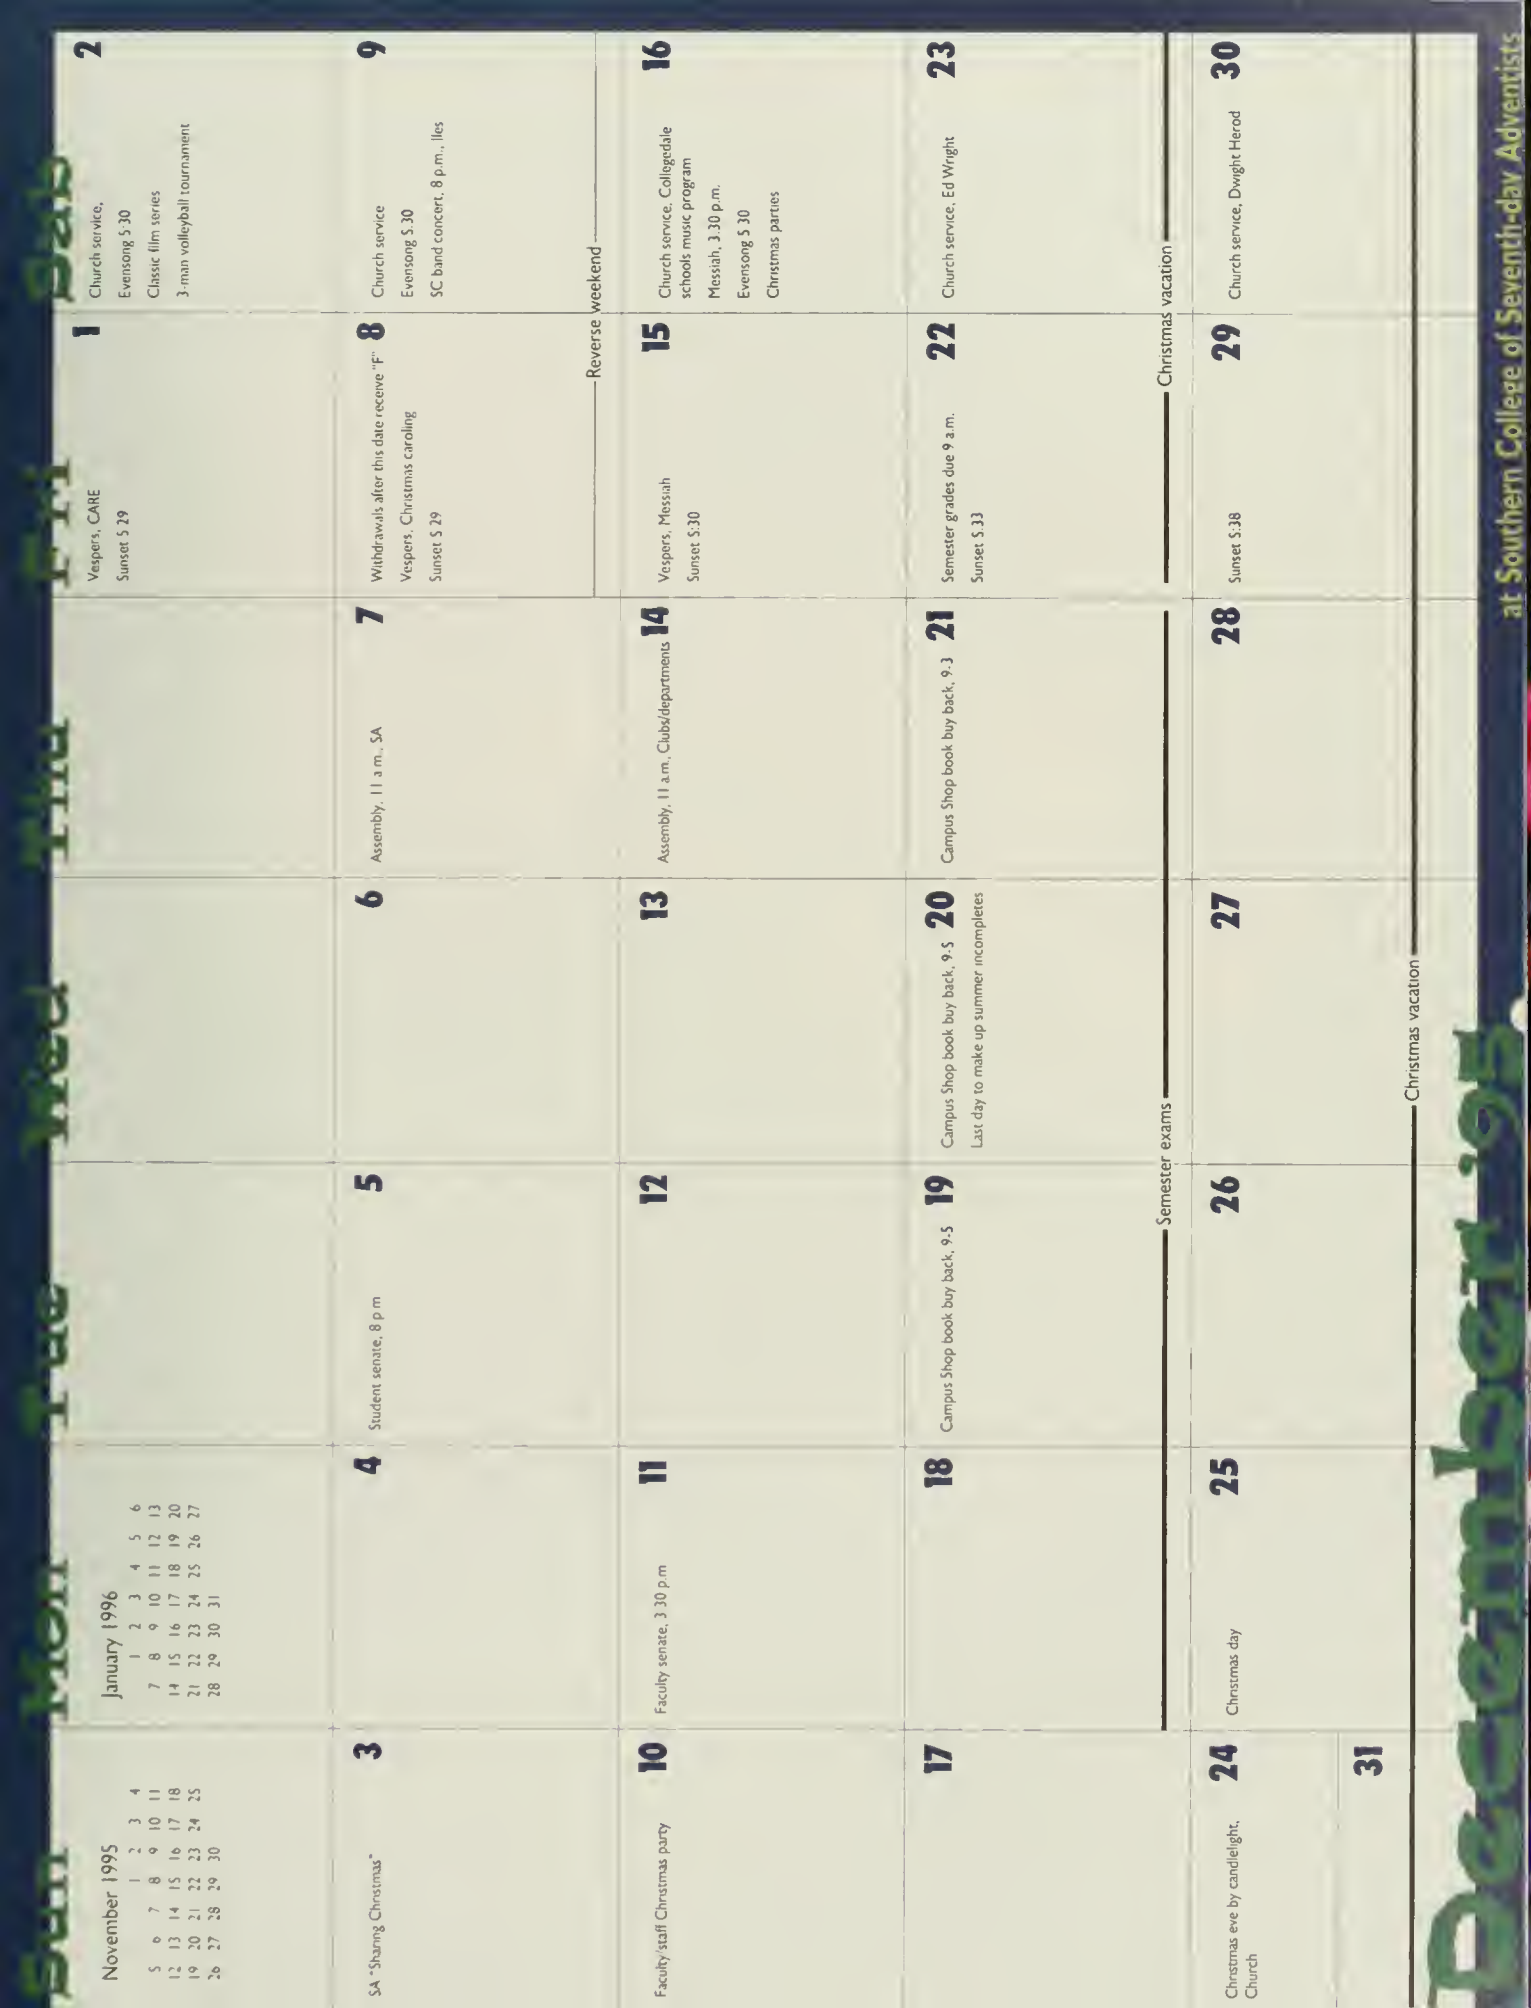

The population of China, reaching almost 1.2 billion, is the largest in the world, comprising over one-fifth of the world's total inhabitants. Hong Kong is scheduled to become part of China in 1996.

Chinese at Southern are: Jennie Dee and Angela Shum (from Hong Kong).

In the 1992 Olympic games, China finished fourth in overall standing with 54 medals. China is known widely for its domination in women's volleyball.

Costa Rica

Since the 1970s Costa Rica has invested 28 percent of its national budget in education. Costa Ricans pride themselves in having more teachers than policemen. Bananas are a major export. Costa Ricans at Southern are: Oscar Espinosa and Michelle Espinosa.

Consistent contenders in Olympic soccer events, Costa Ricans love the sport so much that it is said some would rather play soccer than go on their honeymoon.

SOUTHERN PEOPLE

- Sixty-four Student Missionaries and Task Force volunteers are leaving the campus this summer for service assignments in 24 countries. Their destinations range from Kenya and New Zealand, to Korea, Brazil, and the Czech republic.

- A mace for the Florida Hospital College of Health Sciences was crafted this spring by John Durichek, associate professor of computer science and technology. Since he made the first one for Southern's presidential inauguration nearly ten years ago, he has also made maces for Oakwood College and Tennessee Christian School of Anesthesia.

- An article by Dr. Ruth Williams-Morris, professor of psychology, and 1994 graduates Lori Cadavero and Kirstin Chalker Elliott, appears in the Spring 1995 issue of the Journal of Research on Christian Education. It describes factors relating to success in statistics classes among Southern College students. The two-year project was funded by a Southern College faculty research grant.

- At the invitation of the Annenberg Washington Program, Dr. Pamela Harris, chair of the Journalism and Communication Department, participated in its Summer Faculty Workshop on Communications Policy. The June seminar addressed public policy and communication issues related to the National Information Infrastructure and telecommunications.

- Jeremy Stoner, a senior biology major, has been named president of the Student Association for 1995-96, due to a resignation. His previous post as executive vice president will be filled in a fall election. Appointees to SA office include: Becky Bolling, executive secretary; Doug Hilliard, finance director; and Allison Titus, public relations director.

- Midge Dunzweiler, associate director of counseling, is now qualified as a licensed marriage and family therapist. She passed the state licensing exams of Tennessee.

- An invitation to return to the Euro-Asia Division a second summer took Jim Segar to Kiev, Ukraine, for three weeks to teach a basic accounting seminar for church accountants and treasurers. He joined Southern's Business Administration Department in 1993, following service in Singapore.

- A third Trilogy tape, Wells of Salvation, with 19 original Scripture songs composed by Bodil Morris is now available. Her husband, Dr. Derek Morris, professor of religion, and two sons also sing on the tape.

- A new beauty spot on campus, Lacey Arbor, was introduced to the campus on Arbor Day, April 9. Named for Ray and Gloria Lacey, who served a combined 48 years in the grounds department before retiring in Collegedale, the arbor, complete with swing, is located on the slope between Wright Hall and Thatcher Hall.

- Dr. George Babcock, professor of education, has been elected secretary of the Tennessee Association of Independent Colleges of Teacher Education, as well as president of the 400-member Chattanooga area Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, the fraternity for professional educators.

- Dr. Bruce Ashton, a 27-year music faculty member at Southern, received the Distinguished Service Medallion during commencement. In addition to his keyboard teaching and composing, he has played with the Southern College Symphony for about 20 years. WSMC-FM has carried his programs of religious classical music interspersed with readings for nine years.

- Earl Evans, food service director at Southern since 1977, also received the Distinguished Service Medallion. He was recognized for blessing thousands of lives with his skill in transforming common food into satisfying menus. "His banquets have become almost legendary," according to Evans' citation.

- Four new teachers for 1995-96 are alumni returning: Connie Hunt, '74, and her husband, Dr. Philip Hunt, '74, nursing; and Dr. Bruce Norman, '81, religion; Heather Williams Neal, '92, health, physical education, and recreation. Joan dos Santos is joining the English Department faculty and her husband, Dr. Alberto dos Santos, will be teaching psychology. Dr. Jared Bruckner will teach computer science and work in Software Technology.

HELEN PYKE HONORED WITH ZAPARA AWARD

During May commencement President Don Sahly presented Helen Godfrey Pyke with the 1995 Zapara Award for Undergraduate Teaching Excellence. Along with this recognition, she received $1,500—a $1,000 gift from Thomas and Violet Zapara supplemented by $500 from Southern College. An associate professor of English, she directs the campus-wide writing program and is the author of over a dozen books, two of which are new to bookstores in 1995.

"I never teach a class without seeing students produce work of which I would be very proud to claim authorship. Most of my students do not aspire to be creative writers; however, I believe that all of them can learn to become more effective in their chosen professions because they learn to write clearly, compellingly, and memorably," she says.

Mrs. Pyke joined the faculty in 1987. She is active in the Conference on Christianity and Literature, an association of college and university English teachers whose specific interest is the influence of Christianity found in literature. Her personal experience with dyslexia has given her special skill in helping students with learning differences.

Zapara Awards were established by Thomas and Violet Zapara in 1988 to recognize distinguished teaching in Adventist schools.

At Rest

Helen Vernell "Nell" (Sanders) Bennett succumbed to cancer on May 23, 1995. She and her husband, Doug, moved to Collegedale in 1962 after serving in pastorates in Georgia, Alabama, and Tennessee. For over 25 years employees at Southern could count on Nell to have payroll ready on time. Last summer she dedicated her own vacation time to teaching English in Rostov, Russia, while her husband held classes for pastors. Other survivors include two daughters, Cynthia Spears, '78, and Judy Shoemaker, and seven grandchildren. She sleeps in Collegedale Memorial Park until Jesus comes.

Elsie (Long) Watt, 91, died May 31, 1995, in Elizabeth City, N.C. While her late husband, Alfred L. Watt, taught physics and mathematics at Southern in the 1960s, she was in charge of campus mail service and purchasing. She also was a music teacher. The Watts had previously worked at Plainview and Indiana academies and Helderberg College in South Africa. Her son, Donald, of Durham, N.C., survives. A graveside service was held in Collegedale Memorial Park.
