YAPC

Are you curious about what these letters stand for? Before we give you the answer, try answering the following questions:

- Did you attend or graduate from Southern College of Seventh-day Adventists or Southern Missionary College anytime in the last twenty years?
- Do you have any ideas of how to increase educational, spiritual, or career awareness for students attending Southern College?
- Are you interested in being involved in group projects ranging from establishing a job placement program to arranging an assembly program for Southern Students?
- Are you excited about being a member of an active organization where all members' opinions and ideas are sought? Only you decide how much time and involvement you can contribute.
- Are you interested in networking and making friends among people with similar goals?

If you answered Yes to any of the above questions, then Y(Young) A(Alumni) P(Presidential) C(Consultants) at Southern College of Seventh-day Adventists might just be what you are looking for.

During the spring of 1990, Southern College President Don Sahly called for a meeting of young alumni to consult with on various academic, social, and spiritual issues. He wanted to create an avenue where recent graduates could express their ideas and concerns about Southern College. The idea grew and YAPC was officially organized with elected officers in October of 1990. The first founding officer of the organization was Dave Cress. His leadership was followed by the creative presidency of Melanie Graves. The current administration is being led by the dynamic presidency of Greg Vital. The YAPC works closely with the Alumni Office, which is directed by Dr. Jim Ashlock.

Young Alumni representatives have been involved in many different areas of the college. Melanie Graves, past president, has been part of the Strategic Planning Committee, which has had significant input in the long-range planning of our college. YAPC members have also had the opportunity to meet with senior class and Student Association officers throughout the school years. Through participation on YAPC and these other committees, your viewpoint can be an important piece of the future of Southern College of Seventh-day Adventists.

If being a part of the YAPC team interests you, and the future of Southern College of Seventh-day Adventists catches your attention, please talk with the Alumni Office at (423) 238-2827 or with any of the officers.

FIRST

LONG-TERM CARE • PROGRAM • TO WIN • APPROVAL • IN NATION

Southern's Long-Term Care degree is the first in the nation to be approved by the Board of Governors of the National Association of Boards of Examiners for Nursing Home Administrators.

This academic program, formally approved on November 3, prepares students to take over the helm of a nursing home right after graduation. Thirty-five students are enrolled this year in the Long-Term Care B.S. major offered within the Department of Business Administration. Dan Rozell, associate professor of business administration at Southern, is the program director.

The National Association of Boards of Examiners for Nursing Home Administrators chose Southern as the first college to be evaluated and visited the campus in July. "If there is a better program in the nation, we don't know where it is!" a visiting team member commented.

The NAB gives the licensing tests which qualify nursing home administrators in all 50 states.

Southern College has teamed up with several long-term health care corporations so that students have the advantage of direct contact with working professionals in the classroom and during on-the-job internships. •

READY

For the New Century

Confronted with
21st century challenges,

Southern's Department of Education and Psychology has initiated some highly innovative changes. The former computer lab has been transformed into a high-tech 21st Century Classroom that is attracting educators from across the nation.

Over 400 visitors including 40 administrators and teachers from public schools have viewed the computer-generated presentation in the new facility since its October opening. Guests also toured the Teaching Materials Center and were informed about the new master's programs in education that Southern is launching next summer.

The idea for the 21st Century Classroom was born when Tennessee's Department of Education decided to require schools and teacher training programs to set up high-tech classrooms. Research showed that such classrooms pay off in faster learning, improved student grades, and higher standardized test scores.

On receiving the directive, Dr. George Babcock, Southern's Ed/Psych Department chairman, and Professor Jon Green, director of the department computer center, began at once to contact various technology companies, presenting plans for a high-tech classroom and soliciting donations and partnerships. The classroom is now nearly complete, thanks to Southern, McKee Foods Corporation, and business/education partnerships with 14 corporations who agreed to assist in keeping the technology lab updated with free or low-cost materials in exchange for introducing students and visitors to their products.

The 21st Century Classroom contains 24 MPC Pentium 90 computers housed in custom-built desks. Recessed video screens are viewed through a glass desktop, and ergonomic keyboards emerge from inside the desks. From a control panel the teacher can monitor each computer. Student responses from key pads are automatically recorded in the teacher's computerized grade book. Virtual reality glasses enable teachers to take students on field trips without ever leaving the classroom.

The left front of the classroom is complete with a nine-panel video wall that is able to display satellite broadcasts originating on the other side of the world. From these, language and social studies classes learn quickly about foreign cultures. Next to the video screen is an electronic chalkboard on which the teacher "writes" with only a finger. At the right front of the classroom a projection screen displays images through equipment that descends from the ceiling.

Through Internet computer-links with classrooms across the world, Southern College students will be able to tutor pupils in other schools. Surround sound enhances learning. Specialized projectors display everything from 3D objects to microscope slides.

In cooperation with Home Study International, PLATO 2000 programs for computer-assisted learning as well as diagnosis and remediation are available on all levels from Grade 1 to college.

One of five sites designated for inservice training of Tennessee state teachers, Southern College's 21st Century Classroom will enable teachers to become Information Systems Managers. This is especially vital in view of the prediction that by the year 2010 the world's knowledge base will double every 70 days.

Across the hall, at the Teaching Materials Center, visitors marvel at the teaching aids available for today's instructors. The Ellison letter cutters are in constant use. Over 8,000 textbooks line the bookshelves, and cupboards hold hands-on items from foreign artifacts to math manipulatives. Learning games, patterns, and bulletin board ideas are readily available. Projection machines allow teachers to preview filmstrips, slides, laser disks, or videos before presentation.

The Teaching Materials Center is open to students, staff, and the public. High school teachers, librarians, and home-schoolers use the facility regularly. Last year more than 4,000 patrons visited the Teaching Materials Center, over 300 of them non-Adventists. The TMC and the 21st Century Classroom provide unprecedented opportunity for community encounters.

The offering of Master of Science in Education degrees (M.S.Ed.) has to be the biggest change in the Ed/Psych Department. The master's degrees will be offered in three areas beginning in the summer of '96. The three areas are Multiage/Multigrade Teaching, Inclusive Education (for differently abled children within a regular classroom), and Outdoor Teacher Education.

Since many SDA elementary schools have multigrade classrooms, the first two degrees will be especially welcome. The last degree, requested by the NAD Youth Ministries, reinforces Adventist emphasis on nature as a revelation of God.

Southern College's Education and Psychology Department anticipates the new century with enthusiasm. Educators love a challenge! *

Information provided by the Department of Education and Psychology

- Dr. Carl Swafford, '75, assistant professor of education, successfully defended his dissertation, Developing a Model for Using the Outdoor Laboratory in Elementary School Science, at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville on November 9. Dr. Swafford joined the faculty in 1992.
- Ann Greer and Ron Miller, '94, have joined the faculty at McKee Library. Ann holds a master's degree in library science. Her assignments include directing circulation and interlibrary loans and assisting with reference. Ron is systems manager.
- Twelve students participated in the 1995 summer field school of evangelism coordinated by Ron Clouzet in Jacksonville, Fla. Another eight gained real-life training in evangelism earlier in the year during a field school held concurrently with the Net '95 crusade in Chattanooga. Two field schools are also planned for 1996.
- For sharing her thoughts on "What Is Right with the USA," Anna May (Warner) Hillyer, a senior history major, received a $1,000 Walter Hunter Stamper Jr. Award. The late Mr. Stamper was known for his talks throughout Tennessee on this topic.
- Dr. David Ekkens, professor of biology, won a 1995 EdPress award for his article on the use of animals in Adventist schools. The "best-of-category: feature" article appeared in the Summer 1994 issue of the Journal of Adventist Education.
- Dr. Tim Korson, director of the Software Technology Center at Southern College, spoke this year in Tel Aviv, Israel, and Munich, Germany, at conferences related to object-oriented software. COMSOFT, sponsor of the Software Technology Department at Southern College, is planning its second conference dedicated to object technology for April 1996 in Atlanta.
- Cancer at 3AM, a new book by Helen Pyke, associate professor of English, has just been published, with another, The Liberation of Allyson Brown, due for spring release from Review & Herald.

- Gerald Peel, '90, has been appointed WSMC-FM general manager. After working at the radio station while a student, he was employed full time there from August 1985 to May 1989, then returned to school. Since graduating, he was employed locally in computerized machining and as minister of music at a church in Rossville. He has played trombone with the Southern College Symphony since 1989.
- A new teacher on the Orlando campus is Dusanka Hristic, assistant professor of nursing. The B.S. nursing program is offered by Southern in three Florida locations.
- Dr. Norman Gulley completed three book manuscripts this year. The Truth As It

Is in Jesus is a 300-page presentation of the 27 SDA fundamentals in light of Christ. Christ Our Refuge in Final Events will accompany the senior Sabbath School quarterly he already wrote for third quarter 1996. Systematic Theology: Volume I, Prolegomena is a 500-page textbook laying out the basis for a theological system which sees the cosmic controversy as the ultimate context in which to understand all else.

- Dr. Pam Harris, '75, was one of two recipients of the American Society of Information Science 1995 Doctoral Forum Award for the best doctoral study in the field. Her dissertation dealt with use of the information superhighway to predict major issues.

HE WAS A FRIEND

O. D. McKEE, 1905-1995

The death of O. D. McKee, 90, on Friday, October 27, marked the end of an era. This 1928 graduate of Southern was known not only throughout Tennessee but the nation for Little Debbie® Snack Cakes. The community and business world will miss his leadership, though his entrepreneurial example remains.

O. D. McKee was a member of the Southern College board of trustees from 1965-72, then an honorary member since that time. He also was a member of the Committee of 100. His generosity to the college leaves a lasting mark on the campus. McKee Library is named for him and his family. He also was general chairman of Project 80 which raised funds for Mabel Wood Hall and Brock Hall. Thousands of students have financed their education with work at McKee Foods. His influence continues with his family's suggestion of directing memorial contributions to the Southern College Worthy Student Fund.

He enrolled in 1924 at Southern Junior College. Besides his job as a janitor in Lynn Wood Hall (where he met his future wife, Ruth King), he worked in the men's dormitory, cut hair, and sold books in the summers to pay his own way. He completed three years of high school and two years of junior college in four years, in spite of dyslexia.

Later, he combined his education, determination, and innovation to cofound a business which has become McKee Foods Corporation, America's largest snack cake manufacturer. The company has been a neighbor of Southern since 1957.

The funeral was held in the Collegedale SDA Church, with music provided by the Southern College Symphony Orchestra and soloist Julie Boyd-Penner.

His second wife, Thelma Roberson McKee; two sons, Ellsworth and Jack; and a daughter, Beth Alexander, survive, along with 11 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren. His first wife of 61 years and longtime business partner, Ruth; and a daughter, Wynn Stevens, preceded him in death.

SOUTHERN PARTICIPATES IN FESTIVAL ORGAN SERIES

Southern College played a major part in celebrating 2000 years of the pipe organ when Festival Organ: King of Instruments began its first of eight stops nationwide in Chattanooga on December 2.

Five performances in the festival took place using the Anton Heiller Organ in the Collegedale Church, including Organ Evensong on December 2 and 9, and January 13. Also on January 13, a Discovery Concert was held with Michael Barone of American Public Radio's Pipedreams moderating. Then on January 19, the Southern College Symphony Orchestra performed with Judy Glass, professor of music, on the organ.

An article about Festival Organ in the December issue of Southern Living includes a full-color photo of Collegedale's Anton Heiller Organ.

The festival, which featured an interactive exhibition and organ conversations, in addition to discovery concerts and recitals, ran through January 26 in Chattanooga at the Hunter Museum of American Art and other area locations. It was produced by The Westfield Center of Massachusetts. Other festival sites include Pennsylvania, Utah, California, Oregon, Minnesota, New York, and Massachusetts.

Southern College's Eugene A. Anderson Organ Series was one of the festival presenters. Judy Glass coordinated Southern's participation. She has taught and performed at Southern for 20 years, and currently has 16 organ students. •

TOBACCO HEIR SPEAKS FOR SMOKEFREE SOCIETY

Patrick Reynolds, one of the most influential advocates for a smokefree society and grandson of a tobacco company founder, brought his antismoking message to Southern on November 16, day of the 19th annual Great American Smokeout.

He was invited by Collegiate Adventists for Better Living (CABL), a student-run campus group that promotes a healthy lifestyle. Reynolds' visit was part of CABL Week, organized by Jeane Hernandez, student director. Southern students as well as hundreds of elementary and high school students and members of the media turned out for this big event.

WRCB-Channel 3, WTVC-Channel 9, WDEF-Channel 12, and Chattanooga Free Press attended a press conference with Reynolds and some stayed for his presentation. Early the morning of the presentation Reynolds was interviewed by phone for live broadcast on America's Talking, NBC's all-talk cable subsidiary with 17 million viewers. Then he was a guest for the first half of "Jed and Company," a live local talk show on WRCB-TV.

The American Cancer Society, American Lung Association, and the American Heart Association each set up a display in the back of the gym, handing out anti-smoking materials. "Kiss me. I don't smoke" stickers proved particularly popular. Many students wore blue and signed a petition pledging support for a smokefree society.

Reynolds, who says tobacco use kills more Americans each year than alcohol, heroin, cocaine, fire, auto accidents, homicide, and AIDS combined, knows what he's talking about. He grew up in a family of smokers. His grandfather was R. J. Reynolds, founder of the powerful and wealthy R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company.

Reynolds picked up the smoking habit, too, consuming a pack a day at one time. But he gave it all up (his smoking and his inheritance) after watching his father and eldest brother slowly die from emphysema, caused by smoking the family's brands, Camel and Winston.

Now Reynolds, the founder of "Citizens for a SmokeFree America," travels the country from coast to coast, speaking in schools and in Congress, pushing for a smokefree society by 2000. •

- Above-the-norm scores on the Academic Profile test have been achieved by Southern College students in every area tested. This examination assesses general education in the "knowledge" areas of humanities, social science, and natural science, and the "skills" areas of reading, writing, critical thinking, and math. Southern ranked 7th among the 41 comprehensive colleges and universities participating.
- Southern College is maintaining its commitment to provide quality classical music, news, and cultural programming to the Chattanooga Tri-State area though, as of September 30, WSMC-FM dropped its membership with National Public Radio. The decision to voluntarily resign after 24 years as a charter member preempted NPR's notice of proposed termination which was initiated by a small group of listeners. Over several months local papers published letters, some in support of WSMC and its principles, others critical of college policy to drop NPR programs during Sabbath hours and its efforts not to broadcast offensive segments at any time.
- The National League for Nursing recently granted continuing accreditation for Southern's baccalaureate nursing program, with the next visit scheduled for Spring 2003.
- Official enrollment totals for 1995-96 show 1,591 students signed up for 20,628 hours of class work, for a full-time equivalent of 1,331. Though the FTE is down by 29 from last year, it remains higher than any other year since 1982. The student body represents 47 states and 47 countries.
- The Council on Social Work Education, through its Commission on Accreditation, has granted candidacy status to the baccalaureate degree social work program at Southern College.
- As an outgrowth of Southern's community spirit, an original watercolor of Wright Hall by Susan Cassidy Wilhoit has been presented to Hamilton County. The artwork hangs in a prime location in the main hall of the Hamilton County Courthouse, along with other watercolors of area landmarks by the same artist.

- The planet is being handled more gently at Southern College. Total sales of recyclables have increased each of the past four years. Beginning in 1991-92, sales brought in $2,591. Last year, sales reached $18,253. This year's goal for recyclables sold is $25,000.
- Renovation of the existing 104 resident and guest rooms in the south wing of Thatcher Hall and Conference Center has been completed. A sprinkler system and elevator have been installed. Showers, bathroom lights, fans, ceiling tile, windows, heating and air conditioning units, paint, and carpet are new. The shell is finished for a fourth floor with pitched roof, part of the original 1977 design when only three stories were built. Upon completion, this area will provide 39 additional resident rooms and a meeting room. The main north area of Thatcher Hall has 256 student rooms for women, all of which have been renovated recently.

- Faculty, staff, and students contributed a total of $10,893 for the 1995 United Way Campaign.
- Artistic works by Nikita Fomin and his wife, Irina Safronova, were on view at the Brock Hall Art Gallery for four weeks ending in mid-November. The Russian couple met with classes and faculty. A show of Russian paintings in the collection of Bob Garren, art department chair, began January 21.
- During fall semester, nursing students conducted four Teddy Bear Clinics for 4, 5, and 6-year-olds from four schools. Children brought their teddy bears or dolls to Memorial Hospital in Chattanooga and interacted with students from Southern. The clinics helped the youngsters see health professionals as friends.
- New halogen lights and cushioned flooring have been installed in the Iles Physical Education Center. The new hardwood parquet surface (800,000 pieces of wood) replaced 30-year-old deteriorating flooring. The lights are energy-saving, yet brighter.

STEEL GOES UP FOR HICKMAN SCIENCE CENTER

A crane has punctuated Southern's skyline in recent weeks. Construction of the new Hickman Science Center, a $6 million classroom and laboratory building, is under way.

Named in honor of the parents and family of James W. Hickman, '36, the 62,500 square-foot building will be the new home of the departments of biology, chemistry, computer science and technology, mathematics, and physics. Schaefer Construction of Chattanooga is the builder. Hickman is a retired dentist and developer from Longwood, Fla., who has been described as "a generous and loyal alumnus." His parents, James and Evangeline Hickman, moved into the Collegedale community in 1928. James, Sr., was an active leader of the colporteur work in the Southern Union for many years. Departments anticipate moving to the new facility early in 1997 if weather allows construction as scheduled.

Educating for Eternity

HOMECOMING 95 put the spotlight on educators, those who have taught at Southern over the years and those who caught their enthusiasm for teaching and have gone all over the world as educators.

An open house at the brand new 21st Century Classroom was an example of changes alumni found on the campus (see article on page 4). The rich sound of die Meistersinger, which had its 23-year reunion with director Marvin Robertson, illustrated how some things have stayed the same.

So much went on—from the Thursday evening banquet when K. M. Kennedy was acclaimed all-time favorite teacher, to Sunday morning when honor classes and Young Alumni enjoyed a special breakfast—that space does not allow a full recap. The following photos may help stir memories. Alumni who weren't in Collegedale October 26 to 29 may write or call the Alumni Office at (423) 238-2827 for a copy of the printed program (available while supplies last).

Southern is once again experiencing a pulsation of growth and expansion. The new Hickman Science Center is becoming a campus reality—and not a moment too soon! With explosive growth of enrollment in science courses here at Southern and the rapid increase in technology, we eagerly anticipate the center's completion in 1997.

Although the look of the campus has changed since the days when Southern's buildings were surrounded by barns and pastures, the same rural, small-town atmosphere so conducive to learning and Christianity pervades. The same spiritual attitudes and optimism permeate the campus. The high-quality faculty and academic programs still prepare students to meet the rising challenges of their chosen professions.

As Southern's alumni and friends pass through our doors, they catch a glimpse of our vision for the best preparation of students for future service. Many have expressed their desire to be tangibly involved in helping us achieve this goal.

We want to honor those who have contributed to Southern College, helping to build this fine institution we know today. As a way of recognizing individuals as partners in the development of the college, we have created a new format of recognition.

We extend our heartfelt gratitude to you, our donors, for joining in our vision as we attempt to meet the challenges facing us in the 21st century!

Donald R. Sahly

THANK YOU

The Committee of 100 is in its 33rd year of positive influence for Southern. Through the years accomplishments have been many—numerous student work opportunities, buildings, and additions. Southern is the premier educational facility it is today due in part to the Committee. The value of projects completed exceeds $7 million.

Another exciting project may lie ahead. The single largest project ever undertaken by the Committee, an addition to the Iles Physical Education Center, is proposed to follow completion of the Science Center.

Vital to the success of the Committee of 100 are annual membership dues of $500. Dues serve as "seed money" which grows to many times that amount for investment in the Christian education of our youth.

SUPPORTING SOUTHERN COLLEGE OF SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTISTS THROUGH TRUSTS, WILLS, AND ESTATE GIFTS

The Legacy Society allows Southern to thank friends who have indicated plans for future support through their estates. Knowing that their example may encourage others to stand with them to form an even firmer foundation for the college, these friends graciously allow their names to be listed in the official roster of the Legacy Society.

Deuteronomy 6:10-11 tells of being "heirs of...cities you did not build, and houses full of all good things which you did not fill..." It well describes the fortunate students who enter the doors of Southern into four years which shape the rest of their lives.

Members of Southern's Legacy Society attempt to ensure that our house will always be filled with good things, as it was by the benefactors who came before us. Our mission is to build upon the foundation laid by our forebears, and to honor them by following their tradition of thoughtful philanthropy.

We hope that as you are able, you'll join with other members of the society and plan for the future excellence of Southern. If Southern is in your plans and you are willing to be recognized, please contact the Office of Planned Giving. You may remain anonymous, if you wish.

During this giving period $331,144 was received by Southern through members of the Legacy Society.
